MONTREAL CARDINAL TORONTO BRANTFORD VANCOUVER

EVERY merchant's back shop tells the story of stickers---things that sold well for a time and then went flat.

You know what they have been in your case, don't you---and you don't need to look them over to find that "SURPRISE" Soap isn't on the list.

"SURPRISE" has been a good seller from the very first.

And every year it is getting harder for the man who sells a substitute to do any business at all. He finds that women simply won't listen to his argument about soaps that for the minute pay him a better profit---they've tried that kind before---and why should they when "SURPRISE" value is the best in the world?

THE NEW MILL AT 1000 ALBERT STREET, MONTREAL

Registered Trade-Mark

¶ For over 131 years these well-known preparations have been made only at the company's mills (the largest in the world) at Dorchester, Mass., U.S.A. In order to keep pace with the rapidly increasing demand for its goods in the Dominion of Canada and the British Provinces, a large mill has been put in operation in Montreal.

¶ With the finest possible equipment of modern machinery, with the accumulated experience of more than a century and a quarter in the selection and blending of cocoa beans and by the employment of a perfect mechanical process of manufacture, consumers and dealers are assured that the uniformity of quality and delicacy of flavor which have made these goods the standards of the world will be maintained.

¶ To facilitate the distribution of goods, selling offices are located at Montreal, Winnipeg and Vancouver.

We guarantee the absolute purity of these goods under the pure food laws of Canada

Contain More—Cost Less

These four words are strong selling points for the brands that give your customer more quality and more quantity for their money.

"Simcoe" Brand Baked Beans

3's FAMILY SIZE, ALSO SUPPLIED IN FOLLOWING BRANDS :

Red Cross, Canada First and Quaker

are hand picked beans, prepared by a special process and packed solid, either Plain or with Chili Sauce; the sauces and spices used are chosen with exceeding care as to flavor and purity.

"Red Cross" beans are supplied also in 1's, 2's, 3's flats and 3's tall, making a size to suit large or small families and hotels. The green label on the top of every can tells your customer that it contains more beans to the can than 3's flat sold at higher prices.

Now that the season for canned goods is here, push and profit thereby by selling "Red Cross" brand Pork and Beans.

Dominion Canners, Limited

When you buy

Meyer's Currants

You get

The very best fruit of its grade produced—packed loose in the case to insure it reaching you unbroken and unbruised, and double screened to remove the immature and withered berries. The removal of these undersized currants makes a vast improvement in appearance and flavor which your customers will appreciate. When you sell Meyer's Currants, your customers will come back for more. It is wonderful how a difference in quality will increase the consumption of currants in your trade, and with more sales come better profits.

Remember the name "MEYER" and pay no attention to "Fancy Brands."

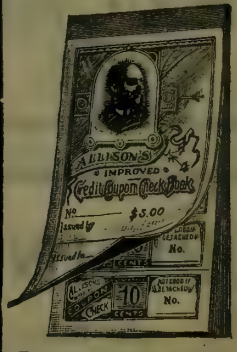
Do You Sell on Credit?



Do you have the usual trouble with collections, "bad accounts," friction with customers and frequent loss of both customer and money?

Then you need

Allison Coupon Books

They will stop the leaks, keep up collections, forestall arguments, please the customer.

HERE'S HOW THEY WORK

A man wants credit. You think he is good. Give him a $10 Allison Coupon Book. Have him sign the receipt or note form in the front of the book, which you tear out and keep. Charge him with $10.—No trouble. When he buys a dime's worth, tear off a ten-cent coupon, and so on until the book is used. Then he pays the $10 and gets another book. No pass books, no charging, no lost time, no errors, no disputes. Allison Coupon Books are recognized everywhere as the best.

For sale by the jobbing trade everywhere. Manufactured by Allison Coupon Company, Indianapolis, Ind.

Ontario Wholesalers Discuss Reforms

Their Annual Convention Commences Under Most Auspicious Circumstances, and There was a Representative Attendance—President's Stirring Message—Report on Declaration System for Manufacturers, and the Strong Position Taken Against Possible Violation—The Talk on Uniform Selling Plan—A Plan for More Businesslike Methods—Resolutions—The New Officers.

(Staff correspondence.)

Toronto, Ont., July 6.—Fifty wholesale grocery houses, spread over the territory between Ottawa and Fort William, and Windsor and North Bay, were represented at the annual three-day convention of the Ontario Wholesale Grocers' Guild which convened at the King Edward Hotel here on Tuesday morning. Representatives of the manufacturing and retailing sections were there as well, and the assemblage combined to make up the most important gathering of the trade held in Canada during the year.

Matters of vital interest to everybody interested in the distribution and sale of foodstuffs were discussed. The speeches had been carefully prepared and there was exhibited an intense desire to secure from each the best results for the entire trade.

One of the most important subjects that came up was that dealing with the declaration system for manufacturers, and it provoked considerable discussion.

The delegates were somewhat late in arriving. The conference waited for the arrival of trains from the West. President Smye and H. C. Beckett, of Hamilton, Ont., were on the ground early, bewailing the fact that the members, especially those from Toronto, refused to come in at the appointed hour. There were about twenty men present, however, when the President called the gathering to order at 11.30 a.m.

"There are matters coming before the attention of this meeting that should make it vital for members to be present at the meeting. There has been a tremendous amount of work done, and, accordingly, the lukewarmness of some of the trade is appalling."

Letters were read from Albert Beckman, Secy. National Wholesale Grocers' Assn. of the United States, and from the firm of Hudon, Hebert & Co., Montreal. The Chairman, in mentioning this latter letter, paid a glowing eulogium upon the character of the late Albert Hebert, and Hugh Blain, Toronto, H. C. Beckett, Hamilton, W. G. Craig, Kingston, were appointed a committee to draw up a resolution of condolence to go to the family of the deceased merchant.

On motion of Hugh Blain, the minutes of the last meeting were taken as read. The financial report was then presented, showing disbursements of $4,124.27. Thos. Kinnear, Toronto, and R. J. Carson, Kingston, Ont., had a few questions to ask regarding some of the items, but on motion of Hugh Blain, the minutes were adopted. Mr. Carson wanted to know something about the expense of getting out the address given last year by E. F. B. Johnston, K.C., on the Secret Commission Act, and the rights of manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers. The chairman gave it as his opinion that the distribution of the address was worth ten times the amount it had cost them. H. C. Beckett, fully concurred with this, as did Mr. Blain, and the former said that he thought the setting forth by the lawyer of the rights of the parties concerned was of incalculable benefit to the trade. The wholesalers, or some of them, had not known before he spoke, just where they stood in the matter. Mr. Carson seconded the adoption of the report.

Mr. Smye then addressed the meeting on the advisability of appointing a permanent secretary to give his entire time to the work of the Guild. The country was growing so fast and the work was becoming so heavy that this move was necessary in his opinion. Mr. Beckett, Mr. Kinnear and Mr. Craig were then appointed a nominating committee.

As more delegates had come into the meeting it was decided to have the President give his address before the luncheon. It was as follows:—

THE PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

"We have called this Ontario Wholesale Grocers' Guild together to confer on trade matters and to transact business and create reforms, not only for our personal advantage, but for the common good of the grocery trade of the country, and in order to accomplish results that will be to our mutual advantage it will require your undivided attention throughout the whole Convention. You owe this to your individual business as well as to the trade at large, and also to those whom you have appointed to office to carry on the work of the Guild. Your officers have given their time unsparingly and have, we think, made progress along the lines laid down at our last convention, and many reforms have been accomplished through the efforts of the Manufacturers' Committee, all of which will be reported at this Convention, and you will see that many thousands of dollars have been saved to you through their work, all of which should thoroughly convince you of the importance of the Association and spur you to help on the work individually by backing up the Guild Officers in all matters brought before you from time to time.

The Difficulties.

"The greatest difficulty we have to contend with is that the members do not take a broad view of many matters brought before them—they look at the individual rather than the general result and hesitate to make a temporary sacrifice to gain a perpetual benefit. This is demonstrated often in our dealings with manufacturers and they trade on this weakness whereby the whole trade suffers.

"There are many houses who have made sacrifices and are still making them hoping for better things, and they will eventually receive their reward.

Plan for Eliminations.

"Now with reference to houses who are still conducting their business along dishonorable lines—there are not many such, but there are some and they are well-known, and it is hoped that this convention will not disperse without formulating a complete plan towards eliminating dishonorable methods from the wholesale grocery business, and we feel that we can do so if we stick together. We have the laws on our statute book protecting us, and subject to the approbation of the trade a plan will be submitted for your discussion which will put a stop to secret rebating and other dishonorable methods. I do not want to trespass on the report of the manufacturers' committee, which report will be the kernel of all subjects for discussion, and as a member of that committee, know what a lot of work has been done and also the results attained. The lion's share of the work, however, has fallen on H. C. Beckett, for whose zeal and sacrifices the grocery trade of Canada can never repay or fully appreciate and we hope that his guiding hand will be with us for many years to carry on the good work.

Results of Education.

"At our convention last year many instructive papers were read and discussed. These were of an educational character and have borne good fruit, as to-day you rarely find a manufacturer adopting a quantity price or selling to large retailers at wholesale prices, which was a common practice heretofore and most unfair to the great body of retailers throughout the country. Our association with the committee of retailers has also been productive of some good and a better understanding, and I think that this convention should confer with the Retail Merchants' Association and see what can be done to increase their membership. It is most important that both retailer and jobber should stick closely together to fight the dangers which assail the trade, and it is not only our duty to assist them to increase their membership but to ask their assistance towards keeping trade in the proper recognized channels which are from the manufacturer to the jobber—to the retailer—to the consumer. We have frequent complaints from the retailer that some jobbers are trespassing on their right of selling to consumers, such as boarding houses, small restaurants, etc., and it is in the interests of the legitimate trade to look well into this side of the question and play fair with the retail trade, as on the other side, we think it grossly unfair for the manufacturer to sell the retailer. Let us consider this vital point—The retailer must be protected or the whole structure will be destroyed and we will drift into the troubles experienced in England and United States, of Chain Stores, Buying Exchanges, etc.

Watch Financial End.

"The trade of Canada has been prospering for a few years back and in consequence, bad debts have not been heavy, but we have no guarantee how long it will last. It is always prudent to keep a watchful eye on the financial end of the business, and it is strange that we do not discuss this side of the business more than we do at our conventions. You will note that we will have the pleasure of hearing Henry Detchon, of the Canadian Credit Men's Association, and hope that every financial man of our various firms will be present to hear him outline the system of "The Clearing House," of which I am, personally, a strong advocate, my firm having already experienced its benefits in other provinces.

Uniform Terms.

"There are other special features on our programme to which special attention is directed and which you are expected to seriously consider and be prepared to discuss intelligently as they are most important. I refer to Uniform Selling Contracts and Declarations, Uniform Terms and Methods of Invoicing, and the Secret Commission's Act, all of which you have been specially written about and hope that every member will come fully primed on these subjects.

U.S.A. Supreme Court Decision.

"The profits of the jobber have not increased to the extent that the expense of doing business has in the last few years, yet there are houses who sell many lines of goods without any profit whatever—They cannot know what it costs them to do their business. Price-cutting and unbusinesslike methods that creep into trade are in restraint of trade and should be vigorously dealt with by the trade, both wholesale and retail. In the verdict of the Supreme Court of the United States it was decided that business organizations that create a degree of monopoly by pursuing ordinary business methods are not guilty of an offence against the law, and that is what our own Guild judgment teaches, so if we will only stick together and be loyal to each other and be loyal to loyal manufacturers, we will make the grocery business a thing of beauty and a joy for ever.

F. T. SMYE.

His Presidential Message Was Highly Commended.

"I will not trespass further on your time. We have a lot of work to do, and hope each member will do his share and take part in all matters brought up for discussion. The work of the Guild falls rather heavily on your officers who sacrifice their time in your interests and hope the time is near when you will again appoint a secretary to carry on the work.

"You have my sincere thanks for the honor you have done me by appointing me to the office of President, and I thank you for your co-operation and many kindnesses, and ask for my successor the same consideration."

Discussion on Report.

Hugh Blain, in discussing this report, pointed out that conditions were much better now than they were, and the wholesalers were now more entrenched in their legitimate position in the chain of distribution. A gradual charge of front on the part of the manufacturers had been the result of the activity of the Guild. The wholesalers had been bettered and the retailers as well. The latter had derived great advantages through the carrying out of the work of the Guild and it should be seen that the proper methods of handling of goods now obtaining, should be preserved. Mr. Smye had given them much food for thought during the coming year and he moved with pleasure the adoption of the address. W. G. Craig, of Kingston, seconded the motion.

Mr. Beckett also had a few words to say. To his knowledge, there never was a meeting of the manufacturers' committee but Mr. Smye had been present. He always sacrificed himself for the benefit of the trade generally, and he felt they had never had a president who took such a keen interest in the matter as had Mr. Smye.

Mr. F. W. Humphrey then moved the following resolution dealing with the protection of the wholesaler by the manufacturer:—

"It is resolved that more loyalty to the association of the Ontario Wholesale Grocers' Guild would materially advance the interests of the wholesale grocery trade and that to be loyal to the Association, it is necessary that the members thereof exercise care in the buying of proprietory articles by refusing to buy new lines unless satisfied that the manufacturer is going to offer them what, in their opinion, would be reasonable protection both against price-cutting and also having regard to the margin allowed." R. Carson seconded this.

Resolution of Condolence.

The following resolution dealing with the sad death of Albert Hebert, in Lucerne, Switzerland, was then unanimously adopted:

"It is with profound sorrow that we have heard of the death, under such sad circumstances, abroad, of our late esteemed president, Albert Hebert. His honor, zeal, wisdom and energy displayed while representing The Dominion Grocers' Guild as its president, will long remain in the memory of the guild members and have a lasting influence for good. The Ontario Guild desires to tender its sincere sympathy to the members of the late Mr. Hebert's firm, also to the members of his family, and that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to his firm and to his bereaved family in their great and melancholy loss."

The meeting then adjourned for lunch at which the delegates were the guests of the Hamilton trade.

TUESDAY AFTERNOON.

At 2.45 p.m. the members again assembled for business. The opening feature was the presentation of a criticism of a recent decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in the Dr. Miles' Medical Company suit. The address follows:—

Hugh Blain's Address.

"The Trade in Canada is deeply interested in the recent decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in the case of the 'Miles' Medical Company,' vs. 'John D. Park & Sons Co.' in the matter of selling proprietary goods at fixed prices, because judgments in the United States Courts are frequently quoted by, and have a decided influence upon the action of our Canadian Courts.

"It may be considered out of place for one in business to review or criticize a decision of the Supreme Court of the United States. In discussing the matter with one of our most prominent members of the Bar, he said that judgments of this nature frequently involved as much business as law. A just judgment in all the affairs of life, is ethically the legitimate fruition of the application of common sense. Now, common justice, common law, and common sense, are essentially a triple alliance, bound together for the good of the human race, and where these essentials do not fully prevade a legal decision, the judgment cannot be a righteous one. These legal decisions are intended to guide and govern the people, and it therefore behooves us to study and discuss them, so that they may be understood and practiced in the concerns of daily life.

Legal Ingenuity Displayed.

"The case under consideration appears to have been one that should never have been taken into court. The plaintiff company endeavored to force the terms of a contract on the defendant company, which had not only refused to sign the contract, but had declared its business policy to be entirely opposed to the conditions. The contract itself, claiming goods to be still on consignement, after accepting payment for them in full, appears to be a most arbitrary document, and in its preparation displays greater legal ingenuity than honest effort to lay down straightforward business methods. It prohibits selling except to specially mentioned parties, and on the face of it, bears the impress of a restraint in trade. The intention and also the effect of this agreement, had it been legal, were to restrict sales to a selected class, under any and all conditions. This appears to be not only in restraint of trade, but wrong in principle. The true principle is to extend the same privileges to all, unless such privileges have been abused, but to confine the compensation to those who conform to the conditions the manufacturer imposes for the proper distribution of his goods. If a manufacturer, in placing an article of commerce on the market, desires to fix prices at which the goods are to be sold to the wholesaler, the retailer, and the consumer, as the best means of distributing in his own interests, he should have the right to do so, if the conditions are reasonable. Arbitrary methods are not, however, the best means of enforcing such a plan.

The Canadian Plan.

"The plan adopted by the Canadian manufacturer is more in keeping with modern ideas. It is altogether better to hold out the olive branch and extend the privileges of selling to all, but recompense only those who agree to, and carry out the manufacturers' conditions. For example, the manufacturer sells to the wholesaler at the price which the wholesaler is required to sell to the retailer, and at the end of a stated period gives the wholesaler a rebate, as compensation, providing the prices and terms have been carried out. But if the wholesaler has abused his privileges and has not adhered to the conditions, then the rebate is withheld, and further supplies stopped, with the result that the wholesaler, who sells for less than the proper price, loses all his rebate and just as much more as he cuts the price under the actual cost of the goods to him, and is also deprived of getting a further supply. We arrived at the knowledge of whether the wholesaler has adhered to the prices and terms by requiring him to give a declaration if there is a suspicion that he has not adhered to the conditions of the contract. A form of agreement will be submitted to you at this meeting, which we regard as the most up-to-date contract we have seen and which we are sure will give fairly good satisfaction."

The Declaration.

"You will observe that the wholesaler agrees with the manufacturer to act as the distributor of his goods, and to sell them at fixed prices, and on stipulated terms. He also agrees, whenever requested by the manufacturer, if he has not violated the contract, to give a declaration under oath to that effect. If he has violated the contract, the presumption is that he will refuse, and a refusal to give such a declaration is taken as equivalent to an admission of guilt, and operates automatically as an absolute violation. On the other hand, if he takes the declaration after having violated the contract, he commits perjury, and places himself in a position altogether too serious for me to enter into, or discuss here to-day. The manufacturer, in case of a refusal to take the declaration, withholds the rebate that would otherwise be given to the wholesaler, and exercises the right to refuse to supply him with further goods unless satisfactory assurances are given for a proper observance of the contract for the future. Such an agreement might not be effective in regulating the sale of a small item like a proprietary medicine, for which there is not a general demand, but it is effective in governing the sale of staple proprietary articles in constant demand by the public. Especially is the 'REFUSAL TO SELL'—'REBATE WITHHOLDING' — 'VOLUNTARY DECLARATION' plan effective when it has been adopted for several lines of goods, and has become a recognized system. No reputable wholesale distributor can afford to be without a reasonable number of important staple articles of commerce in his special line of trade, and our experience is that the houses who most loudly asserted that they would never sign such a contract, are among the first to put their names down when they find themselves squarely up against the actual conditions of either signing or not getting the goods.

System Powerful Deterrent.

"Unfortunately there is always a small percentage of crooked houses or crooked salesmen in every line of business, but we find that the system is a powerful deterrent and since it has been introduced here, business conditions have been much improved. The decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in this case has put the whole of the Trade of both the United States and Canada in a false position, and has given the impression to the world that there is no legitimate plan or system by which a manufacturer can have his goods sold at stipulated prices and terms. In my opinion, the contrary is the case. The decision of the Supreme Court on the plaintiff's principal claim would appear to endorse this view. Chief Justice Hughes, in delivering the judgment said:

> "Whatever right the manufacturer may have to project his control beyond his own sales must depend, not upon an inherent power incident to production and original ownership, but upon agreement."

and further on he says:

"To sustain the restraint it must be found to be reasonable both with respect to the public and to the parties, and it is limited to what is fairly necessary in the circumstances of the particular case for the protection of the covenantee, otherwise restraints of trade are void as against public policy."

Claimed Only Principle.

"In so far as the grocery trade is concerned, we have never claimed beyond this principle, that we should have the right to fix prices at figures that would afford us a reasonable profit, and give the public a reasonable service.

"From a former decision of the courts, he quotes as follows:

"But there are exceptions. Restraints of trade and interference with individual liberty of action may be justified by the special circumstances of a particular case. It is a sufficient justification and indeed it is the only justification if the restriction is reasonable—reasonable that is, in reference to the interests of the parties concerned and reasonable in reference to the interests of the public, so framed and so guarded as to afford adequate protection to the party in whose favor it is imposed, while at the same time it is in no way injurious to the public."

Should be Commission.

"I may say here that we have never claimed the right to fix prices on any other basis than the above. On the contrary, we have urged strongly that there should be a permanent commission appointed by the Dominion Government, with authority to examine into, and approve of such fixed prices as might be imposed by the manufacturer on proprietary articles, so that the prices would be such as would afford proper protection to all parties concerned, the manufacturer, the wholesaler, the retailer, and the consumer.

"Our system is perhaps not yet perfect, but is being gradually developed and improved, and it is, on the whole, working well, and is fair and just to all concerned, the manufacturer, the distributor, and the consumer, and the individual right to carry out such a contract is so clear and unmistakable that it is, beyond question, perfectly legal.

One Court Decision.

"Sir Glenholme Falconbridge, C.J., of the King's Bench Division of our High Court of Justice, in what is known as the 'Grocers' Guild Case,' quoting from Lord Herschell, says:

"If it be intended to assert that an act not otherwise wrongful, always becomes so, if it interferes with another's trade or employment, and needs to be excused or justified, I say that such a proposition in my opinion has no solid foundation to rest upon."

and quoting from "Eddy on Combination" says:

"The right of a combination of dealers to advance their own interests by mutually agreeing that they would not deal with any manufacturer or wholesale dealer, who should sell directly to their customers, has been broadly upheld."

HUGH BLAIN.
Whose Address Was Listened to With Interest.

and says as his own opinion:

"The various cases of alleged oppression and 'driving out of trade' of persons who either openly or by some ingenious device, aim to belong to the Wholesale Trade, and at the same time to sell at retail, are thus easily understood. If this system were to be practiced, it would injuriously effect and demoralize the Trade, not only of the Wholesaler, but of the Retailer, and the Consumer would certainly not be better off in the long run."

Travesty on Justice.

"There is one feature in connection with this recent judgment of the Supreme Court of the United States to which every business man will take exception on the grounds of common sense, if not on legal grounds. That the Court should give the defendant the right to deface by obliterating the serial numbers, is a traversity on justice, even if the performance is by the Supreme Court of the United States. When a proprietary article is placed on the market, and becomes an article of commerce, it should retain its identity unimpaired, otherwise it will lose much of its value, and it is in the interests of the public, as well as in the interests of the producer, that it should be kept exactly as it was made until it reaches the consumer.

Tampering With Goods.

"In cases of mistakes, or malicious tampering with the goods, these serial numbers are most important in tracing the wrong back to the party responsible. Where a means of discovery of what, in my opinion, may have been a crime, is denied, public confidence is seriously disturbed. The views of the court in bestowing such a privilege could not have been given on high moral grounds, because the effect was to conceal the identity of the intermediary who had evidently violated a contract, voluntarily entered into, and who, whether the contract was legal or not, was guilty of a dishonorable act in evading the terms of an agreement by such a subterfuge. The destruction of these serial numbers prevented the discovery of the wholesaler who would have been liable under what he regarded a legal contract, which he had signed, and who was evidently afraid to come out into the open and do an honorable business, and hence had either taken off the numbers or had been in collusion with the defendant, who had done so. This is poor business ethics, and it was not creditable to the Supreme Court of the United States to dismiss this claim apparently without consideration, as merely incidental to the plaintiff's main contention in the case. There are numerous instances in business where it would be altogether impracticable to obliterate these serial numbers. For example, where they are put inside of the packages of such goods as cereals, spices, etc., it would be impossible to disturb these numbers without rendering the article unsalable.

Is Dishonesty Prevalent?

"The decision, therefore, becomes restricted in its application and shows a want of proper understanding of the question by the court, or worse. To quote from my favorite poet:

"'In the corrupted currents of this world, offense's gilded hand may shove by justice and oft 'tis seen, the wicked prize itself buys out the law; but 'tis not so above; there is no shuffling; there the action lies in his true nature; and we ourselves compell'd, even to the teeth and forehead of our faults, to give in evidence.'

"In the corrupted currents of this world, dishonesty is still as prevalent as in the days of Shakespeare, and notwithstanding that a special Act in the Criminal Code, to prevent rebating by giving secret commissions, was recently passed by the Dominion Parliament, the practice still prevails, and is the very worst form of commercial corruption in the business life of to-day. I regret to say that the administration of justice is most lamentable, pureile and ineffective, and while I do not believe that the 'wicked prize itself buys out the law,' there are certainly other questionable influences at work, or else there is a painful lack of appreciation by the officials, of the duties and responsibilities of the department. Whatever the cause, the result is to 'skin and film the ulcerous place; whilst rank corruption, mining all within, infects unseen.' I wish our legal department in Ontario would take Hamlet's advice to 'repent what's past; avoid what is to come, and do not spread the compost on the weeds to make them ranker.' The law, as it stands to-day, if properly administered, would protect us, but in the absence of such protection, we have succeeded in evolving a plan which, if vigorously enforced by the manufacturer, will compel the unscrupulous 'even to the teeth and forehead of our faults to give in evidence' by calling for the declaration.

"In conclusion, I must congratulate the trade on what has been already achieved, which, I believe, is greatly elevating the standard of our business morals, and I am glad to say that, in my opinion, the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States, while it erred in one respect, has, on the whole, upheld the position taken by the Canadian wholesale grocery trade."

The Discussion.

E. M. Trowern, general secretary of the Retail Merchants' Association, cited several cases in which the retailer had been called to account to sell goods at a price lower than that set by the manufacturer, and wanted to know if the decision of the U.S. court would destroy the system being built up in this country. Mr. Blain replied that the Mile's contract was not like to those obtaining in Canada.

"Some manufacturers think," returned Mr. Trowern, "that to enforce contracts they must go over the head of the wholesaler. I'm saying this because I want to get to the bottom of it all. Personally I think it would make the plan not a particle weaker if it went through the regular chain—manufacturer, wholesaler, retailer and consumer."

H. C. Beckett then gave a survey of the Contract Selling Plan, and pointed out that under the law the producer was fully protected. He had power to refuse to sell to men who refused to observe the contract. The whole thing was perfectly legal, and was not a boycott at all. It will be only a year or two before the trade will realize what it is entitled to. "If the retailer can't make a fair profit he can't pay the wholesaler" said he.

The chairman said that no trouble was experienced in goods where the makers stood staunchly behind their goods.

W. H. Rowley, of the E. B. Eddy Co., said the manufacturer who sells to the wholesaler has to respect that trade. "He can't run with the hare and hunt with the hounds," he said. No producer should go to the wholesaler and sell him goods and then go to dealers in the same town or district and sell them. That should not do. He didn't look with dread upon the Supreme Court of the U.S.A., nor any other foreign court. We had excellent courts of our own. The Contract Selling Plan had been originated nearly a quarter of a century ago, and had worked well.

Mr. Craig, of Kingston, said he thought it was a boycott, where a certain number of wholesalers agreed to refuse to sell a certain manufacturer's goods, until a fair margin of profit was provided. He had refused to sign such a paper when it was submitted to him. Mr. Beckett in reply, contended that under the law wholesalers were perfectly justified in combining for the general benefit of the whole body. On motion, the address given by Mr. Bain, was unanimously endorsed.

Manufacturers' Committee.

Mr. Beckett then reported on the work done by the manufacturers' committee since April 1910, up to the present time. The conditions of trade had changed greatly during recent years, but the trade as a whole were not thoroughly alive to these changed conditions as was evidenced by the fact that few firms take the precaution to protect their interest when purchasing proprietary lines. To-day, he said fully 60 per cent. of the wholesale grocery turnover is made up of proprietory lines absolutely controlled by manufacturer and upon which there is no possible chance or opportunity of making a margin of profit unless arranged by manufacturer.

More knowledge is necessary, he said, on the part of the manufacturer as to the needs of the trade, and of trade conditions generally. "I trust," he added, "no wholesale grocer in Ontario will labor under the delusion that the improvement in the handling of some lines of goods is the result of mere chance." During the past fourteen months the committee had held thirty meetings, giving a full day to each meeting. Most of this time had been taken up with conferences with manufacturers, upon whom they urged the necessity of their protecting the distributing agents against secret rebaters and trade wreckers.

"Possess yourselves with the firm conviction that the wholesaler is in business to-day for no other reason than that he is the cheapest medium of distribution only because the manufacturer cannot go to the retail trade direct and sell his goods at as small a cost for selling and distribution as he can through the wholesaler."

"We have," continued Mr. Beckett, strongly advocated the adoption of a selling contract which provides for a declaration when called upon by the manufacturer and in many cases this form of selling contract has been adopted by the manufacturer with most satisfactory results."

Did Not Receive Backing.

Mr. A. Foster, of North Bay, wanted to know if the manufacturers' committee had received from manufacturers a definition of wholesaler and retailer, as he regarded this as a question that should be set down definitely. The opinion was expressed that the manufacturers' committee had not received the backing from the wholesalers that they should, and a resolution was passed that the work so far of the committee be approved of by the Guild and that the wholesalers decide that in the future they will give them all the support possible.

Mr. Beckett gave a report of the large number of wholesale houses that had signed the agreement in favor of manufacturers selling their goods on the lines approved of by the Guild, which showed that the majority were in favor of this method.

A resolution was passed: "That this convention realizing the absolute necessity of the interests of the trade being protected, and appreciating the great value to the association of the manufacturers' committee and the work they are doing for the benefit of the trade generally, strongly endorses and approves that the wholesale trade should be loyal to the manufacturers' committee in following suggestions, and doing everything in their power to strengthen the hands of the manufacturers' committee in their negotiations with manufacturers on behalf of the trade."

Mr. Kinnear pointed out that the manufacturer should make all dishonest men in business toe the mark. More stringent discipline he wanted. When travelers could go out and undersell his men, it would mean the beginning of the splitting up of the trades.

Mr. Rowley wanted to know if the manufacturer would refuse to discipline men when proof of dishonesty had been laid before him.

"They do in part," returned the Toronto man. "I hold the manufacturer should go to the men who buy this wholesaler's goods and find out from him if the facts are as stated. Then if it is so that wholesaler should be disciplined. Some men," said Mr. Kinnear will take a declaration of any sort,—swear to anything." There should be a stronger system, he said.

Need General Policy.

Mr. Blain agreed theee was no doubt a good deal in what Mr. Kinnear had said, but he thought it was not so serious. There were a great many reports turned in of this sort which were not true. One had to look beyond individual results to see the working out of the system in force. He did not think it wrong to have a declaration asked for. He had signed a declaration himself, and did not feel grieved over it. If they were to get decent results they must make efforts to get it. It was the old men who must be looked to if these things are to be done. The manufacturer must be shown that a united wholesale trade is behind him. Good principles must be established. They did not want exorbitant prices. They only wanted a fair profit. He would rather that some other wholesaler should sell the goods not returning a fair profit. The real trouble — one they should not have—was that they lacked the real support of the trade. There should be a general policy followed.

Mr. Kinnear said that he held preaching without getting to the bottom of things was not all that was necessary. If a manufacturer bound him by an affidavit he wanted others bound by an affidavit. He knew affadavits had been taken by men when it was false. He never asked anyone to deal with him if he could not compete. There was no sentiment. If these men were brought to the bar and it was proved that they had sworn falsely they would not do it again.

Mr. Blain said Mr. Kinnear said that the reputation of an honest house would bring business to it. He ventured to say that the business of the Kinnear house was greater than it had been.

Booking Sugar.

In reference to the Kinnear matter the chairman pointed out that the wholesaler had not used the power that was in his hand. He should have asked the Guild to have the manufacturer present a declaration to the wholesaler in question. Mr. Kinnear replied that the next case which came to his notice would be forwarded to headquarters.

In regard to the booking of sugar there was considerable discussion. Mr. Smye told of difficulties that have arisen whereby the wholesaler and retailer have suffered through changes in the market. He deplored such a condition of affairs. Mr. Blain outlined a system by which he felt the obstacle could be gotten over. He advocated a system of sale by which the traveler would book sugar at open rates. The price which he should pay should be the market price at the time the order was received by the wholesale house. There would-he said, be no chance of violating any agreement if this were done. He believed the wholesale houses were honest. The booking of sugar prior to advance was corrupting both the wholesale and retail trade. It was probable that the refiner, even if he did not adopt the declaration system, would fall in line with the contract selling plan. If a memorial were sent to the refiners, backed by the trade, it was possible that something might be done. Mr. Beckett concurred in this. Mr. T. B. Escott, of London, who presented a report from the London district on the matter, wanted a committee appointed to go into the matter.

JOHN M. DILLON, LONDON,

Geo. E. Bristol, of Hamilton, believed that the best way to work peace in the trade as far as sugar was concerned was to have the Guild discipline its members, and not to leave it to the manufacturers. He outlined a plan which provided for every man in the Guild putting up say $300 into a fund which the president would hold. If any member be charged with violation of selling terms and be proven guilty by a committee appointed by the president he should be fined. This money would come out of the refractory member's deposit, and should be effectual. The deposit would have to be kept to its original strength.

Mr. Carson wanted to know how this would work out in the case of wholesalers who are not members of the Guild and who reap all the advantages.

Mr. T. B. Escott, London, Ont., said that the London men had worked up a similar plan, but had dropped it because they had been given to understand that the Guild would take up the matter.

WEDNESDAY MORNING.

Local Guild matters held prominence at the opening of the morning session. Mr. Craig and Mr. Carson brought up the question of bank charges on small drafts. The chairman next introduced the "letter of credit" system. This question, he said, had been urged upon him by John Dillon, of London, Ont., who was, however, compelled to remain at home owing to illness in his family.

This was a pernicious habit, Mr. Smye pointed out, and he urged action. Geo. Bristol, of Hamilton; Wm. Logan, of Toronto, and W. G. Craig were appointed a committee to report.

The report of the nominating committee was then made. It was as follows, and was endorsed:

President, John M. Dillon, London, Ont.

1st Vice-President, A. H. Pafford, Toronto, Ont.

2nd Vice-President, A. Allard, Ottawa, Ont.

Manufacturers' Committee — H. C. Beckett, Hamilton; A. H. Paffard, Hugh Blain, Toronto; John Dillon, London; T. B. Escott, London; Albert Allard, Ottawa; W. G. Craig, Kingston; Ex-President Smye, Hamilton.

Manufacturers' Contracts.

The regular order of business was then resumed, and A. H. Paffard gave a report on "Manufacturers' Selling Contracts." It was as follows:

"As you will doubtless observe, this form of contract is an evolution in trade made necessary by changed trade conditions and as a result of a gradual improvement in knowledge as to the best methods of dealing with contract-breakers, and also as a means of inspiring confidence on the part of the trade, one with another.

"To make this matter clear, you will remember that under the old system, if you came across proof of a violation in a manufacturer's selling contract or terms, the average traveler did not care to use the information, knowing that in doing so and making a complaint, the investigation on the part of the manufacturer would in all probability involve the traveler's customer, as the investigation to satisfy the manufacturers would necessarily be carried back to the retailer. As a result of this now out-of-date method, the traveler usually lost the retailer's account if he made a complaint, and much hard feeling resulted. Now, by the use of the declaration in these manufacturers' selling contracts no names need be mentioned, either of the wholesaler making the complaint or the retailer through whom the information came.

Wholesaler and Producer Agree.

"You will observe by the reading of the contract that the wholesaler agrees with the manufacturer that he will give unconditionally a sworn declaration, by himself, his traveler, or any one in his employ designated by the manufacturer and in such terms as the manufacturer may set forth. This declaration the manufacturer agrees to submit to the wholesaler or the traveler for same, upon request of any wholesaler with whom the manufacturer is doing business in case of a supposed violation, and these declarations are only to be given when requested by the manufacturer or by the person set forth in the contract. Now, if the wholesaler or the traveler is guilty of the reported violation he could not give the declaration without committing perjury, so the contract very properly provides that a refusal to give the declaration asked for is an admission of guilt and the manufacturer deals with the case accordingly by exacting the penalty as provided for in the selling contract.

No Names Mentioned.

"As already pointed out, no names are mentioned, and the contract provides and the manufacturer agrees that he will not disclose the source of his information. The contract also provides and the manufacturer agrees that he will not sell to any wholesale house who does not become a party to this contract.

"There is also a further instruction from the manufacturer to the wholesaler, viz., that no sales are to be made to other wholesalers at less than the list prices and the reasons and necessity for this are explained.

"Now, all this is very simple and very fair, and it has the effect of detecting violations without the loss of the customer afterwards. It brings the violation home to the guilty one if he is guilty, and if not guilty and the declaration is given, it has the effect of making the traveler less liable to be suspicious of his competitor and inspires confidence and faith in humanity. If the firm or traveler to whom the declaration is presented is guilty he is not at all likely to give the declaration, not knowing how much information the manufacturer is in possession of. The penalty for making a false declaration is a penal one and is not to be thought of for a moment that any man knowing the penalty would take such a serious chance of conviction that might afterwards follow.

No Harm if Innocent.

"If the firm is innocent or the traveler is innocent, you will get the declaration and no harm is done. The air is cleared of suspicion.

"Now, the question is naturally asked, what becomes of the declaration after it has been returned to the manufacturer duly sworn to? The answer is, it will be forwarded to the house who laid the complaint, and then the manufacturer's part of the contract has been fulfilled. If the firm or the traveler has committed perjury and the house or traveler making the charge is sure of this, it is a matter for the crown to deal with, and upon laying the information the crown would take action.

"The system does away with an examination and other unpleasant features which under the old plan were necessary for the manufacturer in case of an investigation.

"Under the old plan investigation and examination of books seldom revealer anything that would prove a violation, for the reason that most of the trouble had been caused by travelers and some firms secretly rebating so much per package, case, dozen or pound; or allowing discounts in settlement of accounts, which amounted to the same thing. The practice of secret rebaters is difficult to detect, as no documentary evidence is left to prove their guilt. Contract goods are invoiced at regular prices, and there is no evidence so far as the invoice is concerned. But few travelers would continue these dishonest practices if they knew they might be called upon for a declaration, and also when they were properly seized with the meaning of the Secret Commissions Act.

The Endorsation.

"Now, when your committee approached manufacturers of proprietory lines urging them to adopt a selling contract providing for a declaration, we were sometimes met with the argument that the trade generally were not in sympathy with that form of contract, and when asked for the name or names of any firm so objecting they declined to give us the names. You can imagine our feelings when we had had, at our last annual convention, a unanimous endorsation of this system. What were we to do? The difficulty was solved by presenting for signature to every house in western Ontario, including Toronto and west, a document expressing approval of the declaration in selling contracts, and we are pleased to tell you that this document has been signed by every wholesale grocer to whom it has been presented but three. Now, then, we have the law to assist the manufacturers, and the law of the land is that the manufacturer has the absolute right to fix his prices and to name the terms upon which he will sell his goods, and to have those terms set forth in an agreement with the buyer, and if he makes that agreement he has the right to see that it is carried out, and the manufacturer has the further right to penalize a buyer for a violation of his selling contract.

"All this seems very reasonable, and it appeals strongly to the honest wholesale house as being the only effective method of protecting the honest wholesalers and also the manufacturers against practices that if not checked would finally lead to a state of trade that would not only be deplorable, but that would hold out a premium for dishonesty in business and prevent an improvement of the moral character and integrity of the business men of Canada."

The chairman then read over the list of wholesalers who have signed in favor of having this system of selling enforced.

The Milk Question.

H. C. Beckett then introduced the canned milk question and reported the firms who were in accord with the Guild on the matter. His comments showed that the Guild had gone to considerable trouble to secure more favorable terms from the manufacturers. These had been informed that the only workable plan was that entailing declaration. One of the companies had replied that it was their intention to supply the retailers with all information in regard to the wholesalers who were to handle their lines of goods. No other milk lines were to be handled by the wholesaler, however, on a smaller margin of profit, unless the alternative of being cut off be faced. The givers of discounts, or those who sold at other prices, no matter how big they were, would be cut off. Five hundred thousand cases of these goods were sold. That would mean a profit to the wholesale trade in Canada of $250,000. Any other line of goods could be arranged for sale in the same way. They could insist upon price lists being adhered to, and the adoption of the declaration system. They wanted to be able to go to the manufacturers with the trade solid behind them. That was the one way by which they would get results. Already 39 out of the 42 members of the western district of the Guild had declared in favor of the declaration system. There was a heavy penalty provided by law for perjury, and as soon as the travelers were educated up to the point there would be results.

"Take the sugar business," said Mr. Beckett, "T. B. Escott, of London, forced to be absent, was to have brought in a memorial declaring for the declaration system. By this the wholesaler could sell to the retailer at open rates, and the refiner could sell to the wholesaler at the price prevailing at the time of ordering. I merely mention this to show what can be done."

A Favorable Report.

H. S. Burke, of the Imperial Tobacco Company, reported his sympathy with the declaration system, but he could not absolutely promise success. There would have to be a lot of consideration. His was a big corporation, but he could promise that if the Guild committee waited upon his firm at Montreal, he, as sales manager, would give it his hearty support. There was, however, a good deal of newspaper criticism to face, and they had to walk warily. Personally he would try to arrange a satisfactory meeting with the heads of his house.

Urged Trade Commission.

Hugh Blain speaking on the tobacco question alluded to a Royal Commission under Judge McTavish, which had reported in favor of the manufacturer—wholesaler—retailer system of distribution. Political influences, he said had compelled, in the face of this, the cancellation of this firm's contracts, because, a foreign corporation, it transacted business under a license from the Dominion Government. The tobacco house in question had gone on in the same way without contracts. Goods should be handled in the fairest, most economical way, so that the great buying public should reap the maximum benefit from the minimum outlay. If it were purely in guild interests the thing would be wrong. So he urged strongly the appointment by the federal authorities of a commission to supervise the trade, so that everything will be fair. The agitations were as much in favor of the great public as of the wholesale trade. He wanted that to be thoroughly understood.

Thos. Kinnear, of Toronto, one of those who refused to sign the declaration petition, said he now saw no great difficulty in the thing now. All he wanted was a rigid enforcement of the system The reason he had not signed these agreements was because they had been broken so often. The retailer had a right to fair treatment from the wholesaler. What was wanted was not a 20 per cent. profit on a dollar article, but 30 cents. Many of them were not making more than a bare living, and yet there was no other class doing more for the trade than the retail dealer. He knew it because he had come up from the retail ranks. He objected to the multiplication of list prices and contended that only the more important goods should be listed. He would be in favor of the milk arrangement if he could see it being enforced.

Mr. Beckett argued that it would be enforced and contended that it would not be fair for the wholesaler to sell other lines of milk allowing a smaller margin of profit than this firm gave them. There were cries of assent at this The speaker continued that the whole list of milk manufacturers were now lined up for better prices.

Congratulated Committee.

Geo. Bristol, of Hamilton, congratulated the manufacturer's committee for the work done in connection with milk lines. The whole thing looked clear to him and appealed to his sense of fairness.

Mr. Carson and Mr. Craig, of Kingston District, were heartily in accord with the declaration system.

Mr. Foster, of A. J. Young Co., North Bay and Sudbury, was also in favor of the agreement. He wanted to know, however, if the retailers were to be prevented from getting the discount.

Mr. Fraser, of Fort William, was sympathetic towards the system.

Some Resolutions.

Hugh Blain then moved the following resolution which was seconded by Mr. Allward, Ottawa.

"That this meeting places itself on record as highly satisfied with the position taken by this milk company as set forth by Mr Beckett, and pledges itself to honorably carry out the conditions explained requiring a declaration in case of a reported violation."

The resolution was carried unanimously.

Mr. Bristol then moved this resolution which was seconded by S. Screaton, London.

"That we, the wholesale grocers of the province of Ontario assembled, having given much study and thought to the question of violations in the sale of contract articles, the prices upon which are fixed by the manufacturers, and realizing the impossibility of proving these violations without involving the retail merchant who gives the information, unanimously endorse the declaration clause in manufacturers' contracts and authorize the manufacturer's committee of the Ontario Wholesale Grocers' Guild to bring this matter to the attention of manufacturers of proprietary lines of goods which are sold at listed prices with a view to each manufacturer adopting the system and agreeing in cases of reported violation they will submit to any wholesaler, house or traveler thereof, a declaration to the effect that the accused house has not violated directly or indirectly the terms and selling prices of the manufacturer as set forth in his price list.

A standing vote showed that the Guild was unanimously in favor of this.

Uniform Terms.

Wm. Logan, Toronto, then gave the following paper on "Uniform Terms and Method of Invoicing." It was as follows :—

"As you all realize, the terms question, so far as it applies to the wholesale grocery trade has in the past been a source of friction, hard feeling, and unbusinesslike methods, calculated to keep the wholesale trade at all times in a state of chaos, and unless some uniform method can be established and regarded as the standard of the grocery trade much confusion, suspicion, and loss of business is bound to result.

"Based upon past experience and the light of to-day, the ideal terms are generally conceded to be net cash, and this result has been brought about by keen competition, and the many abuses of the discount for cash system.

The Discount Abused.

"The plan of allowing a discount for cash within a specified time has been so abused and so little regard has been given to the necessity for payment within the specified time to obtain the cash discount, that no wholesale house could possibly know what plan to follow, and much confusion has thereby arisen.

"Now, if there is one thing in the grocery trade of all others that should be uniform it is that of terms. We can have as much competition in the prices of goods as we like, there is no line of goods handled by the trade that we are agreed on as to price and we all know that with changing markets, short and long stocks, that such an agreement as to prices would be practically impossible. There is one thing, however, we all can agree on and that is the standardizing of terms of sale.

The Old Way.

"If you will stop to consider, there is a great necessity for this, for the reason that we handle so many varieties and lines of goods upon which there are no uniform or recognized terms.

"Take currants, raisins, nuts, prunes, rice, tapioca and kindred lines. The old-fashioned way used to be to give four months or allow a discount of 3% for cash. This method might have continued to this day had it not been that no man could compete in price on a four months' or three off thirty days basis with a firm selling at a net price thirty days. The natural evolution of trade and the keen competition has gradually reduced us to a net thirty-day system whether we liked it or not, and so with this condition to face, your Manufacturers' Committee, faithful to the trust imposed upon them to do all possible to bring about a better state of affairs in the grocery business, have spent some months and much hard work in arriving at a solution of this difficulty.

As the Mind Broadens.

"As we gain in experience our minds broaden and we see where we have been weak in the past and have fallen down simply because we did not devote time and expenditure to perfect any reforms we have been anxious to bring about. After many meetings the conclusion was reached that certain things were necessary, viz., a proper observance of manufacturers' selling contracts—a plan that would reduce the office work—a plan that would do away with unpleasant refusals to customers, when making remittances, or tendering payment in person at the office, and claiming discounts long after the due date, using the argument that they could get it down the street, and claiming they always got the discount even in thirty days. All these have been provided for in the agreement which most of you have signed and which agreement is to be endorsed today. In the agreement, provision is made and latitude is allowed to treat customers will all reasonable, honest consideration. Its advantage is that when the invoice goes out it shows the net amount payable within thirty days, and when payment is made no discount of any kind is allowed for cash and no traveler or office employe would be at liberty to allow a discount for cash.

Interest Allowed.

"Provision is made for payment before due date by an allowance of bank interest for the unexpired time at the rate of eight per cent. per annum. Provision is made that on overdue accounts and for extra time over thirty days, interest at the rate of seven per cent. per annum shall be charged. This must surely appeal to the retail trade as being fair, viz., to allow eight per cent. per annum for prepayment and to only charge seven per cent. per annum for extra time.

"Provision is made that all proprietary lines shall be sold at the prices and terms established by the manufacturers, and last, and perhaps most important of all, provision is made that to meet competition on any line of goods upon which there is no fixed or listed selling price the trade shall have the right to allow a trade discount equal to any cash discount that may be allowed by a competitor. This trade discount, however, is to be shown on the face of the invoice and deducted from each line in respect of which such discount is allowed.

T. B. ESCOTT, London.
Who Was Elected to the Manufacturers' Committee.

Will Instruct Travelers.

"Provision is also made that each wholesale firm agrees to give positive instruction to travelers, and all those in their employ accepting payment of accounts, not to allow any discount of any kind from the face value of the invoice except on the three items—sugar, tea, and vinegar, as provided for in the agreement.

"To clearly demonstrate the method of working, your Committee have provided illustration invoices, and an examination of same will show how simple the method is.

"It is not anticipated that the option to allow trade discounts on any lines upon which there are no fixed prices will be frequently exercised for the reason that (as an illustration) a price of $2.45 per dozen net is just as attractive to any sensible man as $2.50 less 2% would be. It is all a question of education and besides that the house selling the lines now under discussion at net prices could easily demonstrate to the buyer that he should not be mislead by discounts, when after all it is the net result that counts.

To Spread Broadcast.

"Now, to carry out these terms without confusion it is proposed to get the agreement printed in a sufficient quantity to supply every wholesale house and every traveler and as many more as may be required by the trade. The idea is to do business in the open, in a straightforward way by having clean cut terms and let those terms be known broadcast as the terms on groceries. No competitor can, under this system, get an advantage, that at present is secured by underhand methods and violation of contracts. All manufacturers should be acquainted with our terms, and a standard established in the grocery business that will be recognized as a standard.

Not Keeping Terms.

"It is pretty generally believed that some houses have not been keeping manufacturers' selling terms, and that the practice has prevailed on the part of some houses to allow a discount on goods upon which they have signed a contract not to allow a discount on. This is dishonorable and is a violation of contract just as much as a rebate on the price. Various methods have been resorted to to work this out and it has been made possible by the system at present in vogue. The honest house has suffered and as all houses claim to be honest, it is felt that the entire trade will endorse the agreement now under discussion and pass a strong resolution regarding same and make the necessary arrangements for its proper carrying out.

"There are many advantages under the present agreement that have not been so far emphasized, but which will be clear to all if reference is briefly made to same.

Saving in Office Work.

"The saving in office work, posting, rendering of statements, etc., and in the collection of accounts, the removal of the great temptation to allow cash discounts when accepting payment, particularly with salesmen—a salesman is out to get business, not to collect money, and consequently in accepting payment, the temptation is there to make himself a good fellow with the customer by allowing discounts he has no right or authority to allow, and also to allow discounts long after the time when such discount could be allowed.

"It will please you to know that the terms agreement has been signed so far by every house it has been presented to except one. The signatures include every house in the Province of Ontario, in Toronto and west, but one, and your Committee have no doubt it will be subscribed to by every firm in the Province when the terms of such are properly understood. Under any circumstances, the firms who have signed and adopt same will labor under no disadvantage as compared with the firm who might refuse to join in this reform for the reason that all firms are under obligation to observe prices and terms on listed goods and on other lines handled by the trade. Any trade discount can be allowed on the face of the invoice equal to any cash discount a competitor would allow. It is simply a question with the retail merchants of the net cost of an article.

shall be put into effect not later than the 1st of August, 1911. The Manufacturers' Committee is hereby authorized to notify the signers to the agreement giving them a copy of same and also supplying them with illustrative invoices, showing how the invoices will be made out and this meeting pledges itself to the faithful observance of that agreement. The Manufacturers' Committee are hereby instructed to have the terms memorandum printed, giving the signatures of the signers thereto, and that copies shall be supplied to the wholesale trade in such quantities as the wholesale trade may require."

The balance of the report of the Ontario Wholesale Grocers' Guild convention will be given in next week's issue of The Canadian Grocer.

How Are You Going to Figure Profits?

Correspondent Has Some Pertinent Questions to Ask With Regard to Figuring From Selling End—Says Man Not Able to Work From Both Ends Should Not be in Business—What Merchant Says.

* By Henry Johnson, Jr.

A correspondent writes me as follows:

How to Figure Profits.

On several occasions I have noticed in The Grocer where someone claimed that the perecntage of profit should be figured on the selling price instead of the cost price. I might ask you a few questions on this subject, and if you can convince me that I am wrong, I will admit it.

1st. How does the Government figure the increase in population of the country? Do they take the total population and then figure the percentage of increase on the total amount, or do they figure the percentage on the amount of people previous to the last census? I might say they always figure on the previous number.

2nd. Again, if I have a piece of property that was worth $1,000 a year ago, and to-day it is worth $1,500, do I figure that it has increased 50 per cent. or 33 1-3 per cent; and then if I sell it for $1,500. do I say I make a percentage of 50 or 33 1-3? If I say it has increased 50 per cent., and I sell it at that, I certainly would make 50 per cent. profit.

3rd. Again, if I should sell that above-named property for $800, would I say I lost 25 per cent. or 20 per cent.? Would I figure the percentage of loss on the selling price or on the cost price? I would say that I lost 20 per cent. of the money I had invested, which nobody can deny. If it works out one way, it would certainly work out the other.

With regards to people in business making a mistake by figuring the percentage on the cost price when selling the goods, and then figuring the percentage of profit at the end of the year on the amount of business done, certainly is not right; but I would say that a man that is not capable of figuring the percentage both on the cost and the selling price, if necessary, is not capable of running a business of his own.

These Peculiar Conditions.

A reference to some recent articles of mine will indicate what I mean when I characterize these examples as instances of finished transactions, on which the gain is to be computed on the cost, or first figure; and the same reasoning would also naturally, apply to the loss on the real estate deal. Even so, however, none of these examples has any real bearing on the discussion, since none of them is a retail

A Sample Invoice.

Elaborating on his address, Mr. Logan said he felt their whole system was based upon the observance of this plan.

He then moved the following resolution which was seconded by Hugh Blain:—

"That this convention unanimously favors the agreement on uniform terms and method of invoicing, and unanimously agrees that these terms grocery transaction, nor yet a mercantile transaction of any kind. In considering a problem in merchandising, the peculiar conditions and circumstances of merchandising must be taken into account, and just because those transactions are surrounded and modified by conditions peculiar to merchandising, it is of paramount importance that we look at them always from the correct view-point. I have another letter, inserted below, from a well-known merchant, endorsing my method, and shedding some light on this interesting and important question. It will be noted that in the mind of this merchant there is no question about it at all.

My correspondent is right when he says that a man who cannot figure both ways is incapable of managing a business; but that statement does not, as he evidently thinks, make the final word. Because a man does not now know a thing is not to say he cannot learn it, nor that because he does not know it he should not learn it, nor yet that because he does not know it, even though having years of successful grocery experience, it is not true or right. It is because so many merchants have need of this knowledge that these articles are written.

The General Custom.

To ascertain this need, just ask the first merchant you meet the following question: "If you buy an article for 80 cents and sell it for $1.00, what is your gross margin?" and you will find that, nineteen times in twenty, he will answer, "twenty per cent." Then ask him what margin he makes on an article bought for $1.00 and sold for $1.25, and again, nineteen times in twenty, he will answer, "twenty-five per cent." Odd figures do not bother the average merchant so much as figures of one hundred, perhaps because, with odd figures he actually has to stop and think; a circumstance which, to my mind, merely emphasizes the necessity for the establishment of the rule that all transactions must be figured on the basis of one hundred as the entire problem; that is to say, one hundred per cent. to be the entire selling value. Many a smart man has split his business on this rock of erroneous profit-computation, but we must keep on working to the end that fewer of them will fail through this lack of knowledge in the future than have failed in the past.

Here is my man:

On Selling End.

Editor Store Management Dept.

Dear Sir:—The ambition of every grocer is to conduct a profitable business. Any method that assists him to save time and detail and give him a simple and accurate method of figuring expense and profit is the one for him to adopt.

The method of figuring these items in percentage on the sales is the most direct and simple. Any other method is complex and misleading to the average merchant.

The ever present question is not of what percentage of profit or loss he has made on his investment, but: Am I making or losing money in this going concern? I must have a basis, and the basis is logically the sales.

Yours truly,

May 25. J. W. B.

That letter, I think, calls for no comment. It covers the ground quite fully, though without much detail. But, being the opinion of a man of experience, the buyer of a successful store, it should carry some weight. I should like very much to have others express their views in this discussion. The subject cannot be too completely covered, and every side-light will help. In other words, you, gentle reader, are invited!

The Question.

A young man, who wishes to remain unknown, writes as follows:

Editor Store Management Dept.

Dear Sir:—As a clerk in a department store, I have been reading, and am very much interested in, the articles on figuring profits in your recent issue, by Mathematician and Mr. Jamieson. May I ask for information on figuring profit on sales? Supposing, in an invoice of goods, an article costs $3.75. What must it sell for to show a profit of 25 per cent.? How do you arrive at the solution?

This may interest others as well as myself, as this is an important subject.

Yours respectfully,

April 26, 11. "REX."

Table of Quick Methods.

The answer is $5.00, which is obtained by adding 33 1-3 per cent. of the cost to the cost.

To make a profit, of 50 per cent. double your cost

To make a profit of 33 1-3 per cent., add 50 per cent. of your cost.

To make a profit of 25 per cent., add 33 1-3 per cent. of your cost.

To make a profit of 20 per cent., add 25 per cent. of your cost.

To make a profit of 16 2-3 per cent., add 20 per cent. of your cost.

And there are all grades and shades between, as for instance, the fact that 30 per cent. of the selling price is practically 43 per cent. of the cost. In practical matters, this question of "figuring," as Mr. Jamieson has so justly hinted, is modified and limited by competition and usage. The necessary way is to learn first for what an article will sell, and then ascertain what your gross margin is. If insufficient, you will retard the sale as much as possible, while pushing more profitable lines, and in this way you will gradually increase the productiveness of your business.

CHATHAM SUGAR FACTORY.

Chatham, Ont., July 6.—Though no positive decision has yet been made by the men behind the enterprise, there is ground for anticipating that a beet sugar factory will shortly be located at Chatham.

Negotiations to this end have been in progress for some time between the city industrial committee and gentlemen interested in the Dominion Sugar Company, which at present has factories at Wallaceburg and Berlin. Options have been secured on several sites west of the city, on the south bank of the Thames; and, if a number of minor matters can be closed up in the near future, it is expected that building operations will be commenced this fall, with a view to having the factory itself in full operation for the beet season of 1912.

While up to the present moment the negotiations have been carried on with very little publicity, it is pretty well understood that the Chatham factory, if established, will be run as a branch of the Dominion Sugar Company rather than as a seperate concern. In this event refining of raw sugar will, as is the case with the Wallaceburg and Berlin factories, be carried on in seasons of the year when beets are not available as raw material; while the same policy of utilizing the by-products will be carried out.

The Chatham factory will be constructed on a larger scale than either of the present factories was at the outset, and will probably handle 1,000 tons of beets daily. No difficulty is anticipated in securing the necessary beet supply, the farmers around Chatham now growing beets very largely for Michigan factories, as well as for the Wallaceburg concern.

THE WHOLESALERS' CONVENTION

In all the deliberations of the Ontario Wholesale Grocers' Guild whose convention was held in Toronto, on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, there was evidenced a sincere desire on the part of the members to keep in mind always the best interests of the retail dealer in the aggressive campaign they propose to launch in the near future.

There were many frank expressions of gratitude for the manner in which the grocer is carrying on the work of distributing goods, and, although the expression was not given in so many words, there was always the suggestion given at the meeting that the dealers must be carefully considered in all things relating to the regular handling of grocery products.

This is gratifying to the trade, partly because this was probably the most important trade gathering held in the country so far this year, and also because it was an evidence that no matter how powerful the wholesalers may consider themselves to be they must realize the highly important place which the retail grocer holds in the correct chain of distributing agants viz. :—manufacturer, wholesaler, retailer and consumer. In the discussion on all the big, carefully-prepared addresses he was as securely fixed as is Gibraltar at the gateway to the Mediterranean Sea.

Because of this it might be advisable for EVERY retailer to peruse carefully the report of this convention as contained in this issue. There are many points made there of vital importance to him and he dare not overlook them if he is to have a knowledge of some of the trade changes to come in the future.

FROM NEW ONTARIO.

Enthusiastic over the possibilities of the country, the one hundred and twenty members of the Toronto Board of Trade who have been on a five-day acquaintance trip in New Ontario, returned to their home city some time ago.

As "doubting Thomases" they went away, expecting to spend a few tiresome days in an unbroken wilderness, thinking chiefly of black flies, and dense bush, mud, and also of a few straggling communities along the right of way of the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway. There was a certain awe upon them when they came back, for they had looked upon a new country in the days of its primitive strength. Where cultivation had been pushed with vigor, they saw crops promising wonderfully well, and now and then they were treated to the sight of some professional man, grown tired of the ways of civilization, trusting the black loam of the clay belt to insure the well-being of his declining years. In Liskeard and Haileybury they saw prosperous towns set down like jewels in the heart of a splendid agricultural district, and even in the smaller and more distant towns on the line they beheld the prospects of future prosperous communities. They saw, in brief, a land of promise.

Those Toronto business man, manufacturers chiefly, returned home convinced that the trade of that far northern zone was worth fighting for, and resolved to set about its capture. They could see that the enterprising dealers, representing all lines of distribution, they met on their journey, were anticipating a demand many times greater, to be in effect within the next few years, when the eye of the restless land-hungry nations of the earth has once been well-directed North Ontarioward. When that day comes towns will spring up almost every day in that little-known land, and dealers will be pushing in from all sections of the country. It is probably just as well the manufacturers of Toronto have seen some of the possibilities of New Ontario.

THE SHORT-WEIGHT EVIL.

Chang Lang, a Celestial, and Joseph McGrath, a native shop-keeper, were fined, according to a report from Kingston, Jamaica, heavily only recently, for selling short-weight goods. The report continued that as the Chinaman had been compelled to pay fifty dollars and costs, and the native forty and costs, it was to be hoped the example would serve as a warning to all and sundry.

The Grocer is heartily in sympathy with the sentiment expressed by the Jamaican. Giving short-weight is, in most cases, nothing but stealing from the poor. Generally speaking the dealer with rich or well-to-do-patrons does not indulge in such despicable practices. The poor cannot afford to be made the victims of such frauds and those in power in all communities should use their utmost endeavor to make the path the short-weight artist has to tread rocky and dangerous, beset with heavy monetary punishment and the unqualified contempt of all his fellows.

It has been said that on almost every inspection trip those in authority in Kingston come across men who are using short-weights. But it is added that in some cases the giving of short-weight goods was a matter of pure accident. It is to be hoped this condition applies in almost all the cases. The character of the average West Indian dealer surely is such that he can hold himself above these tactics. It would indeed be a pity if it were not so.

Fifty car loads of hay were shipped from Ontario to Pennsylvania, U.S.A., during the week. The selling price was $17.50 a ton. This would make it cost, set down in that state, freight and duty paid, nearly $24 a ton.

The Meeting of Ontario Branch of R.M.A.

Members Decide to Meet Wholesalers in Convention — The Selling by Jobbers Direct to Consumers Condemned—Matter to be Taken up at Convention—Selling Staple Lines on Contract Selling Plan.

Toronto, July 6.—A meeting of the Ontario branch of the Retail Merchants' Association was held in Toronto on Wednesday morning, with representatives from different parts of the province present. M. Moyer in the chair. Secretary E. M. Trowern reported that an invitation had been received from the Ontario Wholesale Grocers' Guild for the retailers to meet them in convention on Wednesday afternoon to discuss trade matters. He spoke in favor of this, pointing out the advantage of such meetings at other times.

The question of wholesalers selling direct to consumers was condemned, and it was reported that the law had been amended so that the association could notify its members of those jobbers or manufacturers selling direct to consumer. Mr. Pike, of Cobalt, Ont., wanted a definition of the word "consumer." He thought it must be taken as including, not alone individual families, but hotels, restaurants, lumber and mining camps, etc. He also reported that there were certain jobbers who catered to large consumers almost exclusively.

The following resolution was passed by the meeting:—

"That it is the opinion of this Convention that whereas our Association has secured, since our last meeting, at considerable expense, the legal right under a special Act of the Dominion Parliament to notify our members of those wholesalers or manufacturers who sell direct to our customers, to proceed and formulate some plan whereby we can take action thereon, and that the wholesalers be asked how far they will go in assisting to remedy this unfair practice, and it is suggested that retailers be defined as those that carry stocks in retail stores for sale to the public."

Mr. Pike was appointed to present this proposition to the wholesalers at their meeting.

Two other resolutions were passed by the meeting and means and methods of carrying them into effect were considered. The first resolution was as follows:

"Whereas our Association has been advocating for some years the advisability and necessity of having all staple lines sold on the contract selling plan, and as we are now in a legal position to take some definite action and endeavor as far as possible to have our desires carried out, we recommend that this meeting consider the advisability of having a joint official appointed by the retailers, wholesalers and manufacturers, whose exclusive duty it will be to interview the trade to promote the same, and to investigate all charges that are made by any member of the trade of the violation of any contract so given."

Will Tell the Reasons for His Success

C. H. Crysdale, of Oshawa, Ont., Retiring After Thirty-Five Years' of Uninterrupted Business, to Explain His Belief in His Methods of Trading—Intends Taking up all Phases of Store Work in Future Articles.

Because I am contemplating closing out my retail business to go into larger field elsewhere it has occurred to me that probably someone would benefit from an outline of the different methods of procedure that have helped to make my business and to keep it fairly prosperous during the past thirty-five years. There no doubt are many grocers of the older school whose experiences would be pretty much in line with my own, but they may be so placed that the giving out of their ideas would hardly be practicable. It has occurred to me that a series of articles on various trade subjects would be of interest at least to many readers of The Grocer. If so, I should be glad to be the means of straightening out their troubles and of turning their wandering footsteps into the road of profitable business.

Ice Cream First.

It was in June, 1877, that I first came to Oshawa. I have been here, in business, ever since. The fruit and ice cream trade was the first in which I engaged. I hardly remember when the decision came to me to leave that and go into the general grocery line, but anyway I only kept up the first business for a year or so. Probably had I stayed at it I would have made more money than I have in all the years of my grocery experience. But the business was mussy and the hours were terribly long and there are no regrets in my mind as I ponder over the events of the years that have gone. I remember when I first came to the parting of the ways between the ice cream and grocery trades that one of the established dealers of this place laughed at what he termed my folly, and promptly gave me the impression that my days in the business would be few and tempestuous. That unwarranted insinuation remained with me for a long time. And I recollect now some of the heated thoughts that ran riot in my brain then. As it happens, I am about the oldest grocery dealer in Oshawa. I have always paid one hundred cents on the dollar, and I have never been called upon to compromise, but have been able to weather the storm and enter the harbor of reasonable success. That is the comforting thought when I recall those early doubtful days.

The Value of Competition.

There have been men in this town, as in many others, who do not welcome competition. They seem to think it is an unwarranted intrusion on their rights and liberties. I cannot see their point of view, because every business has to have a beginning, and nine times out of ten its beginning is based on competition. We have got to have trade rivalry, and the sooner people come to realize it and to make the best of its entailed conditions, the better for the individuals concerned.

And also, at least so I consider, the real thing to be aimed at in any community is co-operation among the dealers. We have had it here, have arrived often at definite agreements, but sometimes there were those dealers who never could content themselves with remaining in strict accord with the others who had combined for the common good. I suppose the real co-operation is an ideal that will never be attained this side of the millenium, but to my mind it is a thing for every dealer to keep in mind whenever any unkind or jealous thought of another merchant enters his mind. There is no need for anyone to be afraid of anyone else. There is also no need for anyone to pay attention to other than his own business. It will not pay him to do so, because usually he is injured in the discussion of the matter. In my business life I have always tried to keep this in view, and some of my success at least I attribute to that resolve. It has been a matter of business ethics with me. Sometimes I have been in possession of information that might have been of use to me had I taken advantage of it, but usually it reached me in confidence and it was always a point of honor with me to respect that confidence regardless of what the results might have been.

The Markets—Sugar Advances 5 Cents

Upward Movement in Refined—Some Improvement in Demand—Raws are Firm—Big Demand for Summer Goods—Prepared Foods are Going Out—Better Trade in Starch—Firmness in Canned Goods Maintained—Hot Weather Did Not Affect Trade—Pot Barley is Higher in Montreal.

QUEBEC MARKETS

POINTERS—

Sugar—Up 5c.

Pot Barley—Higher.

Montreal, July 6.—An advance of 5c in the price of sugar was one of the few features of the past week's trade. Perhaps another feature was the hot wave that naturally affected those in the grocery business, for in the human hive those having any connection with this branch of business considers himself a worker and not a drone. However, in spite of their propensity to labor there were no prostrations recorded. The weather has had little or no effect on business. There is a steady demand for all lines. Retailers are, of course, devoting considerable attention to the new fruits. As a result, the demand for sugar has increased considerably. However, it is said that the trade in this department is not quite as heavy as it might be at this season of the year.

There has been quite a demand for starch of late, and in the seasonable list there is included canned goods, summer beverages, light breakfast foods and other prominent lines.

Sugar—Granulated sugar was marked up 5c a bag during the past week, as the result of a firmer feeling in the primary market, coupled with an increased demand. Regarding the latter it has been said that business is not as heavy as might be expected at this season. It is good, of course, but it is not exceptionally brisk. The advance was announced here on Friday, June 30th. The future of the market is problematical.

Dried Fruits—It may be said that local wholesalers are holding off from the dried fruit market, with the idea that quotations are going to reach a lower basis than the present. A prominent broker gave it as his opinion that they should cover their wants, but did not advocate speculative buying just now. Business in the United States is not very active and this influence is reflected to a certain extent on this side of the line.

ONTARIO MARKETS

Pointers.—

Sugar.—Up 5c.

Dried and Canned Fruits.—Stocks low.

Toronto, July 6.—The extremely warm heat wave of the week, while making itself felt by those engaged in the business has had little or no effect upon the wholesale grocery trade. On the contrary some dealers report a slight improvement accounted for perhaps by the better movement of sugar and by the fact that the first of the month always brings an increase in business. Then again the demand for summer goods under the warm weather has become more marked and those lines which serve as short cuts in the preparation of meals are going out freely. Summer drinks such as lime juice, root beer, grape juice and raspberry vinegar are also being called for. The wearing of white goods has also helped the trade and starch and soap have shown a better movement.

In regard to price changes, about the only feature of the week is the upward movement in sugar of 5 cents which came into effect on June 30th. This is the first change since April 19th and brings granulated on a Toronto basis up to $4.75 per cwt. The raw market at the present time is firm, and an advance in New York refined is expected, with the probability that Canadian may follow, depending, however, on the condition of demand and the course taken by European beets. There has been an improvement in the sugar trade of late.

Dried and canned fruits are reduced to an extra low basis, while high prices are being asked for those stocks that are available. Interest is being directed by all branches of the trade towards the new crops.

Sugar.—Sugar advanced 5 cents per cent. during the past week, bringing extra granulated in bags up to $4.75 at Toronto. This advance was in no way unexpected, the strength of the market having been apparent for some time.

Syrup and Molasses—Although naturally inclined to quietness at this time of the year, a fair trade is being transacted in these lines. Prices are unchanged while no special features are apparent in the market.

Dried Fruits.—As for many weeks past the feature in the dried fruit market is the general scarcity of supplies. "About the only thing we have left," remarked one dealer, "is raisins, currants and peels." The same is true to a large extent with most other wholesalers so that naturally, under these conditions, the movement of dried fruits generally is small.

Tea.—The tea situation shows little change, a steady trade being done, although there is no special briskness, interest in new crop teas lagging somewhat yet.

Coffee.—In New York, both spot and speculative coffee shows a tendency to advance, the market being decidedly firm. Locally there is no change in the general outlook, prices, however, being well maintained and with dealers reporting a satisfactory demand.

MANITOBA MARKETS

POINTERS—

Syrup—Steady.

Beans—Advancing.

Coffee—Strong.

Winnipeg, July 6.—No complaints are being heard from the wholesalers regarding the summer trade, which is at present being transacted. The gradual clearing up of the weather in some parts of the west, thus eliminating the possibility of the grain crop lodging, is helping somewhat to maintain the volume of business which has been carried on during the last four months.

Extremely hot weather has been prevailing in many parts during the week, but little damage has as yet been done to the crops. The result is that the feeling of optimism still continues to prevail.

The trade in the various lines has been steady. An advance has been predicted for the last two weeks, and many retailers have taken the advantage of increasing their stocks as the busy season is now on, as the housewives throughout the length and breadth of the West are "putting down" fruit.

Supplies are becoming short in nearly all lines of canned goods, and a bare market is predicted. The demand is exceptionally strong at present for canned salmon and various kinds of canned meats. American tomatoes are being brought in in large quantities. Prospects continue to improve in California regarding the new fruit crop, but little change is expected from the general outline predicted that was published last week.

Sugar.—The market continues strong and steady. Cane sugar is in considerable demand, and appears to be gaining a stronghold in the West in spite of the fact that beet sugar is so largely used.

Dried Fruits.—Many wholesale firms are completely out of peaches, prunes and apricots. One or two houses still hold a few cases of the above mentioned lines, but prices are so high that little attention is being paid. Stocks of currants and raisins are gradually declining, and it is expected that a bare market will be in existence by the time the new crop arrives. A good crop of prunes is expected, but apricots will be decidedly short. Prices quoted are as follows:

Canned Goods.—Canned goods lines are at the present time attracting more attention than any other branch of the grocery trade. As mentioned above, canned salmon is much called for, and prices are expected to advance shortly. Lombard plums are practically cleaned up on the local market, while very little stocks are offering anywhere. On the whole, however, jobbers are fairly well supplied, as stocks secured in the earlier part of the season were fairly large.

Coffee.—Coffee continues to be very firm as the old crop is nearly all disposed of, in fact the best quality being entirely cleaned out. The new crop is reported to be below the average yield, but wholesalers state that they can get no information whatever on the quality of the same. Prices are as follows:

Coffee, standard Rio	0 14½	Coffee, choice	0 15½
		Coffee, extra choice	0 16½

Beans and Peas.—Beans have advanced during the last week, but wholesalers have not yet changed their prices on the local market. This change is expected however to take place within a day or two. Peas are firm, and nothing new is reported.

Beans, 3-lb. picker, per bushel	2 10
Hand picked, per bushel	2 20
Peas, split, 100 lbs	2 85

BRITISH COLUMBIA MARKETS.

Vancouver, B.C., July 6.—Eggs are a little scarcer, but not sufficient to cause an advance in the price. Strictly fresh are quoted at 32 to 35 cents; eastern, 26, and Manitoba, 25. Butter is firm despite the warm weather. In the summer season, when the grass comes on, the butter is generally better in quality and cheaper in price. This year the quality is deficient and the price is sufficient, from the consumer's point of view. With local quality as it is, the market is open for the putting up of good eastern creamery in prints, which command a ready sale. Bulk eastern butter, used last winter and spring, is much better than the product of some of the local creameries.

Hams are now quoted at 18½, jobbing. The increase is doubtless due to the scarcity of beef, and also to the summer picnic season when cooked and raw hams are in great demand. In beef, supplies are still coming in from the outside.

The season on the coast has been so slow that new potatoes as yet are only four pounds for 25 cents, retail. Old potatoes are selling at six pounds for 25 cents, with average quality. It will be the end of the month before new potatoes replace the old even at a high figure, and prices will be firm. This is the first season that the price for old potatoes has been so high and constant. At Nelson, something near a potato famine has been reported during the past week.

The strike of the building trades is beginning to have its effect on the smaller dealers, and this will, of course, come back to the wholesalers. With four thousand men out of work, much money is out of circulation, and with no money to spend, the grocery list must per force be smaller. There seems now little choice of settlement of the difficulty, which is purely a question of the maintenance of unionism.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

St. John, N.B., July 6.—Local markets during the past week were quiet, and no marked changes were noted. In groceries, cheese is easier being quoted now at from 12¾ to 13 cents per pound. Pure leaf lard is higher by half a cent, while American pork is cheaper. The season for veal is practically at an end although it can still be purchased at from 12 to 18 cents. As yet lamb has been none too plentiful, but it is expected to become more so in a short time. Tub butter is bringing from 19 to 22 cents, while from 21 to 24 is being asked for dairy butter. Eggs are a little scarce. Case eggs are selling from 18 to 20 cents per dozen while hennery eggs cost 24.

For the first time in many years new potatoes were for sale in June this week in St. John. It is quite a while since native potatoes appeared on the market in June, but they were fine specimens, and from now on it is expectedthat the crop will come along in good quantities. Indications are that this season will be particularly good for berries. Apples last year made a poor yield, and dealers are looking to this year to make amends for it. The outlook is said to be exceptionally bright.

When going to press a telegram from our New Brunswick correspondent was received. It conveyed the intelligence that sugar had advanced 5 cents per hundred.

NOVA SCOTIA.

Halifax, July 6.—Jobbers report business brisk in the grocery lines. Good orders continue to come in and collections are considered excellent for the time of year. Nova Scotia expects to bumper apple crop this year. Reports coming to hand from Annapolis valley points say that this season's crop will be over one million barrels.

New butter is coming on the market in large quantities, but the price still holds firm. Creamery prints are quoted at 25c, and dairy tubs 22c to 23c. The quality of the butter is excellent. The receipts of eggs show a marked falling off. Good Nova Scotia stock is scarce. The supplies now coming on the market are principally from Prince Edward Island. The price is unchanged at 19c per dozen.

The old crop of potatoes is about cleaned up. No new potatoes are on the local market yet. Bermuda onions are going to the trade at $1.85 per crate. Beans are firmer, prime selling at $2 to $2.10, and hand picked at $2.10 to $2.20. Peas, whole, are $5.40 to $5.10, and peas, split, $5.40 to $5.50. American beef is selling at $17, and Canadian at $16 to $17. Hams and bacon are both in good demand, with prices unchanged.

LONDON NOTES.

London, July 6.—A deputation of Port Huron grocers consisting of Messrs. F. C. Wood, H. C. Collver and J. T. Percival, were in London making arrangements for their annual outing to this city on Wednesday, August 23rd. They were met by President Norman McLeord, Thos Shaw, Jas. MacKenzie, Fred. Travers and E. J. Ryan, who took them for a trip around the city and to Springbank Park where they will go on their picnic day.

J. A. McIntosh, ex-president of the Hamilton Retail Grocers' Association, was a welcome visitor in the city last week. He was attending the convention of the Sons of Scotland.

The Diprose stores were closed on Thursday last on account of the death of the father of Mr. Diprose, who was town clerk of Strathroy.

INFORMATION FOR BUYERS.

Supplied to the Trade by Sellers.

A large percentage of Canada's grocers are already acquainted with Castols, and have no reason to regret the day they stocked them as they have found them not only ready sellers, but also large profit earners. "Castols" is a most effective substitute for Castor Oil and is put up in the form of a pleasant sweet-meat, having all the advantages of a dose of plain Castor Oil, while they are packed in fancy ½-gross display tins, which prove most attractive. All grocers who are not acquainted with this line should not hesitate about giving this line a trial.

Chr. Bjelland & Co., of Stavanger, Norway, through their Canadian Agents, John W. Bickle & Greening, have placed another fish food on the market, namely: Pilot Brand Herring in Tomatoe Sauce. This new line is packed in full-sized cans in choice Italian Tomato sauce. The combination of fine fat selected herrings of uniform size, in thick tomatoe sauce makes a most appetizing dish, and as they can be sold at a popular price this line promises to be a ready seller. The first shipment is now close to hand and the trade will be well advised in stocking the goods.

Owing to the increasing demand for "Sweetheart" brand goods, the IXL Spice & Coffee Co., London, Ontario, who have been in business for the past two years, corner Rectory and Simcoe Streets, find their present quarters much too small. They are now forming a joint stock company and moving into a large building, particularly adapted for their many lines, on Marmora St. Same will be called "The Home of the Sweetheart Brand" and with increased capital, capacity and labor, they will be in a position to fill all orders. Their success is due to the fact that they adhere strictly to their motto, "Quality," all goods being guaranteed pure, sure and reliable.

HARD FACTS

Getting down to hard facts, does it make any difference to your business whether you sell good tea or another kind?

Then if it makes a whole lot of difference, what have you done to find out for yourself which is the best tea on the market?

Time and again I have paid the price for this space to tell you about Red Rose Tea, and you yourself have seen Red Rose race forward to a leading place in the package tea business.

But the only way you can prove its quality to yourself is to try Red Rose in your home. Many Grocers have done this and are recommending Red Rose as the best quality in tea at the price in every grade. That is why their sales increase so rapidly.

Smoked and Cooked Meats in Demand

Warm Weather Brings a Larger Consumption — Provision Trade in General Satisfactory—English Bacon Market None Too Steady—Live Hogs are Somewhat Easier—Big Shrinkage in Eggs—Butter Production is Large—Cheese Barely Steady.

One of the prominent features of the provision market at the present time is the big demand for cooked meats. The warm weather has brought the idea of using prepared foods before the consumer and cooked meats is one line that has been benefited. Smoked meats and provisions in general are in fairly good demand and trade from most centres is reported satisfactory. Prices show no change, but appear fairly steady at the present time.

Live hogs are somewhat easier this week, although no big decrease has taken place. In Toronto values are down 20 to 25 cents per cwt., while in Montreal there has been no important change, except that the feeling is more settled and prices in consequence more regular. United States markets are ruling firm, but the English bacon market is none too steady, the market ruling quiet with liberal stocks, and holders anxious to realize. Packers here have considerable difficulty in judging the situation so they will not lose money. The English bacon market goes up and shipments are rushed there to secure the higher prices. Perhaps before they arrive, the market will drop back and packers here have to stand the loss. "It is nothing but a gamble," asserted one dealer, "for it is all uncertainty."

The production of butter continues large and while no great change has taken place, there is an easier tendency noticeable. The make continues to exceed that of last year, and a falling-off in quality is reported from some centres. The demand from England has slackened and the situation is just a little easier.

The most important feature in the egg market is the large shrinkage which still continues and necessitates a larger margin between the prices in the country and those asked by the wholesale dealers.

While rather unsettled, the tendency in cheese seems to be somewhat easier, although the English market continues firm. The dullness may be explained by the country markets having been hoisted above an export basis.

MONTREAL.

Provisions—There has been a good demand for cooked and smoked meats, and lard, likewise, has been going well. It is believed that hogs will be down a little next week, but it is not expected that there will be any change in prices of pork products.

WINNIPEG.

Provisions.—Dressed carcasses have declined ½ a cent per pound in the hind and fore quarters this week. Dressed mutton has also declined considerably. With this decline trade is picking up slightly, as many butchers in adjacent towns are now securing dressed carcasses direct from the wholesalers and abbattoirs instead of doing their own butchering. With the arrival of large quantities of cattle on the market in fall this will undoubtedly be stopped, as they will then be able to secure for themselves all the stock they want. Butter.—Creamery butter is holding firm and the demand is at present just about equal to the supply. During the last week a considerable demand from the eastern part of the province and western Ontario has been noticed. The supply of cream coming into the city at present is almost double what it was at this period last year. This is accounted for by the abundance of feed present in all parts of the province, and the fact that less dairy butter is being made on the farms. Local creameries are also busy at work, but the majority of those outside the city appear to be packing their butter in boxes as very little is at present finding its way to the Winnipeg market. Dairy butter continues to drop in price, as the quality becomes inferior with the warm weather.

Cheese.—Prices hold steady but supplies being received in the city are small. Large shipments are however looked for during the coming week, but no great change is expected in price. Manitoba new made cheese is now quoted at 10½ cents per pound.

Eggs.—Receipts of eggs have fallen off somewhat with the arrival of warm weather. The demand is still strong and prices are holding firm at 18 cents per dozen.

What Has This Half Year Amounted To?

The Present a Good Time to Check up the Work of the Past Six Months to Ascertain if the Profits Have Been all They Should—Investigating Departments—Stoppage of Leaks in the Store.

The first half of the year 1911 has now passed and many dealers could now make a review of their accomplishments during the past six months.

The question which every grocer at this time of the year asks himself is: "Have I done a better business during the past half year than during the corresponding time last year?" It is the aim of every dealer, to each year accomplish something more than formerly and to do this he should secure a good start by making a better showing during the first six months. However, if the financial sheet shows no improvement, or if the gain is not as great as you would wish there is yet a chance to make a big increase for the year if the dealer will only put forth the necessary effort from now to the new year.

The Time to Begin.

Now is an excellent time to start if the totals on the sales sheet are to look big at the end of the year. The dealer who waits until November or December and then attempts to catch up is liable to fall short of the ideals he started the year with, but now with six full months before him, he has ample time to accomplish his object. But to make the thing sure he should make a good start.

If business records for the past six months do not look as bright as they should, there is a reason. It is necessary that the merchant examine his business to ascertain and remove the cause. The falling off may have been either in the amount of sales or in the amount of profit, for the size of the sales does not always denote the amount of profit.

If sales have not been as good as they should, there is probably something wrong with the business policy of the store.

Possible Leaks.

If profits have not been as large as the sales warranted, there must have been leaks which cut away the profits which should have been. Then it is time for a thorough overhauling of the business to discover just what and where those leaks are. They may exist in many ways and in order to eliminate them a thorough inspection of the business, and the methods employed, is essential. Find out if each department, provision, fish, flour, confectionery, biscuit or tobacco—is making the profit that it should. One merchant thought that his provision department was not giving exactly the returns it should and by actual accounting for two weeks he found this to be true. He also found that as his trade was done mostly in small quantities that the loss came in the slicing. He installed a slicing machine and a recent examination of his records has proved this department to be paying a fair profit.

Careful Weighing.

Loss may come through overweight, and indeed this comprises an important avenue of leakage in many grocery establishments. Clerks do not always take the care in weighing that they should and if this is found to be so, the merchant should give his some training along this line, for if allowed to continue unheeded, it is sure to cut a big hole in profits.

When these important factors in the maintaining of profits have been adjusted and a decision reached to put forth an honest effort to increase sales, the grocer should be well on his way towards a successful business during the next half year.

Flour and Cereal Markets are Steady

Higher Prices for Raw Material Causes a Steadiness in Breadstuff Quotations—Hot Weather Boosts Prices in Chicago—Export Trade is Not Heavy—Home Demand is For Immediate Needs Only.

About the only change in either flour or cereals is a firmer feeling that has developed in the prices for the raw materials, prompted mostly by the extreme hot weather which prevailed in many of the wheat growing sections at the beginning of the week, which has caused a somewoat steadier feeling in flour and cereals. Trade in either line is not overly large. While a certain amount of export trade is being transacted, it is rather limited, while home demand is for immediate needs only, buyers apparently being influenced in their purchases by the favorable conditions for the growing crops now existing.

Hot weather on Saturday last raised the price of every staple on the Chicago exchange. The wheat market was particularly affected by apprehension regarding what might happen to the growing spring crop in the north-west. With the United States exchanges closed on Monday and Tuesday on account of the holiday, Canadian wheat markets ruled firm, although the situation as far as Canada was concerned was somewhat relieved by showers in many sections of the wheat growing territory.

"Under present conditions," said one dealer, "I do not expect prices of raw materials to expand enough to affect commodity prices, as the amount of available wheat is large. The market is apt to be affected, however, by crop scarce news. The Western Canada crop, an important factor, has so far been quite favorable, so favorable in fact that it is doubtful whether a continuance can be expected."

While the cereal trade is naturally slacker with the warm weather, nevertheless it seems to be maintained wonderfully well considering conditions. There are no particular features to the market, with the exception that prices are steady.

In 1910 the fisheries of the province including lobsters brought $10,982,011 against $10,574,839 in 1909. The lobster catch in 1910 was valued at $2,900,900 as compared with $2,465,000 in 1909, According to government reports for 1910, there were in Nova Scotia 51 canneries engaged in the canning of lobsters. These canneries are chiefly owned in Halifax and not including the fishermen, they had in service 1,181 employes.

SHORT TALKS TO CLERKS

The most successful men in the world are those who possess initiative. They do not depend wholly upon other people or follow the trodden path of custom. They are men who go out into the world and blaze their own path, who are able to see opportunities before all others and not only that, but are able to grasp those opportunities and make capital out of them.

It is just this quality in the make up of many men that has made for their success.

It was while employed in an unimportant position in Chicago that James J. Hill, of railroad fame, realized the importance of the country to the westward of that city and the possibilities for a railroad extending across that district, then just entering upon its season of prosperity. There were many others in that city who had the same chance to see those opportunities but Hill was the man to realize and grasp them. Still a young man without money or influence most men would have shrank from undertaking such a problem. But not so young Hill. He demonstrated himself conclusively a leader a man of ambition and of brains. He saw the way laid out before him and had the initiative to struggle for the possession of the pathway.

And So the Clerk.

This quality of make-up which served to make successful such men as James J. Hill would seemingly not apply to to the clerk behind the grocery counter. Such is not the case. The valuable clerk is the one who is able to take the lead and is able to bring forth new plans and methods that will in any way help in the extension of the business in which he is employed. We can not all expect to develop and put into practice big ideas like those which the brain of Hill conceived, but in our daily work, we need not be content with things as they now are and at all times may put forth some extra effort to improve the business with which we are connected.

You have seen the clerk without any initiative, who even after several years' experience, is still unable to stand upon his own resources. He depends upon the boss for direction in regard to his work, follows the same line as others before him and is seemingly content to do so. If there is a display to make, a window to dress, or any other similar task to perform, this clerk has to go to the boss for directions. Then if the proprietor suggest that he put in a window display of a certain line, he must need ask many questions regarding it, instead of using his own brains to think out some method of doing it, making himself more valuable to his employer. At the bottom of this defect is apparently lack of ambition on the part of the clerk. Many of the men who hold important positions possess no more brains than others lower down. But what they do possess is a much larger proportion of ambition.

Seek and Ye Shall Find.

Not many years ago a young man having outgrown the possibilities of his home town, a village of some 1,000 population, where he had been employed in a small grocery store, decided that he would go to a nearby town of some 4,000 inhabitants, where some relatives resided and where more scope would be presented for his pent up ambition. His ability to act on his own resources was demonstrated from the first. When he first struck the town instead of waiting for his relatives to offer suggestions for the delivery of his effects, as many others as young as he would have done, he at once made those arrangements himself. He did not wait around for something to turn up but went out after it himself and within 24 hours had secured a position as junior clerk in a grocery store.

From the first his ability to plan methods to help in the business was shown and it was not long before the proprietor began to recognize it. Instead of waiting for the boss to tell him to fix the shelves or change a counter display, he always kept them in first class shape. It was not necessary to be continually telling him to keep the counter, scales or floor clean, to keep the lids on tins and boxes closed, or the drawers or boxes filled with goods. He saw what should be done and did it without direction. He was for this reason more valuable to his employer and was accordingly rewarded by being given charge of one of the display windows.

A Productive Clerk.

Here the same spirit was shown. He did not dress the window and leave it until the boss had to tell him to dress it again, for he realized the importance of this medium in selling goods and kept it in first class shape all the time. Nor was he content with dressing the window in the same old manner as had been followed for years past. He continually was bringing forth some new method of showing goods, and his original and out-of-the-ordinary methods attracted public attention. In another way, he followed the example of James Hill. He recognized the importance of a good window trim of a new idea and promptly put these into effect.

Not alone in window dressing was his inventive ability shown. It was he who saw the possibility of securing orders through the telephone and accordingly next morning, many of the customers in the town found a method whereby they could order their morning's groceries without trouble. In one case, a large contractor having come to town to do some work, he recognized an opportunity and succeeded in supplying them with their groceries. He was the first to think of putting up sign boards throughout the country to attract the attention of the farmers while on their way to town. These he arranged himself in his spare time and had placed along the country roads.

Business became a little dull during the summer months. This clerk recognized the fact and at once thought out a plan for keeping sales up to the normal. No sooner thought of than it was acted upon. A few miles from the town was a small village which, however, was largely patronized during the summer months. To this village he went soliciting orders from the campers, taking orders one day and delivering them the next. In this way he was able to build up a nice little trade which paid handsomely for the effort expended. It was in this manner, always bringing out and acting on new ideas, that he forged his way upward, and made himself a better clerk and one more valuable to his employer.

Opportunities just as great or greater are presented to most clerks but not all take advantage of them. The clerk should remember that he who can conceive new ideas and carry them out is a much better and more valuable clerk than he who is content to drift along in the same manner as others.

Wholesalers Agree in Regard to Definite Period.

Wholesale grocery houses in Toronto, Hamilton, Berlin, Brantford, Collingwood, Guelph, Niagara Falls, London, Owen Sound, Sarnia, Windsor, Stratford and St. Catharines have agreed that their travellers in the western part of old Ontario shall take their holidays at the same time, namely from the 17th to 29th of July. The territory is that west of but not including Toronto, as far north as but not including North Bay and as far west and including Windsor.

Canada imported 1,747,259 bunches of bananas during the eleven months of the last fiscal year, the value being $1,676,-635. All but 46,000 bunches came from United States markets to Canadian merchants. The small direct imports were from the British West Indies. Bananas are used chiefly in the natural state but in smaller quantities in the form of banana flour made from the ripe fruit.

Selling the Goods that Lighten Labor

Suggestion to Clerks That Customers be Kept Informed as to the Goods on Shelves Appropriate to Summer Needs—Two or Three Examples of Salesmanship from Western Canada Prairie Town.

At this time of the year, the clerk has an excellent chance to display his salesmanship ability. It is the season of the year when appetites need coaxing and when the housewife finds herself in a quandary as to what to serve in order to please the palates of those for whom she supplies food. It is the time when suggestion on the part of the clerk will result in the boosting of sales. Besides, with the approach of the warm weather, the housewife begins to consider herself also and suggestions as to how she can prepare meals with quickness and the least trouble will be welcomed by her. On the shelves of many grocery stores, there are numerous appetite-coaxers and short cuts to summer meals, while many a weary housewife who visits the store unconsciously in search of just those things, has been told nothing about them. The clerk should be up and doing and ever putting forth an effort to get his customers using those goods.

Western Dealer's Methods.

Out in a small but growing town in the western prairies is one clerk who is doing this. He realizes the importance of suggestion and the power it has in the sale of foodstuffs and he shows that he has salesmanship ability which he is using. This clerk went westward from an Ontario town about a year ago with a determination to succeed and the manner in which he conducts his sales is plain evidence that he is headed in that direction. In the sale witnessed he sold his customer a nice bill of goods, containing several lines that in many stores would be considered in the list of fancy groceries.

The lady having ordered some sugar like many others at this season began relating her worries in regard to the daily meals "I don't know what to get for breakfast, these mornings. They seem to be tired of the porridge, we have it so often."

"Flakes are lighter and I believe better for the summer time," said the clerk.

"I believe I will try a package of —— flakes," said the customer.

"We have not ——— flakes. We handle Blank's. We find our customers like them best."

"I tried Blank's once and did not like them. They were soggy, not crisp as I prefer them."

"I venture to say," persisted the clerk, "that the package you tried was not fresh. We take particular care to keep our stock fresh and they retain their crispness."

"I will try a package then," returned the convinced customer.

"What about oranges, madam? They are easily prepared and also tasty and healthful for the morning meal."

"Have they any seeds in?" she asked.

"Yes, madam, these oranges contain an odd seed but not very many. They are a fine tasting orange."

The Summer Lines.

She ordered a half dozen of the oranges and inquired what they had in canned meats suitable for the evening meal.

"We have corned beef, smoked beef, veal loaf, ox tongue and potted ham," he said. "Here," he continued, "is the potted ham, which is very nice. I have been introducing it to our customers, and they like it fine."

"How much is it worth?" she asked.

"This tin is worth 30 cents."

"It is rather dear," she argued.

"Well, it is not dear when you come to consider it. It is compressed in the tin, while having no work in preparing it counts, too."

This part of the sale completed, he inquired regarding her further wants.

"I think that is all." she replied.

He was going to take advantage of every possible chance, however, and as he handed her back her change, he picked up a bottle from the counter.

"Here is a line we are featuring this week, Mrs. Customer. Blank's camp coffee. It is a nice flavored coffee, while another good point is that it is so easily prepared. The regular price is 30 cents, but we are selling it at 25 cents now in order to introduce it," and it was thus that he introduced another line and completed a most satisfactory sale.

Another Westerner.

In another Western town a clerk had some difficulty in raising the standard of goods, but nevertheless succeeded in selling the better article. The customer inquired for salmon. The clerk took two cans off the shelf, but especially recommended the one which was higher in price. Eighteen cents was the amount asked.

"My goodness," complained the customer, "I have been buying salmon at Jones' for 15 cents."

"That may be true, madam, but it cannot compare with this in quality. You will agree with me that it was broken up considerably. This is a good solid salmon, with a much better color, and I believe that if you try it, you will feel that it is worth the difference in price."

This clerk, but a few minutes later, succeeded in raising the standard of goods purchased by another customer. It was meat sauce that was asked for.

"What kind have you been using?" inquired the clerk.

"Blank's brand," said the customer, mentioning a line retailing at the low price of ten cents.

This clerk realized the importance of raising the standard gradually. They carried sauces worth up to 35 cents. He selected a 20 cent brand. "I can give you something that will please you much better. This one is worth 20 cents."

"But I have only been paying 10 cents for —— brand," she said.

"Yes, —— is only worth 10 cents, but this is a much better sauce. This is not merely an addition to the meat. It gives an added snap to the taste of the meat that you will appreciate. We have used both, and would not now think of using the one you mention, as this is so much better."

Potatoes Advance Throughout Canada

Advances at Most Centres in Canada—Something Akin to a Famine in Manitoba—New Product Slightly Easier—Big Consumption of Lemons — Pineapples are Higher — Strawberry Crop Ends—Raspberries Commence—Fruit Trade is Good.

Dominion Day combined with the warm weather of the past week has brought a satisfactory demand for fruit covering the list in general, for it is at this time that the consumption of this class of food is large. This is truly lemon weather, esnecially the first part of the week, and well do dealers, both wholesalers and retailers, know it, for demand has been large. Stocks generally have again been reduced to a rather low basis and a continuance of this weather would soon firm prices up again.

Pineapples this week are higher, shipments have fallen off, while spot stocks are not large. A few Cuban and Florida pines have been arriving on Canadian markets lately, but under present weather conditions do not prove extra good shippers.

While some odd shipments of strawberries came forward this week, the finish of a none too satisfactory season is here. The first portion promised a large yield, but the drough cut the crop shorter than expected. Raspberries have come forward in small quantities and a moderate crop is expected, the rains having helped them, while having longer roots they are not so easily affected by hot weather as the strawberries, but the recent continued hot spell has proved bad for them in many sections. Canadian gooseberries have also made their appearance. Cherries steady and higher.

The situation in potatoes referred to a couple of weeks ago seems to have been well warranted. Since then advances have taken place at nearly all centres. Both Montreal and Toronto have ruled considerably higher, while something akin to a famine exists in Manitoba where sharp advances have taken place. Maritime prices are ruling firm while the same is true in the far west of the Dominion. As pointed out before, a certain amount of relief is obtainable from the new article, depending on how quickly prices on them become reasonable. While they are slightly easier this week, they are still far above the basis of old stock.

MONTREAL.

Green Fruits.—Canadian cherries have been in good demand during the past week. They are from the Niagara peninsula, are in good condition and are selling well. Strawberries are not quite done yet, but they are all but gone. New Raspberries were put on the market this week, they also being from the vicinity of St. Catharines. The demand for lemons has improved since the return of hot weather. There is only a fair demand for oranges, but taking all the fruits together business is good. Cantaloupes are attracting considerable attention and are going along nicely. The features of the market are really cherries and the incoming raspberries.

TORONTO.

Green Fruits.—Under favorable weather the demand for fruits continues satisfactory on this market. The extremely warm weather has been responsible for a big demand for lemons and stocks are rapidly decreasing. A continuance of the warm weather would soon cut present stocks to a low basis and cause a firm market on this line. Pineapples are higher at $3.50 to $4.50 per crate but stocks are such as will not keep for any length of time. Strawberries, while drawing to a close, are still being offered in limited quantities and at changeable prices. Raspberries will be coming along now, some arrivals going out at 13 to 15 cents, while gooseberries are bringing 85c to $1.00 per basket. California apricots, peaches and plums are finding a satisfactory demand. A few Canadian tomatoes have made their appearance.

Vegetables.—Potato prices seem to be maintained at the advance of last week and $1.75 straight is being quoted by most dealers, with stocks continuing low in compass. The new imported product from Virginia are slightly easier with $5.75 per barrel being asked this week. In regard to the future course of old stocks much depends on how quickly the new article cheapens, as it is upon this and the resulting consumption that the course of old potatoes depends. Wax and green beans are selling at a lower price this week.

Potatoes.—A regular bull market has been prevailing in potatoes, the price of small lots having jumped 30 cents during the last week. Present quotations are now $1.50 a bushel in small lots and $1.25 for 10 and 20 bushel lots. Ontario potatoes in carloads have advanced 15 cents per bus., while Florida new potatoes have also gone up 1½ cents per pound. This last line is costing at present $2.40 per bushel in Minneapolis. Supplies are extremely small and the demand strong.

TRADE NOTES.

The annual picnic of the grocers' section of the Montreal branch of the R. M.A. will be held at King Edward Park on July 26. That this affair will be a big success is a foregone conclusion. It should be a case of history repeating itself and probably with a little more eclat than in previous years.

The wholesale grocery and provision business of J. H. Harris & Co., of Moncton, N.B., has been purchased by Baird & Peters, of St. John, N.B. The real estate was not included in the deal, it is said, but it is understood the buyers will be given a lease of the buildings.

It is rumored that a sugar factory with a thousand ton capacity will be erected in Chatham, Ont.

Warm Weather Should be Fish Weather

People Prefer Fish Diet in Warm Weather—Should be Fair Demand if Handled Promptly and Properly—Business is Reported Fairly Good—Nova Scotia Mackerel Catch is Larger Than Last Year—Prices are Steady.

The warm weather should be fish weather if the fish is handled promptly and properly. People do not care much about meat when the weather is as warm as the thermometer lately recorded it. Business is reported fairly good this week with halibut, salmon, whitefish and several other lines in good demand.

The unsettled weather in Nova Scotia has interfered with the drying of the new cure bank and shore fish there. Dogfish are plentiful around the shores and are interfering with the fishermen. The catch of mackerel to date in that province has been considerably larger than last year. Newfoundland herring are coming along freely and easing off in price.

QUEBEC.

Montreal.—Halibut remains one of the most popular of present lines and is in good demand. Haddock and cod are also plentiful with the prices low. Gaspe salmon are in good supply with prices firm. Brook trout are now very scarce with few arriving. Fresh eels are coming forward nicely. Mackerel are not so plentiful but they are reported sufficiently plentiful for orders that are likely to be received. Lake trout and whitefish are arriving regularly but dore or pickerel are none too plentiful.

ONTARIO.

Toronto.—Extremely warm weather has been responsible for a marked slackness in the fish trade this week. A falling off in production has caused an upward move in prices of some lines. Most noticeable has been halibut which has advanced to 10 cents per pound, perch to 6, fresh trout to 11 and white fish to 12 cents. The favorite lines in demand at present are trout, white fish and halibut.

NOVA SCOTIA.

Halifax.—Unfavorable weather the past ten days has seriously impeded the drying of new cure bank and shore fish, and expected arrivals have not yet shown up. However, after a few fine days, four or five cargoes will be along, and in the meantime, exporters are able to fill their requirements ex a 3,000 quintals cargo landed here this week from St. John's, Nfld.

Dogfish have made their appearance on these shores and are giving the fishermen much trouble. Spring bankers are now on their summer trips, and while bait in some sections is reported particularly scarce, some can be obtained on the Newfoundland coast. Everything points to a good all-round fishery. Present prices rule very high, and some dealers say that it would be a good thing for the trade generally of prices dropped $1 to $1.50 a quintal for cod.

The catch of mackerel to date is considerably better than last year, and as a result the price has eased off $2 per barrel. Newfoundland herring are coming along freely, and the price is also easing off. The catch of alewives is small, and the price is advancing. Quotations are $5.25 to $5.50 per barrel.

MANITOBA.

Winnipeg.—The catch so far this season on Lake Winnipeg has been exceptionally good, many of the wholesalers in town stating that they have never seen it as good before. Trade in fresh fish is fairly active, but it is expected to increase considerably as the summer advances, as at present there is still a lot of frozen fish being offered on the market. Large quantities of fresh fish are now being shipped to all parts of the prairie provinces.

ORGANIZING CLERKS.

Wholesale and Retail Clerks in St. John are Active.

St. John, N.B., July 6.—What is expected to prove a strong organization in the Maritime Provinces is now in process of formation. The organization in question will comprise the wholesale and retail clerks of St. John, and their numbers are expected to be about 1,200 or 1,400. They will have as the objects of their association the betterment of the conditions of the clerks in the different branches of business, and their members will be drawn from all all lines of trade in which clerks are employed. They are expected to prove a strong factor in the business circles of the city if properly organized.

SARNIA HOLIDAYS.

The merchants in Sarnia, Ont., decided unanimously at their last meeting to have a half-holiday on all the Wednesdays in July and August. A co-operative delivery system was also discussed. A deputation from Port Huron, Michigan, challenged the Sarnia men to a baseball series.

Lines the Dealer Can Feature in July

Some Suggestions Calculated to Make of an Unusually Dull Month a Profitable Period—The Picnic Trade Possibilities—Selling Confectionery, Chocolates and Fancy Biscuits—The Place of Systematic Display in Developing Business.

While July is generally one of the warmest months of the year, and, for this reason, not particularly attractive for the shopper, the dealer can by exerting energy not only maintain sales at an average, but exceed it, because there are certain things, which, if taken advantage of, will work in his favor.

If this is to be done, an essential is that the store be made attractive for customers that they be put in a buying mood. Good displays, both in windows and on counters, and a clean and cool store will do much towards this object. A resting room, or even chairs, as well as cool drinking water, should also be features of the store during the summer months and especially during July.

The Picnic Business.

This is the season of picnics and this class and summer goods in general will be in good demand this month. So lines of foodstuffs that afford short cuts towards the preparation of meals might be featured to advantage. Do not wait for customers to ask, but keep them constantly before them, for the public is not as well informed as the merchant and so is not always acquainted with the many summer foods carried by the grocer. Soft drinks, lemonade, lemonade powders, lime juice, orangades and other summer drinks are now in full swing, and it might be well to have proper display, both interior and window, made of all these articles. They will by this medium be brought to the attention of every customer who passes or enters your store.

The preserving season is now well under way also and the dealer might urge fruits and other essentials as much as possible during the next month or so. Strawberries may be done, but there are raspberries, and several varieties of wild berries, as well as cherries to make their appearance this month. Each one should be featured in turn by display, advertising, and personal talks. When fruit of any kind is sold to the customers, sugar should be always mentioned, because this is the season of large consumption for that line.

Confectionery and Biscuits.

It should also pay to give particular attention to your confectionery and fancy biscuit trade this month. Candies and chocolates will be in excellent demand and the dealer with the attractive display will get the business. Keep your stock fresh by buying in small quantities and more often. The housewife does not do as much cooking as usual during July and therefore cakes will be in better demand.

Also the dealer could take some particular line each month and give it special prominence. Take tea, coffee, flour, or any other line carried which you wish, and during the month feature it in both advertising and display and it will probably be found to produce good results.

Thus with all the means and methods which the dealer has at hand, instead of being a quiet month, July could be made one of the most profitable for the grocer.

THE SEASON FOR THE SELLING OF FRUIT JARS

Some Reasons Advanced in Favor of the Dealer Urging the Sale of Quality Goods—How Jars Play Important Part in Preserving Season, and in Merchant's Hold on Customer, as Well

The season for the sale of fruit jars has commenced, and if the dealer is to make the most of the opportunities presented no time is to be lost. He can stock up all grades of goods, and can sell all grades but, generally speaking, it is advisable to urge the best quality because of the necessity for maintaining the confidence of his customers and also because it gives him a strong point for his advertising and selling talk. If he talks quality, he must deliver high quality fruit jars. If the housewife's fruit happens to spoil through some defect in the jar, he may be sure that the reaction on his trade will be large for she will probably not only withdraw her fruit jar trade, but she will not place the same confidence in him afterwards.

While most housewives have a supply of fruit jars left from the last year which suffices them for the early portion of the season, the grocer should not allow this to prevent his pushing his jar sales from the very first, for there are many just entering the business of housekeeping, while others are dissatisfied with last year's jars. By putting good arguments to these women in the proper manner, he may be able to sell them a whole new supply.

Advertising, window, display and personal salesmanship are the three methods at hand. As pointed out before the reliability of his jars can be made a feature of his advertising and, when selling fruit or sugar for preserving he possibly should not forget to mention the fruit receptacle. Catchy window display might also do much good.

Fruit jars may be either displayed in conjunction with fruit or alone. In showing, plate glass platforms might be utilized to build them one upon another. By having several pieces of plate glass, differenting in size from large to small, pyramids of the jars may be made making a good looking display. One show card for the window could be: "Penny wise and pound foolish is the housewife who buys unreliable jars because they cost a little less." Another card might read: "Let us show you the good points of fruit jars."

It might also be well to associate fruit, sugar and fruit jars. When one line is sold be sure to mention the other two for in a large number of cases, the customer who requires one needs the others.

FRUIT NOTES.

Bananas are enjoying a big trade at the present time.

California Cantaloupes are now offered in Canadian markets.

Apples are about a thing of the past on Canadian markets.

Before starting to seed raisins, pour boiling water over them and let them stand ten minutes.

Lamb, whether baked or roasted is improved by being sprinkled with lemon juice.

The superintendent of the New York Fruit Exchanges makes the visible supply of lemons 248,000 boxes, compared with 175,000 boxes at the same time last year, 174,550 boxes at the same date in 1909, and 214,000 in 1908.

One tea report from Ceylon says:—"The shipments for April to the United Kingdom were short of the estimate by about three quarters of a million pounds, while they were over one and one quarter behind the shipments for the corresponding month last year. Quality has been falling off but it is fully up to the average for this season of the year. The quantity of really good tea has been very limited, full prices being paid by Russian buyers for all the best orange pekoes and pekoes, while brokens have been in somewhat poor demand.

The Grocer's Encyclopedia---Starch

Some Facts About the substance Used in Nearly Every Home in the Country—When it Was First Introduced in the Old Land, and How Its Manufacture has Been Reduced to a Science.

Starch is a white, soft, glistening but insipid vegetable substance, universally present in great or small proportions in all vegetable substances, but the chief commercial sources of supply are rice, maize, wheat and potatoes. In France commercial starch is made from horse chestnuts while in India and China, it is produced from sago. Starch was first introduced into England in 1564.

Rice contains about 84 per cent. of starch; maize, 81; wheat flours, 56 to 72; rye, 70; potatoes, 12 to 18. As found in commerce starches are fine, white, inodorous powders, or in masses of irregular shape which are readily reduced to powder.

It is composed of 43.48 per cent. of carbon, 49.45 of oxygen and 7.06 of hydrogen. Potato starch is easily broken up and is composed of much larger grains than wheat starch; it also forms a jelly with water at a lower temperature. There are of course, several methods of producing starches, the chief object being to remove the gluten.

Wheat and Barley Starch.

Wheat and barley starch used to be made by washing the crushed grain or flour with water until all the white color was removed. This was allowed to settle, the water being poured off, and the sediment dried. It was found, however, that it could be separated by diluted caustic potash, and this, acting equally well on rice and maize, these latter cereals superseded wheat in starch manufacture.

Starch Differences.

Chemically, all starches are alike, but while the microscope shows them to consist of small, round or oval grains, each description is readily distinguishable by its form, size and marking. The granules of the potato are over three times the size of wheat and ten times larger than the grains of rice starch.

Cold water starch is made by boiling the starch under high pressure during manufacture, which renders the starch afterwards soluble in cold water, and this with the heat applied during the process of ironing suffices to produce the stiffness required in ordinary linen.

Perhaps some of these facts have interested you, Mr. Grocer. Do not forget that your customers are also interested in information of goods which they use daily. To arouse their interest you might tell how this, one of their chief ironing essentials, is manufactured, and it might prove a means of improving the goods used.

"Flies Kill More Than Bullets"

This is no flight of fancy but a sober statement of fact. In the Boer War 1,924 deaths out of 2,197 resulted from typhoid fever communicated by flies.

For a One-time Sale losing a Customer's influence.
Think, Brother Grocer.
Flour is only her Raw Material.
It isn't food like Bread is.
It is Bread that you are selling indirectly.
So sell her flour to make the Best Bread she knows how.
Flour that saves her money—giving more loaves to each mixing.
Bread that is big and white.
That is light, porous, moist.
Bread that feeds, so that your trade may be healthy.
And you get the money the doctor otherwise gets.
Bread she is proud of, that she can display to the neighbors and tell them the name of her grocer.
FIVE ROSES can do it for YOU.

That and more, Brother Grocer.
Makes your customers Quality Buyers.
Weaning them away from the Price Cutter, destroyer of profits.
And all the FIVE ROSES advertising gives the housewife your selling advantages.
And the flour dispenses Uniform Satisfaction.
It has taken FIVE ROSES twenty-three years to become the best liked and best sold flour in Canada.
Its reputation is too valuable to risk for a few cents extra profit.
So your Quality is secure.
Why don't YOU insure your profits?
Why don't YOU make each patron a permanent asset?
Make her better pleased with herself—make her a better baker—make her demand quality in all things you sell.
Sell her FIVE ROSES.

The Making of Ice Cream

requires the use of yolks of a number of eggs. Now while it is not generally known, the number of eggs required can be cut down by the use of and incidentally the flavor of the ice cream is materially improved at the same time. You probably know at the present time some customer of yours who has a freezer and who would be glad to know this.

Canned Where Caught

The "THISTLE" BRAND of CANNED HADDIES are canned right where they are caught—at the water side. How better could you preserve the natural richness and delicate flavor of the fish? IMPOSSIBLE.

But that is not all, because Captain Austin has the unequalled skill of a lifetime of experience. THERE'S NO DIRT OR SLIME—NO UNCLEANLINESS TO BE FOUND IN THE "THISTLE" BRAND. The reputation of the foremost fish-curer in the country is at stake under the label of the "THISTLE" brand. Buy it and you buy the best.

NOTICE THE NAME

CLARK'S

And Support the House that Advertises to the People

If there is one product that we take particular pride in advertising and selling to the people, it is CLARK'S PORK and BEANS, because our methods are so vastly superior to anything similar in Canada that it enables us to sell Pork and Beans that are so easy to digest and are such a perfectly wholesome food that even the weakest of people can eat and enjoy them.

CLARK'S BEANS are hand picked. That is, every bean is picked over by hand and selected before passing on its way through the maze of perfect cleansing and preparing machinery that makes Clark's Plant easily the first of its kind in Canada.

CLARK'S SAUCES are individual sauces. That is to say, each Sauce is made from Clark's own recipe and the perfect natural flavor that is in these sauces is made possible only by using the finest of selected materials and practical knowledge gained by experience.

A SOURCE OF PROFIT IN ARROWROOT

One of the best gifts of the New World has only recently come to its own in a large way. For a century or more St. Vincent has shipped the bulk of the world's supply because St. Vincent Arrowroot is the best.

Recently, the enormous increase of the use of cocoa and chocolates and the study of domestic science and nursing have brought it into common use among a much larger portion of the people.

There is a large profit for the dealer in handling Arrowroot as it rapidly makes its way among the consumers.

Arrowroot makes delicious Blanc Manges, Puddings, Biscuits, Cakes, etc., and is invaluable as a diet for invalids.

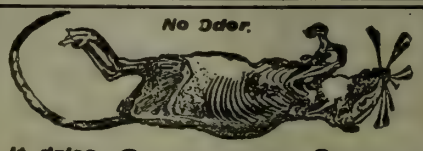
Allison Coupon Books

practically put credit business on a cash basis, to the general satisfaction of everyone concerned

HERE'S HOW THEY WORK



A man wants credit. You think he is good. Just give him a $10 Allison Coupon Book. Have him sign the receipt or note in the front of the book, which you tear out and keep. Charge him with $10.—No trouble. When he buys a dime's worth, tear off a ten-cent coupon, and so on until the book is used up. Then he pays the $10 and gets another book. No pass books, no charging, no lost time, no errors, no disputes. Allison Coupon Books are recognized everywhere as the best.

Simple, But Oh How It Sold Dates!

Here's a simple little thing one grocer did that brought him three days of splendid date sales.

He cut our advertisement of DROMEDARY DATES from a monthly magazine —we advertise in nearly all the good ones—and pasted it on the front of his window. Over it was a brush sign, "We Sell These," and in the window a display of the cartons with one open. He says he never sold so many dates in his life.

DROMEDARY DATES are sure to sell if people see them, because they are the finest selected fruit, wrapped carefully in oiled paper and packed in cartons. They're clean, fresh, and indefinitely moist. All jobbers.

REAL TRUE CREAM AT LAST

Mr. A. McGill, the Chief Analyst to the inland Revenue Department of Canada, wrote in Bulletin 144, as far back as under date 3rd June, 1908:—"The word 'CREAM' is largely used to designate condensed milk. This is incorrect and SHOULD BE MADE ILLEGAL. As a matter of fact, these so-called 'creams' are not any richer in milk fat than sugared condensed milks, and many of them are distinctly poorer. Among the samples examined ONLY ONE (No. 25628) which contains 25.20 per cent. of fat IS ENTITLED TO BE CALLED CREAM.
This one sample was prepared by FUSSELL & CO., Ltd., LONDON AND NORWAY.

Progressive Position Taken by Guild

Ontario Wholesalers Agree to Principle of a Credit Association, But One Only in Affiliation With Western Organization—Manufacturers Speak of Rights To Sell Goods to Whom They Please at Whatever Prices They Desire—Endorse The Idea of Manufacturers' Declaration System — Retailers Present Claims.

(Staff Correspondence.)

Toronto, July 13.—A glimmer of triumph shone for a moment on the face of ex-President F. T. Smye when he gave the word which brought to a close the annual convention of the Ontario Wholesale Grocers' Guild, on Thursday last. And there were more faces than his reflecting contentment within. The reason was that the sessions over which Mr. Smye had been presiding as executive head for 1910-11 had been prolific of results. Things had been accomplished even beyond the dreams of those who had looked for happenings, and it is probable that this 1911 gathering will go down in Guild history as its most important. The members in the ranks, not always united, had been organized by clever generalship so that a solid front is to be presented to the manufacturers of many lines. There was action as well as talk, and if the incoming executives but carry out the spirit and letter of the resolutions on the minutes book, the wholesalers as a body, and the retailers of the province as well will have a lot of adjusting to do.

There were many kind words addressed to Mr. Smye before the meeting closed, and H. C. Beckett, also from the Ambitious City, was roundly praised for his tireless Guild spirit. Also the thanks of the convention were tendered to Hugh Blain, the president of the Dominion Guild, who read an interesting and instructive paper and gave of his experience and wisdom freely to the meetings

The two outstanding features of the convention were the lining up of the members for the "Declaration System for Manufacturers," and the adoption of the principle of a credit association. In regard to the latter, largely as a result of the illuminating explanations of Henry Detchon, of Winnipeg, an organization will be effected in this city for Ontario, and it will work in affiliation with the body now active in Winnipeg and the West. This was done, not out of any spirit of antagonism of the western concern, but solely that the Ontario body would have for itself a certain measure of independence of action. The declaration system for manufacturers, it was said, would be the means of saving for the wholesalers hundreds of thousands of dollars in profits, while it would also work for a certain uniformity of prices among retail grocers. Practically all of the wholesalers in Ontario to whom the petition regarding the system had been presented had affixed their signatures as falling in line, and the movement will be continued unril practically all the members have been lined up.

The settlement of a uniform system of invoicing was another feature, and this one applies more particularly to the relations of the wholesale house and its retail customers. It was practically decided that in future all the discounts to be given the dealer will be clearly shown on the individual items on the invoice on a thirty-day basis. This was calculated to remove the discount responsibility from the traveler and to place it upon the selling house. It was pointed out that this would mean a little more bookkeeping for the wholesaler, but it was felt that the benefits accruing would more than counterbalance that handicap.

The spirit shown throughout the discussions was excellent, and it is possible that as a result of the work done, manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers will work more in harmony than ever before. The only disappointment of the gathering lay in the fact that E. F. B. Johnston, K.C., found it impossible to address the meeting on the relations existing between the trade and the laws of the land. In making the announcement Mr. Smye said that the lawyer had set his heart upon talking to the members but that he had been ordered abroad by his physician on account of his health.

Retailer and Wholesaler.

When the afternoon session began on Wednesday, a number of retailers from different parts of the province were present. President Smye welcomed them, and pointed out that the wholesaler and retailers had mutual interests and that he wished them to air any grievances they might have in regard to the trade. It was explained to the retailers that the wholesalers were making efforts to eliminate dishonorable methods on the trade, such as secret discounts and other practices. H. C. Becket pointed out that the Secret Commission Act made it unlawful for the retailer to take any secret rebates at all. There was, he said, no endeavor to do anything unfair to the retail trade. "We want you to be perfectly satisfied that we are doing nothing against your interests. If you have any grievances we want you to let us know as we are doing everything in good faith."

He alluded to one case in which the wholesalers had lost a certain amount on one manufactured line in their effort to protect the retail trade.

M. Moyer, of the Retail Merchants' Association, introduced the retailers. He pointed out that the retail association had greater obstacles to contend with than the wholesaler, first, because there were so many in the business and also because there was the large consuming public to deal with. The consumer, he said, was in great strength, and had to be served right. There was a great deal of misunderstanding on the part of the consuming public that the merchants were taking too much profit, and yet the consumer wished the merchant to get a fair profit.

What is Retailer?

Mr. Pike, retail grocer, of Cobalt, was introduced, he said that the retail grocers at their convention had decided on matters that they would like discussed. One of these was the practice of certain wholesale houses in selling over the heads of the retailers to large consumers such as hotels, restaurants, mining and lumbering camps, etc. The resolution, which had been adopted by the retail grocers and which was presented to the convention read as follows:

> "That it is the opinion of this convention that whereas our Association has secured since our last meeting, at considerable expense, the legal right under a special Act of the Dominion Parliament to notify our members of those wholesalers or manufacturers who sell direct to our customers, to proceed and formulate some plan whereby we can take action thereon, and that the wholesalers be asked how far they will go in assisting to remedy this unfair practice, and it is suggested that retailers be defined as those that carry stocks in retail stores for sale to the public."

It was a point which the retailers wished a straight reply as the question was an important one. Chairman Smye said he thought that it was more of a problem to be dealt with by the Dominion Guild, but urged its discussion, as it was one that had been prominent in all parts of the country.

In answer to a question Mr. Pike said that a baker who used the goods in manufacturing his products would not be called a consumer. Mr. Smye pointed out that in Hamilton the retailers had agreed that as hotels sold the goods bought to their patrons, that there would be no objection to wholesalers selling to them, and while he also pointed out an instance in the United States, where on a similar case, this ruling had been made.

E. M. Trowern argued that on manufactured lines, if the manufacturer took orders from the retailer and delivered the goods direct, that the wholesaler got a percentage on the sale anyway. He wanted to know why the wholesaler should be able to take orders from an hotel and the retailer not secure any commission. The retailer kept the stock and supplied their odd wants, and should get a commission on all their trade. He pointed out that their association now had the privilege to notify their members of those wholesalers or manufacturers who were not playing fair with the trade in this or any other matter.

Mr. Pike thought that in contending that hotels, because they sold to their patrons, were included as retailers, was splitting hairs for if the principle was carried out, it could be brought down to the ordinary boarding house.

Line Drawn Somewhere.

Mr. Blain said that the line must be drawn somewhere. But whatever was done in this line, it would be necessary to make it general all over Canada, for if a wholesale house in Ontario refused to sell goods, they could go to a wholesale house in some other province.

Mr. Trowern contended that the same principle that allowed the wholesalers to get a commission on the goods sold by the manufacturer should not be disturbed in the retail trade. He thought that this matter could be thorthrashed out if there was a committee meeting between wholesalers and retailers so the question was referred to a meeting of the retailers and the manufacturers' committee of the wholesalers' Guild for discussion.

Contract Selling.

Mr. Trowern then introduced the following resolution dealing with the enforcing of the contract selling plan:

"Whereas our Association has been advocating for some years the advisability and necessity of having all staple lines sold on the contract selling plan, and as we are now in a legal position to take dp some definite action and endeavor as far as possible to have our desires carried out, we recommend that this meeting consider the advisability of having a joint official appointed by the retailers, wholesalers and manufacturers, whose exclusive duty it will be to interview the trade to promote the same, and to investigate all charges that are made by any member of the trade of the violation of any contract so given."

A QUEBEC CITY STORE INTERIOR.

Mr. Beckett said that this should also be referred to a conference of retailers and wholesalers as it required a great deal of thought and discussion before any action could be taken.

Mr. Blain thought that it looked like a reasonable resolution, but should be thoroughly discussed and it was referred to the joint committee to come up at the Dominion Guild.

Through the Wholesaler.

The meeting was then opened to the manufacturers, a number of whom were present and Mr. Rowley, of the E. B. Eddy Co., Ottawa, was the first to address the meeting. Mr. Rowley said in part:

"The policy of the Eddy Company for over half a century has been, is now and will be, as long as I am in charge, to cater largely to, and to sell through the medium of, our friends among the wholesale grocery and jobbing trades of Canada. By this means, the labor and the cost of distributing the wares we make, among the retail trade and the large number of smaller purchasers is minimized, in fact, almost entirely avoided.

"Although we have more than a score of branches, agencies and depots placed advantageously in all the largest and the most important cities throughout Canada, these establishments are used chiefly as delivery distributing points to, for, and in the interests of the wholesale trades. By this means, we avoid the employment of an army of commercial representatives and travelers which we would otherwise have to employ, and who when so employed, would go over the same ground, perform the same work, and come into unnecessary contact with the travelers and the representatives of our wholesale friends.

"Wherefore, since by this means we do not have to employ travelers, and pay a large number of traveling representatives, it is but right and fair, that a reasonable profit should go to the wholesale grocery and jobbing trades who undertake the care, the cost, and the trouble of this part of the process of the final disposition and distribution of our wares to the retailer, and to the consumer.

How it is Done.

"In carrying out this policy and plan, we say to the wholesalers:—We will sell you our product at our list prices, subject to a certain discount, on certain terms for a minimum stated quantity, with well understood conditions as to delivery and payment, on the understanding that in re-selling our goods, you adhere rigidly to our list prices and handle our goods exclusively, and certify to us periodically that you have done so; then we will allow you an extra loyalty quantity discount.

"I have been doing this for more than 20 years, because it is an advantage to us (as it is an advantage to any manufacturer), that the price of the wares we make shall be as fixed, as stable and as uniform as possible. Also so that our regular customers may thus feel that all such customers are treated alike.

"We consider we are entitled to fix prices for our own wares, and to stipulate, when we sell them, that the purchaser in re-selling them, shall not do so at a cut price, or at lower than the price fixed by us from time to time in our list.

No Restraint of Trade.

"Now gentlemen, pray listen carefully to what I am now to say. There is no restriction of trade at all in our way of conducting business, and there need be no 'restraint of trade" in any of you carrying on your various businesses in the same way.

"With this preliminary statement of fact, may I now say that having a long experience in this matter, and having given the subject most careful consideration and assiduous attention for many years, I am fully convinced that our plan is a fair and square, simple way of protecting the honest wholesaler, the honest traveler, the honest retailer and the honest manufacturer, against the losses, ills or evils that have been and are still prevalent in the sale of some other lines of manufacture.

"No self-respecting manufacturer will allow the price of any of his wares to be cut, or allow his business to be disturbed, and the joy of living made a burden to him by some ill-advised effort to unfairly secure the trade of, or to get the better of some other manufacturer, or trader, by cutting prices when all the manufacturers and all the wholesale trade who are straightforward in the matter, and are willing to, can secure a proper, profitable margin on the goods we make or you handle.

Profit to Each.

There is always rivalry among, and opposition from other manufacturers. To get the best results, a fair price must be made by the manufacturer and a fair profit must be made by the manufacturer. Out of that price, and out of that profit, I am willing there should be a fair profit to the wholesale grocery and jobbing trades to repay them for their trouble in the distribution of our wares throughout Canada, through this medium of the wholesalers.

"We realize that to get the undivided services of any reliable wholesale firm, that firm have to be given a good profit, because their undivided services are worth more to us than the services of a firm who divides its time in selling lines of goods in opposition to those we make, and at cut prices that are intended to and sometimes do interfere largely with the profits of the wholesale trade and with the returns received by the manufacturers for their wares, so let me make it plain to you all, that notwithstanding the way we strive to get the undivided support of the wholesaler, that it is not all that is necessary.

The Successful Producer.

"A guaranteed quality, is a prime essential—the very first—but the successful manufacturer has also to make a large assortment, has to have it well distributed, has to make prompt delivery; all these are essential, and then, his prices must be right.

"The successful manufacturer must also have ample facilities and must get next the good will, the hearty support and the best selling power of the wholesaler.

"If a manufacturer has all this, he ought to be able to supply through the medium of the wholesale trade—to the retailer, user and consumer, a better article at a lower cost to the user than it is possible for any manufacturer to sell, distribute and deliver satisfactorily to the retail trade direct.

"Many years experience in distributing has taught me that it is worth a lot to us to have the good will, and the selling power of wholesale grocery and jobbing trades that employ a legion of traveling salesmen, and who, so far as the Ontario branch is concerned, have an office and staff devoting their energies solely to the sale and distribution of the manufacturers' wares; anyhow, to be quite frank about it and without in any way wishing to flatter the Guild members, or the wholesalers, and not because I am a guest here to-day and am talking to you by special invitation; I have no hesitation in saying that we regard the wholesalers as the best connecting link between the manufacturers, and the retailers, and the consumer.

Contract Selling Plan.

"'The Contract Selling Arrangement' is now becoming more general in use with manufacturers, so let me tell you our plan.

"It is to make arrangement with each wholesale house separately on the understanding that the arrangement shall be carried out in perfect good faith; we depending on the honesty of the wholesale firms as distributors, as much as we depend on the honesty and integrity of our resident managers and agents. The arrangement being made, both parties have a right to see that it is carried out in good faith and in its entirety, that is, has the right to rely absolutely on the rigid carrying out of the arrangement. It is not a new thing and it is not an unlawful thing for a manufacturer to control the sale of the goods he makes, and it is no new thing for the wholesaler and the jobber to join in order to control the sale of any special or proprietary goods, or any line of manufacture.

"This is merely a matter of a fair arrangement and a good understanding, but it is essential that there should be absolute honesty, integrity and loyalty on both sides.

"There is no doubt, whatever, about the right of any manufacturer to sell the wares he makes, to whom he chooses, at whatever price and on whatever terms he choses.

A Celebrated Case.

"I have had a long and extended experience in this and have looked into these matters, for many years, from all the different points of view and without wishing to take too strong a position, or to give advice that ordinarily should come in a different way, still, I would like anyone who may be timid or uncertain about this, to refer to the well known case of Elliman vs. Carrington, a report of which will be found in the English Chancery Court Reports of 1901, vol. 2 Ch. 275. This shows how safe and sure any manufacturer may feel in making a selling arrangement with members of the trade such as I have spoken of, and how safe and sure the wholesaler may be in joining in such arrangement; let me tell you what happened about the sale of the Elliman's goods. Elliman's were manufacturers of a line, which they sold to wholesale traders, under a contract whereby the purchasers bound themselves not to sell Elliman's goods at less than a certain specified price, and further bound themselves, that if they re-sold the goods to the trade, they would procure a similar signed agreement from their retailer whom they supplied.

A purchaser, Carrington by name, sold some of Elliman's goods to a retail trader without procuring such an agreement as was provided for by the contract, and Elliman sued them for breach of contract. It was held, that this contract was not in restraint of trade, and that the vendors could maintain an action in respect of the breach of the contract.

The Judgment.

"The late Judge Kekewick, one of the judges of the High Court of Justice in England, in delivering the judgment said :—

"The defendants' point is that they cannot be sued upon this written contract into which they have entered because it is in restraint of trade. In one sense no doubt it is so, because one of the contracting parties is not at liberty under the contract to do what he pleases with the goods which he purchases. But it is necessary to see what the contract really is. The plaintiffs are the manufacturers of Elliman's Royal Embrocation for horses and cattle, and Elliman's Universal Embrocation for human beings. They are not bound to sell the embrocation at all; they are not bound to manufacture it. They are at liberty to do as they please and when they have manufactured it they are at liberty to sell it at whatever price they choose to fix—it may be a prohibitive one, or it may be such a small price that they cannot make any profit out of it. That is entirely for their consideration. Carrington & Son are minded to buy Elliman's goods with a view to selling it again, that is, to buy wholesale in order to sell to others retail, and Elliman's make a bargain with them that they shall not sell it below certain prices—that part of the bargain has not been broken—and that when when they sell to others they will procure from those others an agreement that they will not sell it below certain prices. Why should not Messrs. Elliman be at liberty to fix the price in that way? Nobody has argued, and it could not possibly be argued, that they are not at liberty to fix the price on the first sale to Carrington & Son. Why should they not be at liberty to make the further bargain with Carrington & Son that they should not sell it below a cerain price. It is said that it is in restraint of trade. In one sense it is, but it is just as much and no more in restraint of trade for Elliman's to say that they will not sell at all. It seems to me that what is restraint of trade as regards Carrington & Son is really the liberty of trade as regards Elliman's.

"The cases which have been cited are well known authorities expounding a great principle and showing what exceptions there are to that principle. But this case seems to me not to fall within any principle or exception. I do not think it is touched by the authorities at all. It is merely a question whether a man is entitled when he is selling his own goods to make a bargain as to the use to be made of them by the purchaser. It is said that the contract is against public policy; but that phase merely embodies, for the present purpose, the great principle of restraint of trade, and to say that it is to prevent Elliman from exercising their own discretion seems to me to be applying a well-settled principle of law to facts to which it cannot have any possible application. On the question, therefore, as to the validity of the contract, I am entirely against the defendants."

Appeals to Common Sense.

"Now, gentlemen, what can be more clear, more applicable, or more satisfying to us all? Where can be found a wiser judgment as affecting the matter under discussion here, than this judgment of Judge Kekewick in this celebrated case of 'Elliman's vs. Carrington,' a judgment of one of the greatest judges of one of the highest courts of England, and a judgment that will appeal to the common sense of every man here. It therefore follows, that to whatever extend we as manufacturers, and you as sellers, are able to make our trade relations with one another perfectly honest in the eyes of the law, and perfectly fair in the observance of contracts, we are not only benefiting you as wholesale dealers, but we are benefiting the retailer, the user and the consumer.

Protection to Firm.

"The object of what is known as a 'Contract Selling Plan' with its accompanying declarations, is intended to bring about honest dealing, is approved by the highest courts of the land, and is a form of contract that we adopted many years ago, and have carried into straight forward and honest and successful operation for over a quarter of a century, and is a plan I heartily recommend to every wholesaler as a protection to his firm and to every manufacturer as an aid to a better understanding between all parties, as it is a plan which will, result in profit and advantage to all concerned.

"Don't forget, no manufacturer is bound to sell to every man who wants to handle his goods.

"Every manufacturer has a right to ascertain the character of a man he is dealing with, and has a right to say, we do not care to sell goods, or to have dealings with a man who breaks his contracts.

"Everyone has a right to see that arrangements with selling agents, upon which he shapes and moulds his business and distributes his wares, are honestly and straightforwardly kept and maintained.

"When a contract of this sort is broken, it not only affects one's business, trade and reputation, but it affects one's temper, and one's health, so I for one do not intend to carry on business, or to make contracts with, or to sell to people who break their agreements. This is the position the Eddy Co. took years ago, holds now and intends to hold to, so I say to you wholesalers, that as you are loyal to us, we will be loyal to you; that as you endeavor to help us carry on our business by the best methods and as honest traders, you have the right to expect and we have a right to give you, our assistance, and so we expect your assistance because we intend to continue to merit your constant, hearty and loyal support."

To the Retailer.

To the retailers, Mr. Rowley said that the reason he did not sell direct to the retailers was that he could sell, more advantageously to himself and retailers, through the channel of the wholesaler. He recommended all branches of the trade joining for discussion and hoped that at future conventions there would be a larger numbers of manufacturers present.

A vote of thanks to Mr. Rowley was moved by A. Allard, Ottawa, and seconded by Mr. Blain, Toronto, for the clear manner in which he had put the problem before the wholesalers, and also for the forward movement which his company had made in taking hold of the present selling plan.

Mr. Innis Speaks.

R. L. Innis, secretary-treasurer of the Dominion Canners, was the next manufacturer called upon, and he said in part:

"We feel that our close connection with the wholesale trade has given us a keener sense of appreciation of the difficulties with which you have to contend, and that this knowledge can only come to any manufacturer by taking a deep interest in the welfare of a selling organization, the value of which is not always recognized by manufacturers.

"While all manufacturers have their difficulties to contend with, I do not hesitate to say that to any who have been in close touch with the wholesale grocery trade, there can be no question about the value of the wholesaler as a distributing medium for the manufacturer, and there can be no question about the wholesaler being the cheapest, most effective, most convenient and most economical medium of distribution. We have our dealings with wholesalers and recognize that the natural channel of trade is from the manufacturer to the wholesaler, and from the wholesaler to the retailer. The economy of this link in commerce needs no argument from me. It has already been declared by the highest court in the province and by some of the highest courts in England to be the best and cheapest method of connecting the manufacturers with the consumer.

"Without wishing to offend, I am inclined to believe that the trade sometimes give their support to manufacturers who are not altogether entitled to it, and the loyalty to the manufacturer who is loyal to you is not always forthcoming. Herein comes the point that I believe you fail in—you do not always unanimously stand true to the manufacturer who supports you.

Favors Declaration System.

"Through your committee we have heard much of the Declaration System in connection with manufacturers' selling contracts on proprietory lines. I desire to say that we have given this matter much thought and are convinced that it is the one system that will protect you against violation of contracts and against the secret rebater. In our opinion the declaration system is a simple way of detecting a violation and it does not put the onus on the manufacturer of examining customers' books and going into unpleasant investigations. We naturally take it that if a wholesale house requests us to get a declaration from another wholesale house or a traveler for same, that the wholesale house making the request is in possession of reliable information that leads them to believe the accused has not been living up to our selling contract. If the house is guilty they deserve to be punished, and if not guilty why should they not clear themselves of suspicion?

"I do not believe that any traveler or any wholesale house will give the declaration if they are guilty, and thus we arrive at a settlement without the necessity and delay of investigation. If the house refuses they admit their guilt and we must do our part by exacting the penalty the selling contract provides for.

"I trust your deliberation and discussion on the commercial questions affecting your business will result in much benefit and you have our continued good wishes in this respect."

A vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Innis, having been moved by Mr. Craig, of Kingston, and seconded by Mr. Becket, of Hamilton.

The Salmon Situation.

Mr. Smye called upon Robt. Henry, of the B. C. Packers' Association, and one of the oldest members of the Guild, to enlighten those present on matters relative to salmon. Mr. Henry said in part:

"The salmon industry is great and mighty in Canada, and all parts of America, and it still continues to expand. From this country salmon is exported to all parts of the world. The salmon trade in Canada is growing immensely, there being a big increase in the population, which has helped considerably. The important part of the salmon trade is to have the canneries well situated and to have the fish well packed," he said, "and at present the packing is on a high standard."

"In regard to contract selling price much has been done, although it had not been possible to enforce it as well in western Canada as in the eastern portion. It looks, if the dealers in western Canada do not live up to the regulations, that the packers will have to refuse to sell them. Common sense is better than law, and in regard to complaints, a simple talk will do a great deal in getting dealers to observe the regulations. All complaints have to be well founded and proved because a man cannot be punished unless he is proven guilty. We want the advice and cooperation of the wholesalers, but think that it is most satisfactory for the packer or manufacturer to set the price themselves. I wish to be in the salmon business long enough to establish a set price on not only one grade, but all grades of our goods. I wish to thank you for asking me to be present on behalf of the British Columbia Packers' Association."

A resolution of thanks was moved by Mr. Ince, of Toronto, and seconded by Mr. Foster, of North Bay.

Mr. Hutchinson Speaks.

A. Hutchinson, of the St. Lawrence Starch Co., said that the distribution of goods through the medium of the wholesaler had proved the best manner. Some complaints of not living up to the selling agreements, when investigated, were found to be more in the methods of invoicing and bookkeeping than in attempts to evade the agreements. Individual dealers should not forget that when they agree to handle a manufacturer's goods that they should do so to the best advantage to the trade.

Mr. Shannon, of the Genesee Pure Food Company, Genesee, N.Y., was another manufacturer who was present and gave a short address.

Mr. Henderson, of the Canadian Salt Co., reminded those present that Canada was a big country and, conditions being different in different parts of the country, lead to differences of opinion. A start should be made at the bottom and that to improve conditions the retailer must be taken into consideration. "A man who cuts prices is a fool. I am very strong on this point, and retailers should stop to consider it. A man who cuts prices is cutting his own business throat, for, once he starts it, he must continue it, and in all directions."

A resolution of thanks to those manufacturers who were present was moved by Mr. Blain, and seconded by Mr. Paffard.

A resolution recommending the postponement of the meeting of the Dominion Guild until September and cooler weather, was passed.

THURSDAY MORNING.

There were some minor matters to come up for attention at the opening hour, but these were soon disposed of. P. Screaton, London, Ont., then read an address on "The Secret Commissions Act." It follows:

"Owing to the apparent lack of knowledge on the part of some of the trade and some travelers as to the meaning of the Secret Commissions Act, it has been suggested by many members of the trade that steps should be taken to better inform the merchants and salesmen as to its real meaning and that more publicity should be given to this recent addition to the Criminal Code.

"As you already know, the Act was passed in 1909 and was the outcome of a great deal of trouble in regard to many commercial matters between agents and contracting parties. The Federal Government, therefore, passed an Act dealing with this subject of such importance to the trade.

What an Agent is.

"Under this Act, an agent means any person employed by another (such as a traveler) and being an agent he knowingly with intent to deceive, sells goods at a price and then secretly rebates a portion of the purchase price, is guilty and liable on conviction to two years' imprisonment, or to a fine not exceeding $2,500, or both. The transaction is intended to mislead and deceive, and the transaction is unlawful. The object of the Act is manifest, viz., to keep agents and all persons dealing with them honest. The object of the Act is to prevent the rules, contracts and regulations of the employer from being broken, otherwise without this check a traveler could break all rules and regulations that might be put in force by the manufacturer, and there would be no legal remedy against such a thing.

Act Prevents Collusion.

"The Act also prevents collusion between the traveler and the person he is dealing with, and this is one of the most important elements in it. A traveler doing these things and the man with whom he deals being a party to same, both come under the law and it is felt by many that all do not realize this and for that reason the following resolution is deemed in the interests of the trade generally:

The following resolution was then passed:

"That it is the opinion of this convention that greater publicity should be given to the Secret Commissions Act, and so that merchants and salesmen should thoroughly understand its meaning and the penalties for a violation, this convention therefore authorizes arrangements being effected for the distribution by The Canadian Grocer of a copy of the Act to the retail trade of Ontario, and an explanation of the same as sent out by them about a year ago."

The committee concerned with the carrying out of the terms of this resolution will arrange with The Canadian Grocer to send out copies to every retail merchant in Ontario.

Before Henry Detchan, who followed, presented his address on the Credit Men's Association, Chairman Smye mentioned the fact that several men of recognized judgment in the trade had endorsed this movement. The address follows:

The Credit System.

"The conditions under which credit is to-day extended need improving. The information obtainable is inadequate. The protection afforded by our laws is not ample for our requirements. The methods adopted by ourselves are not sufficiently comprehensive nor uniform. As a matter of fact, we are all too busy to take time to formulate systems.

"How many different collection schemes are adopted, each varying in its methods? How many varying systems of bookkeeping are in vogue? How many systems of credit records are represented?

"Recognizing these evils, as we all do, why is it that in such an important matter some universal action has not been taken to correct them? I suppose the answer is "Too busy." And yet, in almost every other department of a business man's affairs co-operation has succeeded in improving business conditions.

"Now that is just exactly what our association is doing—improving conditions under which credit is being extended. And I will now explain to you in detail, how.

"The first step in regard to the credit system is the giving of it. In order to extend credit intelligently it is necessary to eliminate as far as possible the chances of making mistakes. This can only be done by securing the very best and most up-to-date information.

"Up to the time of the inception of our association we were dependent upon the reports received through our travelers from the customers themselves, through the banks, and finally through the mercantile agencies. These sources of information are very desirable, but we are going one better. We are operating what we call a clearing house. Members desiring a report on a customer send in an enquiry slip with the name of such customer. Every day at a specified hour the names of all customers enquired of by all members are placed upon a sheet, and this sheet bearing such names is in turn forwarded to all members using the clearing house service.

"This sheet provides spaces opposite each name enquired of, and in accordance with the membership contract, each member fills in opposite the name of each customer with whom he may be doing business the "total amount owing," "total amount overdue," "highest credit given," "how long sold" and "manner of paying," whether the customer takes his discount or is "good," "fair" or "slow."

"These sheets are collected next day and tabulated in a report form under each customer's name so as to show the information given. In addition to the report thus obtained being sent to the member making the enquiry, each member commenting, showing liabilities, receives a copy of this report, so that should twenty-five houses respond, each of these twenty-five houses interested would be sent a copy of the report and so receive information from 24 ledgers in exchange for the information given.

"On this report also is incorporated a synopsis of the previous clearings made.

"Generally speaking, accounts are cleared once every 60 days, no new clearings being put through should a recent report be on file.

Obtained Without Disturbance.

"You will readily see that the information so obtained is authentic, accurate and up-to-date, is constantly being revised and by the process outlined above the credit man is continually having brought before his notice the position of every account with whom he is doing business, because if he is not seeking a report the chances are that some other member is. And, gentlemen, this information is being obtained without disturbing the customer. Nor does the customer know. The name of the reporting member is not shown on the report, only the office knowing this, but the trade is shown. It may happen that a member is in some particular account, not desirous of disclosing the information usually supplied. In such cases, members are at liberty to report account as "confidential," and any member after receiving such report may obtain at the discretion of such member the necessary information. This, however, is seldom resorted to.

The Turn-down List.

"In addition, supposing some special information has come to the notice of one of you gentlemen, by notifying the office, attention will be called to such customer with a request for those interested to call up clearing house.

"Then a "turn-down list" is in operation, run as follows: Each member is supplied with a card each week upon which he inserts the name of any customer whose order has been refused, with the reason for such refusal. These reasons are outlined in a "key." From the information thus obtained, a weekly "turn-down list" is published, showing the number of the member reporting the "turn-down" and the reason for same. This list is only supplied to those members agreeing to contribute such information.

"We feel by the methods thus explained that we are gathering and distributing the most reliable and up-to-date information obtainable. In fact, we in the west, and, I believe, our members in the east, are basing largely their faith or otherwise, in an account upon these reports.

Up to the East.

"Up to the present we have only been supplying information west of the Great Lakes. It is for you to say whether you want this information east of there. We are also carrying on an educational campaign tending towards better business habits amongst retail men. We have distributed thousands of pamphlets urging retailers to keep proper books of account, to take stock annually, to carry proper and adequate insurance, to attend promptly to correspondence, to look after his paper as it falls due, to pay stricter attention to the collection of his book accounts, to supply signed financial statements to his wholesaler and mercantile agencies. In a word, gentlemen, to run his business as I have no doubt you are running yours. We are also using our funds for bettering conditions under which business has to be done. We are in touch with the various Provincial Governments seeking redress for certain evils at present existing in the legislation of the provinces. We have also submitted certain suggested reforms to the Federal Government at Ottawa.

"We are not doing this to the sound of the trumpet, but by the common sense method of showing the various departments in control the justice and necessity of our requests and allowing them to take to themselves whatever credit there may be in putting through reasonable legislation in the interests of all concerned, wholesaler or retailer alike.

Protecting Honest Retailer.

"We are making the cause of the retailer our own in many ways, protecting the honest from the dishonest, because we recognize the fact that if the retailer is prosperous and working under good conditions that the wholesaler is benefited thereby. In this connection, we have appointed a competent man to represent the retailer, in case of fire losses where any difficulty may arise respecting adjustment. We have also had a form of financial statement prepared, embracing the very best features of the numerous forms in existence, both in Canada and the United States. This form is gradually replacing the multiplicity of forms with which the retail man in the past has been inundated.

"I may say we are taking a very strong stand with the retailer on this point of supplying his creditor with a signed financial statement. We are insisting that this shall be done. In addition, when the statement is received, members are verifying the correctness of same by comparing the amount of liability shown with the clearing house reports. With a general adoption of this principle, retailers in the west are waking up to the fact that it has become a necessity to supply such a statement before large credits can be obtained. This is inducing better methods all round.

Stamping Fraud Out.

"Then we are taking up all cases of fraud, perpetrated upon our members. We have a guaranteed fund of between $9,000 and $10,000 for this purpose, and have succeeded in several cases, but more particularly by extensive advertising the fact that we have such a fund. Through the kindness of the daily press and trade journals we have taught the crook that the laxity of the houses obtaining in the past has given place to a determination to stamp our fraudulent practices. Through the cases already investigated, the weakness of the law has unfortunately been only too well demonstrated, and this is receiving our attention.

"We have likewise approached with fairly satisfactory results the mercantile agencies, with a view to obtaining from them a better service. The agencies are a necessary factor in credit-giving, and while working with them harmoniously, we have not lost sight of the fact that it is necessary that their service shall be adequate to the requirements of our members. In the matter of fire insurance, we have already worked wonders. By reporting every case of under-insurance we have succeeded in a large number of cases in inducing the retailer to protect himself, his family and his creditors by carrying larger and a better class of insurance.

Handling Insolvent Estates.

In order to eliminate the personal liability of members we are securing a Dominion charter. So soon as that is obtained we intend to open a department for the handling of insolvent estates, the investigation of weak accounts, the placing in charge of decrepit businesses, where deemed advisable, men who will assist in pulling such businesses out of the mire. We are at present considering the advisability or otherwise of adding a collection department, but this has not yet been voted on by the members.

"The main objection that I have heard on my travels is that members may not give accurate information. There may be some weak-kneed or unscrupulous persons who, erroneously thinking to gain some desired personal end, may depart from the spirit of the association. Such persons in their own interests should not join the association, as their defaulting would soon come to the front, and I am sure they would not care to be branded as such.

"But this has not proved to be the case. There has been engendered a feeling of confidence among all members through the medium of the association.

"We hold a general meeting once a month to discuss credit problems, and members thus meet one another who otherwise would remain strangers. You can understand the change this has brought about in Winnipeg. It will be just the same in your district. It cannot help it.

"My object in coming East is part of a scheme to extend the influence of the association from the Atlantic to the Pacific. If we have accomplished so much good in a small way, you can, no doubt, imagine what the result will be of a large body of men from East to West working towards a common good. Present members of our association will tell you that their losses have been largely curtailed through our instrumentality. We cannot help but show results.

Looking to East.

"The establishment of offices in Toronto and Montreal, under competent men, having the confidence of the wholesale houses, is the first step sought. The smaller centres would clear from these two places. Local secretaries would be appointed in centres where the membership warranted same, under the direction of a local committee. The membership fee of $100 per annum has been found more than ample to cover all expenses, and a considerable surplus is in view for the current year. The association is mutually co-operative, non-profit-making, and stands for the general improvement of credit conditions, the prevention of fraud, the prosecution of fraud, the gathering of reliable information, the improvement of the laws, and the improvement in the handling of weak and insolvent debtors.

"All tending to that one ideal state, the elimination of losses from poor accounts."

Mr. Blain said that he was thoroughly in sympathy with co-operation, but that it should always be so that it will benefit all concerned. The matter of insolvent estates was one that needed some betterment of conditions, as bankrupt stocks were being sold in different parts of the country and were a temptation for dealers to purchase goods which they should never touch. "There is nothing like keeping trade healthy and if this slaughtering and throwing of cheap stocks on the market could be prevented, it would be a good thing for trade," he said. He thought the grocery trade was under great obligation to Mr. Detchon for his explanation of the credit exchange.

Douglas Eby and Mr. Logan, also of Toronto, expressed themselves heartily in accord with the views of Mr. Detchon.

On motion of Mr. Becket and S. Allard, a resolution was passed by the convention recommending the principle of the system as set down by Mr. Detchon, as one that should be of interest to all branches of business.

Thanks to President.

A vote of thanks to the past president, Mr. Smye, was moved by Mr. Craig, of Kingston. It was as follows:

"The hearty and enthusiastic thanks of this Guild are due and hereby tendered to F. T. Smye, for the able, energetic, and loyal manner in which he has filled the office of president during the past year, and from which he is now retiring. It is much to be regretted that the enthusiasm with which Mr. Smye is imbued could not be transmitted to all the members of the trade."

Mr. Becket in seconding this, said that Mr. Smye was one of the best and most energetic presidents that the Guild had ever had.

Mr. Smye in responding, pointed out that although the work during his tenure of office had been somewhat strenuous, the knowledge that good was being done for the trade caused him to give his services freely. "It should be," he said, "the pride of every wholesaler, this association with the Guild. There are some members of the trade who do not fully appreciate the importance of association in furthering the conditions of trade." Mr. Smye alluded to the honor of holding the position of its president and said that it should fit a man for greater work in the future for the good of the association. He hoped that the honor would be passed along to all those members. Closing, he said, he wished to thank the Guild for the honor they had conferred upon him and he hoped that those following in his footsteps would realize the importance of the position and the many things that it was possible to accomplish for the good of the wholesalers and trade at large.

Vancouver Grocers Hold Annual Picnic

Event Was Marred by Rain, But Retailers and Wholesalers Turned Out for Big Parade—Novel Floats Included Auto Delivery Decorated With Garlands — Program of Races and Novelty Contests Run Off at Exhibition Park.

Vancouver, July 13.—Rain on July 1st marred the grocers' picnic held under the auspices of the Vancouver Retail Grocers' Association. The event took place at Exhibition Park, after a procession from the heart of the city. Probably no single trade in Vancouver ever presented a more creditable appearance than the grocers did in their parade, which was led by the city band and the pipers' band.

The rigs of the wholesalers followed the band, and there were some novel floats. The big auto delivery of F. R. Stewart & Co., was decorated with garlands of rosettes, while that of Kelly, Douglas & Co., was draped in bunting. The Vancouver Poultry Supply Company had an exhibit in the shape of a big live turkey in a cage at the top of their rig. T. F. McDowell had another novelty in the way of a gasoline engine driving a large coffee grinder on one of his rigs. Following the wholesalers came the pipers' band leading the retailers. Altogether there were over 50 rigs in the procession and the display was watched by throngs of spectators.

At the grounds a programme was provided, consisting of horse races, bicycle races, foot races, tugs-of-war, and some novelty contests. Every man and woman going into the grounds received a coupon for a drawing, which entitled the winners to a suit of clothes valued at $50, and a $50 dress respectively.

The grocers showed their strength in the tugs-of-war. One, among the employes of the retail grocers, five a side, was won by W. H. Walsh's men, while the team from F.R. Stewart & Co.'s carried off the honors among the wholesalers. The married men, seven on a side, won from the single, all being grocers.

The parade prizes were awarded as follows:

Best decorated wholesale wagon.—1, Parkinson & Archibald; 2. F. R. Stewart & Co.

Best retail delivery wagon.—1, E. & A. Grocery; 2, Vancouver Poultry Supply Co.

Best decorated delivery automobile.—F. R. Stewart & Co.

Best grocer's delivery, single horse.—1, T. F. McDowell; 2, and 3, London Grocery.

Retail grocer's delivery, double horse.—1, W. H. Walsh; 2, J. A. Dickie; 3, W. H. Walsh.

Slow race for delivery horse attached to delivery wagon, last horse home to win.—1, London Grocery; 2, W. H. Walsh.

Foot races and smaller events aroused interest in the younger people, much amusement being caused by the biscuit eating contest. Each competitor had to swallow two pilot bread biscuits, and there was some rapid work. The contest was a hurried one, and in the grab for prizes the names of the winners were unrecorded.

To the committee who had the event in charge much credit is due, for despite the drizzle nearly all afternoon, the large number attending were given a good time. The officers who had the arrangements in hand were:—Wm. Clark president; James Foran, vice-president; R. D. Dinning, secretary; T. Duke, A. G. Main, Frank McDowell, W. H. Walsh, F. W. Welsh, and Frank Wright, directors.

GUELPH SIDEWALK LAWS.

Guelph, Ont., July 13.—The police enforced the by-law prohibiting the exposure of goods on the sidewalks of the city on Monday last, and already the fruit men are protesting, claiming that the prohibition was aimed directly at them. A movement is on foot to have a by-law prepared, amending the law so that the dealers may have the use of about 18 inches of the sidewalk. A meeting of those interested will be held soon.

TO BUILD ON BALL GROUNDS.

Toronto, July 6.—It was definitely decided at a special meeting of Board of Directors of E. W. Gillett Co., which was held here on June 27th, that their new plant consisting of five or six structures will be erected in this city on the property known as the old baseball grounds in Parkdale. Until this meeting it was uncertain whether this industry would remain in Toronto or elsewhere.

THE REASON FOR SUGAR ADVANCE.

In the memory of the most experienced trader there probably never was a time when the situation in raw sugar products paralelled that obtaining to-day, and, although it is never safe to predict for the future in that staple, likely to hold for some time to come.

On Tuesday last, following upon a small increase of the week before, refined sugar in Canada advanced ten cents per hundred, and the comment was freely bandied about that the end had not been reached. The superficial observer credited the rise to the keen demand of the preserving season, and darkly surmised that the manufacturer was simply skimming off the cream, but that was not the real reason. One had to go deeper than that for the cause was bound up in the raw markets.

In the first place, the beet market in London England, had done an unprecedented thing—it had advanced a shilling in a week, and no reasons to be regarded as explanatory were given. On the last day of June the beet market stood at eleven shillings; within a few days it ascended about sixteen cents, and at the end of a week had risen a full shilling. It was a highly-excited, speculative market. Investors on the American side, seeking the cause for the situation, were turned away with indefinite answers. None, apparently, could say just what the cause was to be traced to. The trade is hinting that reports have leaked out about damage to the growing beet crop on the continent of Europe, but this could not be confirmed or refuted.

Of course, the New York market became sympathetic at once, for there was a difference of twenty-three points between the two centres. Cuba's yield of cane had been given as two hundred thousand tons short, and there was no prospect of getting that amount of raw product, either from Europe or Java or somewhere else in time for the fall meltings. The report from London was like an explosion, and the price of refined was simply bound to shoot up, which it did, and now has done again.

There is, at present, a keen demand for sugar, and it is probable, unless retailers throughout the country have taken the precaution to be warned beforehand, that there will be a great scramble for supplies. As to the future, again speaking with qualifications, it is just possible that the London and New York markets will hold somewhere close to the existing level until accurate estimates of the yield of sugar beets on the continent have been received and transmitted to an anxious army of speculators.

THE NIAGARA FRUIT CROP.

The situation in the Niagara fruit district is still exceedingly serious, and clergymen have been praying for rain. According to reports, it would seem that the welcome rain storms which have been sweeping over Ontario generally have avoided the big fruit belt, a district where moisture is absolutely a necessity.

At a meeting of the St. Catharines, Ont., city council on Wednesday night, several of the aldermen, who also happen to be fruit men, discussing the conditions, said that the statement that berries were being literally cooked on the bushes was no myth. The fruit not only looked withered and cooked, but tasted like it. Ald. R. F. Robinson said that the cherry crop had suffered to a considerable extent for the reason that the heat had ripened them before they were quite ready for picking.

So far the growers are consoling themselves with the knoweldge that so far the plum and peach yield has not suffered to any extent. If the heat moderates or rain comes soon it is probable that these will be saved. Still there is many an anxious man in the "peninsula" and many a cry of thanksgiving would go up to the cruel-smiling heavens, if the anxiously-awaited rain storm materializes.

CROP SITUATION.

Never in the history of the west have the conditions for a good general crop been so promising. The earliness of the season has in many cases eliminated entirely the danger of frost, although a few parts of Saskatchewan report a slight damage by frost It has been estimated by experts that one hundred and sixty thousand men will be needed to harvest the crop of the west this year. Of these men, between forty and fifty thousand will be needed from the east, for a period extending from three to five weeks. Arrangements are already being made by the railroads to secure this help.

Rains have been general throughout the west, although in some parts of southern Manitoba and southern Saskatchewan reports of suffering through drought are being received. It is, nevertheless, expected that in the worst stricken area at least half to three-quarters of a crop will be reaped. In comparison with last year a crop more than twice the size will be reaped, not on account of such an increase in the yield per acre, but on account of the increased acreage.

MILLIONAIRE SHUTS UP SHOP.

"Why such a shop could not be made a paying proposition seems a mystery. What with growing their own vegetables, churning their own butter, raising their own chickens, and, in fact, producing nearly everything that such a store handles, and then again getting not only the wholesaler's, but the retailer's profit, one would think that such a business would yield a profit equal to the dividends of a radium deposit, but such did not prove to be the case and would seem to indicate that even with the high prices obtaining for any kind of farm or garden produce, retailers are not making the profits that they are accused of exacting from the pockets of Toronto citizens.''—Toronto Daily Star.

The Star is referring to a store on Yonge Street which had been operated by W. G. Trethewey, the millionaire, who runs a model farm at Weston, Ont. The business establishment, however, was closed some days ago, with the announcement that it was a losing proposition, and so the Star says, ''That retailers are not making the profits that they are accused of exacting from the pockets of Toronto citizens.''

The retail grocers of Toronto and of the country owe a debt of gratitude to W. G. Trethewey. He, evidently, was possessed of the idea that the dealers were making money hand over fist, even if they had to buy their goods through the wholesaler, and so he thought he would grow and make most of his own produce and make more money. But he didn't do it; the business went behind at the rate of nearly two hundred dollars a day, and even the millionaire could not see that going on. So he closed up shop. The public should be convinced after this, that the retail grocer isn't operating a branch of the royal mint.

Mr. Trethewey said he found his greatest trouble was in obtaining an efficient service. He lamented that the clerks would take orders to deliver half a pint of milk or cream, and then send it out in an auto, costing three thousand dollars. Now he has transferred all the business done at that store to his farm at Weston, and there he intends to stay.

THE FUTURE OF HONEY.

Conditions reported so far are none too favorable for the production of honey in Ontario, and the ''busy buzzers'' do not seem to have wintered as well as usual. Indeed the depreciation appears to have been almost three times that of the preceding winter although no definite cause for the increase in mortality has been given.

In the fall of 1910, the number of colonies, registered was 23,730, quite a formidable army. In May of this year, however, the figures had dwindled to 20,414. The difference represents a loss of fourteen per cent. while that of the corresponding period last year was but five per cent.

Accordingly the remaining colonies will be less fit than last year for the task of gathering in the sweet drops from the clover fields. Besides this the weather must be taken into consideration, for any sudden change in temperature, or at least a sudden chill, has a tendency to reduce the possibilities of a bountiful collection. The secretion of nectar in the flowers is hindered.

From this it would appear that honey seems to be in a fair way toward higher prices. One redeeming feature, however, lies in the fact that so far the condition of clover is reported as almost uniformly good.

LEMONS ARE STRONGER.

It was pointed out in The Grocer last week that if the warm weather continued, an upward movement in lemon prices could be expected. Such has been the case, and higher prices are now being asked. The torrid weather throughout the country during the week brought a tremendous demand for this fruit, and as a result dealers were again caught with short stocks. In Toronto, where a little over a week ago, they could be bought at $5, now as high as $6 is being asked.

While there have been some recent arrivals of stocks, they were badly wanted and no overplus of supplies exists at any point. While the heat, and accordingly, the demand, has somewhat abated, a steady trade can be expected for some time. With the primary market steady and the gap caused by the hot weather to be filled, a certain amount, at least, of the recent advances can be expected to be maintained. Future weather will exert a certain amount of influence on prices.

THE MAN WHO WOULD NOT READ.

A case came to light recently, which shows more clearly than anything else could why a great many many men do not succeed in this busy world.

A representative of this paper called upon a certain Ontario dealer and urged upon him the necessity of having his clerks read the paper in order that they might keep closely in touch with all the new developments of the trade. The employer merely smiled and remarked: ''If you can get the clerks to say they really want the paper and will read it, I will pay for it for them.'' The traveler tried and tried hard to impress upon the clerks the need of their reading a trade paper, but one and all affirmed that they had no time to read, and were not paid for that anyway. Evidently the employer in question knew his men.

Both employer and clerks were to blame in this—the proprietor for neglecting to inculcate in the help the desire to read, and the clerks because they would not seek to advance themselves by reading, and finding out what other clerks were doing at the moment to better their own condition. It is inconceivable that in this, the age of reading any one would venture to put forward the excuse that he did not have time to read, and especially where the reading bore a direct relation to his own bread and butter and the earning of it.

It is such employers whose trade never seems to increase, but generally appears to be on the wane; it is such clerks who, after a few years, find themselves out of employment and worse still, completely out of touch with the conditions of this work they have been doing for so many years.

EDITORIAL NOTE.

Lemons are being squeezed up again.

Niagara district fruit men are really alarmed about the crop. There apparently was no exaggeration in the report that berries were withering on the bushes and fruit on the trees, from the heat.

Ontario's crops seems to be far enough advanced to fight off the attack of the drought demon. That is good news, because agriculture is still the chief industry of that province.

A Toronto wholesaler made an effort to secure some beans the other day and found that there wasn't a man in the city able to let him have any. Construction camps must be increasing faster than the acreage being set aside for this food product.

Buying Public Demand Better Service

Not Cheap Selling That Draws Trade But Good Treatment—United Effort Will Help the Retail Grocer on to Better Things—Clerk Should Never Cease to Learn His Business—Persistence Absolutely Necessary.

By M. Moyer, Treasurer Retail Merchants' Association of Canada.

The fact becomes more apparent every day that it is not cheap selling that draws trade, but up-to-date service, and if the consuming public have to send away from their own towns to get the service they approve of, then there is something wrong with the methods of store keeping. There is perhaps nothing we have in the country which is so slow to move out of its old rut as store keeping, and in consequence of this, the country is losing one of its best assets. The men who distribute the products and bring within easy reach things the people need and desire to have, are an important factor in all communities, and if these fail to do the work in the best possible manner then the people have reason to complain, and if they are forced to seek other places to do their buying the merchants are largely to blame. The old time idea still prevails in the minds of a good many merchants that they cannot be on friendly terms with others who are in the same line of trade and instead of working together to improve the commercial machinery they are trying to throw obstacles in the way of each other, and while they are doing this their customers are deserting them.

Bitter Rivalry Results in Poorer Service.

The time was, when customers thought such a state of affairs was necessary, that bitter rivalry was their opportunity to get things cheaper, but they have grown out of that fallacy, and are demanding a more dignified service.

Some of the merchants are realizing this, and are improving their methods, but others are not, and until they all agree to conform with popular, up-to-date business ideas, their services, as distributors, are inadequate and not satisfactory. While all other lines of activities have found great help and advantage in united effort, there are still a great many so called merchants, who are hanging on what they have got, and are opposed to anything and everything which is in advance of their own old stick-in-the-mud notions.

Knocking Merchants' Organizations.

There are even cases where some of the merchants in a town organized a retail merchants' association in order to improve conditions, and those who did not join, led their customers to believe that it was a combine to raise the prices of goods, and for that reason they did not join them. Tactics of this kind are common among merchants and as long as they don't rise to a higher level, or weed out the old fossils the country will suffer for want of up-to-date business men.

Manufacturers and producers of all kinds are constantly on the alert for improved machinery at any cost, in order to produce, more, better and cheaper goods, but the merchants are not following this rule and for that reason they are not getting the trade that rightfully belongs to them, and they are not rendering the service the people are entitled to.

While this machinery consists principally of men, they require the best, but like machinery, in order to get satisfactory results they must be properly oiled and have careful attention. In this respect the clerk does not get the same chance as a machine. If a machine does not work perfectly, it is helped and adjusted until it does perfect work. A clerk would be more than human if he could give the best that is in him without the oil of encouragement and appreciation. In some places, where the employers understand how to treat their clerks, they do their work so perfectly that people take a real pleasure in buying from them, and consequently will get their trade.

Clerks and Increased Knowledge.

As soon as a clerk thinks he knows it all, then he has to start to learn how little he knows. What he knows to-day is not enough for him to know to-morrow. Salesmanship like music requires constant intelligent practice. A word, a look, or a simple act, may make or lose a customer which may mean hundreds of dollars to the store. Many a manufacturer throws out a machine which has cost him thousands of dollars and replaces it with a better one, and he finds that it pays to do it.

Would it not be equally wise on the part of the merchant to demand a higher type of a machine in the shape of better clerks. Improved machines are invented and manufactured, because it is a known fact that there is a constant demand for better machines, for which the manufacturing world is willing to pay. If the commercial world were willing to pay for better clerks, surely the service could be so much improved that it would meet the demands of the people, and business would follow its natural channel. Better clerks and business improvements can only result from united effort which will be my next subject.

Sweeping crumbs from the counter to the floor does not work for any improvement of the opinion which the customer has of the dealer. A floor littered by odds and ends presents an appearance far from attractive.

ONTARIO MARKETS

Pointers.

Sugar.—Up 10 cents.

Currants.—Bought at shade higher price than last year.

Jams.—Some manufacturers have withdrawn prices.

Canned Pineapple.—Advance of 40c in past 6 months.

Toronto, July 13.—Sugar again supplied the feature of the week, advancing 10 cents to $4.85 on Tuesday of this week. The market is decidedly strong, even at the advance and a further upward movement is seemingly in order.

Business in general is reported quite good with collections fair. The country travelers will holiday from the 17th to 29th and the city travelers from the 20th to the 31st and are now making strenuous attempts to swell the amount of sales before taking their annual holiday. Some dealers are considering how the fires in Northern Ontario are going to affect trade in that section of the country. One wholesale house received an order for shipment by express to that section this week on which the express charges amounted to over $100.

One wholesaler spoke particularly of the unsettled situation in jams. "Some of the manufacturers," he said, "have withdrawn their prices on jams until something more definite regarding the outlook is ascertained. There seems to be no question but that there will be a shortage. Producers of compounds have already advanced prices on their product."

Packers of pineapple have been advancing prices in order to put them on a paying basis and a total advance of 40 cents per dozen within the past six months has taken place. Prices on new pack strawberries and peas have not been made but are expected soon. A shipment of new peas was received in Toronto this week.

Summer drinks of various kinds are in good demand and with Old Sol dispensing his most fiery brand of sunshine, no difficulty should be found in selling these lines.

Sugar.—A further advance, as suggested last week, has taken place in the sugar market, 10 cents being added on Tuesday bringing quotations on the Toronto market up to $4.85. The market is decidedly firm at the advance, and it seems quite probable under conditions now existing that a further upward movement will be in order. The facts of the case are these. Cuban raws have practically all been contracted for. American refiners will require, it is estimated, 200,000 tons of raws before Jan. 1st. The demand for refined in New York is extra heavy, thus forcing refiners to make purchases. Dealers in Europe being acquainted with these facts and on this and the strength of damage to growing beet crops in Germany and Bohemia have forced prices up fully 25 points above quotations ruling for beets two weeks ago. At present European beets landed in New York equal $4.57 while the last sales of Cuban raws were made at $4.23. Thus on the surface, the situation exhibits considerable strength, although just what European beets will do is somewhat uncertain. The course of the market depends largely upon future supply and demand. Local demand from the retailer shows improvement, although it has been somewhat affected by the scarcity of fruits for preserving.

Dried Fruits.—It seems like repetition to say that stocks of prunes, peaches and kindred lines are practically cleaned up because such has been the case for some little time past. The market is bare of nearly all lines. Raisins and currants are the only exception and these are limited. Interest in the growing California fruit crop is still lacking. More attention has been given to currants and considerable buying of this year's crop is reported at prices a shade higher than last year's opening prices, but the market is rather unsettled as yet. The first shipments of new stock will not arrive until the early part of October. From Spain come reports of good prospects for the raisin crop, both as regards quality and quantity, but no prices have as yet been named.

Syrup and Molasses.—"Nothing special" is the report in regard to both these lines. Syrup trade is moderate for the season of the year with molasses quietly inclined. Prices are repeated at previous quotations, with no features to the situation.

CANNED GOODS

Toronto.—Wholesalers are wondering to what extent their orders for canned goods will be filled. They are closely following crop conditions and the torrid weather of the past two weeks, combined with last year's experience regarding the shortness in delivery, has brought this thought more prominently before them.

Tea.—"Moderate steadiness with a slight easing off in prices" was the way one broker described the Ceylon tea situation. Apparently, prices have eased somewhat but to no great extent as yet. One report on Ceylon tea says, "There was a good demand ruling, but with quality generally showing a distinct falling off, a great deal of irregularity was apparent, and a lower range of prices was often established. This was most noticeable amongst common and lower medium sorts. Common kinds of leaf tea were obtainable in fair quantity, the quotations for this class making a decline of ¼c per lb. Better mediums showed no material alteration."

Coffee.—Prices are unchanged and so is the general situation. New York reports both speculative and spot coffees steady, and that, while the situation statistically is strong, the improvement in business has not come up to expectations. Considering the trade to the retail trade, local dealers contend that the demand for coffee is well maintained as well as the standard of quality.

MANITOBA MARKETS

POINTERS—

Sugar.—Firm.

Syrup.—Advanced ten cents.

Beans.—Firm and high.

Winnipeg, Man., July 15th.—Trade in all lines of the grocery business continues to be extremely active for this period of the year. Prices are holding firm and the condition of the growing crop is certainly reflected on the condition of the market. Orders have been heavier than usual during the week as the majority of the travelers are coming in some time this week for the Canada Industrial Exhibition which is held from the 13th to the 22nd of July. Owing to the expected holiday they have been hurrying over their territory and as a result, orders have been coming in large quantities. One wholesaler when asked if the arrival of the traveler in the city would ease the rush at all on his house, replied with a grim smile that they had enough orders on hand to keep them busy for a month and that they were unable to give the attention that should be given to each order at the present time. This will in a way help to give an idea of conditions prevailing.

All lines during the week have been strengthening considerably. The feature of the week, however, was the advance of ten cents per case in syrup and fifteen cents per gallon in barrels. Beans are also attracting attention by their firmness and Ontario Maws are quoted now at 12½ cents.

Sugar.—While no change has taken place in the price of sugar the market continues to hold firm. There is a strong demand at present and stocks are of fair size.

Syrup and Molasses.—The strength of the syrup market can be understood when it advanced 10 cents a case and 15 cents per gallon in barrels. While an advance was expected it was not anticipated at anything as high as this would take place and consequently many have been considerably surprised.

Beans and Peas.—The bean market is strong and expected to be considerably higher before long. Ontario Maws are quoted at 12½ cents per pound in Ontario. It is expected that local prices will advance from five to ten cents a bushel during the week. Peas are also on the move and a similar advance is expected.

Hand picked, per bushel	2 20

Flour.—There has been a fairly good domestic movement of flour during the last week at steady prices. Export acquired also showed some improvements but business in this respect was not active.

Much interest is being taken at the present time in the endeavor to develop trade with the Orient. Local millers cannot compete with the Washington producers of low grade flour and consequently the export trade of Canadian flour to Japan and China which started so well a few years ago fell off short after that and there has been but little done in that direction since. It is thought, however, that there is a market in Japan for the best Canadian grade and the result of recent shipments are being watched with much interest.

First patents are steady at $2.65 per 98 lbs, sack; seconds $2.45; clears $2.35; 1st clears $2.00 and common grade $1.50.

Cereals.—The demand for feed has fallen off considerably during the last week and a small surplus stock is reported to be in millers' hands. While no reductions have been announced in price on the Winnipeg market, it is understod that millers are willing to shade present figures and it is likely lower prices will be in existence before long. Farmers are now delivering loads of new hay on the market which has had an effect on the local demand for feed, and business in the country is quiet.

There is no new feature in rolled oats and oatmeal. Business expected that some of the mills in different parts of the West are beginning to grind again. Rolled oats is quoted at $1.90 per sack of 80 pounds and standard and guaranteed oatmeal at $2.40 per sack of 98 pounds.

BRITISH COLUMBIA MARKETS.

Vancouver, July 13.—Despite the advance of summer, butter remains firm in price and poor in quality on the average. Creameries which never before turned out poor butter, have under their label an article that is being returned. A grocer this week sent back a 60-pound crate which had blue mould on it. He is always doing his best to get the highest quality. The wonder is expressed if creameries are not selling their raw cream and putting up other butter in a label that has won a reputation.

Growers in the Ladner district at the mouth of the Fraser River, have started early shipments of potatoes. Two tons and a half were sold this week, the price being $100 a ton. It looks as if potatoes are going to be more expensive than usual during next winter. In former years potatoes at the outset have commanded from $60 to $70 a ton at the opening of the season, and only once has $100 been paid and that for only a shipment or two at the very first. The late season is the principal cause of the scarcity and the high price, and a late frost, which nipped the tops, necessitating a second planting in some cases. Dry weather in the spring also had its effect.

With the advance of the season, local strawberries have been coming into the city at about a carload a day, with the price down to $2 a crate. It is not expected that they will be any cheaper.

There is still a scarcity in beef, and supplies are being brought in from Omaha and other points. Some relief is expected now that grass-fed cattle will be available shortly from the prairie.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

St. John, N. B., July 13.—The most notable feature of the local market is the strength of sugar. An advance of 5 cents was noted last week, and all New York refiners this week made an additional advance of ten cents. Prospects are that the price will go higher.

Although the flour market is strong, experienced local dealers are of the opinion that there is too much difference between Manitoba and Ontario patents, but do not anticipate much of a change in the immediate future.

Just at press time, a wire arrived from our correspondent in St. John, N. B., reading that sugar had advanced ten cents per hundredweight in that province. Ontario, Quebec and Nova Scotia were also affected in this increase.

NOVA SCOTIA MARKETS.

Halifax, July 13.—An advance of ten cents per hundred pounds in the price of all grades of refined sugar is the principal change in the local grocery markets this week. Wholesale dealers say that the sugar market is strong, and that there is every probability of another advance in the near future. Extra standard granulated is now quoted at $4.85 per hundred pounds.

More potatoes are coming on the market now from Prince Edward Island, than for some weeks. They are all old stock. They are now quoted at 80 cents per bushel, and the quality of the stock is excellent for so late in the season. New American potatoes are on the market, and they are quoted at $3 per bushel.

Heavy receipts of butter are coming along, but the price continues unchanged. The egg trade is quiet as the receipts are light, particularly of Nova Scotia stock. The crop of strawberries is proving very disappointing, the drought of the past ten days having shortened the crop materially. The price has jumped to 12 cents per box for Nova Scotia berries. Some New Brunswick berries arrived to-day and they are selling at 15 cents per box.

INFORMATION FOR BUYERS.

Supplied to the Trade by Sellers.

F. Chivets & Co., of Bath, England, are now placing their "Six Good Lines" on the Canadian market, and find that the dealers are showing great interest in their carpet soaps, furniture polish and floor polish, etc. The dealers' margin of profit is very reasonable. They are represented by Harrison & Son, St. Nicholas Building, Montreal.

The Dominion Cocoanut Butters, Ltd., beg to announce to the trade that they will be pleased to forward on request a series of recipes for use in cooking with Ko-Ko-But, a butter substitute advertised in this paper.

Laporte, Martin & Co., Limited, have been fortunate enough to secure 3,000 cases of the celebrated imported canned vegetables and soups of the "Soleil" brand just before the advance in prices. Orders should be placed at once. A special offer is also made by this firm for the "La Capitale" Vichy Water, one of the best water of the Vichy Basin. A consignment of sardines is also to be had at bargain figures. Read their advertisement in this issue.

Owing to the large increase in business in British Columbia, W. G. Patrick & Co., have found it necessary to open a branch in Vancouver in charge of Jno. Hutchison. The new office will be located in room 416, Holden Block, 16 Hastings St. East, Vancouver, B.C.

Why Department Cutter Came Into Fold

Methods by Which Grocers in Minneapolis Forced Big Competitor to Admit Himself Beaten—Selling by Dealers Just at Advertised Prices Caused Big Store's Trade to Fall Away—The Value of Co-operation.

By Henry Johnson, Jr.

Another Grocers' Convention question was: If the Other Fellow Sells at Less than Cost how shall we Meet the Competition?

I am inclined to the opinion that the questioner has solved that problem for himself; but it is a good point for discussion, and the answer is various and the solution largely dependent on local conditions. It is solved in my own town by our simply ignoring that kind of competition, and selling at our own scale of prices. In Minneapolis, where there is a strong, well organized, up-to-date association which really does things, the solution was unique and exceedingly effective. In a Western City with which I am familiar, up to the time of my last advices, they had not solved the difficulty, though they have at hand the same remedy used in Minneapolis and an up-to-date local secretary; and it has always been a puzzle to me why they have not yet found the way out.

I have covered this thing two or three times already so far as telling about my own store goes; but the story will bear repeating for what good there may be in it.

Do Not Meet Price.

Our town happens to be peculiar in that it is what may be called a final market—things come in and are consumed there. Very little goes through or out of it. It is not what may be called a manufacturing centre, although many things are made there, including tools and farm machinery; but the great body of the people are salaried workers, who do a good deal in the social line, trade where it is fashionable to trade, live according to certain accepted standards, and, while often complaining of the high cost of living, are willing to pay the cost of exacting service and the expense of carrying a wide variety of fine goods. Hence, one peculiarity is that the fact that one or two may be selling notably cheaper than the average merchant does not greatly affect the rest of us; in fact, it sometimes takes us a long time to find out that there is any cutting going on. Obviously, there is little of the problem for us to contend with. Occasionally we learn that some department store man, who runs a quasi-grocery end to his business, is selling baking soda for 7 cents where our price is ten cents—but we do not meet that price—rather let the customer go to him for that item. For to meet his price would be to lose 3 cents not only on that package, but on all our sales of soda; while to let him sell this one customer does little damage in comparison. So we simply handle the difficulty that way.

Right Goods for Trade.

On other items, where there is sometimes a tendency to close price-competition, we rely on better service; bigger assortment; the fact of always having the right line of goods for the particular trade; emphasizing something other than price—and this last is one proper recourse which is always within the reach of every merchant who would grow and prosper in spite of what might otherwise be disastrous competition. I know of one well-to-do grocer who has "gone it alone" in one town where price seems to be all that is generally thought of, and has made a big success. He worked on having the goods, the attractive fixtures, the carefully organized and efficient delivery service. His store was the wonder and amazement, also the subject of humorous comment to begin with; but nobody smiles at him now, though many smile with him.

Story of Minneapolis.

The story of Minneapolis is unique so far as I know. The association was formed and perfected really as a desperate means of self-preservation, as there was one department man who was cutting things wide-open regularly. Soemthing had to be done to bring this man to reason; and somebody had a brilliant idea. The department man advertised low prices on a certain assortment of goods, as was his regular habit, when one day he noted that his list failed to draw the accustomed crowds He cut deeper—and less impression was made. His "shoppers" were put to work and they reported that the reason why his leaders failed to draw was that, on the days when he advertised them, every store in the town sold those goods at precisely his prices for just as long as he sold them at the reduced figures. There was no ostentation about it. The grocers did not cut under his figures. They did not specially display that cut-price line. It simply happened that customers who asked prices at grocery stores, for comparison, found they could buy at the same figures of their regular grocers; and, naturally, they preferred to buy of the regular man rather than go away down town to get the same figures and pay cash to the department store. The point was that, as every grocer sold at the reduced prices, there was little burden on any one of them and they could stand it even longer than the department store man could do. He thought it over for a while; could see no way out; and finally came right to the secretary and acknowledged himself beaten. Moreover, he joined the association; has been a strong member ever since, and that association is to-day a model of efficiency and strength. All of which shows that, if the trouble is met boldly and in a spirit of honest, hearty, good-faith co-operation, it can be cured.

A Difficult Case.

In one other town an altogether mistaken policy was adopted. The association was strong enough to make the jobbers feel that they could not profitably sell to a newly organized grocery department in a department store and the attempt was made to deny supplies to that department. The effect was to send the department's orders to another city, at some considerable cost, of course; but that store was then able to advertise that the "grocer's trust" was working to keep up prices to the poor, and the department man posed as the champion of the laboring classes, etc., all to its own great gain in its other departments, so that it really made a very good thing out of the mistaken move of the grocers, while the grocers themselves were suffering from the same old cut prices. This went on for a year or more, until one of the stronger jobbers saw the weakness of the position in which the association had placed itself and decided that it would sell that department all the goods it wanted. That broke the combination and rendered ineffective such advertising as had been so profitable to the department store; stole its thunder, so to speak, and put it much more nearly on the same basis as other stores. It took some little time for the local association to see that the jobber was right, but I believe it is understood now. If that association will now follow the lead of Minneapolis, the entire trouble may be cured.

All of which shows, I think, that association work, properly directed can accomplish wonders and do incalculable good; also that any plan which savors of coercion will get nowhere no matter how great may be its apparent strength.

It also simmers down to the answer that the way to meet the other fellow in his folly is not to meet him at all, but to devise means, according to the local conditions, to beat him at his own game and trim his claws.

Bean Harvest of One Million Bushels

This Yield Predicted by N. H. Stevens, of Western Ontario—This, Provided That Weather Conditions are Favorable for Balance of Season—Acreage Larger Than Last Year—Drought Has Been Having Effect.

Chatham, Ont., July 13.—A bean crop in Ontario of close upon 1,000,000 bushels is hopefully predicted by N. H. Stevens, one of the leading authorities upon this branch of agriculture. Mr. Stevens is president of the Canada Flour Mills Co., Limited, of Chatham and Blenheim, and one of the most extensive dealers, and as such keeps closely in touch with the progress of the crop.

Mr. Stevens' estimate is based upon one very important proviso — that weather conditions for the balance of the season are favorable. And this, in turn requires that, after a considerable spell of drought, the bean growing districts of Essex, Kent and Elgin be visited by rain during the coming week.

In conversation this morning, Mr. Stevens stated that the bean acreage this year was slightly in excess of that for 1910, though the increase is hardly sufficient to merit emphasis. The seed went in under quite favorable conditions. A few days of damp weather, most suitable for sprouting plants, followed closely on the seeding, and the plants in most cases came up well.

Since the seeding, early in June, the beans continued to do exceptionally well, until a few days ago, when the lack of moisture began to make its effects apparent in a certain stunting of the growth of the plants and the withering of the leaves. Mr. Stevens, however, is inclined to minimize the bad effects of these conditions. Even now, the young plants are in good condition, and rain within the next two or three days will not merely save a heavy loss, but will also ensure a bumper crop.

Mr. Stevens added that there are at present sufficient beans in the hands of buyers and farmers to supply even a heavy demand until the new crop is ready for the market, though, should a shortage occur as a result of the unfavorable weather so far this month, the available supply might prove inadequate to meet the demand. With approximately 50,000 acres under cultivation, principally throughout Western Ontario, Mr. Stevens considers that there is slight cause to fear such a condition.

Wheat crops in this vicinity are excellent, the harvesting being pretty well completed. The oat crop promises to be short, but barley and corn are looking well. They, too, require moisture, however.

MARITIME BOARD OF TRADE.

The Maritime Board of Trade will meet this year in Moncton, N.B., and the date of the convention has been fixed for August 17th.

Thomas Williams, of Moncton, is the secretary of the Board and is making elaborate preparations so that the gathering this year will probably be one of the most important in the history of the organization. Many matters of interest to merchants in the provinces down by the sea will be taken up and the discussions should prove to be interesting. The Canadian Grocer has arranged to have a member of its staff present and a full report will be given in this paper, as in past years.

Country Produce Affected by the Heat

Warm Weather Affects Butter and Eggs — Complaints of Heated Cheese and Tainted Poultry — Torrid Weather Depresses Customers' Appetites and Sale of Meats—Live Hogs Are Steadier Under Firmer English Bacon Market.

The pulse of the domestic provision trade is beating somewhat slower this week, appetites having been affected by the torrid weather and the meat trade suffering in consequence. The redeeming feature is the excellent demand for cooked meats which under the heavy demand continue to firm up. Export trade is, however, quite satisfactory according to the various reports.

Canadian live hog markets are steady on a firmer English bacon market. The London market eased off a little and dealers were beginning to lower live hog prices, but a steady tendency has now set in. The offerings of hogs are none too liberal while the demand is fairly keen.

All country products have been affected to a greater or less extent by the warm weather. Eggs are one of the big items, all centres reporting a large shrinkage in this article. The quality of butter arriving has dropped off and at some points, really good dairy butter is scarce, although there is plenty of the inferior grade. From other centres come a few complaints of a few lots of heated cheese arriving, while dressed poultry when shipped during the warm weather was tainted in some cases.

At the time of the last report, cheese was none too steady but since then the market has firmed up and sharp advances were recorded at some country boards. Competition among hose anxious to fill their contracts is given as an explanation.

TORONTO.

Provisions. — The torrid weather of the past two weeks has apparently played havoc with the consumer's appetite for meats, a slackness in sales being reported by a number of dealers. Cooked hams are, however, enjoying a healthy demand, and prices have expanded another cent, now ruling at 24 to 25 cents. Lard is moving none too freely, and some dealers are quoting ¼ cent under present quotations. Other lines of provisions appear steady in price. Live hogs are unchanged but steady, under a somewhat steadier English bacon market.

Butter.—The warm weather is held accountable for a dropping off in the quality of butter arriving. Really good quality dairy butter is scarce, but there is plenty of the inferior stock. When shipments arrive from country points, prints are out of shape, and their selling quality generally impaired. Prices show no change this week.

Butter.—The demand for creamery butter has been so strong during the week that an increase of 1 cent per pound has taken place, for Manitoba fresh made creamery rich. In boxes this is quoted at 2 cents per pound higher than last week. This increase in demand is reported to have taken place on account of the lowering of the supplies of the dairy butter in the country. At present, stocks of dairy butter in the city are good, and for No. 1 quality there is a firm demand. Only about fifty per cent. of the supplies of dairy butter being received, however, can be termed No. 1 grade and all remaining 50 per cent. inferior butter which dealers would rather not handle at all.

Provisions.—Steadiness prevails in the provision market this week, a fairly good amount of trade being transacted. Smoked and cured meats have been active, while breakfast bacon is reported to be considerably firmer. Live hogs are in good demand and the price is holding steady.

Eggs.—There is a good supply of eggs coming in, but owing to the fact that the quality is decidedly poor, due no doubt to the hot weather and the fact that they were not gathered soon enough, has brought about a decline of about 1 cent per dozen in price. Prices quoted now are 17 cents per dozen for ordinary fresh eggs. While for strictly fresh, or what is termed "Brookfield" eggs, wholesalers are asking 25 cents per dozen.

Cheese.—Prices of cheese coming in the city show some improvement during the week. Prices, however, hold firm at 10½ cents per pound for Maw new cheese and no advance is expected at present.

Winnipeg Caterers at Winnipeg Beach

Twenty-fifth Annual Celebrated by Dealers at the "Peg"—Rain Fell Soon After Train Reached the Lake—More Than Three Thousand Enjoyed a Pleasant Day—Grocers Win Ball Game.

(Staff Correspondence.)

Winnipeg, July 13.—On Wednesday, July 5, the Winnipeg caterers held their 25th annual picnic, at Winnipeg Beach, a favored resort, about 50 miles north of the city. Three heavily-laden trains, each carrying thirteen coaches, were necessary to convey three thousand excursionists from the city. Great preparation had been made for several weeks previous, and the program covering the transportation and sports was carried out very systematically, and without any inconvenience.

The morning was beautiful, and to all appearances presented very favorable prospects for the day's excursion, but two train loads were landed at the grounds only about one hour before a heavy rain came on, which marred the sports program somewhat. The sun came out hot afterwards, and in about an hour the schedule was resumed.

Particularly noticeable was the number of women and children, and only on an occasion of this kind does it become evident that such a great number are dependent on the caterers of the city.

The whole day was practically given over to sports, and there were about twenty-nine events in all run off on the grounds. The fun, however, began on the train, when a watermelon was passed through the train for the passengers to guess the number of seeds it contained. This created quite a sensation, and when opened at the grounds it was found to contain 274 seeds, and a prize of $5.00 was awarded Russell Thomson, whose guess was 273.

To the officers who were especially delegated with the work of the excursion great credit is due for the success of the entire affair. Secretary H. S. McKay was very busy all day in his endeavor to give everyone a good time. Captain Harper Wilson of the Finance and Transportation Committee, with his associates, W. A. Bartram and B. H. Holman had responsible work to perform in arranging with the railway for transportation and for prizes for sports. Mr. Clark, the "fat man," had charge of the Sports Committee, and superintended the sports and individual events in a very creditable manner.

Shortly after 11 o'clock a baseball match was brought on between the grocers and butchers versus travelers and bakers. The game proved to be an exceptionally exciting one, but as the grocers and butchers stated afterwards, it was too one-sided. The score stood 8-3 in their favor.

J. H. Vancise, grocer, Collingwood, has sold out.

Booth & Stern, Cobble Hill, B. C., have succeeded to the general store of N. Lacroix.

Wiggins & Harrison, grocers, New Westminster, B. C., have registered as the West End Grocery.

The manufacturers of a leading staple grocery line with an excellent connection, having found it advisable to canvass the retail trade—in addition to the wholesale, would be pleased to consider handling other lines on a commission basis throughout Ontario and the Maritime Provinces.

"As a merchant of nineteen years' experience, I feel that I should write you a word of appreciation of the value of your products—Grape-Nuts, Postum Cereal and Post Toasties—to the merchant and to the consumer.

"In justice to himself and to his customers, no merchant can afford to be without these goods, as the demand is steady and regular and not spasmodic and irregular, as is the case with some products which sell well during an extensive coupon or other wide advertising campaign and then fail to repeat.

"Especially appreciative are those who, troubled by indigestion, have quit coffee and use Postum Cereal instead.

"I am convinced that your products would make profitable sellers for any merchant, even if you never advertised them again.

Cornmeal Advances, Rolled Oats Steady

In Sympathy With Raw Material. Cornmeal Advances 15c Per Cwt.—Oat Market is Firm—Flour is Unchanged, But Steady —Wheat Strong Under Bullish Crop Report From United States Government—Moderate Flour Trade.

Cornmeal supplied the feature of the breadstuffs and cereal markets this week, a general advance of 15 cents per hundredweight being recorded. This is due to the higher market on corn, which made itself especially felt last week, with the resulting advance. Other lines of cereals as well as flour are unchanged, with a firm undertone.

Trade seems to be well maintained for the season of the year, domestic demand being steady, with some improvement in export enquiry reported.

There are many interested ones who would indeed like to know how wheat and flour will stand when something definite for the year has become known. Even those who spend all their time in selling this product are almost as uncertain as the small dealer who handles only a few sacks. The fact of the matter is that nobody is able to say with any degree of certainty just what to expect of the flour market. It is almost entirely in the hands of the "weather man."

"I don't look for any cheaper flour for a while," said one dealer, "as the late drought has brought somewhat of a cloud upon the horizon. The fact is that conditions have been extremely favorable for some time, and with the continued torrid spell, the country is ripe for crop scare news."

The United States crop report issued at the beginning of the week was extremely bullish, and had its effect upon the wheat markets. According to it the condition of winter wheat on July 1st was 76.8, as compared with 80.4 June 1, 85.5 for 1910, and a ten year average of 81.4. Condition of spring wheat was 73.8, as compared with 94.6 June 1, 61.6 for 1910 and 87.8 the ten year average.

The oat market is strong, with rolled oats accordingly firm. Montreal reports an active demand for oats from European sources, there being orders in the market for fully 500,000 bushels on Monday, but bids were a little out of line.

NEW ST. JOHN STORE.

St. John, N. B., July 13.—A new store has been opened in Charlotte street by Pidgeon & Co., which presents a very creditable appearance. The fixtures are all new, and the modern appliances in the store are very attractive. A complete line of all modern groceries with a good display of cases, fixtures, etc., is in evidence in the store, the fixtures aiding materially in the display of the goods.

Limes are reported by wholesale fruit men as selling much better of late. Prices are maintained as stocks are not large.

P. W. Hodgetts, of the Ontario Agriculture Department, said this week, "The crop of berries in many sections is almost a complete failure, with the fruit all shrivelled up. Harder fruits, like apples, pears and plums are not doing so poorly."

Have you noticed the difference in the taste of a Perfection Cracker which distinguishes it from every other soda biscuit?

The difference, we attribute, to the better mixing of the choicest materials and by the better baking of the biscuit in modern, sanitary ovens.

It is these differences over other makes that commend Perfection Crackers to the housewife. They are immensely popular with your best paying trade (your dependable customers). The quality is protected and preserved from the factory to your customer's table by excellent packing.

The Institute of Certificated Grocers

Movement in Great Britain Which is Said to Have Been Most Effective in Raising Standard of Grocers and Assistants—How Institute Began with Generous Gifts—The Troubles.

By John Williams, England.

It is our belief that the Institute of Certificated Grocers which came into existence two years ago is destined to play a great part, as, indeed, it is already doing, in the improvement of the health of the people. Upon the food of the people, so the scientist tells us, depends the health and ultimately the life of the people.

As the direct result of fifty years' experience as a grocer in one of our Midland cities, I, in conjunction with others, put into practice a scheme for the technical education of the grocers' assistant ten years ago. Out first venture was so successful, and was the object of so many encouraging letters, that a Conference was held in February, 1909, presided over by Sir William Anson, our present president. At this conference delegates from all parts of the country attended, nearly $10,000 was subscribed on the spot, including $2,500 from Sir William Tate, Bart., and it was unanimously decided to found the present organization. From that moment the trade took up the movement enthusiastically. Recently the Worshipful Company of Grocers has signified its approval of the aims of the Institute by a substantial donation to its funds.

For every aspirant to a grocer's shop 200 years ago it was necessary for him to join his Livery Company and learn "the art and mystery of grocery." Joining the company has declined today, but the mystery of the trade remains. That explains our position. How to raise the status of the trade was the problem we set out to solve. It was made possible to begin to do this on a more worthy scale than had been at first anticipated by the generosity of a large firm, who set aside $5,000, to cover a period of ten years, to be devoted to a prize of $500 annually to form the first prize at the national examination.

The Highest Skill.

We have founded the Institute because modern developments in the trade, the decay of apprenticeship, the enormous number of articles dealt with, the application of chemical science to the production of commodities, the wide field from which these are drawn, the increasing intelligence of the consumer, and the growing complexity of the laws which affect the grocer, make it imperative that the grocer and the men who assist him should possess the highest skill and efficiency. Only thus can the position of the grocer be established and maintained, whilst the confidence of the consuming public is strengthened and increased. For these reasons, the Institute has set out to promote and secure the greater efficiency of the trade.

Our first business is to make the young assistant of more service to his employer by encouraging him to learn certain things about the commodities that he handles, which will make his services more intelligent. For instance, in this year's examination paper, the candidate was asked, among other questions: "Which of the following evaporated fruits, when properly cooked, is most profitable to the consumer—dried plums, evaporated apples, peaches, or apricots, at the prices which follow?" In "law," as it affects the grocer, he was asked to state briefly: "How the law endeavors to provide for the accuracy of weights and measures." The Council of the Institute grants certificates and diplomas to the successful students. These alone we regard as a good reference for capability to a young man in passing from one situation to another.

The work of the Institute was incorporated in November, 1909, and since that time the progress has been almost phenomenal. Winter evening technical classes have been held in connection with, and generally under the supervision of, the Higher Education Authority. In this direction we desire to develop a system of apprenticeship, necessarily a new one, which will enable students to attend special classes during the day. That's the greatest difficulty which we have to face and overcome. At the same time, we believe that the operations of the Institute in promoting technical education will do much to remove the reproach which has attached to the trade in view of its hitherto undesirably frequent appearances in the Bankruptcy Court. We are losing no opportunity of bringing before the notice of the members of the trade, particularly the younger members, the desirability of attending these classes, so as to secure that thorough knowledge which their calling demands.

Day Classes Proposed.

Already proposals have been made to the Education Authority for such classes to be held during the day, which would have been accepted if only we could obtain a sufficient number of pupils. Thus our work in London would have been more successful but for the late hours so many assistants are compelled to work. Therefore, we want to secure those better conditions which we believe the trade generally is ready to grant. Our goal is the creation of a staff in every grocer's shop in the land who may be relied upon to act always in the interests of the customer, and the purity of the articles of food which he sells.

Technically-equipped students are already being selected for positions of importance and responsibility in the trade in preference to their less accomplished brothers. The status of the trade is being raised without a doubt, and nothing but good can ensue to trader and public alike from the acquisition of knowledge appertaining to the business on which their existence depends. My personal opinion may be expressed thus: "I hope the membership of the Institute will be the hall-mark of honor in the grocery world, while, as regards finance, I feel pretty well assured that the members of the trade will rise to the occasion, and enable the work to be carried on in an able and efficient manner."

TO DISCUSS EARLY CLOSING.

St. John, N. B., July 13.—The early closing enactment in St. John is still unsettled, and there promises to be a lively discussion at the common council when the question is brought up at a meeting to be held next week. A petition bearing the names of 400 citizens, a great number of them merchants, has been prepared, and will be presented at the meeting in protest of the by-law, and asking that it be repealed. What action will be taken, of course, is a matter of much conjecture, but it is said that the aldermen are about evenly divided upon the matter.

Quite a number of grocers are interested in the outcome of the meeting, and were on hand this week at another meeting, when it was expected they would be given a chance to air their views. This was not done, however, postponement having been made until next week. Meanwhile a number of dealers have been reported by the police, but no judgment has been given until the holding of the meeting referred to.

R. R. Rankin, grocer and provision dealer, as well as ex-mayor of North Bay, Ont., left last week on a holiday trip to Scotland, England and Ireland. He sailed from Montreal on the Granpan with the Scots of America and expects to be away two months. His friends here are anticipating a bunch of heather on his return.

Successful Grocer Tells Fruit Secrets

Considers This One of the Most Profitable Departments in His Store—The Great Growth in Demand—How He has Conducted Buying Operations—The Shipping Home at a Saving in Cost—Would Keep Away from Auctions.

By C. H. Crysdale, Oshawa, Ont.

Probably the reason may lie in the fact that my first start in business was made in that line but fruit has always been considered by me one of the most vital parts of the business. When I gave up the fruit and ice cream establishment to enter the grocer field I carried with me most of the people who were good enough to patronize me in the former store. Since then I have been bolstering it up and endeavoring to widen its scope by every means in my power and now I am satisfied to mention that the business in this department amounts to between seven and eight thousand dollars a year.

This is worth considering because there is, generally speaking, a good margin in fruit. There are losses it is true, but if a man is reasonably careful and uses good judgment in buying he can usually close out the season with a fairly good surplus. Fruit is a great drawing card and when folks become accustomed to patronize one store they very rarely change so long as the goods sold them are up to the standard. One must be careful to see that this is maintained. Thus you see if a dealer buys right and acts fairly and honestly with his customers he is in a pretty fair way of coming out considerably ahead at the end of the year.

Business is Changing.

There was a time not so many years ago, either, when even in the big cities very little fruit was sold other than the domestic lines. No one ever imagined then of importing goods, probably taking the view that people would not know what it was when it did arrive and would not pay for it anyway. Now all this has been changed. Fruit is selling all the year round, and the domestic side of the turnover while important, of course, is not by any means the whole trade. Imported goods are coming from all parts of the world. Demand has been developed for them and people now-a-days think no more of asking for currants from Greece or prunes from Oregon or California than they do of requesting the clerk to do up a quarter's worth of sugar. The business has been created by evolution.

It takes perseverance to build up a fruit business and it requires judgment if the business built up is to be maintained in a flourishing state. And yet it is the greatest side-line in my opinion for any grocer to handle. It is a food product, and, because of that, is his legitimate stock. You take a man who buys seven or eight cases of pineapples. He takes considerable chances because that particular fruit is just a little treacherous. Some of them are liable to spoil on him. Probably before the lot is sold out there would be quite a few gone bad. That is where judgment comes in and perseverance also, and I just mention it here to illustrate the point I have been trying to make.

The Biggest Problem.

But I consider the biggest problem of the fruit business is to be found in the buying side of it. There is subject matter for profound thought for every merchant in this. I gave a great deal of meditation to this particular line trying to work out the best possible method of purchasing supplies. Oshawa being reasonably close to Toronto, the market which in my opinion controls the fruit situation at least as far east as Belleville, has probably helped me considerably, in working this out.

My plan is to go to the city market twice a week during the strawberry and peach season. During the rest of the year I always visit Toronto at least once a week. Now I consider I have saved often from fifteen to twenty dollars on purchasing my fruit from the market direct rather than prove the traveler of any one house. I believe also that it would pay the average grocer who transacts a good fruit business to visit the Toronto fruit market as I have done.

Then as to shipping. The express medium is all right but I have used freight mostly and the boats often. This latter is a splendid method of setting goods down at a water-front point. They keep nice and cool all the way down. Sometimes a carter meets the boat or train and at other times again we send out our own wagon to bring up the light goods and save time. The freight train is also just as good in my estimation as a means of shipping as the express train. Usually the fruit bought in the afternoon is shipped out that night and is set down in any reasonably nearby point early the next morning. A good deal of expense is saved by this method.

Growing Central Market.

I have been told that men from as far east as Belleville have made it a point to visit the Toronto market at least once a week to purchase supplies. Of course, I do not know how they have succeeded but considering their actions in the light of my own success, I think I would be safe in saying that they have found it a profitable method of buying goods. I believe too that before many years have passed that merchnats from practically every town will do their buying for themselves on the floor of the fruit exchange. A man sees what he is getting and knows whether it will suit his trade or not. If there is any fault to be found it must be laid at his own door.

Now as to selling. I have always found that as a rule people want good stuff rather than the cheap lines. Generally speaking if you give anyone weak pithy stuff they will not come back. On the other hand had they been served with good whole fruit they would have been back for the next order. That is why I always made it a point to buy the best possible stuff I could. But there are times when one cannot help himself. He sometimes arrives on the market after the weeding out process has been entirely finished, and there is nothing left for him but the culls.

It has been my experience that a retail dealer should have nothing to do with the auction sale. True I have at various times secured good bargains there but generally speaking the losses more than absorb all the profit from a few good buys. There have been times when I have bought a few lots of oranges and bananas at excellent terms to myself. But I consider the method as not conducive to the development of good judgment and as opposed to the best business methods and for that reason would advise against its patronage by the average retail grocer.

FRUIT COMMISSION APPOINTED.

Ottawa, July 13.—The Minister of Agriculture, Hon. Sydney Fisher, has appointed J. A. Ruddick, dairy and cold storage commissioner, and W. H. Bunting, a fruit grower of St. Catharines, Ont., a committee to inquire into the fruit industry. It is expected their report will be available for the meeting of the Dominion conference of Fruit Growers to be held in this city during next winter. The investigation is to be held with a view to securing reliable data respecting the area and extent of land adapted to fruit growing in the various provinces and the varieties of fruit that can be grown with profit.

Hot Wave Boosts Lemon Prices Again

Dealers Caught Short Again—Advance is Greater at Some Places Than Others—Good Sale for Fruits—California and Canadian Fresh Fruits Receiving Attention—Canadian Tomatoes on Market—Old Stock Potatoes Maintain Their Firmness.

The 12th of July and the Orange celebration have been responsible for a good movement of fruit during the past week, while the warm weather which has been general has naturally resulted in a better sale of fruit.

One of the lines which have been affected most by the recent continued warm wave is lemons. Dealers at many centres have again been caught short and prices have taken another upward movement. In Toronto, dealers are purchasing from one another to supply their customers, for while some have shipments in New York, difficulty is being experienced in getting them to their destination. Facilities for unloading the steamers in New York seem none too good, and resident dealers apparently get the best service. Toronto also reported slowness in shipments of oranges and at the beginning of the week some Toronto dealers were without supplies.

Trade is turning more from the general lines to those fresh fruits which receive attention at this time. California peaches, plums and apricots are being taken up well, while Canadian respberries, currants, cherries and gooseberries are in good demand, and more liberal arrivals could easily be handled. Strawberries are as good as done, while the big days for raspberries are practically over, although they will continue to come along for a little while yet.

Watermelons are plentiful and prices are inclined downward. Pines are drawing to a close, although some stocks are still available. What grapefruit that is left is extra heavy and very fancy stock.

Supplies of imported tomatoes are more liberal and the tendency in price easier. Niagara district is sending out the Canadian product, while peas and beans are also being offered, the latter however, showing the effect of the hot weather. Old potatoes maintain their firmness while new stock is rather slow in becoming anyways reasonable in price.

MONTREAL.

Green Fruits.—The hot weather has been, on the whole, good for trade. Lemons are on the job and other fruits have been going well. Raspberries, strawberries and cherries, with currants are in good demand. The question is rather as to the supply. The demand is good and prices might be a little lower. Cantaloupes are being asked for extensively. California goods find quite a ready sale although, naturally, the new Canadian fruits are selling well.

TORONTO.

Green Fruits.—It was pointed out in our last issue that if the warm weather continued, dealers would probably be caught short on lemons again. Such has been the case and from $4.50 to $5.00 last week, prices have advanced to $5.00 and $6.00. Spot stocks are extra low with the big demand for the past week or so and some difficulty is being experienced in getting shipments even after the cargoes have arrived in New York. "There are at present on board ship in New York, 5 or 6 cars for Ontario, but New York dealers, being on the spot, apparently get first service in unloading," said one dealer. "With the present shortness of supply, the higher market in general and the big demand, I expect to see prices continue strong at least until the end of July."

Shipments of oranges were also slow in getting in this week, and several dealers were cleaned out at the beginning of the week and are anxiously awaiting supplies. Imported tomatoes are coming along freely and are cheaper at $1.00 to $1.25 per crate. Quite a few Canadian tomatoes of good quality are being offered at $1.50 to $1.85 per 11 qt. basket. Supplies are coming chiefly from Leamington, with small shipments from Queenston and Aldershot. Strawberries are about done with a few odd lots offered, while Canadian red and black raspberries, black and red currants and gooseberries are on the market.

Vegetables.—Canadian beans and peas are on the market this week, the former at 40 to 60 cents per 11 qt. basket and the latter at 50 to 60 cents. Peas have felt the effects of the past warm weather and shipments are somewhat dried up. Canadian asparagus and spinach are on the wane, while old stock potatoes are decidedly small in compass even for this time of the year and prices are steady at $1.75. Green Vegetables.—Potatoes continue their upward march, an advance of 25 cents per bushel having taken place during the past week. In the prices quoted below it will be noticed that potatoes in car loads are now worth $1.40 per bushel. These high prices are due to the scarcity that is existing out here at the present time. Several new lines of green vegetables have arrived on the market, such as native peas, carrots, beets and cabbage. The demand for all greens is strong and a large trade is being carried on.

Firmness in Some Lines of Fresh Fish

Shortness in Supply Accountable—Halibut and Mackerel Most Noticeable—Summer Demand in Evidence—Summer Catch in Nova Scotia Will Fall Below the Average—Arrival of Brook Trout is Small—Prices Are Steady.

In general, a fairly satisfactory demand exists on the different fish markets for the season of the year, trade being of a steady character. A firmness is noticeable in a number of lines now being offered, shortness in supply being accountable. In this respect, halibut and mackerel are perhaps most noticeable.

A report from Nova Scotia says that while the vessels of the Lunenburg fleet are doing fairly well, it is estimated that the summer catch will fall 25,000 quintals below the average. Cod and haddock are in fair supply while some small hauls of mackerel have been made on the Nova Scotian coast.

QUEBEC.

Montreal.—Gaspe salmon are arriving freely. The demand is good with firm prices. Halibut are becoming scarce and prices have advanced a cent. Fresh mackerel are scarce and the list shows an advance in price. The arrivals of brook trout are not numerous. Prices are otherwise steady. Demand is good for this time of the year.

NOVA SCOTIA.

Halifax.—Dealers report salt fish in good demand for the season of the year. While the vessels of the Lunenburg fleet are doing fairly well, it is estimated that the summer catch will fall 25,000 quintals below the average. In Lunenburg, $6.25 is being paid ex vessel for bank cod, and $6.38 in Halifax for the same fish. Three weeks ago the price in Halifax was $6.90 per quintal. The reduction in the price is due to the fact that the fish are being more heavily salted than the earlier catch. The prices this season are the highest on record for bank fish. The highest price ever paid in Lunenburg in the past was $6.00, and in Halifax the mark did not go above $6.25.

The markets abroad are in good condition, considerably better than last year, high as they were then. Vessels have difficulty in obtaining bait as Caplin are scarce at Newfoundland.

The lobster fishery on the Cape Breton coast this season has been the best for years. The prices are high and the catch good. Despite the unfavorable weather at times, many of the fishermen have averaged $50 each for one week's work. Some of the packers now claim that the fishermen are netting more money out of the industry than the packers. One factory at Alder Point, C.B., has so far this season, shipped one thousand cases of lobsters. The shore boats are also doing well with cod and haddock, but the latter is in light demand at the present time.

Some small hauls of mackerel were made on the Nova Scotia coast this week. The fish were very large, and sold on the local market for 25 cents a piece. Salmon is high, most of the fish being shipped to the Boston market, where the demand is good.

APPLES REPLACE PEACHES.

Ruddy Beauties Said to be Favored in Okanagan District.

Vancouver, July 13.—The peach crop in the Okanagan district this year will be quite small compared to last year. The past winter was severe there and the trees were caught. In many parts of the district the crop will be almost a total failure. Summerland, for instance, will be able to ship only about one carload, where it shipped 18 last season.

Because of the unreliability of the peach crop, it being affected one way and another almost every season, large new areas are going into apples. Peach prices are high, but the crop not being sure, orchards now being laid out are mostly with apples. The Okanagan has the advantage of a moderately cold climate in winter, giving strength to the apple trees, and a dry summer, which gives color and size to the fruit. Irrigation makes growing conditions almost perfect. The apple crop in the Okanagan will be larger than ever this year, the trees being loaded.

Wellwood, the Toronto Yonge Street fruit dealer, is showing a sugar pine-apple weighing 9 pounds, in his window this week. It comes from Porto Rico.

The Grocer's Encyclopedia---Tapioca

Some of the Circumstances Attendant Upon the Preparing of This Food Product for Market—How Roots are Dug up and Treated in Many Ways Before it is Finally Shipped out—What Plant is Like.

Apparently grocers do not bring tapioca before the notice of their customers often enough, or its sale would be showing a larger volume. It is nutritious, easily digestible and very palatable and can be made up into a variety of dishes. It makes a delicious dessert, taken in conjunction with stewed fruits or madeup into a pudding with milk and custard. It is especially recommended for invalids or those suffering from weak digestion and it is a fact that the general public do not really know the food value of this product. It is of a kindred nature to arrowroot, the nutritive value of which is known the world over.

What It Is.

The public are also not well acquainted with the source and manufacture of this article of food. Tapioca is made from the roots of the tapioca plant. This plant goes under numerous names in various parts of the world. The botanical name is Manihot, but it also bears such names as cassava, cassada, manipot, manioca, mandioca and many others.

The native home of tapioca is Brazil and, to a limited extent, it is also produced in Porto Rico, Jamaica and Trinidad. However, on account of cheaper labor in the East its cultivation was begun there and has developed until by far the greatest part of the world's supply comes from the Straits Settlements and Java. It will be as found in these latter places that the growth and processes of manufacture will be described.

The tapioca plant grows from four to eight feet in height. It consists of one straight woody stalk which may be an inch to an inch and one-half in diameter at the base. None of the portion above ground enters into the food product. The part of the plant below ground is that which is utilized for the production of tapioca. This consists of one or more tubers somewhat resembling our sweet potato, although usually much larger in size, some single tubers occasionally weighing as much as twenty to twenty-five pounds.

Natives Dig Roots.

The work of digging these tubers is done by natives, the implements used being an extremely crude sort of hoe. As soon as they are dug, the roots are carried to the mill where they are thrown into a washer. This consists of a large, horizontal cylinder, built of wooden slats and slightly inclined toward one end, and so hung that the lower part of it, as it is made to revolve, is submerged in a tank of water. Into the higher end of this, as it turns slowly the tubers are thrown and are gradually tumbled through the water, passing out at the lower end quite thoroughly washed. In dropping out of the washer, the tubers fall on a carrying belt which transfers them to the grinder, consisting of two cylindrical rasps, revolving toward each other. Into this grinder a steady stream of clear water is kept flowing and, as the root is thoroughly crushed, it is washed into pipes or troughs conducting this mixture to sieves which separate the pure tapioca starch from the wood and fibre of the root.

These sieves are round, and inclined slightly towards one end. There are usually two of them which revolve slowly towards each other. Into these streams of water are continually flowing, and as they turn slowly, the fine pure starch is washed down through and is caught beneath in a large vat or pan. The wood and fibre are expelled at the lower end as waste matter. The fine starch mixed with water is drawn from the receiving pans to shallow vats where the starch is allowed to settle and water is drawn off.

The Final Treatment.

From the settling vats, the starch is transferred to deeper tanks, more water is added and the mixture agitated by a power paddle. During this process the particles of dirt, which are heavier than the starch, gradually settle out. When the washing process is complete the water is again drained off. After the starch is comparatively dry, it is taken out of the tank in cakes or blocks.

These blocks of moist tapioca are broken up into pieces and cooked in iron basins over a wood fire. In each of these basins is placed five or six pounds of damp starch, which is at first stirred vigorously to prevent burning. The tapioca remains in this basin for about five minutes and is heated to a high temperature. Next it is placed in shallow pans over a slow wood fire and here allowed to remain until thoroughly dried. It is then ready to be bagged for shipment and in this form is the flake tapioca found on the market today.

The grocer has had both the nutritive value as well as the source and manufacture pointed out to him and now armed with these facts, he should be able to interest his customers in this article of food. The summer season is a good one for the sale of tapioca, and the dealer should now make an effort to sell it.

HONEY CROP SMALL.

Raleigh Apiarist Says Clover Ripened Too Early for Bees.

Chatham, Ont., July 13.—That the honey crop in this section will be the smallest in twenty years is the prediction recently made by Apiarist W. A. Chrysler, of Raleigh township, a few days ago.

"Climatic conditions are for the most part the cause of the shortage," explained Mr. Chrysler. "The clover crop ripened earlier than it has in years, and the blossoms came at the time when the bees were not built up strong enough to take advantage of the flow. The period of bloom on all plants, trees and grasses was very short. Basswood came out on June 25. This was much too early; and, as clover and basswood are the mainstay of the bees, they did not get the proper nourishment.

"Honey this year will be a quarter of the crop it should have been. In Lambton the amount of honey produced is somewhat better than in Essex and Kent.

"The bees themselves did not suffer much by the shortage, but the increase in numbers was retarded and there was little swarming."

SHOW CASE ON STREET.

London Dealer Leads Way in Displaying Protected Goods.

London, Ont., July 13.—There has been so much talk about the grocer exposing goods at the door and on the street that one firm in London have had made two display cases to put in front of their show windows. These cases have three glass doors and plate glass top, also two shelves. There is a compartment for ice. They keep fruit, vegetables or poultry nice and fresh and clean, but they have one drawback and that is that they hide the show window. Scandrett Bros. are the grocers who have led the way in this regard.

Meredith Smith, son of Chancey Smith, wholesale fruit dealer, died after a week's illness. He was for years in the office with his father and was well liked by all the grocers.

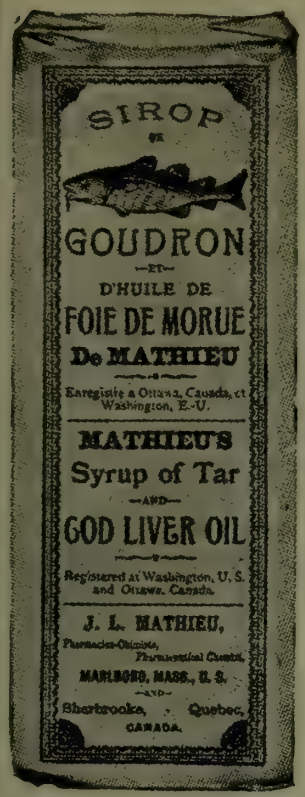
Wm. Elliott, for many years with Scandrett Bros., and lately with a wholesale grocery house of Stratford, has accepted a position with T. A. Rowat & Co.

TRADE NOTES.

A meeting of the picnic committee of the Hamilton Retail Grocers' Association was held last week, when final arrangements for the outing to Niagara Falls were completed. Ninety coaches on two railroads have been provided.

The Drummers' Snack Club are making great preparations for their annual outing and it is probable that the crowd that is to attend at Georgetown, Ont., will have a better time then ever before. Everything that could be done was accomplished ahead, and there should be no hitch in the arrangements.

At a meeting of the West Toronto Merchants' Association last week it was decided that the annual picnic will be held to St. Catharines, on Wednesday, July 19th next.



Lindsay, Ont., July 13.—Merchants here are exercised about the possibility of losing the trade of the campers at Sturgeon Point. It appears that although the demands of the tourists at that summer resort, have always, in the past, been filled from this place, that Fenelon Falls is getting most of it this year. The grocers blame the boat service between this town and the point and claim that its cost is the reason for the swing of the trade. It is expected that the Board of Trade will take action in the matter in the hope that something may still be done to retain the business to local dealers.

ALWAYS RIGHT. SUN PASTE

Stove Polish is just right every time you sell it, and the boxes are always filled full. You have no complaints coming after you pass it over your counter. Why not make friends for yourself as well as for us by selling the stove polish which always pleases the housekeeper? That's SUN PASTE. Just push it and see them come back for more.

MORSE BROS., Props. - Canton, Mass., U.S.A.

You Must Realize that an article which has a huge amount of consumer advertising behind it to pull it through the stores, as has

2 in 1

The World's Best Shoe Polish

must be a profitable and quick-selling line to handle.
But in addition to this ad-pulling force, "2 in 1" has sterling merit behind it. It preserves the boots and makes them pliable; is waterproof; shines quickly and lasts a long time; does not soil the clothes or clog the brush, and is just now in increasing demand.
You can't afford to be without "2 in 1" on your shelves.

Personal Salesmanship of the Dealer is Necessary If the Manufacturer is to Get the Best Results

A manufacturer may advertise a table delicacy extensively to the general public; and every dealer may stock that article; yet every dealer would have dozens of customers who would not ask for it; they would possibly consider it an extravagance —something beyond their means.

In order to get the widest distribution of his product the manufacturer must bring the salesmanship of the dealer to bear on the situation. This alone can overcome any prejudice in the mind of the consumer.

This Personal Salesmanship of the dealer has practically alone built up the business of many manufacturers. It is the most powerful agent the manufacturer can enlist in his service.

The dealer's attention can best be secured through the business paper he reads every week. That is why advertising in The Canadian Grocer has proved a splendid business-builder for so many large firms.

Your own wife will tell you how annoying this is. She will know how glad your customers would be if you could only remind them that the addition of a little would prevent this. It is only necessary to stir a little of Benson's Prepared Corn in with the cornmeal and it will slip out of the pot just like hot butter.

The Best Proposition!

Looked at any way you please, no line of goods holds out the same inducements to the Grocer as

UPTON'S
Jams, Jellies and Marmalade

First, they are made from the finest fruits in the world---Canadian Fruits---selected by experts and preserved and bottled in an up-to-date, sanitary factory, which is a model of cleanliness. Second, the "Upton" line never 'sticks,' because our extensive consumer advertising has created a demand for these goods; and third, selling "Upton's" specialties invariably leaves a satisfaction and profit-margin behind that makes trading a pleasure.

Are you featuring "Upton's"? If not, fall in line with the 'wise' ones.

A Pleasant Surprise When You Take Stock!

IT would certainly be a task to find a grocer who prefers to list goods on hand rather than money in the bank at stock-taking time — "money talks"—"a bird in the hand is worth two in the bush," friend!

Standard, trade-marked goods are a bulwark of safety, and as desirable to have on your shelves as money on your pass-book, for they turn themselves quickly—and with absolute certainty. If you write them down as "cash," you need not discount a penny from their fixed retail selling value. The more you lean on their virtues, the pleasanter your surprise will be when you inventory up at the close of your business year.

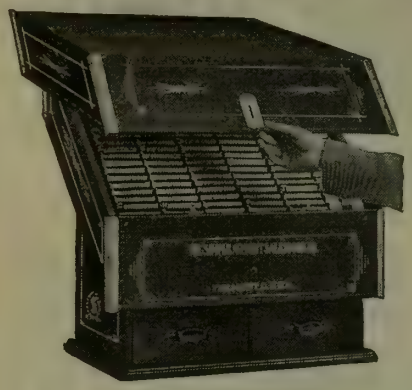
Peas that Please the Palate!

Instead of selling Foreign Peas to supply the demand for finer grade peas, sell our Extra Fine Sifted (Petit Pois), Sweet Wrinkle Extra Sifted, and Early June Sifted.

Stock a line that will help increase the demand for the higher grade peas, that will give your customers greater satisfaction, and will yield you a better profit.

The vivid green color which you notice in Foreign Peas is produced by a chemical that is not only injurious to health, but kills the true flavor of the peas.



We never use any chemicals or colorings in the preparation of our products; these peas are the very choicest of the pack, fine, tender and of exquisite flavor.

You can materially increase your profits and reputation by pushing the sale of Dominion Canners' Brands of Peas of Finer Quality.

A Fire

usually occurs when it is least expected. That is the reason why sound business men have their stores and stocks of goods protected by fire insurance. If you knew you would never have a fire or if you knew just when you would have a fire you wouldn't need any fire insurance, but you don't know and that's the reason you consider it good business to pay a small amount each year for fire insurance.

No guess work about the fire-proof feature.

Here is the evidence—

AFFIDAVIT.

STATE OF OHIO,
COUNTY OF HENRY, } SS.
VILLAGE OF LIBERTY CENTER.

Liberty Center, O.,

Before me D. S. Mires, Notary Public in and for said County and State, personally appeared D. D. Bowers who being by me duly sworn in form of law, doth depose and say, that he is a resident of said village of Liberty Center and was on March 31st of this year; that he had been for several years and was up to the date above mentioned conducting a retail grocery in a part of what was known as the Liberty Hotel building and in said business used for the keeping of his accounts the Keith Credit System; that said building with said grocery store in it was completely destroyed by fire on March 31, 1909; that said fire was discovered at about 2:30 A. M. on the date aforesaid, and that at about 10:30 A. M. following, the said system was removed from the debris; that at about 2:30 P. M. of the same date he unlocked the hood and took it off of the cabinet and that his accounts were all in good legible form.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this 8th day of May A. D. 1909

In testimony Whereof; I have hereunto set my hand and seal the day and year aforesaid.

D. S. Mires
Notary Public.

Bear in mind also this fire-protection won't cost you one cent—BECAUSE

1. The Keith System saves you money and does not cause you expense.
2. On account of the Numbering feature, it stops forgotten charges.
3. On account of the Total-forwarding feature it keeps your collections up and your bad accounts down.
4. On account of the Self-indexing feature, any number of clerks can work over the register at the same time with different customers, and your credit transactions will be taken care of just as quickly and with greater accuracy than cash transactions through a cash register. If you want to learn how to increase your profits by the use of a Keith System, ask us for catalogue "G"—it will show you.

Think of the convenience of simply hanging the customer's can on the pump and turning a crank to get a gallon of oil.

No Funnels—No Measures---No Waste---No Dirt. Saves Space, Time and Money.

You don't touch the oil. The pump transfers it from the storage tank into the customer's can; measures it, counts the gallons and shows the money charge.

It changes the oil business from a drudgery to a clean, pleasant and profitable trade.

The variety of sizes and styles will enable you to suit yourself in price. Every outfit the best at its price.

MAKE AN END OF THE "BAD ACCOUNTS"

Give every credit customer an Allison Coupon Book, make collections easy, eliminate errors and disputes, stop the costly "leaks," and please the customer better than any other credit plan ever devised.

Allison Coupon Books

practically put credit business on a cash basis, to the general satisfaction of everyone concerned

HERE'S HOW THEY WORK

A man wants credit. You think he is good. Just give him a $10 Allison Coupon Book. Have him sign the receipt or note in the front of the book, which you tear out and keep. Charge him with $10.—No trouble. When he buys a dime's worth, tear off a ten-cent coupon, and so on until the book is used up. Then he pays the $10 and gets another book. No pass books, no charging, no lost time, no errors, no disputes. Allison Coupon Books are recognized everywhere as the best.

For sale by the jobbing trade everywhere. Manufactured by Allison Coupon Company, Indianapolis, Ind., U.S.A.

When writing advertisers kindly mention having seen the advertisement in this paper.

TWO CENTS PER WORD

You can talk across the continent for two cents per word with a WANT AD. in this paper.

This is BAD Advertising!

YET thousands of merchants are doing this very thing every day. Not by sticking signs in the window—but by their methods, by their neglect to adopt modern store system. Actions speak louder than words, remember You don't have to tell people how you do business. You are showing them every day.

Is this the kind of advertising YOUR store is getting? This is a very serious question that every merchant should carefully consider. If unsatisfactory conditions exist in your store lose no time in remedying them. Prevent mistakes, avoid disputes, stop all losses and insure absolute accuracy in all money dealings---as a million other successful merchants have done---by getting a National Cash Register. Then "put a receipt in every parcel."

You cannot succeed without a good system---and the better your system the better you will succeed. No store system ever invented has done so much for so many merchants, at so little cost, as the National Cash Register.

Customers like to deal in stores that have a National Cash Register. They know it guarantees absolute accuracy, promotes efficiency and stands for up-to-date methods and good management. And they realize that good management means better values.

There's a National Cash Register built for you, and the money it will save you will pay for it.

Extended tube can be furnished connecting Pump in store to barrel in cellar.

"ENTERPRISE"

Old style grocers find a call for molasses usually annoying—it often means a trip down into the cellar; handling of sticky measures—impossible to measure accurately. How different when equipped with the

"ENTERPRISE" Self-Priming and Measuring PUMP

THE NEW TOTAL REGISTERING DEVICE keeps tabs of the barrel's contents---you're never "out of molasses." And the pump is positively accurate---" Enterprise " make---4 revolutions of the crank and you have a pint---no more---no less.

"SALADA"

——and what it means to you

We have consistently advocated the merits of "Salada" tea in aiding the retail grocer combat the peddler.

Of its immense advantage over Bulk Teas in uniformity of quality, freshness, convenience, economy, time-saving and real profit.

Our business has increased because the public have been convinced of the honesty of our goods.

Of their absolute reliability in quality, flavor and purity.

This conviction has grown.

Grown in spite of opposition, competition and imitation.

Grown because we have told the people of "Salada" and its goodness and they have told it to others.

To you "Salada" offers a sure road to quick sales and good profit without the necessity of carrying a heavy stock. Better to buy tea in small quantities and buy often.

It enables you to get trade, to hold trade and to get more with the least expense to yourself.

"SALADA" does credit to your recommendation. It enables you to sell more tea without fear of competition from the peddler.

First Rain Storm for Drummers' Snack

Tenth Annual Outing of Good-Fellow Organization Passes into History as Splendid Success—Georgetown Seems to Be Ideal Place for Such a Gathering and Likely Will be Permanent—Travelers Attend From Far and Near—Toronto and Hamilton Both Win Ball Games—The Change of Officers.

(Staff Correspondence).

Georgetown, Ont., July 20.—Trials and tribulations, garbed in thunder and lightning and driving rain danced attendance at the tenth annual outing of the Drummers' Snack Club of Commercial Travelers, which was held in this town on Friday and Saturday of last week, but though it all, the determination of the Knights of the Grip forced a way to cheerfulness and when the celebration came to an end on Saturday night the citizens of this place, in fashion unmistakable, demonstrated that never before had they enjoyed a visit as much, while the drummers went home in similar good humor.

Never, in all her history has Georgetown passed through a more strenuous two days, and when it was all over there were many merchants ready and anxious to admit that they had never known the travelers before, at all. From the moment those salesmen from Toronto, Hamilton, London and other places in Western Ontario struck town to the time the last train bore away the "stickers" there was something doing every minute. All one has to do to get the picture, is to consider some drummer visitor in whom the spirit of banter—restrained, is apparent, and then think of him out in the free open, with nothing to sell and not a thing in the world to think about but fun; and then multiply that man about five hundred times. Unless the writer is greatly mistaken the painting limned by imagination will represent comic action spelled out in capital letters; and that was exactly what it was. A band of Comanche Indians, on the warpath, might have made more noise, but would not have been half so funny.

The Georgetown Welcome.

Then, too, the residents of Georgetown, from Mayor Grant down, entered so completely into the spirit of the affair, that if the visitors had chosen to put them under lock and key during their occupation of the town they would have considered it good fun. This genial, whole-hearted reception gave the drummers room, literally speaking, to swing themselves, which they did, with a vengeance, and as may be imagined, Georgetown folks enjoyed it all almost as much as they did. And when it came time to vote at the annual meeting on Saturday morning on the place of meeting for next year there wasn't a dissenting voice, and the manner in which G-E-O-R-G-E-T-O-W-N was spelled out showed that this spirit was fully appreciated. In fact, this town seems to be the ideal spot. It is reasonably close to Toronto, Hamilton, London and other centres, and is pleased to have the travelers come, and it is possible—probable even for that matter—that it will be the permanent "Mecca" of the men for some years to come, at least.

If the drummers had been superstitious, this feeling would have received a considerable check when the recollection came that in nearly twenty years this was the first and only time when the proceedings had been marred by rain. But it may be that they accepted the situation much the same as did John Wildfong, the 1910-11 president. That excellent man, in telling the citizens that the club would do its best to fulfill its obligations despite the howling elements, pointed out with a bright smile, that it would have been utterly impossible for the executive to "fix" the Power controlling the storm, even if they had had inside information of its coming on. Of course the downpour spoiled the concert on Friday night for it had been arranged to be held in the open air at the park, but really, as a matter of fact, most of it was carried out during Saturday afternoon, and although the setting was hardly as good as if it had been put through without hitch at night time, it was good enough to satisfy any holidaying crowd, and it did.

Memory of a Wild Night.

Incidentally, the memory of that Friday night storm will live in the memory of the visitors for many years to come. It was a weird and distressing, and altogether unlikeable outbreak, and yet there were features connected with it that made for plenty of amusement. The concert had been arranged, as has already been pointed out, in the open air, in the park, close to the race track. Advance travelers who had been in the town for most of the week had erected a stage of ample size with reasonably good "change" facilities for the artists. Back of the stage was a grove, the tall trees making up a background to appeal to the dramatic and romantic feelings of the audience, while the space occupied by the chairs was lighted by rows and rows of incandescent electric lights. Red, white and blue bunting, draped and hid the rough boarding of the platform, while an upright piano on a little stand of its own at the side gave a finishing touch to the whole. This could not have been improved upon to any extent, and surely all would have gone "as merry as a marriage bell" had not the Storm King turned an unpitying gaze upon the whole. That was when the trouble started. The people had been comfortably seated and the president and one or two of the leading snackers had told the audience what they thought of them, when, almost as by signal, black storm clouds began to gather in the north and west. Those in charge of the program pretended not to notice, and turned on the performers. The Wildfong Silver Coronet Band, composed of brilliant instrumentalists under the baton of E. R. Bowles, wasted their melody for a few moments upon the still night air; a Basso by name had rendered a song in splendid style, and Helen B. Robinson, a talented Toronto reader, had recounted the troubles of an Irish landlady with women boarders, before the gentle little drops began to patter down. A sea of umbrellas reared itself at once, and for a minute or so it looked as if the audience intended to sit out the shower. Maybe it was this intention that angered old Jupiter Pluvius, (or whoever it is who is supposed to have charge of the water bucket) for pretty soon the occasional drops had increased to runlets, and then to streams, until in the continuation of this evolutionary process, sheets of rain were falling on the erstwhile joyful throng. Thunder rolled grimly and lightning wove lace patterns on the sky. And not a cuss word.

Within the Sheltering Armory.

Within the confines of the park, and about one hundred yards distant from the concert platform, there stood a frame building, used in the past for purposes military. The word went around that Brother Wildfong intended holding the balance of the entertainment there, and the crowd surged over to its protection, blocking the ample doors like women at a bargain store. Everyone lugged a chair. Presently, all were inside the ample structure, where everything was contentment, except the lights, and there weren't any of them. And when any poor, misinformed wight ventured to light a match to survey the scene, he was informed, mighty quickly, by some of the younger members of the assemblage, that the "firefly" effect wasn't welcome, and that they were getting on quite well as they were, thank you. After a few minutes the lighting of a cigarette would call forth howls worse than might be heard at any political picnic.

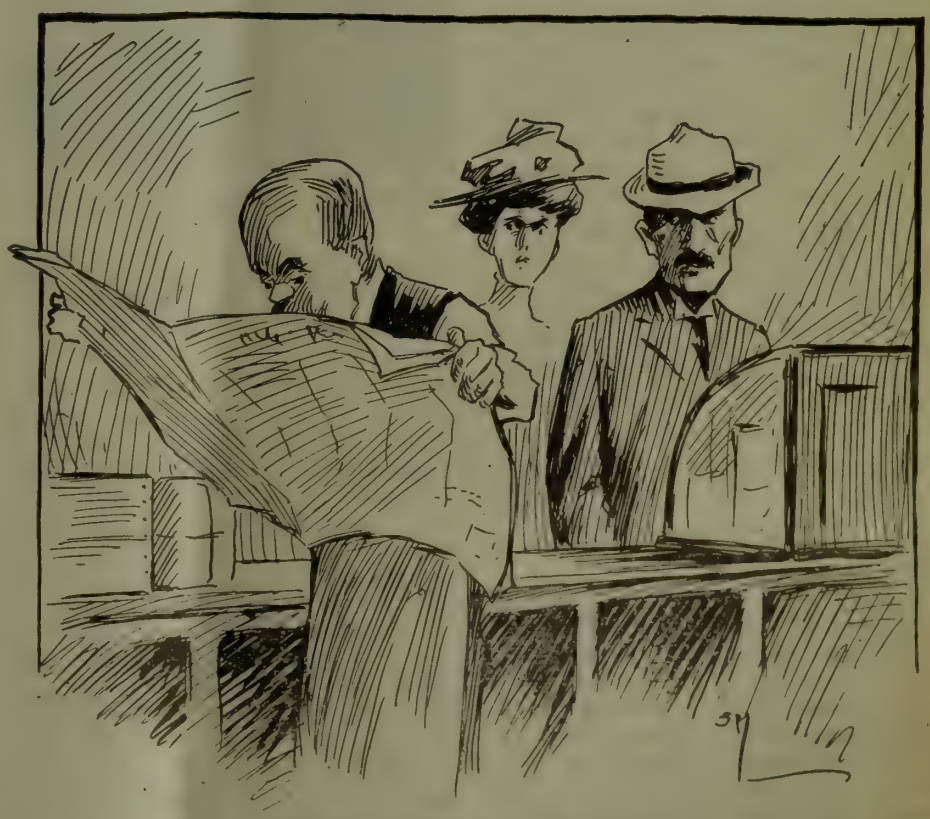
Then John Wildfong mounted the tribune, beg pardon, platform, and said: "Gentlemen, bear with us just a little while and all will be well. We didn't invite the rain, but we have invited an electrician to come along and fix the lights, (No, no, from the gallery) and we will go on with the program. We advertised that this show was to be held rain or shine, and by heck, we're going to hold it." (Hear! Hear!)

But alas, the electrician couldn't do a thing with the lights, and although seven or eight lusty grippers had trundled in the piano, and had everything in readiness for the fun to begin, there was nothing doing. President Wildfong, on whose face, by the way, a smile still gleamed, went outside to look after some of the talent, after directing his aforementioned "Silver Coronet Band" to disturb the lengthening silences. While he was gone, some one, nobody could find out who it was, came in and said that, "outside the little stars were twinkling and the rain had gone back into the clouds" or something to that effect, and the audience filed out through the yawning doors into the night. Sure enough THE STAR was twinkling away, as though it was not yet quite wakened up, and the clouds seemed to have taken in all the moisture, they looked so wet.

Another Wild Scramble.



Well, to cut a long story short, as some of the nominators at the annual meeting say, the crowd got seated again. Harry Bennett, Toronto, sang "Tobermory" and then, by the way of variation chanted a nice little sonnet or two about "Being Shy." Wilfrid Morrison, from the same city, held the crowd enthralled with his wonderful, pure soprano tones, and the gathering cheered and clapped lustily when his little brother joined him in a duet. Then Margaret Park Wilson, came on. She was but nicely started on a contralto song, when, the thunder began once more its ominous roll in the west, and before the verse was finished, some one was holding an umbrella over her head. There was another mad rush to the armory (the chairs going along, too) and within a minute or two the crowd was again under cover. This time it was a storm, and the talent disappeared. Mr. Wildfong told them again about his good intentions, and they all believed him, and, furthermore, one or two drummers declaimed that they would hold the concert if it took until five in the morning; whereat, the citizens of Georgetown voiced their willingness to stay out all night if that were necessary. But then the talent had gone, and although the piano came in out of the wet again after a minute or two, there was nothing much doing beyond "gossip parties."

Then the gathering repaired up town, and, strange mixture of contraries, the night was beautiful. Before the two hotels, in the centre of the business section, the crowd assembled, the mud not mattering at all. The band of the 20th Regiment and some of the boys from Glenwilliam, scattered harmony on the breeze, and the air took on life again. Then, how it commenced, no one knew, but someone whispered it abroad, that it had been decided to send off the fireworks back at the park. And there was joy in the faces of all and sundry. Back again, through mud and long, damp grass they tramped in something like processional formation, and, soon close upon a thousand people were waiting in the grand stand for the fun to begin. This was about midnight, and the moon was big, and mild, and mellow. Mayor Grant, the Chief Magistrate, was introduced and was given a rousing reception, in the course of which he told the visitors the town was theirs to do with as they liked, which they did.

Nobody slept much in Georgetown that Friday night, for they were all imbued with the "Christmas comes but once a year" spirit. Some of the boys are still telling a story of the missing nine whose beds knew them not at all. And here it was already the next day. You can be sure some of those travelers will never forget that night. There never was just such another.

The Annual Meeting.

They were not such a bad-looking crowd either when the roll was called at 8.30, at the annual meeting; maybe it was a little later than that; but not much. And their heads were quite clear for the business was rushed through in speedy fashion. Letters of regret were read from one or two, and then the electioneering began. Some of it was quite simple, for, generally speaking, the principal officers merely took a step more. So, George Smye, of Hamilton, last year's vice-president, marched up to take the seat to be vacated by J. H. Wildfong and was acclaimed the new president; William Meen, Toronto, took Mr. Smye's vacant chair, while George Campbell replaced "Billy" as Toronto Secretary. "Charlie" Smye was re-elected to the Hamilton secretaryship.

CARTOON TALKS ON SERVICE.

Keeping customers waiting while you read the newspaper does not have a tendency to increase their respect for you or your store. Everybody likes to be served promptly and when this is not done there is usually a resolve formed to go elsewhere.

Robert Algie, recognized as the founder of the club, then pleaded to be released from the duties of general secretary-treasurer, and said he thought the time had come when the Home Secretary, J. H. Willoughby, Georgetown, should undertake those duties. Charlie Smye, however, thought the Home Secretary had quite enough on his hands as it is, and so P. McIntosh, of Toronto, was elected to fill Mr. Algie's place, after the latter had been renominated for the chair and declined to act. "Bob," as he is generally known, pointed out that he was only giving up a job, not severing his connection with the Snack Club. The other officers are as follows:

Home Secretary, J. H. Willoughby, Georgetown; Hamilton Executive, R. E. Smith, Wm. Dore, S. Male, W. Pringle, P. A. Somerville, Col. Stoneman.

Toronto Executive: C. A. Colwell, Sol Walters, Walter Madill, W. Mills, Walter Scott, W. Shaver.

Executive at large: J. D. Abraham, London; H. H. Rennie, London; Bert Groskurth, Orangeville; O. Wilder, Orangeville; Alex. Thompson, Guelph; W. Burch, Guelph; W. J. Moody, Berlin and Waterloo; Percy Wiggins, Owen Sound.

Auditors: John Charles, Toronto; W. J. Reid, Hamilton.

These elections had been carried out under a new constitution.

A satisfactory annual report was presented as well as other minor ones. The number of club buttons sold for the outing was 544, of which J. J. Allan sold 244, and the Snack in recognition of this fact, presented him with a beautiful silver-trimmed cut glass bonbon dish.

New Honorary Member.

Then things began to happen. In recognition of the work done by past-president Wildfong during his year in the presidential chair, the members unanimously elected his little ten-months' old son, J. H., also, by the way his eldest boy, to honorary membership in the Club. The father's face reflected great satisfaction, as he remarked gleefully: "I've just received word to-day that John Henry has successfully cut his eye teeth."

George Smye, on being inducted in the big chair, said he would rather be president of the Drummers' Snack Club, than President of the United States.

Invitations to the Drummers' Snack for 1912 were then given on behalf of Berlin and Waterloo, while Mayor Grant, of Georgetown, freely offered this village as the Snackers' stamping ground for next year also, and it was unanimously decided to hold the 1912 outing here.

Toronto Wins Ball Game.

And after this there was a ball game for the P. W. Ellis trophy. There were those who said it wasn't a ball game at all, only a walk-over, but those fellows are not generally credited with knowing what they are talking about. There were a whole lot of fellows on the ground (and women too, at the start) who have seen real ball games in their time, and they have since confirmed the writer in his belief that it was one kind of ball game. But even as this is being written the recollection comes that one young Georgetown fan, called out disgustedly: "who ever saw a five-inning ball game." Maybe he was right, and it wasn't a ball game at all, but Hamilton must have been to blame for that,

STARTER "JACK" WILDFONG, TORONTO,

Popular Past-President, whose ten-months-old son was elected honorary member.

for it was a ball game last year when they won it. This time it happened that Toronto had all the horseshoes. You couldn't head them off anyhow. That's how it was that any doubt arose about the status of the play at all. You know they only played five innings and in the first, Toronto, who were at bat, netted only eight runs. It was almost saddening to watch "Charlie" Smye, but "Sol" Walters wasn't saying much. The Hog Town nine eased up a little, in the next innings and only scored two runs, but in the third, eight more men crossed the plate, and gentle reader that makes 18 runs. Poor Hamilton had just managed to get away with four up to that time. When the fourth inning began, the Ambitious City battery reversed (principally because of the insinuations of "Charlie" Smye, and say! "Charlie" was heard to exclaim afterward, that "it was great!" Only one benighted Toronto man was shoved over, after that, and Hamilton got three more runs, even if there are those who say they didn't. Oh! it was a great game.

The winners:—R. Asher, pitcher; Wylie, catcher; Geo. Arnold, R. Arnold, Smith, Gloucester, Barchard, Maltby and Easton.

The losers:—Geo. Rush, pitcher; Macdonald, Georgetown, catcher; (this order was reversed after the third inning) Corrigan, Dove, Wilson, Algie, Male, Kerchar, Forgrave.

Umpire, Arnold, of Georgetown.

Another Ball Game.

It wasn't long after this until the old(?) fellows had refreshed the inner man, and, after the great and only parade, in which Clown, and Headsman, and Cardinals, and Potentates, and Kings, and Farmers, and Fools, and Ambassadors, and Queens, and the others, all walked in the mud in line, they began to knock chips off each others' shoulders, so to speak, in lining up for the indoor ball game, played out in the park. Again it was Hamilton and Toronto men who were arrayed against each other for the Wildfong Cup. This time (there is no doubt about it) it was a ball game, for Hamilton won, 6 to 5, and, Sol Walters played first base for Toronto. That should be enough in itself. There were many features in this game unknown in other contests. For one, "Mike" Malone, after swatting a nice one in the second inning, got to first base in time to catch himself out. The Umpire 'lowed as how his intentions were good.

Those who handed in their names as taking part in this game were as follows:

Toronto.—Meen, captain; Cross, Wilder, Walters, J. C. Charles, Powers, Jas. Charles, Cawthra, Drummond.

Hamilton.—Geo. Smye, captain; Pringle, C. Smye, Malone, Simmons, Francis, Harley, Arnold, Hune.

Hamilton won 6—5 score.

The Calithumpian Parade.

But about that procession. None but those who visited Georgetown on this important occasion can lay claim to the honor of having seen the most amusing and laughable procession that has occurred in recent years. It was a calithumpian parade that had all the others backed into a corner. Right from the gaily decked buzz-waggon in which Wildfong and Smye lead the procession, down to Sol Walters and family at the rear, it was one continual stream of gaily dressed humanity, who, in carnival costumes, vied with each other in attracting the attention of the immense crowd of spectators who lined the route of march. With heads erect, and martial tread to the music of the three big bands, the participants represented everything from Queen Anne to prize fighters, and they marched up and down the main streets of Georgetown. Scoutmaster Barker, who was in charge, must have, indeed, felt proud as he watched the crew swing briskly past, every man in step (at times) excepting Sol Walters, who would keep step with no other band but the Wildfong Silver Coronets, and, as unfortunately some members of this musical organization were about two bars behind the others in the music, who could blame Sol Walters for marching to please his own sweet self. Charles and George Smye, representing Jeff and Mutt, marched together, the former introducing a new step called the double hitch, which allowed him to take two steps to his partners' one, thus arriving at the park pretty well on time. Chas. Smye was also introducing the latest creation in gentlemen's lids for a Paris firm. It was a cross between a tenth century and a pancake and Charlie received many orders (to take it off before the cop arrived).

Altogether it was a grand affair and will go down in the history of Georgetown as the greatest that has been. It was noticed when the procession had returned to the park that Sol Walters had deserted, and he was penalized by those in authority by having to take part in a nine act play entitled "Indoor baseball, outside in the Park."

The Baby Contest.

Wildfong and Smye were the first entries in the Baby Show, but as there is a rule that no person can win more than one first prize, and both being certain of carrying off the honors in the quarter mile stampede, for this, and other reasons, withdrew. From the grand showing made in this contest, Georgetown will no doubt be an attractive spot for the traveling man in another twenty years. Wm. Judge, Toronto, Thos. Gloucester, Toronto, and Capt. W. G. Reid, Hamilton, exhibited the babies in a manner which showed that they have been in excellent training. Mr. Wildfong bewailed the fact that he had not brought his ten-month old boy along as he felt confident that between the two of them they could at least have carried off one prize in this affair.

When the fat men's race was announced, the track officials moved the crowd back to the limits. Here, the bouquets were handed to Wildfong. After starting the race, he entered the contest himself and was successful—in running fully fifty feet at one time without stopping for refreshments. The bouquet handed him was off the lemon plant. But, although the track was in excellent condition no records were broken. The course was 75 yards, more or less, and mostly less. The race was closely contested and somewhat in doubt unless the last ten or fifteen minutes, when Colbert, looking around, saw Wildfong coming with a pistol, at full speed, took fright and galloped past the tape ahead of the rest, Mills and Charles coming in under a full head of steam, second and third, respectively.

The Tug-of-War.

"The men with the big pull" in Georgetown were got on the string in the tug-of-war. Wildfong was offered 50 cents to act as anchor on one end but declined when he saw Sol Walters move up to the other end of the rope.

The young women showed their training on the end of the broom handle in

COL. STONEMAN AND COL. COCHRANE,

Who had a reunion at Oakville last year. The former had to sleep alone this time.

the "broom ball match." The dust flew in all directions, and Mike Malone, who stood with open mouth at each mix up, allowed his throat to get so dry that he had to buy 5 cents worth of lemonade before he was able to yell. The girls, gracefully but energetically knocked the ball in all directions about the lot, but had difficulty in putting it in the required spot. This difficulty was intensified by the fact that they were never certain where the goal was going to be next time they shot. The goal posts kept moving about the field, most noticeably. Sol Walters who was chosen unanimously in this capacity by the ladies, had a habit of shifting his position in order to keep his peepers on the pill which was wafted to and fro by the mighty swats which only a woman knows how to give with a broom. One of the Drummers who acted as goal post can testify to the powerfulness of these swats, as well as his left leg which bears full evidence of the fact in a shape of an injured tibia. One goal was scored, according to the official reports, issued later in the day, but who was responsible for this counter was rather uncertain, as well as other particulars regarding the result. One girl at the end of the contest was unable to state just which side she had been playing for.

Georgetown Merchants Race

Competitive business men from Georgetown were on the spot when the stampede for the Georgetown merchants was heralded from the tower. This affair proved somewhat more strenuous than the business competition which exists between these men, and will put them in excellent trim for chasing delinquent debtors who try to evade their grasp. H. R. Nixon came first; L. Y. Reid, second; W. Kennedy, third, and C. Van Allen, fourth.

The Georgetown clerks were not to be outdone by their business superiors, and J. Reid sprinted home first in record time with W. Row and C. Dobie, second and third in the clerks of Georgetown race.

It was a mighty good thing for the contestants in the next race that Sunday was near at hand. Otherwise, some wholesale houses might have been short a man next day. It was the travelers' race, keenly contested with some "blowing" both at the start and the finish—only of a different kind. Francis, of Toronto, was first to step on the toes of those at the finishing line. Smith, of Guelph, came second, Barchard, of Toronto, third, and Dore, of Hamilton, fourth, and all had excellent excuses for not coming in first but they didn't tell them. However, fear was attributed to Francis' win. The sound of the starting pistol scared him, so that he went up the track exceeding the ordinary speed limit for travelers' races.

When the races for travelers' wives, sweethearts and daughters were announced, there was a general scramble of club members to offer their services at the finishing line, but Wildfong cleared them back by shooting half a dozen straight at the most prominent, with his toy pistol. The travelers' wives threw themselves into the arms of those at the tape as follows: Nelson, Mason, Smith and Mason. The travelers' daughters were caught in the following order: Caldwell, Walters, Caldwell, Caldwell and Foster.

There isn't any use in telling that the concert which was finished on Saturday afternoon pleased the crowd. They simply cheered themselves hoarse. And there was another little touch of Drummer kindliness that took well. This was the presentation, by Mr. Wildfong, on behalf of the Smack, of a generous Union Jack to Captain R. R. Barber, and his Georgetown troop of Boy Scouts. They had been working self-sacrificingly all the week, in the interests of the outing and had everything in fine shape. The boys were of invaluable assistance to the billeting committee, for there was always one on hand to guide the stranger's feet when there was a card to be presented at the house of a Georgetown good-wife. It was a new touch, but distinctly a good one.

One Dealer's Methods for Increasing Sales

Woodstock Merchant Explains How he Keeps His Business Each Week up to Proper Standard — Concentrates Selling Force on Selected Lines of Goods—Moving the Stickers—Newspaper Space Taken to Further the Attempt.

Speaking in connection with methods that have been used to keep up the volume of business in his store, a retailer in Woodstock, Ont., recently outlined his views on the matter.

He has a big store and a big business. Probably his turnover would exceed $75,000 in the year. He attributes his system of always keeping customers informed of the goods he wishes to keep moving as responsible largely for this large volume of trade.

Briefly his idea is to divide off his stock each week into probably half a dozen definite departments. On these he will devote the whole force of his selling organization and will use every endeavor to move out the holdings he has in those lines. There is no particular routine he follows because he relies largely upon the seasons to make his selections of goods.

Samples of each of these lines are placed on the counter in prominent positions. In the meantime each clerk has been informed of what is expected of him and as a consequence no customer gets out of the establishment without having heard something of the sterling qualities of these goods. "My business in general has been wonderfully simplified by this scheme," he said. "The trade as a whole has been increased and there is not the slightest waste of selling force in the store. As will be seen each clerk knows precisely what is expected of him and at the close of the day's business the cheques are gone over to ascertain the man doing the most business in the lines picked upon for that day.

"There is no confusion within the store and consequently no hesitation on the part of the salesman in talking with any customer. The goods that he is supposed to sell are there before him, and he is already very carefully informed as to the selling points he can enlarge upon with advantage to himself.

"The newspaper space we carry each week is given over to these so-called specials. Of course there is a general talk on quality lines, and other goods are mentioned besides these, but generally speaking we concentrate as much as possible on the lines to be selected for the following day.

"In addition to this we have a definite policy in regard to the moving out of stickers. Each order boy on going out in the morning is given a sample of some line that we think should be cleared off the shelves. He doesn't have to do much talking for that isn't expected of him. All he has to do is to bring the sample to the attention of the housewife after she has completed her own wants and suggests to her that an addition order in that line would be beneficial to both herself and firm. I have found this scheme to work out well. It is very seldom indeed that the stocks of these slow goods are not cut down considerably by this method.

"Both of these systems have worked out remarkably well for me, and it would appear that other merchants in similar circumstance might well take advantage of one or both of them. It has been my experience that a clerk when his work has been definitely laid down for him does much more efficient work than does he who is left to work for himself. The idea seems to be along the lines of better merchandising and has simplified things a great deal for me."

Some of the Reasons Why Grocers Fail

Fallacy That Anyone With Few Dollars Can Start and Make Success in Grocery Business—How Deadbeats Flock to the New Man—Some Stock Too Heavily for the Capital Available.

By R. J. E. McCrea, Guelph, Ont.

Most people, that is people who have never been in the grocery business, imagine that anyone with $500 can start a little corner store and have a comfortable living the rest of their days.

That is why Guelph, for instance, has nearly thirty grocery stores for 15,000 population.

That is why goods that cost 12½c. are sold at 12½c. or 15c. and vice versa.

Lack of a thorough grounding in business principles, especially the all-important one of sufficient profit getting, causes 4-5 of the failures.

It's putting it mild to say 10 per cent. covers running expenses, and a man should have 10 per cent. for himself. How often does he?

A new grocer is terribly anxious for business. The deadbeats know it, and in the goodness of their hearts flock to him. He rapidly gathers as many accounts as his capital will allow—then crash—wakes up and tries to collect. I said TRIES to collect—that's all. He has the experience—they his goods. Learn to say NO, firmly and politely. A man can't afford to have a bad account on his books. He loses then cash trade also, which ten to one he'd get otherwise.

The most new grocers stock up too heavily for the capita involved. From my past experience, and I had five years as corner grocery man, I'd only put a week's supply of nearly everything.

Do you know, I think it would pay a grocer to sell butter and eggs at cost, even though he actually lost—the cost of doing business, because you gain so much extra—a cent on eggs or butter looks as big as $1 to most women. Quality first though always on butter and eggs.

The lack of these things—knowledge of cost—lack of variety of quality—have filled many a financial grave. Women hate a dirty store—scrub once a week—sweep often and dust always.

Investigate a failure. Did he make a good outside display? Did he advertise? No, he was slow—a dead one—such fail.

Leaks, waste, theft, not knowing cost, culling prices, discourteousness to customers, short weight, over-weight—all lead one way—broke.

System—prevents failure, shows leaks, prevents mistakes—adopt it now—the road to Hades is paved with good intentions.

Smile—just simply smile—a gloomy face chases customers better than old Dutch.

Be decent to travelers—successful men always are. The failures have a chronic grouch and can't be pleasant if they tried.

Travelers give many good ideas. Failures never read The Grocer. They wouldn't be a failure if they did. It would wake them up, give new ideas—often successful people's ideas—give market prices, teach him to buy—to sell—to be successful. Let me repeat—Failures do not read The Grocer. It might make them successful men.

Suggests Labor Bureau to Secure Clerks

Member of Toronto Retail Grocers' Association Brings Matter to Attention of Body and Committee is Appointed — Applications Would Go to One Man and Those Needing Man Could Get in Touch With Him—Gossip.

Toronto, July 20.—The Toronto Retail Grocers in monthly session in the Temple Building on Monday night, demonstrated themselves a live body by taking action on a scheme whereby grocers in the city may secure with the least trouble possible, competent clerks and drivers for their business. D. W. Clark introduced a suggestion for a labor bureau in connection with the association, in charge of some person who would keep in touch with available clerks and drivers. By an advertisement in the papers the person in charge would secure the names of all looking for such positions. From those who applied suitable testimonials would be secured before they would be entered on the list. Anyone wanting a clerk or driver could telephone to the bureau and at once secure a suitable man.

J. M. Cork thought it would be a good idea and that the man in charge should receive a fee from the merchants so served. Others were also in line with the idea and a committee composed of D. W. Clarke, D. McLean, F. Thorne, and J. M. Cork was appointed to consider the proposition and report at next meeting.

The matter of meeting the London, Ont., grocers on their picnic to Toronto, was left in charge of the executive. Fifteen new members were admitted to the association. Their names are as follows: Geo. Drinkwater, Spadina; John Davidson, Bathurst; D. J. Taylor, Spadina; P. J. Deelon, Queen; C. W. Duke, Barton; A. Dainty, Manning; S. C. Davis, Bloor; R. Chandler, Lippincott; M. Foreman, Spadina; Marshall Bros., Bathurst; J. Deverian, Niagara; C. Mathews, Parliament; R. Williamson, College; Canfield Bros., Brock; W. J. Cheser, Queen.

Heard at the Meeting.

The medical health officer's fruit display by-law has been shelved by the city council until October. "Until the fruit season is over," commented one member.

"Hiring a clerk," said one grocer, "he has an excellent recommendation from a former employer, but when I rang that merchant up, I found that he was an unsuitable man, being addicted to drink. I do not think a merchant should give a recommendation where it is not deserving."

"One man hired a driver" said another, "sent him out to deliver goods and found him later at a nearby hotel, unable for work and without a parcel delivered."

"It is a big problem with every merchant to get good reliable clerks and drivers," said another.

"The departmental stores are advertising soap at 6 bars for 25c. again," reported one member.

"Don't bother anything about them," advised a couple of others.

"I weigh all such articles as peas, beans and cabbage."

"The standard bag of potatoes is now 80 lbs. All do not seem to be acquainted with the fact."

"Potatoes in barrels sometimes vary from 1 to 1½ pecks. Some dealers claim they hold 12 pecks, but most of them are around ten."

"I always charge for the sealer when I send it out with vinegar."

"I have jars which when sent out with vinegar, I charge 10 cents for. If the customer returns them to the driver he gives them 10 cents and collect that amount when he returns to the store."

"I count up the number of egg cases each night and if there are any missing, I charge them to the driver, as he is responsible for them."

"If canned goods go much higher, we will be able to import them cheaper."

"Is it satisfactory to buy ahead?" asked one member.

"It doesn't seem fair that the grocer should buy ahead and have to carry the stock instead of the wholesaler. In some lines we have to order away ahead before our exact wants are really known."

The Grocer learned, with regret, of the death of Stanley Nicholson in Porcupine Lake last week. While he resided in Guelph, Ont., he corresponded for this paper. Among the articles he contributed was one explaining the system of the Guelph R.M.A. for the collection of debts, which was later destined to receive national prominence. His death was caused by the bush fires which drove him into the lake where he was drowned.

The retailers of West Toronto held their annual picnic to Niagara on Wednesday and practically all the stores of the place were closed for the day.

Vancouver, B.C., July 20.—(Special).—A. B. Ferguson, Vancouver, B.C., has acquired the business of the Savona Grocery Co., at Savona, B.C. The business was started many years ago by the late John Jane, and was purchased four years ago by H. J. Baker, who has since conducted it. W. J. Ferguson will be the manager.

A CALL FOR RETAIL ORGANIZATION.

Hamilton, Ont., July 20, 1911.

Editor Canadian Grocer,—The thanks of the retail trade are due to The Canadian Grocer for the excellent report given of the Ontario Guild's recent meeting, and hopes are entertained that the retailers may carefully read the same and make some effort to complete an organization in their own interests. The wholesalers are to be commended for the kindly interest they have taken in the affairs of the retail trade, but there is an old proverb that, I think, might be mentioned just here. "That the Lord helps those who help themselves." If no effort is made by the retailers it can hardly be expected that the Guild can do much more for them than they have already done. All the business accomplished reflects on the retailers to a certain extent, and it would be of incalculable advantage to the retailers if some of the large retailers could get together and discuss the different problems. I might mention Sloan, of Galt; McCrea, of Guelph, Scandritt, of London; Barron, of Toronto; Ford, of Ottawa; Osborne, of Hamilton; the big fellows in Kingston, Chatham, Midland, Owen Sound and other places as well, not forgetting our esteemed brother from Cobalt, who has asked the pertinent question, "Who is a retailer?" I think the trade are anxiously awaiting a reply to that important question, and when it is decided, will the wholesaler be willing to make a declaration when he is suspected of selling to the consumer, carrying out the same arrangement that he himself has with the manufacturer?

FRUIT PROBABILITIES IN ONTARIO.

A great weight has been lifted from the shoulders of the fruit growers and farmers of Ontario as a result of the heavy rainstorms which swept over the province at the end of last and at the beginning of this week. They came too late to save the bulk of the early small fruits, but at a providential time to freshen up the late varieties of raspberries and cherries and to make possible a larger yield of the larger and hardier fruits.

The late raspberries are improving. No one would care to go so far, yet, as to say the output will be as heavy as expected earlier in the year, but the yield will undoubtedly be greater than it was feared it would be some few days ago.

The cherries are practically all finished. The effect of the dry spell, as far as this fruit is concerned, was to ripen the early kinds practically all at once, with the natural result, of course, that the markets were pretty well filled. But this was offset by the failure of the strawberries and early raspberries, and the price held good. The English and later kinds are still to come in.

Pears are likely to be a practical failure. At its very best, the crop will be light. According to Secretary P. W. Hodgetts of Ontario Fruit Growers' Association, the farmers and fruit men are going out of pear growing, and, especially in the Niagara Peninsula, are substituting the peach trees whenever a pear tree fails. The Burlington section and Niagara district comprise the chief growing ground for pears and if there be a failure in those sections, there is not much hope that the scattered pear trees in the orchards of the rest of the province will be able to make up the defficiency.

Plums will be a good crop. There doesn't seem to be any doubt, as far as that is concerned. The yield everywhere promises well, and it is probable that this fruit will go a long way toward filling the domestic preserved fruit shelves for the coming winter. Reports from all parts of the province are good, and unless dire disaster comes—an unlikely contingency—the yield should be large.

But apples are not going to be the success expected early in the season, and although the Ontario yield is sure to be considerably better than that of last year, it is not going to be as good as people expect. Down in the eastern section of the province, along the north shore of Lake Ontario, the possibilities have fallen off greatly, and up in the big apple counties of Huron, Bruce, Lambton and Middlesex, the yield will be disappointing. The western half of Grey will also give but a light yield. One pleasing feature, however, is that the Northern Spys and Greenings will run up to a fairly good percentage in the apple-growing districts. Around Newcastle, a farmer is quoted as having stated that his Northern Spys would run up to 75 per cent., and out Milton way the pro rata yield is understood to be good.

There is another phase of the apple yield that has to be considered. That is the purchasing, or leasing, of about 130,000 trees by a Canadian company, operating with British capital, in the Prince Edward County section. This company intends, it is claimed, to export the best of its apples to Great Britain, and as its directors hope to pack about 100,000 barrels this year, this loss to the Ontario consumer will no doubt be appreciable.

The hope of the apple growing industry in this province, apparently lies in proper care being taken of the orchards. Where spraying and pruning and cultivating have been resorted to for more than a season the yield is greater than is the case with the uncared for trees. But the cultivating idea has taken hold of our Ontario farmers now, and it is probable that the apple yield in future years will be, generally speaking, good.

HONEY PRICES GOING HIGHER.

It is reported that at a meeting of the Honey Executive of the Ontario Bee Keepers' Association, held in the Parliament Buildings at Toronto on Tuesday a decision was reached to advance the price of the product with which they are chiefly concerned.

This determination to raise the price of honey is ascribed directly to the failure, or partial failure, of the white honey harvest, due to a drying up of clover in the recent prolonged drought which was general over the entire province. Except in Middlesex County and in some of the apiaries in the central and western counties, there is reported to have been a distinct falling off in the yield. Last year the "busy buzzers" gathered on an average 58.3 pounds to the colony; this year the average has fallen as low as 50.6. This will mean, for the province, a decrease of nearly one million pounds.

It is said that recommendations have gone forward as follows in regard to the prices to be charged:—

No. 1, light extracted, wholesale 11 to 12, retail 12½ to 15 cents.

No. 1, comb, wholesale, $2 to $2.60 per dozen; No. 2, comb, wholesale, $1.50 to $2 per dozen.

VALENCIA RAISIN CROP.

Reports from Spain on the growing Valencia raisin prospects seem to indicate a crop considerably in excess of last year, and about as large as that of 1909, as the pack is expected to total nearly 25,000 tons.

Although it is early to predict prices, there appears to be a belief prevailing among certain importers and brokers that a low level of prices will not be reached. To support their contention, they say that "the world is absolutely bare of this stock," and that as competing crops are short this year there seems to be no reason why the market should slump to any extent. A season for free buying of actual wants is the way one man sums it up on another column of this issue.

Currants would also appear to be in a strong position in the opinion of some. The yield is expected to total up to almost 150,000 tons, but, of course, not all of this, probably not much in excess of 110,000 to 115,000 tons, will be available for use by the other countries of the world. Everywhere, too, currants prices have been marching up to a strong position, and the opinion is now fully expressed that the advances have been fully warranted. Still there are others who urge the presence of counteracting conditions, and who advise not to follow the market too far.

So it would appear as if both Valencia raisins and currants will come on a market almost utterly bare of supplies. What the result will be cannot be known until the shipments begin to come in, and it is to be expected that Valencias will be coming out about the latter end of August.

WESTERN CROP SITUATION.

All hopes for a large crop yield this year is at the present time dependent upon the weather during the next few weeks, and consequently the eyes of the entire business world of the West are turned in this direction.

The area seeded to wheat is so large and so scattered that to hope for ideal conditions at every point is absurd. There are sections in southern Manitoba and Saskatchewan where crops have suffered considerably from droughts, and reports of experts who have recently toured the provinces state that there are quite a few areas that are being plowed under.

In the north, especially in Saskatchewan, there has been too much rain, and this may induce prolonged growing with the consequent danger of frost. Taking the country as a whole, however, the situation at the present time is very satisfactory, and the promise of a good crop excellent. During the week, warm weather has been prevailing, and crops have been making rapid growth, as far as the maturing of the grain is concerned. The trouble at the present time which is confronting the average farmer is the question of help, and its is understood that the first harvesters' excursion will pass through Winnipeg during the first week in August.

COFFEE PRICE TO BE ADVANCED.

During the last year the price of the cheaper grades of coffee beans at New York has increased five cents a pound, and this advance now bids fair to be the primary cause of an addition to the price of the ground product going out to retail dealers throughout the country.

A Canadian manufacturer has informed The Grocer that he is now adjusting his prices, and expects that when the decision is reached the price of his goods will be at least a cent and a half to the pound higher than before. This is, of course, to be applied to the cheaper grades, made from the dark and imperfect beans. Nothing has been determined on as yet, apparently, in regard to the better qualities of the product.

THE PROVISION MARKETS.

Live hogs have again advanced on Canadian markets, the total upward movement in prices in the last week and a half varying from 35 to 50 cents per hundred pounds. The same reason is apparent as that given during the last advance. The English market has taken on a firmer aspect, and the desire of packers to get the pork products to that market before any decline can take place, brings on a keen demand. This combined with a limited supply resulted in an upward movement in prices.

The English bacon market is at present in a steady position, while live hogs in the Western States are also firm. With the supply of hogs none too large and with a fair home consumption of pork products, live hogs can be expected to hold their position as long as a firm English market continues. There is the possibility, however, of the firm market bringing out such large supplies that it will, as before, be depressed.

CAN THE RETAILER GET DECLARATION?

There is a letter published in this issue from Hamilton, Ontario, that is entitled to serious consideration by retailers, not only of Ontario, but throughout the other provinces of the Dominion, because of the principle involved.

This correspondent desires to know why men like Sloan, in Galt, McCrea of Guelph, Scandrett of London, Barron of Toronto, Ford of Ottawa, Osborne of Hamilton, and the big men in Kingston, Chatham, Belleville, Midland, Owen Sound, North Bay and other places, do not "get together" and discuss questions of importance to the retail trade, just as the wholesalers of the Province did at their recent Guild meeting. He doesn't see much of a reason why this could not be done, and would like to be told.

He also wonders whether the wholesaler would be willing to give a declaration that he is selling only to retailers, now that the wholesaler is asking the manufacturer to declare that he sells only to legitimate wholesalers.

If the chain of distribution of foodstuffs, as obtaining at present, manufacturer—wholesaler—retailer—consumer, is to be perpetuated, there seems to be only one answer to the question. The retailer has a perfect right to demand of the wholesaler what the wholesaler now demands of the manufacturer. Such a concession from the jobber would undoubtedly do a great deal of good in legitimate merchandising. Such an organization as the Hamilton dealer speaks of would be able to define a retailer to the satisfaction of the wholesaler, and consequently the possibilities of selling to hotels, boarding houses, mining camps, and so on, would be considerably lessened. The columns of The Grocer are open for the discussion of both sides of this question.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

There is a possibility that New Brunswick before long may be known as a centre for the tobacco industry of the Dominion. Tobacco culture is now in the experimental stages in this province, and some planting has been done in the St. John River Valley. It is claimed that the climate and soil are very suitable for the growth of the weed, and should the experiment being conducted by the Provincial Department of Agriculture prove successful, a new and profitable industry will be developed.

Sugar Demand Appears to Have Fallen off Because of Lull in Preserving Season—Outlook Rather Unpromising as Far as Canners' Supplies are Concerned—Some Lines of Starch Take Step up—Business Shade Quieter Because of Absence of Travelers on Vacations—Dried Fruit Situation.

QUEBEC MARKETS

POINTERS—

Tomatoes—Advanced.

Starch—¼c higher.

Mushrooms—$1 a case higher.

Lobsters—Flats advanced.

Montreal, July 20.—On Saturday last the farmers were selling tomatoes on the market at ten cents a pound. On Tuesday of this week the price was down to five cents. This decline of 100 per cent. was due to Sunday's rainfall. Potatoes (new) showed a corresponding decrease, and other vegetables as well. Had it come earlier in the month the benefit would have been more marked than it has been.

On some lines of starch there has been an advance of ¼c.

Sugar has been moving well, however, travelers report that there is not a heavy demand from consumers just now, and none is expected until the next fruit crop. Plums are probably the next fruit to be sold, and until then the consumers are not likely to show much attention to this market. Raspberries, like strawberries, are now said to be out of the question, the price being altogether too high for preserving purposes. The early raspberry and the strawberry seasons were, respectively, of very short duration, but while they lasted the sugar demand was heavy. The increase of 10c last week has also helped to direct attention to the market. There is, of course, general interest in dried fruits and canned goods. Wholesalers and retailers are looking ahead in an endeavor to get some idea of what will be presented to them. Currants are steady. California raisins are probably a little easy just now, but brokers do not expect that this condition will last long. In fact, surveying the dried fruit markets, there is a feeling more pronounced than ever this week that the conditions this year will show little or no improvement on those of last year. In addition the new crops are coming on a bare market.

Jobbers report a heavy demand for lemonade juices, powders, etc., also lime juice, condensed milk and cream, ginger ale and the various other hot weather goods that appeal. Grape juice was also in heavy demand. In fact, business has been well maintained, and if the remaining six months are as brisk the year should be an exceptionally good one.

Sugar—There is a good demand for sugar, although it is temporarily lighter, owing to the berry crop having reached the end of its tether from a preserving standpoint. It is felt that if the primary market shows any further strength the local market may undergo another rise.

Dried Fruits—According to reports here there is a much firmer feeling in California dried fruits. Apparently this is a direct result of the warm weather during the early part of the present month, together with indications of a heavy general demand. Wholesalers have not as yet shown any marked tendency to buy, and brokers are telling them that they will likely be caught. Some time ago it was pointed out in The Grocer that the opening prices of dried fruits in the west were somewhat favorable, but it is now claimed that since then markets have grown stronger steadily and that there will be no recession to the conditions which then obtained. In fact, it is held that markets are going to be firm. The prices now held out are worthy of some study. They show something of an advance over what were quoted only a short time ago. The estimated effects of the recent dry spell in the east is acting upon the California situation. It will be interesting to watch the incidents in the dried fruit markets during the near future. Practically all the interest is being centered upon new crops. A local traveler told The Grocer last week that he had sold fruit supplies to all his customers at open prices, and canned goods are being handled in the same way. Locally, jobbers are holding aloof from buying, holding out for lower prices. One broker expressed the belief that they would be caught yet.

Tea—The market for Japan teas has been firm and fairly active during the past week, principally on account of the arrival of the new crop, which has been looked forward to with considerable amount of interest in consequence of the change in the non-color. Arrivals of the natural leaf so far have been giving satisfaction. Several transactions have taken place also during the past week in last season's teas for price, also fannings and siftings. Stocks, however, in these particular kinds are now low and until the late crop teas arrive the balance of last season's held in first hands should maintain good prices.

CANNED GOODS

Montreal.—Canned goods are being steadily cleaned out. One house reports demand for tomatoes almost too good for present supplies, the desire being to carry sufficient for all requirements until the new tomatoes come in and therefore until the new pack is ready. The price of tomatoes is $1.65 with some quoting below that price ten cents. Peas are scarce and varying prices are mentioned. One wholesaler stated that he had sold peas for $1.35 to another wholesaler which is worth noting for the reason that to the retailer the highest price has been about $1.25. However, the new peas are coming in and this may have a temporary effect on trade although after that there is still a demand until the canned peas are again ready. Those wholesalers who closely follow the crops are not impressed by what the weather man has been doing and there is more or less of a feeling that various crops will be affected. Strawberries, peaches, peas and tomatoes are mentioned and the trade will await with interest definite news regarding the various packs.

There is an upward tendency to lobsters and it is believed that, as before stated, salmon of the better grades is likely to be much higher than last year.

Toronto.—The general canned goods outlook for this year up to the present is rather unpromising. Particularly is this so, and most definitely known, in regard to canned fruits. It is made worse from the fact that the housewife has this year preserved but little fruit so far, so that an increased consumption can be looked for. The early pack of strawberries was good, but dropped off towards the end of the season. A prominent fruit packer states that he looks for a fairly good pack in this line while a broker in touch with the situation says that he does not expect over 65 per cent. of an average pack. Raspberries have fared rather badly, although the late ones will be helped out by the recent rains. One canned goods broker stated that he did not expect much over 50 per cent. of an average pack. Small fruits, including raspberries, currants and blackberries are scarce according to an Ontario packer. Cherries withstood the drought better and a good average pack is expected. The outlook for peaches, plums and other late fruits is so far fairly satisfactory.

The jam factories have been particularly hard hit by the shortness in the fruit crops, even more so than the canners. Situated in one particular locality, they had only one section to draw from, while the canners situated in different districts, were in this way able to even up somewhat. One jam manufacturer stated to a local wholesaler that to him it was the most unfavorable season in the year and that he had already lost $20,000.

In regard to vegetables, one report from a canner in the Picton district says that there has been little rain there and that the outlook for tomatoes and corn was not at all promising. A broker stated that the drought had affected these lines, but that the weather was now more favorable. The prospects for peas were most excellent and while they started good, they were hit by the hot weather, and while the returns are not all in, a short pack is anticipated. Beans were in the same manner affected and the pack will not be heavy. Canning of tomatoes will probably start about the first week in August.

Prices on strawberries have not yet been named but are expected soon. All canners are waiting for accurate figures regarding the pack before setting prices. Wholesalers are wondering what percentage of their orders they will receive. According to their agreement canners agree to deliver at least 60 per cent. of orders or give a cash consideration for the amount it falls short of that figure.

Prices on spot goods are firm. Lobsters are particularly firm and dealers are talking of advancing prices.

ONTARIO MARKETS

POINTERS—

Coffee—Firm.

Canned Lobsters—Firm.

Toronto, July 20.—Business locally is perhaps a shade quieter this week, due to the fact that wholesale grocery travelers are now away on their holidays, but a fair trade, under the conditions, is being transacted. When the country travelers return on the 29th and the city travelers on the 30th, no doubt, under the added vim induced by the vacation, the increased orders will make up for any slackness which may be apparent now. Collections continue fair for the season of the year.

Trade has been helped along during the last week by orders received for foodstuffs from the fire-swept section of Northern Ontario. Under the scarcity of fruits for perserving, the sugar consumption is as yet rather disappointing.

Sugar.—Sugar is unchanged at last week's quotation of $4.85, and while beets have reacted slightly from the high point reached during the period of greatest speculation, the market is still steady. The highest point that European beets attained was equal to $4.62 landed in New York while present quotations are equal to $4.51. Cuban quotations are at $4.23, while Java sugar for July is at $4.29. Final estimates of the Cuban crop set it at 1,527,000 compared with a crop of 1,804,000 tons in 1910. The shortage must be filled by supplies from either Java or Europe. "It looks," said one dealer, "like a good steady sugar market during the preserving season, the market movement meanwhile depending on the condition of the growing beet crop and the character of demand during the preserving season." While there is a fair movement, still it is somewhat disappointing, caused by the shortness in the supply of fresh fruits available for preserving purposes.

Syrups and Molasses.—This is not the season of heavy demand for syrup but still the trade is well maintained for the season of the year. Molasses, however, is rather quiet. There are no features to the market otherwise.

Dried Fruits.—As can be expected with conditions now existing, trade in spot stocks of dried fruits is exceedingly small. Interest in the new crop of both California and Mediterranean fruits is as yet not great, except that dealers are giving some attention to conditions in each line. According to the representative of a prominent Coast packing interest the California fruit packer is, in his own words, between the devil and the deep sea, because of the rather wide divergence of ideas as to market values between those held by the grocer and the producer, amounting to a difference of some $400 a car. Consequently both jobbers and growers are resting on their oars and both seem to be satisfied to wait.

Coffee.—On the New York coffee market, prices have been firming up to such an extent that a similar feeling has developed in the local situation. "Prices have advanced from 1 to 1½ cents in the past three weeks," said one dealer, "and accordingly there is a stronger feeling locally." While quotations for unblended lines as listed below are unchanged, many dealers have made advances on their standard blends. Dealers state that the higher prices have had no effect on the total consumption. A local wholesale firm intend to advance their prices on low grade coffee about 1½ cents per pound. Low grade coffee is made from the black and imperfect beans and in the last year this grade has advanced 5 cents per pound on the New York market. One wholesaler said: "If wholesaler and retailer are to get a fair profit, the retailers should sell this coffee at more than 25c."

POINTERS—

Sugar.—Advanced.

Syrup.—Steady.

Starch.—Advanced.

Coffee.—Firm.

Winnipeg, July 20.—There is little change in the general conditions of the grocery trade since last week. The exhibition which opened Thursday is at its height and the majority of the travelers for the wholesale houses have returned for a week or two's holiday. In spite of the fact that orders will, therefore, not be coming in from them during this period, trade is as active as ever, as many country retail merchants are visitors in the city and are visiting the wholesale houses themselves and giving large orders. In this way the entire staff are kept hustling.

There have been few items of interest in the various lines during the week. The sugar market which has been strong of late, advanced 10c per cwt., on the increased strength of the Southern markets. Starch has also been extremely active, advancing ¼c per pound in all grades except two. Syrup is steady at last week's advance. Coffee is still strong but the expected advance has not yet taken place.

Sugar.—Owing to the continued advance on the New York market in both raw and refined sugars, the local market advanced 10 cents per cwt. on all grades this week. Large quantities of this commodity are being used, but stocks are rather light and there is a slight danger of a shortage occurring. Present quotations are:

Dried Fruit.—No further advances have been reported this week. Practically all lines are cleaned up on the local market, and the few odd ones that exist are fast disappearing. Trade will be practically dead in this line until the new packing arrives in October.

BRITISH COLUMBIA MARKETS.

Vancouver, B.C., July 20.—New potatoes are coming in more freely with the advance of the warm weather, and the wholesale quotation is now four cents per pound. The crop will be good, but the demand is very strong.

Strawberries have practically passed from the market, and raspberries are beginning to come on. The latter are a little late, but in accordance with the season. There is plenty of fruit in the market, much coming from the south. The Australian passion fruit, which came in by the last boat, has met with favor, and the shipment has been disposed of. Peaches, pears and early harvest apples are coming from California. Beef is still scarce, and shipments from eastern and Omaha points are still coming in.

The quality of butter is a little better this week, though the price is steady. Eggs are very firm, supplies of the local fresh being somewhat limited.

NOVA SCOTIA MARKETS.

Halifax, N.S., July 20.—The sugar markets continue to attract the attention of the grocery trade. There has been another advance of 15 cents per hundred pounds in the local market, and the price will probably go higher. Extra standard granulated is now quoted at $4.90, United Empire at $4.80, Bright Yellow $4.70, No. 1 yellow $4.40, and unbranded $4.30. All dealers report heavy sales of sugar during the past week. Fairly good stocks are on hand.

California oranges have been advanced 30 cents per crate and are now selling at $4.25. Egyptian onions are done and the Valencias now coming on the market will sell for about three cents per pound.

All green goods are in good demand. Owing to the falling off in the crop of Nova Scotia strawberries, some of the Halifax dealers this week imported berried from Upper Canada. They arrived in fine condition, and found a ready sale.

The fruit business is brisk, and dealers cannot keep a sufficient supply of ripe bananas on hand to fill their orders. The price ranges from $1.75 to $2.50 per bunch. Some small shipments of Jamaica oranges arrived this week. They are selling at $6.00 per barrel, repacked. Dealers say that more fruit is being consumed in the country districts than ever before. Sales of imported fruit show a steady increase. Lemons are quoted at $5.00 per case. Tomatoes are a little easier at $2.00 per crate. Pines are $4.50, and peaches and plums $2.50 per crate. The price of eggs has been advanced one cent per dozen to 20 cents, and butter remains unchanged, with the receipts good. The potato market shows no change, and beans are firmer, prime hand-picked being quoted at $2.20 to $2.25. Trade on the average is stated to be above the same season last year, and collections are said to be very good.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

St. John, N.B., July 20.—With few exceptions, the local market was quiet. There is quite a brisk demand for sugar, and prices are considerably higher than they have been for some time, while there is every indication that further increases may be expected. On raw sugars recent advances have amounted to 40 cents per hundred pounds within the last fortnight, and these increases have been reflected both in the New York and local markets.

Yellow Eye Beans and Hand Picked Peas have taken on considerable strength and the market is firm in both grades. Yellow eyes, however, are unchanged in price, and there is a slight increase in the peas. The market in cornmeal is strong, the price remaining at $1.60.

Raspberries and blueberries, as well as strawberries, are for sale in the city now, the warm sun of the past few days having had material effect in the ripening process. Cultivated raspberries of the first consignment sold at fourteen cents, while blueberries are more plentiful and bring only 10c. A good trade has been started in blueberries already. The brisk demand for strawberries kept the price quite stiff, and they are getting higher again, after having been down as low as seven cents. They are now bringing fourteen cents. The sale of strawberries is reported by local dealers to be particularly good.

DEATH OF ROBERT MEIGHEN.

Milling Man Passes Away at a Ripe Old Age.

Montreal, July 20.—The sudden death of Robert Meighen, president and managing director of the Lake of the Woods Milling Company, Limited, on Thursday, July 13, has removed from the field of Canadian industry and finance one of its most prominent figures. The news that he had passed away at his home at an early hour Thursday morning, was received with profound regret and with surprise, too, for on the preceding afternoon he had left his offices in the Lake of the Woods building apparently in his usual health. The immediate cause of his death was heart disease.

Mr. Meighen was born at Dungiven, near Londonderry, Ireland, April 18, 1838. Not many years afterward, his father died and his mother moved to Canada with the children, settling near Perth, Ont. Here they received their education and later the firm of Arthur Meighen & Bros. was formed, Robert entering the partnership in wholesale and retail general merchandising at the age of 14.

In 1882, when 44 years old, Mr. Meighen moved to Montreal and became associated with Sir George Stephen, afterward Lord Mountstephen, whom he succeeded as president of the New Brunswick Railway, now a part of the Canadian Pacific eastern line. He was interested in the Portage Milling Company at Portage la Prairie for some years and helped to form the Lake of the Woods Milling Company of which he had been president for twenty-one years.

Mr. Meighen was also a director of the Canadian Pacific Railway, the Bank of Toronto, the Montreal Street Railway Company, the Dominion Transport and others. He was an active member of the Montreal Board of Trade and the Montreal Corn Exchange Association at the meetings of which he will be greatly missed.

Mr. Meighen was a prominent citizen, in its broadest term, of Montreal, and a prominent Canadian, and his death leaves a vacancy in many and varied activities. He is survived by his wife, a sister of Lord Mountstephen, one son and two daughters.

It is learned that Col. Frank S. Meighen will succeed his father at the head of the Lake of the Woods Milling Company.

The funeral of the late Mr. Meighen took place on Saturday morning last from his residence Drummond Street, to Mount Royal cemetery.

BIG CROWD FROM HAMILTON.

Grocers' Annual Picnic to Falls Held on Wednesday.

Hamilton, July 20.—The Retail Grocers' picnic was held yesterday to Niagara Falls, and the event was every whit as successful as those that have been held before. It had been expected that because of the strong committee chosen and of the energetic manner in which they performed the work of organization, the crowd would be large, and the expectations were more than realized. Eleven trains, on two railways, were necessary to transport the crowds, and it is claimed that more than one hundred passenger coaches were used. The outward rush from this city commenced early in the morning.

A good deal, too, had been said about the daring trip over the Horseshoe Falls in a barrel of "Bobby" Leach, and a great deal of curiosity was excited in the minds of the excursionists as to whether or not the venturesome attempt would be made. It is understood here that Leach wrote the executive of the local association asking a cash bonus for going over on that day and that his request had been refused. The local dealers felt they could not be connected with any such life-risking proposition. Accordingly the result of the days' trip was looked forward to with mild curiosity.

Next week's Grocer will contain a full report of the outing.

LONDON DEALERS' OUTING.

Toronto, July 20.—The annual outing of the London Retail Grocers' Association was held to this city yesterday and the visitors from the Forest City are reported as having spent a very pleasant time.

Early in the morning they arrived in the Queen City and for some the forenoon was a round of sightseeing. Many of the visiting dealers, however, spent the time visiting the various stores. During the day, the retailers were the guests of the manufacturers and about fifty or sixty were treated to the double-header ball game between Rochester and Toronto at Hanlan's Point.

Prospects for Raisin and Currant Crops

Importer Expresses Belief That Crop of Valencias Will be in Excess of Last Year, but That Prices Will Not Drop — Says Currant Position is Strong, but That Market Should Not be Followed Too Far.

Toronto, July 20.—It is the belief of importers here that the crop of Valencia raisins to be gathered in Spain will be favorable, both as regards quantity and quality, if the weather but holds fair for the next month or so.

In giving this opinion to The Grocer, a dealer who handles several lines of Mediterranean fruits added: "I think the crop will be twenty per cent. in excess of last year, or, in actual figures, about 25,000 tons. That will be nearly the equal of 1909 gatherings. But notwithstanding this, it is my belief that Valencia raisins will not reach a low level because the world is absolutely bare of this stock. The crops of competitive raisin fruits generally in other parts of the world are not going to be plentiful."

"It will not," he continued, "be a season for speculation, but there will be free buying of actual wants. I think the price will hold around 25 shillings."

As to currants, the same authority outlines a strong position. Said he: "There is but little of the old crop of currants left in Greece, and under a strong demand the prices have been steadily advancing during the last month. Reduced estimates of the coming crop have strengthened the market for new. The advances have been smaller, but steady, the total from lowest point to to-day being about ½c per pound.

"It is estimated," he added, "that the crop will be of about 150,000 tons, but it must be borne in mind that under the laws governing exports in Greece only about 115,000 tons will be available for export and that this is not greater than the world's consumption at present prices.

"There are elements which suggest that the advances have been warranted, but there are also some counteracting conditions, and there is a belief that the market should not be followed too far.

"Then there cannot be a large crop of sultana raisins," he continued, "and no low prices can be anticipated. All foreign nuts, shelled and in shell, are on a high basis, with possible exception of walnuts, in France. Last year the price there, however, was exceptionally high."

Another report, from Denia, Spain, says:

Valencia Raisins—During the first half of June the late vines, which were then flowering, suffered somewhat from unseasonable weather, but now, we are pleased to state, it has greatly improved and the vines in all parts are benefiting favorably. Should the weather continue good for the next ten weeks we shall have an average sized raisin of sound quality.

It is rather early to predict how prices will rule, as so much depends upon the weather, and also, in a measure, the crops of dried fruits in other countries. We will, however, endeavor to indicate approximately the figure as soon as possible.

The total yield is estimated to be upwards of 23,000 tons, and first shipments will commence towards the end of August.

The United States Circuit Court for the Northern District of the State of Ohio, Western Division has issued a decree that the bill of complaint of the A. J. Deer Company, Hornell, N.Y., be sustained as to the infringement of the patents affecting certain cutting discs in coffee mills manufactured by it and infringed upon by B. C. Holwick, of Canton, Ohio. Mr. Holwick manufactured a mill fitted with cutting plates, which the Deer Co. claimed infringed on patents issued to Frank Bartz, dated March 29, 1910, and owned by the A. J. Deer Company. This company brought suit against the Bour Company, of Toledo, last summer, alleging that the Bour Company was handling and dealing in coffee mills equipped with infringing cutters. These mills were manufactured for the Bour Company by B. C. Holwick, who assumed the management and control of the defense and paid the necessary expenses. When the cause came on to be heard, and the above facts were recited to the court, the judge ordered that the Bour Company and B. C. Holwick be enjoined and restrained perpetually from further infringing the letters patent owned by the A. J. Deer Company and from making or selling the coffee mill with the cutting plates complained of or any cutting plates substantially like them.

Live Hogs Higher; Provisions Steady

Live Hog Prices Advance Under Steady English Bacon Market—Provision Trade Fairly Good — Even Greater Shrinkage Now Shown in Eggs—Prices Unchanged — Butter is Slightly Steadier—Cheese is Stronger at Country Boards.

Provisions on the whole are steady, with trade also reported fairly satisfactory from most market centres. The demand was depressed somewhat under the warm weather, but now, under a more favorable temperature, appetites for pork products have been somewhat regained and demand accordingly brightened.

Live hogs on Canadian markets are quoted higher this week. The English bacon market, as mentioned last week, has taken on a more steady aspect. For this reason there has been a keener demand from packers for the live hog and a rather limited quantity being forthcoming to meet this demand, prices have naturally stiffened. United States live hog prices are also steady.

From some parts of the Dominion come complaints of even greater shrinkage in eggs than heretofore, the result of the farmers' non-regular method of gathering, as well as of a seeming indifference on the part of many country merchants, not particular enough about the quality of eggs received. Many dealers are strongly in favor of the stamped egg method, whereby each egg is stamped by the farmer as a guarantee of freshness. These are transmitted to the merchant at once, who ships daily to the market. They claim that better satisfaction is given to all concerned. If an egg, on examination, should prove poor quality, it is traceable by the number to the farmer.

Butter is seemingly slightly firmer, at least on some markets, and at country points, where the tendency is towards slightly higher prices. The cheese market is likewise firmer, a stronger feeling prevailing at country points.

MONTREAL.

Provisions.—The demand for hams continues good and prices are firm and higher. The primary market is a little stronger, the quotations for live hogs being a little higher. Dressed hogs are firmer and the market as a whole is steady, showing no weakness.

Provisions—The slackness in demand on account of the torrid weather has been remedied since the temperature has moderated. The excellent demand for smoked and cooked meats continues a feature of the trade. Light, medium and heavy hams are all quoted ½c higher this week. Hogs are higher under a firm English bacon market and a keener demand from packers, and live hogs at country points are now quoted at $7.10 per cwt.

Butter—The butter market is rather unsettled. However, there seems to be a slightly firmer tendency just at the moment, at least some firms are quoting slightly steadier prices. This, perhaps, is due more to the fact that first-class butter, now in good demand, is rather limited, while there is a plenitude of the poorer grade. One dealer reports that the effect of the hot weather is being felt even more now than before, as butter made during the warm weather is now arriving on the market.

Eggs—The shrinkage in eggs arriving now is claimed by many dealers to be greater than ever. Eggs now arriving on the market were gathered, in some cases, during the hot weather. "Prices to the country dealer," said one dealer, "would improve if he would see that the quality is improved." Some dealers are making a specialty of shipping guaranteed eggs fresh each day, and besides, the better satisfaction, higher prices are received.

Butter.—The demand for creamery butter continues to hold steady and large quantities are being consumed in the country since the arrival of the warm weather. Price is holding firm at 22c for fresh made creamery bricks, and 21½c per lb. in boxes. Dairy butter is still to be obtained on the market but the demand is falling off considerably. No. 1 is at the present time being offered at 15c per lb., No. 2 at 10 and 12c per lb., and No. 3 at 7 and 9c per lb., delivered Winnipeg.

Cheese.—Supplies of cheese being received from the factories are increasing but the price is holding steady at 10½c per pound.

Provisions.—A sharp advance in cured meats can be noticed this week. Large hams have been selling at 16c per lb., while two weeks ago they were only 14½c. Shoulders have declined 1½c per lb., while short rolls have dropped 2½c. Lard also shows a drop, selling at 11c. per lb. in tierces, while 50 lb. tubs are being quoted at $5.65, considerably lower than they were two weeks ago.

Eggs.—Receipts of eggs continue to be small, but the price is still holding firm at 17c per doz. for ordinary fresh eggs. A fair quantity of strictly fresh is being received, but it is exceedingly hard to depend upon the quality of the supply being received at the present time.

A report from North Bay, Ont., says a co-operative company is being organized with a capital of $400,000 to deal in meats, groceries and food products. North Bay will be the headquarters, and branches in various towns north and south will be established. An abattoir and cold storage plant will be maintained at North Bay.

Rolled Oats Advance 10 Cents a Sack

Announced in Toronto—Said to be General — Result of Firmness in Raw Material—Flour is Unchanged — Trade is Only Moderate—Reports of Frost in Manitoba Exert Bullish Effect on Wheat.

The firmness in rolled oats, apparent last week, and spoken of particularly, has amounted to an advance of 10 cents per bag in this cereal. This is due to the higher market for oats which has been general. Other lines are unchanged, flour being steady but without any special features apparent just now. Trade is none too brisk in this line, although it might be considered well maintained when conditions just now are taken into consideration. With crop conditions up to the present quite favorable, dealers are not at all anxious to make purchases or contracts until something more definite becomes known.

The oat crop in Canada has not been damaged as much as that in the United States, but in sympathy with conditions there, prices have been advancing here. No. 2 Canadian Western oats in Montreal quoted two weeks ago at 41¾ are now worth 42½ to 43 cents. A report from Montreal says that the inquiry for oats is good and according to cable advices received there, offerings from other exporting countries are light.

Corn on the Chicago exchange weakened somewhat at the middle of the week, as did oats to a certain extent, on account of threshing returns being ahead of what had been expected. However, at the same time reports of frost in Manitoba exerted bullish effect on wheat, which was counteracted somewhat however, by the big movement of new wheat to Chicago.

MAGISTRATE TO DECIDE.

St. John Common Council Side Steps Appeal of Merchants.

St. John, N.B., July 20 (Special).—Further complications have set in now as regards the early closing by-law, and many dealers are wondering as to just how they stand in this connection. Many indulged in the hope that the by-law would have been repealed this week at a meeting of the common council, called specially to consider the matter, but this was not done, only three members out of seventeen voting in approval of the appeal. It was left to the police magistrate of the city to settle the matter, and he has been requested to give judgment in the several cases pending before him, where reports have been made against grocers, fruit store keepers, dry goods dealers and others.

A large number of dealers were present at the meeting, expecting to air their views, but because they had not written to ask for a hearing this was not granted.

CHANGE OF PICNIC DATE.

Thursday, July 27, has now been selected as the date for the excursion of the merchants of Galt, Ont. It had been previously intended to go to Grimsby on August 3rd, but the G. T. R. Co. informed them that it would not be possible for them to handle the crowd on that day.

Letters to the Editor

Editor Canadian Grocer,—What is this outcry re co-operative stores that is causing a great deal of anxiety just now? In a word, the co-operative is concentrated selfishness. The general impression is that it is an extended system of mail order business, but that is only a shadow of what the system really is. I have had several years' experience of its working, so can speak of what I know. Whether I can convey that knowledge to your readers, so that they can grasp the situation, is a matter of doubt. Nevertheless, I should like to try.

The origin was very simple. A few working men agreed to pool their orders for groceries, and get their requirements from a wholesale house, then share the goods upon arrival, thus saving the retailers' profits. They spoke to their fellow workers of the advantages of the idea and thus it spread. After a while a company was formed and worked on a larger scale. The advantages offered were 5 per cent. interest upon $5 shares; a bonus upon all purchases and the free use of a reading room, in which were placed newspapers, periodicals, etc. Any one could purchase at these stores. At the end of the half-year a dividend was declared and shared among the customers, non-members (that is, those who had not taken shares) receiving half the bonus on their purchases, the other half being used for educational purposes.

The word co-operative is a play upon the idea of working together, and operative, a working man, for it is upon the efforts of the latter that the system has made the progress that it has. The working man as a rule does not know the purchasing power of money, but is greatly interested upon the amount of tangible value in the shape of interest and bonus that he can see in his hand every six months. So he buys one or more shares at five dollars a share, goes home and tells his wife to buy all that she can at the "Co-op," for the more they buy there the better it will be for him. She has promised to obey and knows it is useless to argue the point. So the retailer loses a customer through no fault of his, but because he cannot hold out these three catching inducements. The Co-op. member is taught that he has a part or share in all that appertains to the movement, and believes he has his part in the ownership of the various producing and distributing buildings, etc., and the high-sounding phrase, that in helping others they are helping him. In fact, the motto of the one near me was, "Each for all and all for each." Unfortunately for me, I was for a time unwillingly helping the cause, in this way: The stores were not giving such good value in tea and butter as I was, and the wives in many cases bought those two articles from me, but did not tell their husbands, so they innocently thought those articles were obtained at the stores, and told his chums what good things he was getting.

There are just a few good points that I must mention in justice to the "Co-op." stores. Everything was sold for cash, so there were no deadbeats to trouble about (one or two stores that tried the credit system have come to grief). Then the matter of working hours. They closed an hour or two earlier every night than the regular traders and always had one half-day from 1 o'clock every week. Against these advantages to the clerks was a great disadvantage to the customer. There was no regular delivery of purchases. If the milk van or vegetable cart was going near a customer's house the man could take the parcel at a charge of 4 cents.

I am enclosing a newspaper clipping of May 8, 1911, giving the report of one of the stores, which bears out what I have stated.

The foregoing relates to what is recognized as the "industrial" side of the co-operative. There is another aspect of the movement, known as the "civil service stores." The members of the various stores under this head are supposed to be officers in the army or navy and their friends. The principal difference in the two systems is that in the "industrial" the customer buys her goods and pays then for them, but in the "civil service" the cash has to be planked down with the order (or can be paid in before the order is given) and the goods sent by mail or freight. The class of goods sold in these places are of a different kind to those sold in the "industrial," and adapted to the requirements of their patrons. But the expectation of a "divi" is the same, and some dissatisfaction is shown if that is smaller than usual. From a report just to hand I see the "divi" of eight societies varies from one shilling and 4 pence to 3 shillings and sixpence to the pound.

Of late years another side of the movement has manifested itself—a kind of private co-op., if one may use the term, and that is the departmental store, which, combining the private trader with the civil service stores, is really the mail order system as known in Canada.

It is, to my mind, the idea of getting something beyond the value of the goods paid for in cash that is the great attraction which the retailer has to combat to-day, and how to do it is the problem which many storekeepers are trying to solve. Any suggestions to that end will therefore be welcomed by all who are in the fight.

BIRTH OF BEST SELLER.

Printer's Error Led to Manufacturer Discovering Good Line.

Montreal, July 20 (Special).—As an example of how misfortune is often turned to good account, a manufacturer of biscuits and confectionery in talking to The Grocer the other day, said that one of their best selling lines for which they were not having a monthly sale of over 5,000 boxes, was first put on the market as the result of a mistake.

A printer, with whom they placed a large order for a certain size of wrapper, by mistake, made the wrappers too small and delivered half a million labels of this sort before the error was noticed. To prevent their being wasted, the candy superintendent was instructed to create some sort of confection which would fit the wrapper and he did so. To the surprise of the manufacturer, the confection sprang into immediate popularity and is now, as above stated, one of their best sellers.

CREDIT ON THE "COAST."

Protective Associations Being Formed In Pacific Slope Cities.

Vancouver, B.C., July 20.—(Special)—Another association has been formed which will have for its object the protection of the mutual interests of business men. It is entitled the B.C. Creditmen's Association, the officers being: President, J. D. Small, of the Crane Company; treasurer, Frank Parsons, of Wood, Vallance & Leggatt; secretary, Mr. Rudolph.

In Prince Rupert there has been organization also, the Prince Rupert Merchants' Association having been formed. The object of the association is to assist merchants in getting better knowledge of people who ask for credit, making collections easier, and getting more uniform hours of business in lines of trade. Different members of the association will report to the secretary those persons who are behind in their accounts, and the names will be given to all the merchants in the association. Prince Rupert has no small debts court, and the merchants are taking this method of protection. The officers of the association are: President, J. E. Merryfield; vice-president, G. J. Frizzell; treasurer, J. J. Sloan; executive, George Tite and W. P. Lynch.

Lemons Maintain Advance Fairly Well

Prices Hold at Most Points—Higher on Montreal Market—Torrid Weather Cleaned Stocks Up—Oranges Also Firmer—Pines Drawing to a Close—Canadian Tomatoes More Plentiful—Old Potatoes Scarce and High.

A considerable share of the advance in lemons caused by the excessive heat wave has been maintained at most centres while there has even been further advances at Montreal where the effects of the big cut into lemon stocks is just now being felt. While the cooler weather at the beginning of the week put a damper on the demand, there is still a good trade being transacted. During the period of big demand, stocks were pretty well cleaned up, and although fairly large supplies are coming to hand, dealers do not look for any great recession in price. The primary markets for this article are ruling firm as is also the New York.

A slightly firmer feeling has developed in oranges, a temporary scarcity being accountable. With fresh fruits now plentiful, oranges are not being given as much attention as usual.

The pineapple season is drawing to a close, although a few odd cases mostly Florida stock are being offered. During the warm weather, it was extremely difficult to get pines to stand the trip. The general watermelon market is firmer under a good demand, and prices in New York have advanced $25 per car. Supplies are now coming from north and centre Georgia as well as Alabama while Carolina will be ready to ship in a few days.

Some supplies of imported tomatoes are coming from Jersey and Maryland which are of fair quality. The Canadian article is becoming more plentiful and accordingly somewhat lower in price. California apricots are closing, and their place is being taken by pears from the same state.

The warm weather has been responsible for heated stock in new potatoes and some waste is reported from some centres and prices continue firm. New Canadian potatoes are being offered at different points at varied prices. Old stock potatoes are extremely scarce at most centres, being practically cleaned up at some markets. The situation differs from that of a year ago when there was an overplus and when they were selling "dirt" cheap, in Ontario being as low as 20 cents per bag. The present price is $1.75.

MONTREAL.

Green Fruits.—Reports from fruit centres seem to indicate the likelihood of a short peach crop. It appears that the conditions are general in both the United States, here in the east. It is said that but half a crop will be the result from the Niagara district and in the New England States the estimate is about the same. During the week lemons advanced again and are quite strong at the new price. Oranges are also higher, that is the late valencia kind. Pineapples are quoted higher this week. California fruits are reported scarce and higher prices are looked for. Plums appear to be the only fruit that has withstood the extreme weather during the earlier part of the month.

TORONTO.

Green Fruit.—The advance in lemons has been pretty well maintained and quotations remain at $5.50 to $6.00. The market during the heavy demand was well cleaned of stocks, and although quite a few lemons are now coming to hand, dealers do not expect prices to recede to any great extent. Raspberries continue to be offered in moderate quantities only at about the same price and are expected to last close on another week. Currants, both black and red, are higher in price under small supplies, the hot weather having dried them up. In California lines apricots have dropped out while pears have taken their place and are quoted at $5.25 this week. Late Valencia oranges are a little firmer in price, and some dealers are expecting higher prices. Few pineapples are being offered, the season being well to an end and prices ruling high. Watermelons in New York are higher under a heavy demand, although prices here as yet are about the same. Canadian tomatoes are more plentiful and prices are ruling somewhat lower.

Green Vegetables.—Supplies of home-grown vegetbles continue to increase as the summer advances. During the week, beans, peas, cucumbers, beets, carrots, spinach, as well as salad vegetables have made their appearance and are being used in preference to the southern grown article. Potatoes continue on their upward march, having advanced another 25c per bushel during the week, quotations are now $1.75 per bus. in small lots, and $1.50 per bushel in 10 and 20 bushel lots. Ontario potatoes in car lots are selling at $1.40 per bushel. Florida potatoes are off the market, and in their place Minnesota potatoes are being sold at 5c per lb. Virginia cobbiers in barrels of 165 and 185 tubers, have lately arrived on the market and are selling for $7.50. Several changes will be noticed.

Fish Trade is Fairly Good for Season

Halibut in Good Demand—Lake Trout and Whitefish Being Taken up Well—Pickerel are Scarce and Prices Higher—Fish Quite Plentiful on Nova Scotian Coast, but Fishermen Hampered Through Scarcity of Bait.

For the season the fish trade on the whole is in a fairly healthy condition. Halibut is a favorite, arriving in fairly good supply and good condition. Lake trout and whitefish are also receiving their share of attention, with the supply quite sufficient to meet the demand.

New Brunswick reports the fish market rather inclined to quietness while there is no particular change in Newfoundland. Nova Scotia reports fish quite plentiful on the coast, but the fishermen have been hampered by the scarcity of bait.

QUEBEC.

Montreal.—Haddock and cod are in good supply with the prices at a fair figure. Gaspe salmon are not arriving as freely as heretofore, the catch being near the end. The price is firmer. Halibut is arriving freely in good condition and are meeting with a good demand.

Lake trout and whitefish are also in fair demand with the supply sufficient to meet it. Pickerel are scarce and the price shows a sharp advance this week. On the whole the market is fairly good for this season of the year.

NEW BRUNSWICK.

St. John.—J. F. Calder, Dominion fishery inspector for the counties of St. John and Charlotte, was in the city this week. Discussing the fact that the lobster catch for the most part was quite small, he said that it was due only to the change in the fishing regulations, and gave it as his opinion that there need be no cause for alarm in the small catch. The catch of the larger lobsters was as good this season, he said, as it had been in the last six years. A falling off was naturally to be expected because of the new regulations fixing a certain size limit going into effect. "I expect," he said, "that within less than six years, there will be remarkable increases in the lobster catches around New Brunswick. The sardine catch, he said, had been good this season, and very much better than last year.

For the purpose of smoking and packing herring for the Canadian market, a company has been formed at Tidnish, N.B. It is thought that W. Layton, of Grand Manan, N.B., will be manager. The local fish market is quiet. Salmon is quite plentiful and some very encouraging catches are reported.

ONTARIO.

Toronto.—There is no particular change in the local fish situation. Prices are steady but show no great change. Halibut is still a favorite, although supplies are not quite so plentiful.

NOVA SCOTIA.

Halifax.—Some small hauls of mackerel have been made on the western shore of Halifax county during the past week. The fish are large and demand continues good, the largest part of the catch being iced and shipped to the Boston market. The lobster season closed this week. It was a most successful season, and the majority of the canners have large packs. The price of canned lobsters in the London market continues to keep firm in spite of the heavy shipments. According to reports the market absorbs all the supplies. The Newfoundland pack is reported to be fully up to the average and high prices are being paid all over the island. While there has been a decline of fifty cents per quintal on codfish since the high prices of the early spring the prices paid by the dealers are being well maintained, and no important change is looked for until after August. Bait has been scarce and in consequence the fishermen have been hampered. Sales are large, one Lunenburg firm alone so far has purchased twelve thousand quintals.

Salt mackerel are selling at $10 per barrel, and are in fair demand. Few herring are being taken, and the quality of the fish is poor. The catch of alewives is poor and high prices prevail. Smoked haddies are in good demand and shipments are large. Smoked herring are also selling quite freely.

NEWFOUNDLAND.

How Much Did He Make on His Macaroni?

Nova Scotia Retailer Wires Montreal Manufacturer to Send Him Barrel of Goods—Producer, of Course, Has to Wire Back For More Definite Instructions—How the Little Leaks Eat Away Profits.

(Staff Correspondence).

Montreal, July 20.—The following incident emphasizes several points that should always be remembered by retail grocers. It occurred as a regular part of business and the manufacturer who noticed it brought it to the attention of a representative of The Grocer.

A Nova Scotia retailer wanted 100 pounds of macaroni. He wired to a local manufacturer for a "barrel of macaroni." Now macaroni is sold by the case and the manufacturer replied by wire asking the retailer to state number of pounds required. The latter wired back again stating that he wanted 100 pounds. Naturally, these telegraph tolls amounted to quite a little part of the profit. The first message cost fifty cents and the second twenty-five, making a total of seventy-five cents. Thus, before the goods had been ordered the retailer had made an outlay of seventy-five cents. In other words, quite an appreciable amount of his profit was cut down unnecessarily. At least, in the ordinary course of events it was unnecessary.

To begin with, is it not poor policy to let stocks run so low that a "hurry up" order must be given in this way? This is especially true of staples which will keep fairly well. It is not necessary to carry heavy stocks, but medium supplies should be at all times ready in the storehouse in order to provide against a break in business. This applies particularly to the retailer who cannot afford to buy in large quantities.

It should be one of the first principles of every grocer to keep a close and accurate account of the goods he handles. In this way he will always be sure of the goods on hand. This question has been dealt with so often that it is a wonder there are even isolated cases still mentioned. In the instance mentioned above, the grocer may have received some rush order for quick delivery. Unusual cases, of course, cannot be always provided for, but in the writing of telegrams they should be so plain and concise that they are easily understood and at the same time are at a minimum cost.

In providing against the supply of any goods becoming exhausted there is presented, simply that idea of the stitch in time saving nine. Care shown in one case means, as a general rule, eternal vigilance, whereas carelessness in the knowing of one's business and also in the method of doing business (the example of the telegram) speak of carelessness in other respects.

The stopping of little leaks here and there has been another subject that has been touched upon frequently. This is surely an illustration of that point, and besides, one does not have to go far to find leaks of this kind. Some day business will be perfect, perhaps, but it will not finally arrive until carefulness is always exercised and little things are given their due consideration.

SALMON RUN IN THE SKEENA.

Fishery Inspector Says Run of Spring and Sockeye Largest on Record.

Vancouver, B.C., July 20. (Special.)—It has been reported from Prince Rupert that the run of both spring and sockeye salmon this season has been the largest on record, but the Vancouver offices of the northern canners flatly contradict the statement that sockeye salmon are plentiful. Last week John T. Williams, government fishery inspector, reached Prince Rupert, and he is credited with the statement in regard to the fishing on the Skeena. He said that the run of spring salmon was phenomenally good, and that all the canneries are operating instead of one or two as last season. Despite the fact that more are active, the pack so far is larger, also. It is estimated that at least one-third more spring salmon are in the Skeena than any previous season. Regarding the sockeyes in the north, Mr. Williams says that since the season started on June 20, the run has been the heaviest experienced at this time of year, the catch going as high as 230 to the boat. The reason suggested is the removal of the barricade in the Babine river in 1905, the beneficial effect of which is now being seen.

The canners state that while spring salmon are fairly plentiful, the run of sockeyes has been small, in fact the average pack of the canneries on the Skeena has not been more than 100 cases per day.

Young Man! What Are You Going To Do To-morrow?

TO-DAY you are an ordinary every-day clerk; a salesman drawing a fair salary for your services. What will you be to-morrow? What does the future hold for you? You may say "Oh! Let to-morrow look after itself; something will turn up." That's very well; but, if you ask your employer how it came about that he is to day the head of the establishment, he will tell you that he didn't sit down and wait for something to turn up; he got busy and turned that something up himself Now, you get busy on this proposition and don't waste your valuable time. Watch for the July 28th issue of this paper—Card-writing free to all who will get into line.

THERE are possibilities presenting themselves to you every day. This is one of them. Don't turn it down, but, consider it well. Card-writing, to-day, is one of the main branches in the publicity of all lines of business—Grocery, Dry Goods, Clothing, Hardware; yes, for every line you could mention. Ninety-nine business places out of a hundred want live, trade-pulling show-cards; two out of that ninety-nine can afford to employ a man to do this work exclusively. What are the other ninety-seven going to do? One of the salespeople must do it, and that one will get the extra money. Will that one be you? Will you take your future in your own hands?—Listen:

July 28th number of The Canadian Grocer will contain Lesson No. 1 of the most practical course on Show-Card Writing ever offered the beginner. This is the only course to-day that is modern, practical and easy to grasp, leaving out out all RED TAPE and dealing exclusively with the very best alphabets, used by the best card-writers all over the country—from the Atlantic to the Pacific. The course will be run in twenty numbers of this paper, beginning with the July 28th issue. The Grocer's Encyclopedia – Cane Sugar

Facts Not Generally Known in Connection With the Making of Refined Granulated Sugar—How the Spaniards Waxed Rich on the Traffic in Cane—The Process of Preparing for Shipment and Final Treatment in Canada

Of all the goods handled by grocers there is probably none in as great demand, and especially at this time of the year, as sugar. There are few articles of commerce as well known as sugar, the manufactured product itself, and few having such a universal range of utility. However, its varieties, sources and history are not so often considered. How many can tell exactly why sugar is sweet?

The Canadian grocery trade derives its supply from two sources—that made from cane sugar, secured chiefly from the West Indies, and that worked up from beets. The former will be discussed in this article.

Quite an Old Product.

Formerly chemists called everything a "sugar" which had a sweet taste, but the term in its scientific sense soon came to be restricted to the sweet principals in vegetable and animal juices. Until 1619, however, cane sugar was the only known pure sugar substance.

The word "sugar" is derived through the Arabic from the Persian "shaker," but the original habitat of the sugar cane is not known. It seems to have been first cultivated in China, and it was at a comparatively late date that sugar reached the West Indies. In the age of discovery the Spaniards became the disseminators of sugar cultivation, and in 1494, two years after the discovery of America, they planted it on San Domingo. Within 25 years the sugar trade on the island was so enormous that the dues imposed on the imports into Spain enabled Charles V. to build his palaces. Before the middle of the 16th century the growing of sugar cane spread over the occupied portions of the West Indies and South America, and it has continued to be one of the principal crops of tropical America ever since.

Its Manner of Growth.

The sugar cane is a species of grass, the stalks of which reach a height of from 8 to 15 feet and attain a diameter of about two inches. The stalks are divided into prominent joints with long leaves springing from each joint, and the flowers consist of beautiful feather-like panicles. The joints are filled with a loose, spongy, fibrous matter, saturated with a juice, at first watery, but afterwards becoming glutinous and sweet. As the joints ripen the leaves wither and fall off, the stem gets smooth and hard, and contains much silica. The varieties of sugar cane are numerous and are distinguished by color, height and richness of juice.

The juice is extracted from the cane by pressing between three iron rollers. The yield of juice varies from 60 to 65 per cent. The juice is run into a trough, whence it is carried through pipes to clarifiers. Because of the fear of fermentation the manufacturing process is hurried. The juice is first filtered through a series of sieves; then it is run into the clarifiers—a set of iron vessels capable of holding 600 gallons of juice—and in these is heated up to about 130 deg. Fahr. Milk of lime is added sufficient to neutralize the acid constituents it contains. The heat is raised to nearly the boiling point, and when a scum forms on the surface, the clear liquid below is drawn off. The juice now passes to a battery of pans, where it is heated by direct fire and boiled down to the crystalizing point. It is then run into shallow coolers in which the crystals form. A few days later it is transferred into hogsheads and the molasses drained away. It is now ready for refining or for shipment abroad.

The Canadian Manufacture.

It is in this state that it reaches Canada to be refined. The sugar crystals are melted in cast iron tanks, fitted with mechanical stirrers, and steam pipes for heating the water. The hot liquid is next passed through twilled cotton bags encased in a meshing of hemp, through which the solution is mechanically strained. From 50 to 200 of these filters are suspended in close chambers in which they are kept hot. The liquid is now passed for decolorization through beds of animal charcoal enclosed in cisterns to a depth of 30 feet, the sugar being received in vacuum pans. In these pans it is "boiled to grain," the treatment being varied according to the nature of the finished sugar to be made. To make loaves small crystals only are formed in the pans, the grains being liquified and then cast into moulds. To whiten the loaves they are treated with successive doses of saturated syrup, ending with a syrup of colorless sugar, the liquid then being taken out by suction.

Perhaps your customers would be interested in the source and manufacture of the sugar which they consume. Probably you may be able to turn the information given here into some practical use in interesting your customers. Try it.

A GROCER'S CO-OPERATION

RISING SUN Stove Polish in Cakes gives a lustre which far outlasts all others under the heat of the stove, and that is why it has so many friends that call for it over the grocery counters the world around. We believe that the real live grocer wants to push the goods that please his customers, and that is why we have the hearty co-operation of thousands upon thousands of grocers everywhere. It pays you to push it.

2 IN 1
Shoe Polish

The Polish OF Preference

It pays to handle a quick-selling line like "2 in 1" Shoe Polish—a line that's always in demand and that always gives satisfaction.

"2 in 1" is positively waterproof, preserves and softens the leather, does not clog or stain the clothes, and is free from acid or turpentine.

Get a generous supply and display it well.

Spices, and How to Know Them

By W. M. GIBBS

The only book on the subject—just published. The merchant or salesman, who knows all about spices, can command the spice trade in his territory. To get this information, he should read this work, dealing with PREPARATION, USE and ADULTERATION OF SPICES—a chapter devoted to each spice.

TRADE MARK

SODA-CRYSTALS (WASHING SODA)

Foreign Soda Crystals—and some of English manufacture—are being extensively offered for sale in this country which are grossly adulterated with Glauber-Salts (Sulphate of Soda), a cheap product which is not only entirely useless for washing purposes, but is even likely to injure the fabrics with which it comes in contact. The Adulterated Soda-Crystals, although nominally lower in price than BRUNNER MOND'S PURE SODA CRYSTALS, are in reality much dearer owing to the large quantity of useless and injurious matter which they contain.

"COME BACK" OR "CALL AGAIN"

Which do YOU prefer?

This, Brother Grocer, is true—
That there's only Dissatisfaction, Trouble, Discouragement, in the flour that comes back to kick.
The flour that's made cheap to sell cheap.
Because it doesn't stay sold.
There's no Permanency of Profit in "near good" stuff.
You can't talk Quality, Brother Grocer.
You can't win the Cream of the Trade, you see.
Your only argument is Cheapness.
This is the patronage that is here to-day and gone to-morrow.
Consider the Hope that FIVE ROSES gives.
Consider the Enthusiasm, Brother Grocer.
Without which there's no glory in the Game of Selling.
Get out of the Cheap-John class.
Sell Progressive Flour.

Sell FIVE ROSES, Brother Grocer.
Which pleases the most particular of housewives.
Delighting even Mrs. Cranky Customer.
Having Quality, Strength, Uniformity.
Not Bleached—Not Blended.
For Bread and Pastry likewise.
Making good things that delight — that compel the "call again."
This flour simplifies your selling.
Since each bag starts a chain of sales.
And everything is pleasant between your customer and you.
When you sell FIVE ROSES.
Packed in seven different sizes and packages to suit your own particular trade.
In barrels or halves—the famous FIVE ROSES barrel, so sturdy and useful.
In bags of cotton or jute—7 lbs., 14, 24, 49 or 98 lbs.
Sell this successful flour.

Juicy Fruit Pies Often Run Over

Rhubarb, Cherry and other fruit pies have a most disconcerting habit of refusing to hang together when they are being served. If in the making a little of

BENSON'S PREPARED CORN

He Profits Most Who Serves Best

Your customers are all vain, more or less, and if you are courteous and obliging to them and make them feel that your business is to serve and please them, often they will buy one or two specialties which are profitable to you, whereas their intentions were only to buy a staple article which usually pays a small profit.

But if you cannot vouch as to the quality of an article, do not persuade your particular customer to buy it, for if the article proves unsatisfactory, their confidence in you, which is the basis of your trade, is gone, and gone with it your opportunity to reap the profits on future sales.

If you sell them Toadstools to-day for Mushrooms, you will not have the opportunity to sell them Mushrooms to-morrow.

Why lose any customer's confidence, lose money, and have yourself advertised as not being reliable, when a little care in selecting your stock would eliminate any possibility of such results.

It is not a matter of how much I can do my customers for, but how much can I do for my customers, and in serving them with Quality products you are insuring their confidence in you and their good-will.

A Pleasant Surprise When You Take Stock!

IT would certainly be a task to find a grocer who prefers to list goods on hand rather than money in the bank at stock-taking time — "money talks"—"a bird in the hand is worth two in the bush," friend!

Standard, trade-marked goods are a bulwark of safety, and as desirable to have on your shelves as money on your pass-book, for they turn themselves quickly—and with absolute certainty. If you write them down as "cash," you need not discount a penny from their fixed retail selling value. The more you lean on their virtues, the pleasanter your surprise will be when you inventory up at the close of your business year.

Peas that Please the Palate!

Instead of selling Foreign Peas to supply the demand for finer grade peas, sell our Extra Fine Sifted (Petit Pois), Sweet Wrinkle Extra Sifted, and Early June Sifted.

Stock a line that will help increase the demand for the higher grade peas, that will give your customers greater satisfaction, and will yield you a better profit.

The vivid green color which you notice in Foreign Peas is produced by a chemical that is not only injurious to health, but kills the true flavor of the peas.

We never use any chemicals or colorings in the preparation of our products; these peas are the very choicest of the pack, fine, tender and of exquisite flavor.

A more appropriate name than "PURITY" for a flour, produced entirely from the choicest Western Canada Hard Wheat, and so spotlessly clean, can scarcely be imagined.

But on its unbroken record of satisfactory sales and trade-building feats, it has earned a second name from appreciative merchants—a name which is as appropriate in its particular application as "PURITY."

Curiously enough the initial is the same too—"P."

It spells this way—

New PEAS (with MINT) in Cooking Nets (Farrow's Patent)

You may have new peas now, or at any time of the year, if you buy Farrow's "Patent Net" Peas and cook them as directed.

FARROW'S 'Patent Net' PEAS

are the finest early green peas, gathered at the beginning of the season when peas are sweetest, most tender and delicious. Our process preserves ALL their natural flavour. When cooked they are so delicious and tender that you cannot detect them from fresh garden peas. They are very easily cooked and remarkably cheap—a 10 cent Net provides liberal portions for 8 people. Farrow's "Patent Net" Peas are English grown, absolutely pure, free from all preservatives and colouring matter.

The grandest 10 cent line the Old Country has ever sent us.

Opening Price of 1911 Canned Goods

In Majority of Cases They are the Same as in 1910, But are Higher in Others —Strawberry Pack to Permit of Over 60 Per Cent. Delivery, According to One Canner—Peas About the Same—Opinions of Canners on the Crops—Corn and Tomatoes Promise Well With Favorable Weather and No Early Frost.

News of the present year's pack of canned goods and opening prices have been waited for with a good deal of interest by both retail and wholesale dealers in Canada. The new prices were given out by the canners during the week and will be found herewith as well as opening prices of the 1910 pack.

In comparing these prices it is to be remembered that retailers who purchased before June 1 this year got canned goods at 2½ cents per dozen off the prices.

Delivery of Strawberries Over 60 Per Cent.

The Grocer interviewed a number of manufacturers during the week with a view to getting information on the crops of fruits and vegetables and packs.

"The strawberries packed this season," stated one company, "permit of a percentage delivery of between 60 and 65 per cent. Peas are about the same; other goods we are unable to advise as pack is not completed, in fact, prospects for later crops are very good. Everything looks promising at the present time, the recent rains having been of great benefit."

Smallest on Record.

An Eastern Ontario company state that during the past 12 years they have never experienced lighter crops so far as canned goods are concerned.

"Our pack will be the smallest on record," they say.

"The extreme heat of two or three weeks ago wilted the fruits to such an extent that there will not be a quarter of a crop, and the quality is poor. In our section there were no strawberries to speak of, this crop practically speaking, being a complete failure, as well as cherries.

"We depended on the Toronto market for our source of supply but what little produce we got in these two lines, was very small and commanded a high price.

"Peas were destroyed by the heat and our pack was reduced fully 75 per cent. There will not be sufficient peas packed, by many thousand cases, to supply the demand, and we are told the United States crop was also a failure. As regards the crop of tomatoes and corn, from present indications they will also be light, but not in comparison with peas. The rains we have just had will be of great benefit but they have come almgst too late."

Corn and Tomatoes Look Well.

According to a Western Ontario canning firm prospects for a good corn and tomato crop are bright and if visited by frequent rains the yield will be large. Early frosts must also be absent in these two cases.

"The strawberry crop," state this firm, "promised well, but suffered severely for lack of rain and as a consequence it was shortened fully 40 per cent.

"Raspberries are only half a crop. Cherries were a full crop in this locality. While this is not a pea district we understand that for want of rain earlier and also owing to extremely hot weather while the peas were filling, the crop will not run more than 60 per cent."

Using Extra Heavy Syrup.

In preserving their strawberries this year a canner said his firm was putting them up in extra heavy syrup with a view to having them hold their color better and this has added materially to the cost.

He also pointed out in reference to prices of peas in the United States, that California peas were quoted over $1 per dozen f.o.b. factory to the wholesale trade and in the Central and Eastern States prices range from about 95c. per dozen net f.o.b. factory carload lots.

The early closing by-law in Montreal has been shelved until October.

J. Francis, grocer, 485 Spadina ave., Toronto, has sold his business to S. C. Felgate.

Thomas Foley, grocer, St. John, N. B., has assigned. His liabilities are $1,200 and his assets $800.

Chas. Chaput, senior member of L. Chaput, Fils & Cie., wholesale grocers, Montreal, is spending five weeks' holidays at Old Orchard, Me., with his family.

In keeping with the general demand for a weekly half-holiday throughout New Brunswick, such as is in vogue in Fredericton, St. John, and other places, the merchants of St. Stephen have agreed to close their places of business on Thursday of each week at 1 o'clock. In Fredericton Thursday is also observed as a half holiday, while Saturday is kept in St. John.

A Comparison Between Opening Prices of Canned Goods in 1911 and 1910.

Practical Methods Used in Retail Stores

Dealer Shows Value of Seasonable Advertisements — Opinion on Displaying Fruits—Fresh Fish a Profitable Line—Window Represents Cities' Manufactured Foodstuffs—Increasing Sales of Flour.

A Timely Newspaper Ad.

Sudbury, Ont., July 57.—Taylor's grocery of this town is featuring those lines which serve as short cuts to summer meals. In a recent issue of a local paper, an advertisement along this line was headed "Don't Do It." Then followed, "Cooking—with an outside temperature of 105 degrees is out of the question—don't attempt it, it isn't necessary. Just make your selections from the following 'good things to eat,' serve with a cool salad and there you are—a dainty meal with no discomfort."

A list of summer foods with prices was then given with a foot note, "The lettuce, cucumbers, etc., we have, and we also have some special vinegars to give the salad character."

Keeps Fruit Free From Dust.

Winnipeg, July 27.—A local dealer maintains that the grocer who wishes to get the best trade in fruit must follow rules of cleanliness in regard to display.

"People do not want the fruit which they buy to eat, covered with dust," he states. "It is the grocer who displays his goods in a sanitary manner who will get the trade. I never display a single line of fruit outside where it will become tainted with dust. During the fruit season I devote one window to the display of fruit, showing both foreign and domestic lines. I impress upon my customers the carefulness with which I handle fruits and they appreciate it."

Makes Fresh Fish Profitable.

Montreal, July 27.—A Montreal dealer has worked up a considerable trade in fresh fish during the summer months despite the fact that many dealers claim they cannot sell this line once the weather becomes warm. In speaking of this line he said: "As soon as the weather begins to get the least bit warm most dealers stop handling fish, not even trying to push its sale. I see no reason why fish should not sell well in the summer, as people are looking for a light meat diet in the hot weather. Realizing that dealers in this district were neglecting this trade, I made arrangements to secure fresh shipments three times a week. I did not purchase too much at a time but aimed to get and keep them in good condition, and to sell them out as soon as possible. I advised my customers of when I was getting fish and impressed on them that I was giving particular attention to the handling of fish. As a result I have been able to work up a nice little trade in this line."

A "Made in Hamilton" Window.

Hamilton, Ont., July 27.—During Merchants' Week here the G. W. Robinson Co., had a display of "Hamilton Made Goods" that attracted a great deal of interest and many complimentary remarks. Besides the effective manner in which each line was displayed, an important feature of the window was the large variety of goods manufactured in this city that was shown, the collection being much larger than a person on first thought would imagine could be got together. There was flour, baking powder, jams, jellies, marmalade, catsup, jelly powder, extracts, cereals, coffee, soap, canned goods as well as other lines of foodstuffs, washing apparatus, brooms, etc.

"Hamilton Made Goods for Hamilton People," was a sign that stretched across the window while good use was made of smaller show cards and price tickets. The trimmer of the window was W. G. Moir.

Plan to Increase Flour Sales.

Parry Sound, Ont., July 27.—W. L. Kenney & Co., grocers and flour merchants, as a means of increasing their sale of flour are offering a painted flour tin with a capacity of 100 lbs. to all customers purchasing ten 98-pound sacks of flour. The flour may be purchased as wanted but the ten sacks must be taken within twelve months. This firm carry several different brands of flour and are now advertising them in conjunction with this free offer in the local paper. They term themselves "The Cash Store," and do business strictly on this basis.

STORE HINTS.

Unusual window displays may draw a crowd but the important question is, do they sell goods?

One essential in the grocery business is that you have the goods. If you don't have the goods you can't sell them.

Working full time is a good quality in a man, but something more is required in order to be successful.

Don't wait until your windows have to be washed. Attend to them before the necessity for it becomes apparent to you and also your customers.

Remember you are handling food and act accordingly. Impress this fact on the clerks also.

Don't crowd the front door. Allow plenty of room for customers to easily pass in and out.

Serve customers promptly. Don't allow them to become impatient by having to wait too long before being served.

Use plenty of show cards. They attract attention and help to sell goods.

The particular customer will be diffi cult to retain knless cleanliness and good manners prevail among the clerks. Lic king the fingers when handling butter, etc., is something "that shouldn't be."

Complete Course in Card Writing

LESSON 1.

First of Series of Twenty Articles to be Accompanied by Descriptive Plates and Full Information — The Edwards Short Cut Course — Plate No. 1, Describing Single Brush Stroke Block Capitals—Best Brushes and Outfit to Use.

(By J. C. Edwards)—Copyright applied for.

To introduce this series in as few words as possible, The Canadian Grocer wishes to say that it has, as its object in publishing this complete course, the desire to assist those who, whether connected with stores in the small town or the large city, wish to acquire a thorough working knowledge of this most progressive and direct auxiliary to their window and newspaper advertising.

Show card writing is to-day almost indispensable in any store. It brings goods and prices into prominence in a way no other advertising can, and results in more direct sales.

The great trouble has been, in the past, in smaller places, to get an inexpensive course on show card writing—writing which every lad can grasp in a moment and without the unnecessary score or more pages of unnecessary matter, which is not only confusing, but discouraging to beginners.

The Edwards show card system is the most concise and practical yet published for the beginners—every short-cut method is employed and taught throughout the twenty lessons.

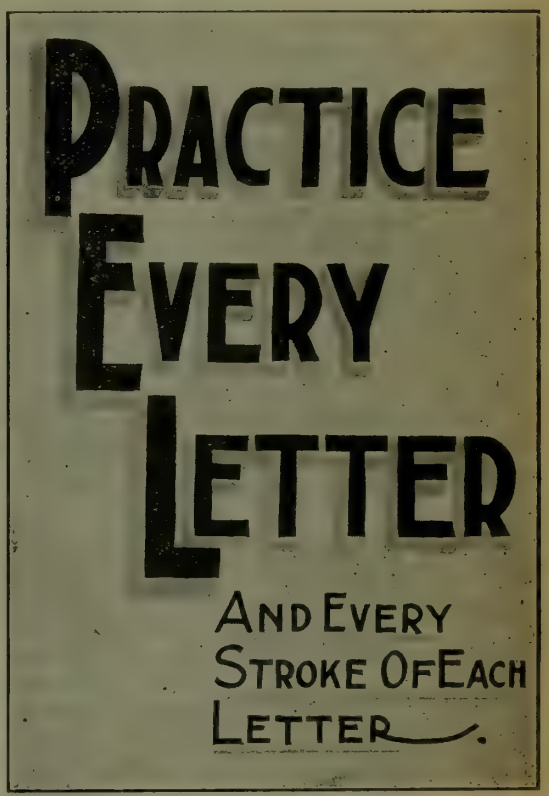
A Warning to the Beginner.

The natural tendency for every person beginning to learn show card writing is to try to do fancy stunts, thinking that the fancier the card the better. This is a very misguiding and serious error.

DO NOT ATTEMPT ANY FANCY TOUCHES UNTIL THE LETTERING HAS BEEN THOROUGHLY MASTERED.

Nothing shows up the amateur more than a poorly lettered card, with a deal of color and attemped illumination.

Practice every letter and every stroke of every letter; practice them a hundred times, then begin again, for it is practice that counts. Master the strokes, then the letters, then the words, then begin to space out the cards.



ALWAYS REMEMBER THAT THE WORDING LOOKS BETTER IN THE CENTRE OF THE CARD—equal space on both sides, also top and bottom, and each letter spaced uniformly.

Plate No. 1.—Single Brush Stroke, Block Capitals.

This style of lettering is about the most used and most readable of any used by present day card writers, It is especially good where a word or words need to be emphasized, such as: "PRACTICE EVERY LETTER," in the accompanying card. This card shows the black capitals used in both the large inscription and the reader below, which is done with a pen.

Note the position of the brush — held in the hand, between the thumb and the forefinger, in much the same way you would hold a pen, letting the hand rest lightly on the small finger, which is slightly curved.

The beginner will, with practice, find this very easy, and will soon get a free and easy motion. Do not work the fingers, but allow the hand to have a free movement from the muscles of the forearm with the small finger to steady it. Study the different strokes of each letter, and the left hand shading of each. Then practice.

In this cut, lettering illustrated on instruction plate is used.—See article.

Best Brushes and Outfit to Use.

In the lower left hand corner photo you will note that the required outfit is very limited—a red sable square point brush in Albata, a T square, a bottle of

The necessary equipment.—See article.

WESTERN CROP SITUATION.

The outlook for the year's crop continues to be excellent. During the earlier part of last week a drop in the temperature brought frost in a few sections but the damage done was not considered great. The wheat continues to head out in great form, 50 per cent. already being in bloom. From all quarters come the statement that warm weather is wanted, or harvest will be unusually late. During the past week, this kind of weather has been prevailing over the West and should it continue to do so for the next week or two, an excellent crop is assured. There are certain sections which have been damaged by frost and drought as well as hail and too much moisture, but taken on the whole, the crop continues to be promising.

It has been estimated that just about double the number of harvesters used last year will be required this year. The C.P.R. are endeavoring to bring in 50,000 and of this amount they expect to secure 10,000 below the border, and the remaining quantity in the East. The C. N. R. are also contemplating bringing in 25,000. Should the companies secure these numbers, the problem will be solved, but at the present time it is doubtful whether they can secure all these men for such a short period, consequently much apprehension is prevailing.

EARLY CLOSING IN MONTREAL.

Although the tendency in the grocery business to-day is toward early closing, a movement which makes business a little more congenial, there may be justifiable exceptions. The present agitation in Montreal presents an illustration. There the grocers have closed their shops at an early hour on Wednesday and Thursday nights. A petition has been presented to the council by clerks and a few merchants asking that Tuesday night be included in the by-law.

One argument presented in favor of it is that the clerks are mere slaves and they should be liberated from their long hours. Against this, however, is the consideration of the proprietor. In the eastern section of Montreal and also in the north small proprietors are numerous and the night trade constitutes quite a percentage of the total business. During that time, with the opposition of the departmental store temporarily removed the smaller grocer has a certain business that he is dependent upon. Closing his store another night means a direct loss to him, so he claims. It is even held that closing shop another night in the week may have serious results here and there.

Legislation should protect not despoil the smaller grocer who has sufficient obstacles in the department stores and their page ads. going into every home. If the clerks really require another night why should there not be a compromise or some understanding between the proprietors and clerks in order that the business of the former may not be affected. Thus might the problem be more easily solved and there would be less feeling between the proprietors and their clerks. In other words they should "pull together" in cases like this, not oppose each other.

If dealers are really going to lose considerable money by closing early an extra night, then there is justification for them in opposing such a movement. In many places, however, money is actually lost in keeping open, when light, heat and the dealer's health are taken into consideration.

STRONG WINDS DAMAGE FRUIT

The high winds of the past week have been playing havoc in Ontario with apples, pears, plums and peaches. Reports from Oxford, Huron, Middlesex, Wentworth and other counties indicate that the damage will be considerable.

P. W. Hodgetts, secretary of the Ontario Fruit Growers' Association, visited the Wentworth district after the storm had subsided and found many plum and apple trees almost stripped of their fruit. While fruit on the peach trees did not suffer so much, yet the trees themselves have been broken in many cases. Protected orchards, of course, escaped the gale to the extent that they were protected.

Eastern Ontario also sustained considerable damage, the result being that the plum and apple crops will be appreciably less than was anticipated from earlier reports.

GOOD PACKING BRINGS REPEAT ORDER.

The value of good service in gaining new customers is well demonstrated by a story which comes from an Ontario town. A customer who annually removes to a summer home some miles from the town, had been in the habit each year of ordering her supplies from different grocers to get the variety she wanted, and in an endeavor to find a dealer who would pack them properly, since the road to their summer house was rough and goods did not always reach their destination in the best condition.

Last year she gave part of her order to a grocer whom she had never patronized before. Instead of doing the goods up in a don't care manner and merely informing the customer that he was out of certain lines, this dealer secured every article asked for and besides packed it all securely in good sound boxes so that it would carry safely.

It caused him considerable trouble to fix the order up properly but it paid him. The customer realized he had endeavored to supply all the order and also that he had packed the goods properly, and as a result this year he received the whole summer order of this particular customer. It amounted to a substantial sum, and he will no doubt continue to receive it as long as he gives the same satisfactory service.

CONDITION OF THE CROPS.

The condition of the field crops of Canada for the month ending June 30, as compiled in the Census and Statistics Office from the reports of a large staff of correspondents, is on the whole quite satisfactory, although on account of uneven rainfall it is not uniform for all the provinces. Even in parts of the same province, as in Ontario, there is a considerable inequality. For the most part in that province excellent reports are made, but there are districts in which the grains and hay have been badly affected for want of rains in May and June.

For the whole of Canada the conditions of winter wheat is only 75.25 per cent., as compared with 100 for a full crop. This is ten per cent. less than last year, two per cent. less than in 1909, and nearly 14 per cent. less than three years ago. In Ontario it is only 73 per cent. of a full crop, as compared with 94.29 last year, 78.60 in 1909, and 88 in 1908. In Alberta, the only other province in which winter wheat is largely grown, the condition this year is 83.22 per cent., compared with 63.62 in 1910, 65.65 in 1909 and 95 in 1908. Spring wheat in all the provinces this year is given the high average condition of 94.78 at the end of June, which is better than in 1910 by 12.62 per cent., better than in 1909 by eight per cent., better than in 1908 by nearly 15 per cent. Ontario and British Columbia are the only provinces in which the conditions are under 90, and in Saskatchewan and Manitoba it is close to 100.

The average for barley is 93, which is six to ten per cent. better than in the preceding three years. It reaches close to 95 in the Northwest Provinces, Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick, and over 90 in Nova Scotia and Quebec, a point below 90 in Ontario and only 84 in British Columbia.

Oats show an average of 94.46 for all provinces, which is higher than any year since 1908, and is 95 or higher in Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick, Quebec and the Northwest Provinces. In Ontario it is close to 90, and over 90 in British Columbia.

Rye, peas and mixed grains are given a condition of about 90 for the Dominion, and are higher than in any year beginning with 1908. Hay and clover and alfalfa are both below last year's condition, and pasture is a point higher. In the three Northwest provinces the condition of pasture is over 100.

The feature of late cereals is the increase of area in flax, which is nearly 300,000 acres more than last year. The largest increase of flax is in Saskatchewan, where this crop in recent years has grown into great favor.

The numbers of live stock do not show much change from last year, but their condition at the end of June is very satisfactory. All classes are within less than two points of 100, and an excellent uniformity is shown throughout all the provinces.

TAKING UP THE DRAFT.

There always have been and probably always will be differences of opinion among retailers as to the best methods of settling up accounts due wholesalers for goods received. Some pin their faith to the cheque, while others believe in settling up on the day a draft reaches them from the wholesalers.

A dealer in Western Ontario told The Grocer recently that he was a believer in the latter method. He said that often a cheque might be issued for a large amount days ahead, and that in consequence of this anxiety to secure the discount, the business itself would be crippled to some extent. He has found that the wholesalers with whom he does business are anxious enough to hold his trade to send him along a draft in good time to secure his own return if he remits promptly.

In this way he has found himself with more ready money, and never yet has he lost discount.

SAVING ON A SMALL SALARY.

Now and then a man earning a small salary will shake his head mournfully when reproached for his extravagant habits and declare that no man can be expected to save any money unless his stipend be larger than his needs. That doesn't necessarily follow. The same man would probably say, were he questioned on the matter, that the tortoise could not be expected to outstrip the hare, and yet the fable tells how on one immortal occasion the lumbering "hardshell" actually outran its vaunted competitor.

Occasionally instances are given where men of comparatively small income have laid the foundation of a modest fortune. No one could really explain why this is so, and probably the man most concerned would not be able to do so satisfactorily. One of these results is now reported from a Georgian Bay town. A grocery clerk, who has been with his present employer for twenty years is the hero. He started in at three dollars a week as a messenger boy. now he draws twelve dollars and a half in salary. But he is worth eight thousand dollars. He had looked about him from time to time during those two decades and invested his modest savings to the best of his ability. That man believes that it isn't so much the size of the salary as the sureness that counts. That is the way he has found it.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The consumption of confectionery such as chocolates is rapidly on the increase in Canada. So stated the representative of a large firm to The Grocer this week. Are the grocers getting their share of this business?

According to the Dominion Fruit Act all Canadian strawberry boxes must have a capacity of four-fifths of an Imperial quart and raspberries two-fifths. There has been considerable talk in Calgary, Alta., recently as to the size of United States fruit boxes and instructions have been received from Ottawa that in future these must be labelled "short" if they are short.

QUEBEC MARKETS

Sugar—Up 20c.
Canned Goods—New Prices Quoted
Evap. Peaches (new)—Adance of 1¼c.
Choice Seeded Raisins—Advance of ½c.
Fancy Barbadoes Molasses—Firm.

Montreal, July 27.—One of the features of the local grocery markets during the past week has been the 20c. advance in sugar. While this staple has been firmly held it was hardly expected to soar so rapidly. The recent heavy demand with the conditions in the primary markets have been the principal contributory causes. The European beet crops, according to reports, have siffered heavily, although at the same time it is stated that the market has been advanced to some extent through speculative means. However, local authorities do not pay much attention to this, and believe that advances have been entirely warranted and in their own words they "do not know when the present movement will weaken."

Of course the newly issued prices on canned goods cannot fail but be of interest to retailers throughout the country. Canned goods, to-day, are too big a factor in the grocery business to receive any slight, and there are certain points about the new lists that are interesting. While for a time jobbers may hold to the opening prices, and this is doubtful, there is every reason to believe that it will not be long until the quoted prices are left behind. This remains to be seen, but one house has already put new prices on some lines, peas and strawberries especially, a fact that indicates the direction in which the wind is likely to blow. The heavy consumption of canned goods, and the fact that it is bound to increase steadily, the bareness of the market on to which the new supplies are coming, and the fact that the new pack is not going to be as heavy as expected are at least three good reasons for looking ahead to firmness. There seems to be no other outlook. The new prices appear in another column.

An advance of 1¼c. per lb. on new crop peaches one day this week directs attention to the dried fruit market. Short crops and short packs are not the most welcome news to the trade, but still, when prices go up they deserve attention. There is a feeling that California dried fruits are not going to come on the market at a low price. Peaches now are high and apricots are firm and are certainly not quoted at a low price. When the Spring Number of the Grocer was published, it was then stated that the fruits of the golden state had suffered from the weather. Recent reports and the attitude of brokers based on the reports they receive indicate that the news given in the Spring was correct in detail. Again the market is decidedly bare of prunes, peaches, apricots, etc., and while some wholesalers may be holding to the view that prices may be shaded later, still from the present condition, it is safe to say that the various dried fruits will be held firmly during the coming year. A shortage in one variety will affect those which may be a little more plentiful.

Sugar.—During the past week refined sugar has advanced twenty cents, as the result of a combination of present demand which has suffered under unfavorcrop which has suffered under unfavorable weather. If the present price is maintained and the market continues as at present with the European situation showing no improvement, it is thought that sugar will advance still further. The demand is reported good just now with the berry crop and cherries passing on to the larger store fruits. Sugar is certainly firm at the time of writing.

Dried Fruits.—Prices for new crop evaporated peaches advanced 1¼ cents a pound to the wholesale this week, just a little evidence of what the jobbers have been prophesying of late. The present price of peaches to retailers is from 16½ to 17 cents.

This is surely a stiff price, but is rather suggestive of what is expected of dried fruits of the California growth. Choice seeded raisins are quoted ½c. higher this week. There is not much actual business in dried fruits now, currants and raisins being practically the only two in demand.

Teas.—Arrivals of Japan teas per last "Empress" were principally executions of import orders. They have given general satisfaction, the make and appearance being rather contrary to the unsatisfactory finish which was anticipated in the absence of "color finish." Cup quality, too, is good. The Home market continues very firm and reports are that the recent incessant rains may have some effect on third crop leaf. Further sacle advices are, therefore, looked forward to with interest. The demand both in the United States and Canada continues brisk. In fact, in many instances import orders have been doubled.

Coffee.—Prices for low and medium grade coffees are higher. The feature of the market depends greatly on the flowering on the trees in August and September. If the weather is favorable and the flowering is extensive the market should be easier, but with opposite conditions, reverse results may be expected. Firmness may be looked forward to for some time, at any rate.

CANNED GOODS.

Montreal.—The prices of the new pack vegetables and fruits are out, at least quite a number of them are, and there are a few interesting facts regarding them that should be of interest to the trade. For instance prices are higher and a few illustrations may be quoted to give an idea of what the position is at present and what the tendency is in regard to sending prices higher. Standard peas are quoted at from 97½ to $1. This is practically what they opened at last year, but recently the old pack stock sold from $1.10 to $1.25, and $1.35 was reported but generally for better grade peas. Now, the new pack opening prices will hold good for those who had their orders in with the wholesalers previous to the 20th of July, on which day the new prices were issued. Those who want to buy now will pay $1.10 for standards, as a result of the conditions prevailing.

Here is a comparison of prices.

The column designated future represents prices which one wholesale house at least is quoting for those who have to buy supplies of the goods listed therein since July 20. Those who have followed the reports in the columns of The Grocer will hardly be surprised at the figures. The market is bare of old stocks, and some of the crops this year have not been as heavy as expected. Wholesalers are wondering what percentage of their orders they will receive. They are inclined to be pessimistic on that point. From general reports it is understood that orders have been heavier than ever this year and with the various houses showing increases in their orders over last year's figures it will be appreciated that this year's pack must necessarily have been heavy to meet the new demand. But the contrary is generally expected and about 60 per cent. is believed to be all that will be delivered of the pea orders.

Another question that is being asked is about the price and the pack of tomatoes. One wholesaler stated that he expected to see tomatoes at $1.15 to $1.17½. This is high of course, but was offered as a genuine opinion. Tomatoes have been selling around $1.55 to $1.60 lately and the market is as bare as a beggar's board. It was also stated that corn would likely have to retail at 10c. So much for the new prices. The market is strong even with the new pack coming in, but it is in a good healthy condition. It is felt that the trade would like lower prices for some reasons but it is thought that it will be quite a while before they will be realized. At any rate there are no old stocks resting in warehouses and the wholesalers have sold the goods they bought last year and have received their money for them, at least it is hoped they have.

CANNED GOODS.

Toronto.—New prices on early canned fruits and vegetables issued this week are being studied with a great deal of interest, the probable price at which they would open on account of the hot and dry weather having been rather uncertain. Those who have orders in for peas this year are especially in luck, for while opening prices are 97½ to $1.00, they would not be booked at present by local wholesalers under $1.25 per dozen. Those who purchased before June 1st will receive 2½ cents per dozen off listed prices, while those who booked orders afterwards up to July 20th will get them at listed prices. Future buyers will have to pay whatever conditions warrant. "I am not at all anxious to sell peas, even at $1.25," said one dealer, "until we find out exactly how we are situated in regard to supplies. We must first take care of orders now booked." Canners will deliver about 60 per cent. of peas, 100 per cent. of cherries, 70 per cent. of rhubarb, 65 per cent. of strawberries and 100 per cent. of currants and gooseberries. Beans are not exactly known nor is raspberries but the delievery will be short. The percentage of delivery of jams is as yet not known.

Tomatoes encountered a serious setback from the dry and hot weather at the first of the month, but recent rains have helped and the weather is now more favorable, although warmer weather is just now needed. Present conditions would indicate a fair production. "Even if conditions from now on keep favorable," said a local jobber, "I do not expect to see tomatoes open under $1. Last year they opened at $1.12½ to $1.15. Heavy winds in the Niagara district have lessened the probable yield of late fruits.

While nothing really definite regarding the general situation in future salmon is known, a reliable report from British Columbia says that up to date the sockeye on the Skeena river is a poor pack, much less than last year.

Imported stocks of tomatoes are about the only kind obtainable, and they are being held as high as $1.60 per dozen. The general situation in lobsters is strengthening due to limited supplies, the market having been bare of stocks when the new pack arrived.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

POINTERS—

Sugar—Up 20c.

Tomatoes—Higher.
Peanuts—Firm.
Beans—Advanced.
Pot Barley—Higher.

Toronto, July 27.—The wholesale grocery trade is steady but without any particular briskness. Travelers are still holidaying which accounts perhaps for the slight slackness. Collections are reported fair.

Sugar under a higher raw market caused by damage to the growing beet crop in Europe by drought has advanced 20 cents per cwt., making a total advance of 75 cents since Feb. 1st. Of late there has been a sharp upward trend in prices of raws, speculators taking full advantage of adverse crop reports, and the fact that refiners were in need of supplies. Cuban raws are worth around $4.39 but the amount available is so small that refiners must soon look elsewhere for supplies. Javas are worth $4.50 landed in New York and beets $4.68.

New prices have been issued on early fruits and vegetables.

Sugar.—Since our last report, refined sugar has been advanced 20 cents per cwt., bringing local quotations up to $5.05. It was pointed out last week that a good strong sugar market could be expected with the movement depending on crop conditions in Europe. Dry weather has been prevalent in Europe and prices have accordingly been boosted. Indeed it is said that not since 1904 has there been such a dry spell as during the past month. Following that dry spell of 1904 refined sugar went to $5.75, the highest in ten years. A late report says the weight of beets will be 40 per cent. short. The weather is still unfavorable and just at the moment no one seems to know where the upward movement will stop, now that the speculators are taking a hand. New York refiners must get supplies and speculators realize this fact. All depends on the weather in Europe. One wholesale dealer says he looks for a strong and advancing market until new beets are available in October, and probably the strength will continue even then. However,at the present, the market is strong, with the trade generally looking for it to continue so, the movement of prices depending on the weather in European beet districts.

Dried Fruits.—Spot stocks of Valencia raisins are limited and prices on these are firm. The range of prices is now from 8½ to 9 cents.

The general situation in new crop California fruits is firmer. In prunes especially is the strength noticeable in the larger sizes. Packers of apricots are adhering firmly to their quotations while the undertone in peaches is strong. Interest has been lacking locally in new crop California fruits. Conditions of raisins in Spain are practically unchanged. No opening prices have as yet been named but probably will in a couple of weeks. One estimate from Greece sets the yield of the coming crop of currants at 160,000 tons. "Hence," continues this report, "provided the above estimate is not far off the mark, quotations for new crop fruit would be considered safe."

Beans.—The general scarcity reported in beans referred to in our last issue seems to be well founded and prices on both prime and hand-picked have been advanced. It was thought that dealers in the bean-growing district were holding back supplies but recent enquiries show but few available. "The local market is about bare of beans," remarked dealer, "and holders are higher in their ideas. Beans have been in good demand from construction camps, and this has been increased on account of old potatoes not being available and new ones high in price."

Olive Oil.—Prices on olive oil, especially the finer grades are well maintained. So far conditions for the growing olive crop is good but nothing definite will be known until on in August when the frosts in the European producing countries are over. Shipments will begin about the first of December, reaching here the first of the year.

Macaroni.—The market situation on macaroni remains unchanged, prices ruling steady. Some fear has been expressed that delay in shipment of the Italian product may be caused by the cholera epidemic in Italy. Dealers state that this article is showing a big increase in consumption, those dealers who give it the necessary attention reaping an excellent trade.

POINTERS.—

Sugar—Advanced.
Syrup—Steady.
Coffee—Firm.
Beans—Advanced.

Winnipeg, July 27.—Trade is again being brought back to its natural groove after the break of the holiday. Travelers have all been started on the road again, after a week's visit in the city for the Exhibition, and with the ideal weather that is prevailing for the maturing of the crop, anticipate a hearty reception in each town. The volume of trade transacted during the Exhibition week with visitors to the Fair was encouraging, and considerably more than last year. Several accounts were straightened up and houses feel relieved, as they have been able to get out a large number of late shipments.

A feature of the trade during the past week are two further advances in sugar of 10 cents each per cwt. Starch has been holding steady after the advance of last week, while tea and coffee are in their same old positions. Beans are at the present time following the tactics of sugar, and during the last week have made a further advance, totaling the advances within the last three weeks to 15 cents per bushel.

Sugar.—As mentioned above, sugar continued to advance at the latter end of last week, going up to 10 cents per cwt. on all grades and 10 cents again on Monday. The strength of the Southern markets and the scarcity of supplies in the South are the causes given for the recent advances. Owing to these advances the demand for sugar has been increasing, as it is well known that the stocks at the present time held in the city are none too large, and those retail merchants who are not heavily stocked are securing a fair quantity at the present time. Present quotations are :

Dried Fruit.—Dried fruits of all kinds are practically off the market at the present time, one or two odd lines being about the only lines offered for sale, and these are at such prohibitive prices that the average merchant is not handling them at all. Reports from British Columbia continue to confirm the statement published about a month ago regarding various crops, and it is expected on the whole that high prices will prevail at the opening of the new season.

Coffee.—Coffee remains in the same old position, and local wholesalers have given up predicting advances. Continued strength still prevails and the demand is still fair. Stocks are of fair size and prices are firm.

BRITISH COLUMBIA MARKETS.

Vancouver, July 17 (Special).—Dealers on the coast are looking for higher prices in canned goods, for not only has small fruits been a partial failure in the east, according to reports here, but the local crop of strawberries, raspberries and plums is below the average.

New supplies are coming on the market, and with the advance of the season, potatoes are going down as the new ones keep coming up. New apples are in from California, but they are high priced as yet. Pears are also arriving. Apricots are arriving from Wenatchee in eastern Washington.

DID LAURIER BETRAY US?

Did Laurier betray us when he spoke and acted as he did at the Imperial Conference? No. He did not. But somebody did, somebody that the average Canadian has never suspected before. We really believe that the "average Canadian" will find something along this line to think about in this article in the August issue of MacLean's Magazine. It is written by the Editor, who went to London and followed the proceedings of the Conference from the beginning to the end.

NEW BRUNSWICK

St. John, July 27.—Sugar has attained a remarkable strength during the past few weeks, and in spite of the fact that the price is quite high, the demand, owing to the preserving season, is brisk. Two more increases of ten cents each in all grades was noted this week, and local dealers are of the opinion that further increases may be looked for. Rolled oats advanced 25 cents this week.

OUR BAD MANNERS.

Every now and then somebody rises out of the congregation of the righteous and declares that the "Manners" of the Canadian child are terribly neglected. The latest critic was Earl Grey and following his charges there was a prolonged discussion in which the Public Schools of Canada were apparently on the defensive.

NOVA SCOTIA MARKETS.

Halifax, July 27.—The sugar market is strong. All grades of refined sugar were advanced ten cents per hundred pounds with the prospects of still higher prices. The demand is heavy, and the drought in Europe is said to be the cause of the advance in the price of raw sugar.

A large canning firm have issued a circular to their customers that they will only be able to deliver about sixty per cent. of the leading lines in vegetables.

Cheese also has been advanced a half cent per pound by some of the factories. Wholesale grocery jobbers report business good. The travelers on the road continue to send in good orders, particularly from Cape Breton, where all the big industries are in full swing.

WHY JEWS ARE HEALTHIER THAN CHRISTIANS.

In the midst of squalor the "poor" Jew thrives. Under the same condition the "poor" Gentile contracts disease and falls into degeneracy. In an epidemic it is the Gentile who suffers. In the recent hot weather it was Gentile babies that died, not so much Hebrew little ones. The August issue of MacLean's Magazine contains an article explaining or suggesting an explanation for this phenomenon.

COURSE IN CARD WRITING.

block letterine and a piece of cardboard to use as a pallette to rub the inked brush out on—a procedure which is necessary to bring the point of the brush to a flat edge.

The picture in the right hand corner shows the proper way to hold a brush when ruling a line. The three finger tips are held easily to the edge of the square, and the corner of the brush is allowed to rest on the card, making a line the required thickness as the hand is drawn from top to bottom (always toward yourself.) The flat edge of the brush can be used when a thick line is required, or in making large letters.

You will also notice in the picture in the upper left hand corner of the accompanying plate, the proper position of the brush in the hand when making the first stroke of the letter "S." This position is retained throughout all the lettering, except when such strokes as No. 3 in letter A, No. 2 and 3 in letter B, etc., when the position is changed to the one shown in the photo of the outfit.

Next issue will contain the lower case of this same alphabet.

Note.—Any further or special information will be given regarding brushes, etc., upon receipt of request by The Canadian Grocer, or J. C. Edwards, care of MacLean Pub. Co., 143 University Ave., Toronto.

COMFORT SOAP'S LATEST PREMIUM.

The Comfort Soap people are to be congratulated on the success of their latest premium, viz:—The Comfort Soap Sealing Machine now so largely used by up-to-date Toronto grocers. This machine save time and twine, and gives an up-to-date appearance to the counter.

The Comfort Soap people are giving Free this Rapid Sealer to purchasers of 25 cases of Comfort Soap.

The machine is the most modern invention adapted for the wrapping of packages.

This up-to-date idea is a saver of time, labor, and money. Two inches of tape will do the work of two feet of twine, and do it better, neater, quicker and cheaper. On one roll of tape you may have 4,800 advertisements, and can seal up as many as 2,400 parcels.

These machines will make an attractive addition to any counter, and will not occupy any more space than a twine holder. The idea is simply for your parceler to draw a moistened tape with your advertising on it from the machine and place it on your packages wherever the paper meets.

Tapes with The Comfort Soap advertisement are supplied absolutely free by The Comfort Soap Company, which fact alone means a great saving of twine expense to the owner of one of these machines. The grocer may have his own advertisement on the tape at less than cost price. Every grocer should secure one of these machines at once before the supply runs out, especially when they can be had absolutely free of cost.—Advt.

WILL NOT PROSECUTE IN EARLY CLOSING CASES

St. John Magistrate Maintains Council Should Amend the By-Law—Thinks City Has Not Power to Say What "Shops" Shall be Closed—Dealers in a Quandary.

St. John, N.B., July 27 (Special).—"Am I doing my duty as a law-abiding citizen in remaining open after 7 p.m.?" This is a question which is agitating some of the local grocers who are anxious to conform with the law through Anglo-Saxon principles, but who are nonplussed owing to the complications which have arisen in this connection. The common council has decreed that all stores with one or two exceptions, such as drug stores, barber shops, etc., must close at 7 o'clock, while the police magistrate has dismissed the cases of those who were reported by the police for violation of the by-law.

Some dealers have kept open through each week while the law was in discussion and while the cases were pending while others remained closed after 7, Now some of them do not know whether they have to close or not, although the by-law requires them to do so under penalty of a fine.

The magistrate has said that the by-law should be amended, the council seem to think it is satisfactory, some dealers want it repealed, and others desire it to be sustained. The expectations are that the by-law will be enforced hereafter, and that if necessary an amendment will be made so that the early closing movement may be upheld.

INFORMATION FOR BUYERS.

Supplied to the Trade by Sellers.

W. J. Wilson of S. H. Ewing & Sons, Montreal, will be visiting Newfoundland in the near future. Dealers should be on the look out for him as he carries a large number of lines which are in demand throughout Canada and the colonies, etc. They allow a good margin of profit and prove extra fast sellers. S. H. Ewing also begs to advise the trade that they are in a position to give prompt attention to all orders received by mail. Some of their representatives are now on holidays and all orders should be forwarded direct to headquarters.

The Harry Horne Co., of Toronto, received recently another shipment of Eiffel Tower lemonade. This article, manufactured by Foster Clark, Ltd., Maidstone, Eng., has met with a splendid reception from Canadian dealers. The above mentioned shipment was the fourth received this year and another is on the way.

Laporte, Martin & Co., Ltd., wholesale groceries, wines and liquors, have been advised by the Canners that they will not be able to fill more than 60 per cent. of the orders on hand for peas. It would be well for merchants to place their orders at once and avoid disappointment. Prices will surely increase rapidly.

Advices from Europe show that the shortage in vegetable crops have caused a considerable increase in prices. Peanuts have also advanced one cent. Read Laporte, Martin & Co., Ltd., advertisement in this issue and profit thereby.

Provisions and Live Hogs are Steady

English Bacon Market Holds Firm—Good Demand for Pork Products—Smoked and Cooked Meats in Good Demand—Butter a Little Steadier—Egg Prices Unchanged—Cheese Unsettled—Rains Should Increase Production.

Live hogs are steady on Canadian markets, even some slight advances being noted at some centres. The English bacon market is apparently holding its own, and there is quite a keen demand for hogs here. Then again, farmers are busy with the harvest and offerings are not as large as they otherwise would be.

Trade both export and domestic is reported quite satisfactory of late. Smoked hams and cooked meats are in good demand in all parts of the country and prices are accordingly firm. A better movement of lard during the past week or so is the report from some centres.

There is something of a firmness to the butter market, the sequel of the decreased production on account of the dry and hot weather and also of the steady demand. Prices across the line are also steady. Recent rains have however helped pastures, and an increased production of butter should be the result.

The egg situation shows little alteration. Receipts on the whole continue quite liberal for the season and demand is steady in character. The shrinkage is still large, thus in many cases making a wide margin between prices existing at country and city points.

The cheese market is rather unsettled. Of late prices have been firming, but the recent rains should greatly improve the output of cheese as far as quantity is concerned.

MONTREAL.

Provisions.—Farmers are busy haying just now and are not bringing in heavy offerings in the form of hogs. However, this is only a temporary condition. It is reported that hams are scarce, especially the medium varieties and the price shows a slight advance this week. There is a steady demand for lard and hams but otherwise no feature presents itself.

Butter.—There is something of a firmness to the butter, especially for creamery. The old country is now enduring a hot wave similar to that which passed over Eastern Canada early this month and as a result of the two spells, the butter market shows new strength. Demand is steady.

Provisions.—Live hogs are higher by 25 cents this week, bringing quotations at country points up to $7.35 per cwt. Under the higher hog market of the past two weeks, provisions, especially those lines in greatest demand, exhibit a firmer tendency. Smoked hams of all kinds are ½ cent higher, while cooked hams for which there is an exceptionally good demand, are being held at 26 to 28 cents. Long clear bacon is quoted at 11½ to 12 cents, heavy mess pork at $19 to $20, and short cut is up to $22.50 to $23 per barrel. A quite satisfactory demand is reported for pork products, while a better movement of lard, which was quiet, is reported by some dealers this week.

Eggs.—No change is made in quotations of eggs this week and the general situation has deviated little. Wholesalers continue to make strenuous complaints in regard to the quality of eggs which country dealers are shipping. "If I paid only 10 cents a dozen for some shipments, I would still be losing money," said one dealer. "Only the other day, we received a case of eggs of which 12 dozen were culls. When will the country dealers learn to be more particular about the quality of eggs?" he added. Strictly new laid, which are scarce, are bringing 22c. to 23 cents per dozen.

Hamilton Grocers Liven Up Niagara Falls

Put on a Variegated Programme at Their 22nd Annual Excursion to the Big Cataract—About 6,000 in Attendance—Free Refreshment Stand Does Big Business—Ball Game, Races and Music in Abundance.

Niagara Falls, Ont., July 27.— "The 22nd annual outing of the Hamilton Retail Grocers' Association was held here on Wednesday, July 19." So said the press despatches.

There have been other picnics to Niagara Falls. There have even been other picnics from Hamilton, but the 1911 outing of the Hamilton Retail Grocers will go down in the annals of history as the greatest picnic of the decade both in regard to number and successfulness.

Grocery clerks now in their teens will take their grandchildren upon their knee and in glorious terms describe how the grocers of the Ambitious City, with aid of friends and their friends' friends, totalling close to the 6,000 mark, descended upon the famed Victoria Park and made it theirs for one long and eventful day. Not one of the 6,000 souls that took the trip to the hamlet by the Falls but was completely satisfied with the day's fun and enjoyment.

Ten trains on two lines of railway were required to carry the large number of excursionists who took in the event. Those on the T.H. & B. were let down at the ravine opposite the park while passengers on the other railroad enjoyed a trip by trolley along the river's edge to the appointed place. While a number took advantage of the trip to Buffalo, a good large number betook themselves to Victoria Park to spend the day.

J. O. Carpenter who was in charge of the transportation end of the event is to be congratulated on the excellent arrangement for the handling of the crowd.

And the weather was ideal. All day Old Sol looked down upon the event with a cheering smile. Only for a few moments around six o'clock in the evening did he disappear from view while gentle drops of rain pattered down upon the fun making. Then he came out bright again as if to bring the people to a realization of the excellent weather he had provided for the day's sport.

Nobody Married Need Apply.

The fireworks for the day started when the east end "Old Maids" lined up against the west end "Bachelors" in an indoor baseball match held outside in the park. It made the modest girls who witnessed the game blush with shame to see the "Old Maids" chasing the "Bachelors" but all to no avail, for when the smoke had cleared away, it was found that the "Bachelors" had trotted off with the honors to the tune of 12-9.

The game was somewhat late in getting started because the "Old Maids" had considerable difficulty in arranging their new fangled dresses. But when at last they did appear, they did indeed look natty in their pretty blue harem skirts with latest trouser effect.

The contest was the more keenly fought because of the gold watch fob presented to each of the winning team. Some one asked before the fray if it was a burlesque affair and when the game was over they were still asking the same

Flour and Cereal Prices Unchanged

Sales of New Crop Winter Wheat Flour to Britain—Export Spring Wheat Flour is Quiet—Cornmeal is Less Firm—Rains Help United States Corn Crop and Prices Decline — Cereal Trade of Hand to Mouth Character.

Neither flour nor cereal markets show any change in prices this week, nor any special features. Flour is steady as is also rolled oats at last week's advance. The strength in the cornmeal market is not so marked as for the past two weeks. A normal amount of trade is in evidence, although naturally for the season demand is of a hand to mouth character. A despatch from Montreal says there is some demand from foreign buyers for new crop winter wheat flour, and as Ontario millers are selling it ten cents per barrel below old crop wheat flour, sales of several lots were made for August shipment. The export trade in spring wheat flour is quiet, but the local demand continues good.

Fluctuations in wheat have been confined within a small margin, prices going up and down as reports of crop prospects affect them. The future market is in an uncertain condition at the present time, everything depending upon the weather, not only in this country and the United States but also in Russia, whose crop is ready for shipment about the same time as our own.

Rains that meant millions of bushels added to the corn crop eased prices for that cereal on the Chicago market at the beginning of the week and Canadian prices took on a similar tendency.

The estimate of 200,000,000 bushels of wheat as the crop of the Canadian Northwest made two weeks ago is now generally credited, while some recent estimates exceed that quantity.

MONTREAL.

question. Those who pleaded guilty to having taken part in the melee were as follows :

East End "Old Maids"—G. Cann, p. ; D. Donovan, 3 b. ; M. Cummings, r.f. ; Eric Jamieson, s.s. ; E. F. Henderson, l.f. ; M. Burkholder, C. Stroud, c. ; C. Sanderson, 2 b. ; J. L. Brown, 1 b.

West End "Bachelors"—C. Baxter, c.f.; J. Williamson, 1 b. ; Jno. Knox, p. ; J. N. Semmens, 3 b. ; R. Forman, s.s. ; A. Hobson, c. ; W. Playter, r.f. ; A. Lavis 2 b. ; C. Henry, r.f.

Official—Umpire, D. M. Barton. Assistants, all the players and numerous rooters.

And the Band Played.

There was plenty of music during the day. The band of the 91st Highlanders, of Hamilton, under the leadership of bandmaster H. A. Stares provided an excellent programme. The pipers from Hamilton contributed their share while the Rube band, under the leadership of "Aunt Susie," discoursed sweet strains at intervals during the day, providing amusement for young and old alike, their latest accomplishments (?) making a decided hit. Then there was another source of music, unannounced upon the programme. It happened in the baby show when 25 infants in the contest began a chorus more or less musical, but mostly less. Hamilton controllers were the judges in this event and they are "some judges" of beauty—or at least of babies.

Graced by Old Age.

The manner in which this picnic is patronized was shown in the next event. Eighty-nine was the age of the oldest lady excursionist, while the oldest gentleman was of a similar age. Then a Hamilton family of 12 trooped on to the platform and carried off the prize ticket, the mother remarking "and there's three more yet at home."

Then began a series of races and contests headed by the Niagara Falls to Hamilton pigeon race down to the greasy-pig catching competition. Only those who have had experience in catching porkers can imagine how interesting this event is.

D. McEre now has a faithful briar to bring back fond memories of the grocers' picnic. He slid past the tape ahead in the clerks' and drivers' race. J. Baxter gave an example of the way he gets down to work in the morning, and carried off the second trophy, while J. Ewen and L. Christie came third and fourth at such a record speed, that their employers are thinking of dispensing with their horses and allowing them to deliver on foot.

Speed Among the Grocers.

Then there was the Grocers' Association Race. No one was arrested for loafing in this contest as there were no policeman near. The contestants showed the way they are going to go after those customers who run off without paying their bills. J. M. Semmens went to the tape like the hired man coming in for lunch. E. Henderson and J. Knox came in second and third, respectively.

The "beef trust" also had their innings. The fat men's race was next announced and waiters with refreshments were stationed at intervals along the route. No records were broken except those for broken suspenders. The rube band played "I am coming." They played it over seven times while V. T. Carey, the winner in this stampede, was completing the last 25 yards. J. H. Bates came in 13 minutes later, and received a fancy vest which is a good big donation when you consider this was the fat men's race. D. M. Scott was third and had an excellent excuse for not winning. He didn't give it to the spectators. He didn't need to.

If Hamilton ladies' pitching is a sample of the general run, no man need be afraid of a flat iron from his wife's hand. However, after a great many weird attempts they managed to give a good enough exhibition to carry off the prize tea. Numerous other events from bunny catching contests to the ladies' backward race made the time fly all too fast.

Carry System to Their Picnic.

There is another feature of this picnic full worthy of description. That is the refreshment department, the handling of which the Hamilton grocers now have down to a science. This department supplies all the excursionists with tea, coffee, milk and lemonade free of charge. When one considers the large number in attendance, they realize that this is no easy task, and the committee, of which A. G. Bain is chairman, is to be congratulated on the systematic manner in which it was conducted.

Sixteen hundred and fifty gallons of drinkables consisting of tea, coffee, milk and lemonade were handed out over the refreshment counters. Six thousand paper pails were necessary to accommodate the rush. However, there was no rush, at least nothing like a person would expect when 6,000 people are seeking free refreshments. All was conducted on systematic lines. The people entered at one end of the capacious booth, where at a 30 foot counter they were served with the liquid refreshments, passing out at the farther end and thus avoiding any confusion.

Those in charge of the picnic were as follows :—

Chairman, Ed. Hazell ; treasurer, James Main ; secretary, M. R. Hill ; transportation, J. O. Carpenter ; printing, W. Smye ; refreshments, A. G. Bain ; amusements, M. R. Hill ; music, Harry Taylor ; reception, J. A. McIntosh ; games, John Forth ; John Knox was secretary and John Brown, treasurer of the games committee while D. M. Barton was official starter.

On the Side.

A citizen of Niagara Falls when asked what claim his town had to fame said : "Because it is the holiday ground of the Hamilton grocers' picnic."

Did you see the "Maid of the Mist" go up to the falls ? No, but I saw the "Old Maids" go down to defeat.

The "Maid of the Mist" wasn't the only maid to receive attention from Hamilton's youthful "counter hoppers."

Jack Williamson was the heaviest man in the ball game. This does not refer to his batting, however.

The ladies discarded their high heels and raced along in stocking feet.

The 22nd annual—and only one occasion on which they did not have real fine weather.

"What's the difference," asked one member of another, "between a man who has seen the Falls, one who hasn't, and a bottle of mucilage ?"

"What is the difference ?"

"Well, one has seen the mist, the other has missed the scene."

"And what about the bottle of mucilage ?"

"Oh," calmly replied the other, "that's the sticker."

Geo. Hunt, a member of the Hamilton association was the oldest athlete on the field. He is just 80 years old and made a good showing in the race for men 60 years and upward.

If there's anything that attracts a crowd more than a free lunch, it's the grocers' refreshment booth. It has the bargain counter raid backed right into a corner.

A. G. Bain has had charge of the refreshments for the past thirteen years. The first year an ordinary boiler was the only equipment. Now eight big kettles holding 40 gallons apiece, each having its own furnace, is required, while twenty men are necessary to serve the people.

Everything went off like clockwork, as if it had been rehearsed beforehand. Even the pig seemed to know what was required of him.

"The next event" announced the megaphone artist "is for youths, sixty years and over—Let the sprinters come forth."

The Telephone's Business Possibilities

Long Distance Business Likely to Become More and More a Factor in Trade—How Local Business is Changing — The Whims and Moods of Instrument, and its Probable Development in the Next Ten Years.

By C. H. Crysdale, Oshawa, Ont.

The telephone must be considered to-day of importance almost equal to that of the railway in the conduct of general business. Just as surely as the express train and steamer have made possible the distribution and sale of goods from all parts of the earth so the telephone has made it possible for business to be accomplished which otherwise could not be done except at great personal inconvenience and loss of time.

I calculate making my telephone pay back every dollar that it cost me. I do this by using it every morning to keep my customers informed of the bargain that I may have to offer during that day. I consider it is a great factor in the sale of perishable goods, such as fruit, and do not know how otherwise we would be able to clear out overstocks many and many a day.

Posts Lists of Subscribers.

The policy I have always followed is to keep posted a list of all the telephone customers in town. Every morning I spend an hour or two as occasion offers talking with these folks about the particular bargains for that day, or of new goods that have come in. It is not an easy matter to take an order over the telephone, and, generally speaking, only a reliable salesman should be allowed to have anything to do with the instrument. When a lady calls up, or is called, she does not want to be misunderstood or continually requested to repeat what she has already said. The man at the instrument in ths grocery store must have his faculties developed sufficiently to handle that class of business without delay, or inconvenience to the customer at the other end of the wire. Still, telephoning is bound to increase, and although it saves a great deal of time and indirectly means an addition to the business which would not have come under the old conditions, its spread is to be regretted because it tends more and more to a customer doing her ordering without ever coming into the store to find out what improvements have been made since her last visit. She sees the interior of the place, as it was, probably two or three months before. That fact is not conducive to good business, and it doesn't secure for the merchant all the business that might otherwise come his way. Everyone knows it is easier to induce anyone to buy goods when the hygienic surroundings demanded by the trade conditions of to-day are vividly impressed on her mind.

The Stranger Customers.

The customer is half persuaded by the display of goods within the store in itself before a salesman even commences his selling talk. The telephone is entirely a different proposition. Nowadays accounts are opened by people who probably have never been in the store, but had given it their trade because of the advice of someone else whom the proprietor knew. I remember one case not long ago when a woman came in to order some goods and I had never seen her before, nor did I know anything about her. When she told me her name, however, I recognized a good customer. She had been transacting business with us entirely by telephone and I had not considered that point when racking my brains to reveal her identity. There are any number of cases like that, and also many in which good customers who were accustomed in the old days to visit the store when giving their order when they had not the luxurious, ease-loving telephone, never visit the establishment for months at a time. There are several of my best patrons whom I have not seen for three months at least, and for several reasons I wish this was not the case.

But there is the other side to the telephone, and that must be considered, too. I feel at perfect liberty, when thinking of the telephone, to call up customers of other stores whose names appear on the list I have posted by the instrument and endeavor to sell them special lines, either in fruit or crockery or something else which I know their own grocer does not carry. If I get them interested in that and close a sale over the telephone I usually endeavor to add to it by having them order some good quantity of a regular staple. This, I consider, does not interfere with the general trade of the grocer whom she has always dealt with and if it did I would not do it because I believe in every dealer looking after his own business and leaving that of anyone else seriously alone.

Telephone Whims.

A telephone is full of whims and moods and for that reason needs to be treated with indulgence. Some mornings the receiver is as clear and full-toned as a bell, while at other times it seems almost impossible to hear a single word that is being transmitted into the ear. That is its principle trouble. A customer calls up, knowing nothing about this or apparently being ignorant of it, and the man at the grocery phone must be particularly sharp if he is going to catch the drift of her conversation sufficiently to act upon it without having her repeat it over and over again.

So it is generally good policy to have one man look after that end of the business. At least that is the way I view it. He will thus become familiar with the names and voices and tricks of expression of all his customers and so will be able to call them by name almost as soon as the receiver is to his ear. It's a wonderful aid in carrying on conversation of this sort in being able to interject the personal element at the outset rather than being compelled to have the voice at the other end of the wire reveal its identity and all that sort of thing.

It also makes it a great deal easier to secure a larger order than the speaker had intended when first going to the phone. Because of his knowledge of the fact that she has not visited the establishment in the past few weeks or months he is able to tell her of a good many things which he otherwise would have feared to mention.

New Ways Crowding the Old.

Probably the day is not far distant when every grocer will be depending to a more or less great extent upon this telephone business. When that day comes there will be, on doubt, a separate department set off in the store with every modern equipment there to simplify the work and render the possibility of misunderstanding as remote as possible. Personally I am sorry to see the old customs become less and less important, and the long-distance business creeping more and more to the fore. The business possibly is just as good and, generally speaking, anyone who is able to afford the telephone is sufficiently favorably treated financially as to have ample funds to pay her grocery account, but the collection enters into the new arrangement and makes extra work for the office. That is the feature of it that is hardly viewed with complacency. But the march of progress will not be stopped by that, and it is quite possible, nay, probable, that the growth of this class of business will be most pronounced during the next decade. So for that reason it would be unwise on the part of any grocer to seriously attempt to stem the tide. The trade is subject largely to inclination now, and this tendency will be even more pronounced in the future.

Lemon Supplies are Not Plentiful

Some Difficulty in Getting Supplies—Hot Weather Will Boost Prices Again—Oranges are Firm — California Fruits Going Out Well—Spanish Onions Arrive—Canadian Cucumbers on Market—Tomatoes Under Scarcity are Firmer.

Supply and demand evidently regulates prices of lemons on the different markets. This week prices in Montreal have been maintained at $5 to $5.50, while in Toronto prices have eased slightly, putting both these markets on the same basis. However, supplies are not at all plentiful and the opinion rules that a few days of real hot weather would put a firm tendency on the market again. Some difficulty is being experienced in getting shipments to this side, on account of the cholera in the Mediterranean district, many of the steamers are held under quarantine for 10 days, being a great inconvenience to lemon importers. This hold-up has made it unprofitable for some steamers and sailings have been cancelled.

California late Valencias are about the only orange being offered and they are quite firm in price, due to the highness of fruits in general, a better demand than usual being experienced. It is also claimed that shipments are being curtailed to some extent, although the supplies going out of California are larger than a year ago. For instance, on the 19th of July, the California orange shipments were 88 cars, compared with 42 on the same date last year. Late Valencias will continue to be shipped until late in September. Jamaica will begin in the same month while Florida will come forward around Oct. 1.

California late Valencias are about the plums and pears, are being taken up well, while watermelons are also enjoying a good trade. While the cool weather has slackened the demand for the latter on some markets, the general trade is brisk and prices are holding steady.

New crop Spanish onions are now being offered on Canadian markets. Canadian cucumbers are cheaper in price, while tomatoes, on a temporary scarcity, are firm.

MONTREAL.

Green Fruits.—There is a good demand for California fruits. Plums, peaches, pears, etc., are moving steadily. Cantaloupes are also going freely. The supply of Canadian blueberries has been liberal this week. Altogether, there has been a heavy business reported with the weather favorable. Lemons are still at their high mark, and it is thought they may go higher before fresh supplies are received. Just now they are something of a scarcity, and prices are likely to go higher if the present demand is maintained. Raspberries are going well and the general tone of the fruit market is harmonious.

TORONTO.

Green Fruits.—As can be expected with the continuance of cool weather, especially as compared with that ruling at the first of the month, the demand for lemons has slackened, and prices are slightly easier now, ranging from $5 to $5.50 per case. Local dealers say that supplies are not large and that they look for little or no further reduction in prices, one dealer remarking, "a day or two of hot weather would put them back to firmness again." Oranges are firm, another 25 cents haping been added to prices this week. Prices of other fruits are high and this has created a similar tendency in oranges, while shipments out of California are being curtailed. Grape fruit is done and pineapples are on the verge of exhaustion. Under scarcity, Canadian tomatoes last Saturday went as high as $2 per basket, but at the beginning of the week receded to $1.75. Watermelons are enjoying a good steady demand.

The Canadian product is becoming more plentiful, although nothing like large enough to supply the whole demand. The country districts have used nearly all their own production as yet. Spanish onions have arrived on the market, and are quoted at $3 to $3.50 per large case. Canadian cucumbers are more plentiful and have been reduced to 60 to 75 cents per basket.

Halibut Plentiful and Selling Well

Coming Forward Freely Under Direct Shipment—A Favorite in Regard to Demand—A Satisfactory Summer Trade in Fish —East Coast Fishermen Hampered by Lack of Bait — Good Total Catch Expected on Coast, However.

The usual summer demand in fish is in evidence. Wholesale dealers state that those retailers who are giving the necessary attention are doing a nice business in this line. Halibut is in plentiful supply and a large proportion of the trade is being done in this line. Gaspe salmon is scarce while B.C. salmon is coming forward more freely.

The bankers on the eastern coast have been hampered to a considerable extent by the lack of bait, but, however, have lately been able to get a supply of caplin at Newfoundland ports. While as yet fish on the banks are reported scarce, the season is early and there is every prospect that the total catch on the eastern coast of Canada will be a good one. Newfoundland herring are gradually easing off in price.

QUEBEC.

Montreal.—B.C. salmon is in better supply this week and has responded with prices a little lower. Gaspe salmon is scarce. Halibut is coming forward freely and under direct shipment.

NOVA SCOTIA.

Halifax.—Dealers report the fresh fish trade a little slow at present. The receipts of fish are fairly good, but the demand is light, which is usual at this season. The exports of fresh fish are also light, but this is due mainly to the warm weather. The bankers which have been hampered to a considerable extent by the lack of bait are now able to get a supply of caplin at Newfoundland ports where the fish have commenced to strike on the shores in abundance. The fish are so plentiful that the fishermen are working night and day in handling them.

While fish on the banks are reported scarce, the season is as yet a little early, but there is every prospect that the total catch of the Newfoundland, Labrador and Nova Scotia fishermen will be a record one.

Local bank codfish are now selling around $6.40 per quintal. Small lots of shore fish are coming in and are selling at $6 for small, and $6.50 for large. The prevailing hot weather of late has stopped curing operations at most of the fishing centres on the Nova Scotia coast.

The situation regarding pickled fish is somewhat disappointing, the total catch of spring mackerel is small, and high prices are ruling. Newfoundland herring are gradually easing off in price. It now looks as if before many years alewives and salmon will follow shad and become an article no longer obtainable for export.

SPRING SALMON PLENTIFUL—SOCKEYES ARE SCARCE

So Says Report From the Pacific Coast — Young Fish Meet Death From Trout and Chubb—This Said to be One Cause For Sockeye Shortage.

Vancouver, B.C., July 27 (Special).—The pack of sockeye salmon in British Columbia so far this season has not been large. In the north it is behind that of last year, and on the Fraser the run has been small. Those connected with the fishing industry on the Fraser River state that the salmon is falling off, for one reason because so many young fish are killed by trout and chubb suckers which are found in great numbers near the hatcheries. Fishermen are given 35 cents each for sockeyes, which is a large price, but even this is not bringing in many. When fish are scarce, American canneries do all they can by offering high prices to get the fishermen to market over there.

While sockeyes are scarce, spring salmon are plentiful, and the run in the north has been the largest in history. The quality is good, too. The general manager of a packing concern suggests that the reason for the increasingly large run of springs is that for many years the hatcheries on the Columbia have been turning out spring salmon and that British Columbia is benefiting by this work. With a large run of springs on the Skeena, the average pack may hardly be termed large, though a good start has been made. On the Naas, the sockeyes have not been running as well as last year. Conditions, however, are improving in the north, with the advent of warm weather.

The Dealer's Possibilities in August

The Last Month of Summer— Farmers are Busy With the Harvest and Merchants Must Make Extra Efforts — A Good Fruit and Sugar Month—Canned Goods and Picnic Supplies Can Still be Featured.

"Don't wait for something to turn up. Start right in and turn something up yourself."

August is close at hand and for this month the above is excellent advice for the grocer to observe. During this month the farmer is busy at his harvest and in order to maintain business at a standard in country districts, it is all the more essential that the grocer devise some plans calculated to help his business out during this month. Give more attention to the dressing of the window and the writing of advertisements, and if necessary do a little extra advertising. Your expenses are nearly the same no matter whether business is quiet or brisk so that it is to your advantage to do something that will keep the cash-drawer on the swing during the whole month.

Sell Canned Goods and Drinks.

Just because the family almanac announces that August is the last month of summer is no reason why any dealer should allow his stocks of picnic and summer goods to run too low. Canned goods, drinks and other lines which the summer and picnic season create a demand for, will be salable for close on a couple of months. Do not load up with these lines the same as at the beginning of the season but carry sufficient stock to supply all demands. Do not wait for customers to ask for them either, but suggest them in personal talks and advertising. If there are any lines which have been dragging, now is the time to devise some plan to get them off the shelf before the season for their sale closes.

Fruit should also be given attention during this month. While small Canadian fruits are about at an end, there are different lines now being imported, while later in the month Canadian peaches and plums will be coming on the market. Push sugar in conjunction with preserving fruits as well as sealers. Make quality the strong point in talks on fruit jars and use plenty of display.

Watch the Pickling Season.

Preparation for the pickling season would also be well during this month. Look over last year's figures and form an estimate of the amount you will require for this season. Positively air tight receptacles are needed for your spices in order to preserve their strength, and some thought should be given to providing these. Tins are all right in this respect while glass jars with glass jars with glass stoppers keep the strength and also show the spices up well.

The provision counter could also be featured to good advantage during August. Most particularly can a good trade be worked up in smoked and cooked meats. Display of these lines in a cleanly and tasteful manner will do much to boost sales.

Feature One Line.

An idea followed by many dealers and one which has proved beneficial to trade is to specialize on some one line or article each month, giving extra prominence in many ways to that particular line. Any line carried in the store may be featured in this manner. Even such a thing as a fly destroyer might be all right for the month of August, as the fly harvest is just now in full swing. By giving some window and counter space to it, as well as a little advertising and personal talk, sales during the month should amount to an appreciable figure.

With all these means at hand, and by following the advice set down in the opening paragraph, dealers in all sections should be able to make the August sales sheets talk for themselves.

WANT EARLY CLOSING THREE NIGHTS EACH WEEK

Montreal Clerks and Some Dealers Present Petition to Council, Which is Strongly Opposed by R. M. A. Officials—Hope of Smaller Dealer is Claimed to be Dependent Upon Stores Being Kept Open.

Montreal, July 27.—(Special)—There is a by-law in force in Montreal requiring the early closing of dry goods, grocery, boots and shoes and such stores on two nights each week, Wednesday and Thursday. Recently a petition has been presented to the council asking that proprietors be also compelled to close on Tuesday nights and as a result these proprietors are up in arms against the movement.

It must be understood that in cities like Montreal the big department stores with their page ads. and 8 a.m. bargains lure the people away from the smaller stores, but after six o'clock the latter are freed from this opposition, and women who have been kept at home with their families during the day get a chance to make necessary purchases when their husbands are at home. Thus there is quite a trade after six o'clock and the proprietors of the small stores realize this fact.

The petition for closing is said to have had the signatures of 1,500 retail merchants of one kind or another but it was also said in opposition that there were 15,000 or more who did not sign it. Naturally the clerks or the majority of them welcome this petition as it gives them another night off.

At the meeting of the Legislation Committee of the council when the bill was presented, J. A. Beaudry, secretary of the R.M.A., strongly opposed the movement to close the stores three nights a week. J. D. Boileau, president of the Grocers' Section, also spoke in opposition to it. Another speaker said that the smaller stores were in spite of obstacles holding their own. There was a night trade peculiar to Montreal and the small stores catered to it. Three hours were spent in discussion when an adjournment was called.

Give Correct Weight; No More, No Less

How Many Clerks Prevent Many Employers From Making Profits They Should From Carelessness in Weighing?—Honesty That Works Both Ways—In Interest of Clerks to Train Themselves—How it Works Ou in Measuring Sugar.

Clerks should remember that honesty is a two-handed sword, and that it cuts both ways.

Many clerks in grocery establishments, in their zeal to give full weight to customers, overdo it, thereby cheating their employers out of a certain amount of profit that rightly belongs to them.

Recently a merchant, in speaking of this side of the question, said: "From his first day in the store the clerk has had the fact impressed upon him that honesty is necessary. When he enters a store as clerk he is generally filled with the fear that he will short-weight customers, and in his determination to guard against it, he generally gives the customers more than rightly belongs to them. I have watched a great many clerks and I have found that in weighing, in the great majority of cases, the customers are given the benefit. That is, if the clerk is in any doubt as to whether the exact weight is in the parcel, he will generally add a little so that there will be no chance of his cheating. He does not remember that it is just as bad to cheat the employer. I believe that over-weight is given in more cases than under-weight."

Weight Should be Correct.

It would be well for clerks to give consideration to the opinion expressed by this merchant, for he, no doubt, sounds the same note as others who, at times, feel themselves aggrieved. Most clerks wish both to give honest weight and also to make as large a profit as possible for their employer, but, as expressed by this merchant, they generally give the customer the benefit of the doubt.

Now, clerks may argue that it is in the best interests of the merchant to give the customer the benefit of the doubt, but at present, according to general opinion, there is more over-weight than under-weight given in grocery stores. But what the merchant wants, the customer wants, and what the clerk should aim at is to give exact weight, no more and no less. It is possible within a close fraction and is what the clerk should attempt.

"I may be putting it a little high, but I believe that five out of six clerks in grocery stores do not weigh correctly," said a broker who at one time was in the retail grocery business and who, the majority of cases, although lack of therefore, takes a great deal of interest in it. "Carelessness is the reason in proper training may be responsible to a certain extent. But the chief aim of the clerk seems to be to complete the process. They do not safeguard their employer's profit by giving correct weight and no more. They seem to think that as long as they give the customer good weight that it is all right."

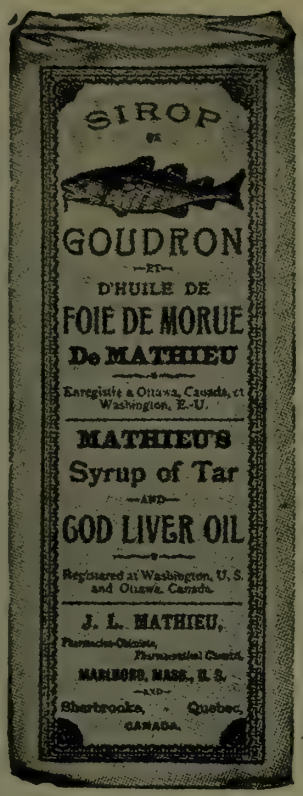
Practice to Eliminate.

"It would be to the interest of clerks," he continued, "to train themselves in the correct principles of weighing. They should remember that every time the scale swings past the correct weight, they are making themselves so much less valuable to their employers. Practice would do a great deal to eliminate the giving of over-weight by clerks."

As this broker states, practice would do a great deal to eliminate the giving of over-weight. Take sugar, for instance. Does the clerk know just about how full a bag should be for a certain amount? This may be gained by giving strict attention while weighing. Attention is also necessary for another reason. You are weighing sugar. You know that you have nearly the correct amount. Therefore, do not put it into the bag by the scoopful. Watch the scale and as it comes near to a balance let the sugar run from the scoop more slowly and give the scales your attention, so that as soon as the scale is exactly balanced you will be able to stop the flow of sugar. The trouble with many clerks is that they do not give thorough attention. Before they know it, there is just a little too much. If they take any out they think that the customer might apply the term "close" or "stingy" to them. Accordingly, the extra amount is given to the customer, and so much more is taken off the profit of the store.

Over-weight Mounts up.

If we consider, just as an example to show how this over-weight amounts up, that 200 weighs are made in a store in a day, and that the average price of the goods sold is 16 cents per pound. The clerk gives ½ ounce over-weight each time, which in itself does not seem very much. However, it amounts to 100 ounces in a day, which, as an average of 16 cents, amounts to $1 per day. Thus in a year, by that amount of over-weight, the profits would be cut down by over $300.



Therefore, the clerk who considers the question will see what that small amount totals up to in a year, and so as to make himself more valuable to his employer, he will endeavor at all times to give correct weight, no more and no less.

ALWAYS RIGHT. SUN PASTE

Stove Polish is just right every time you sell it, and the boxes are always filled full. You have no complaints coming after you pass it over your counter. Why not make friends for yourself as well as for us by selling the stove polish which always pleases the housekeeper? That's SUN PASTE. Just push it and see them come back for more.

MORSE BROS., Props. - Canton, Mass., U.S.A.

2 IN 1
Shoe Polish

The Polish OF Preference

It pays to handle a quick-selling line like "2 in 1" Shoe Polish—a line that's always in demand and that always gives satisfaction.

"2 in 1" is positively waterproof, preserves and softens the leather, does not clog or stain the clothes, and is free from acid or turpentine.

Get a generous supply and display it well.

Personal Salesmanship of the Dealer is Necessary If the Manufacturer is to Get the Best Results

A manufacturer may advertise a table delicacy extensively to the general public; and every dealer may stock that article; yet every dealer would have dozens of customers who would not ask for it; they would possibly consider it an extravagance —something beyond their means.

In order to get the widest distribution of his product the manufacturer must bring the salesmanship of the dealer to bear on the situation. This alone can overcome any prejudice in the mind of the consumer.

This Personal Salesmanship of the dealer has practically alone built up the business of many manufacturers. It is the most powerful agent the manufacturer can enlist in his service.

The dealer's attention can best be secured through the business paper he reads every week. That is why advertising in The Canadian Grocer has proved a splendid business-builder for so many large firms.

Peas that Please the Palate!

Instead of selling Foreign Peas to supply the demand for finer grade peas, sell our Extra Fine Sifted (Petit Pois), Sweet Wrinkle Extra Sifted, and Early June Sifted.

Stock a line that will help increase the demand for the higher grade peas, that will give your customers greater satisfaction, and will yield you a better profit.

The vivid green color which you notice in Foreign Peas is produced by a chemical that is not only injurious to health, but kills the true flavor of the peas.

We never use any chemicals or colorings in the preparation of our products; these peas are the very choicest of the pack, fine, tender and of exquisite flavor.

You can materially increase your profits and reputation by pushing the sale of Dominion Canners' Brands of Peas of Finer Quality.

THE NAME "FAIRBANK" MEANS SOAP SURETY

is so well known, due to our extensive and persistent advertising, that any grocer can sell it, and it's so well liked on account of its cleansing power---so sure to give satisfaction, that it pays to sell it as often as possible.

It will pay you to push GOLD DUST, because you can sell more of it, and sell it with less effort, than any other washing powder, and because it will please your customers, which means holding them.

THE N. K. FAIRBANK COMPANY, MONTREAL

"ENTERPRISE"

MR. Up-to-date Grocer, your ambition is (or should be) to install an Electric Coffee Mill.

When you do—get a good one, as good as you can afford.

If it's an "Enterprise" it will be backed by the oldest and largest manufacturers of these goods in the country.

Note the style illustrated. The grinders are connected direct to the shaft of the motor. No belts or gears to litter up the store and make it look like a machine shop and fewer parts to wear.

Perhaps you'd be glad to look over a catalog of electrically driven Coffee Mills, Meat Choppers, etc. Glad to send it.

¶ The difference between the Vinegar we make and the others you're sometimes asked to buy lies in the brewing. An honest attempt to produce a good article is not always awarded with success, but—

¶ Since 1849 we have been renowned for the excellence of our plant and the perfection of our product.

¶ During that time our trade has developed and extended to all parts of the world.

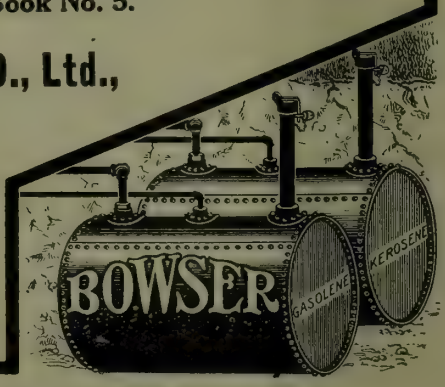
Think of the convenience of simply hanging the customer's can on the pump and turning a crank to get a gallon of oil.

No Funnels—No Measures---No Waste---No Dirt. Saves Space, Time and Money.

You don't touch the oil. The pump transfers it from the storage tank into the customer's can; measures it, counts the gallons and shows the money charge.

It changes the oil business from a drudgery to a clean, pleasant and profitable trade.



The variety of sizes and styles will enable you to suit yourself in price. Every outfit the best at its price.

THE STANDARD BROKERAGE CO.

Established 1903 Vancouver, B.C.

Year after year the output of "SALADA" grows. Grocers from coast to coast are finding out that "SALADA" is a sure trade-winner. Step by step thousands are building a large and profitable tea business with "SALADA" as the foundation. During the first six months of 1911 we had an increase of over 500,000 lbs., so that now the sale equals 48 packets for every minute of our lives. Make "SALADA" the leader in your tea department and watch the results.

There is no mistaking the superiority of a tea that in twenty years has built up a market in almost every part of the North American continent, that has had the most enormous increases in sales, year after year, until over 23,000,000 packages was the immense output for 1910. This continental endorsement of "SALADA" Tea proves conclusively our right in offering it to the public as the most delicious and healthful tea in the world.

Are you fully sharing in this profitable distribution of "SALADA?" The tea that quality made famous.

How to Increase Efficiency of Clerks

A Question Made to Cover Entire Grocery Business — Merchant's Moral Responsibilities for Young Men Placed Beneath Him—Changed Conditions From Those of Good Old Days—Rudiments of Weighing—The Wonder as to Learning at all.

*By Henry Johnson, Jr.

There were certainly some searching questions propounded at the Grocers' Convention to which I have referred in recent articles; surely some of those grocers are thinkers, or such questions could not be couched in such concentrated, concrete form. Note this next one:

"How can we Increase the Efficiency of our Salespeople?"

Does that not open an imposing array of possibilities in the way of analytical discussion? Why, come to think of it, this question can readily be made to cover our entire business. For see: To teach we must learn. Further, to teach IS to learn; for the teacher ever learns more than he teaches and learns best by the very act of teaching. The very act of grasping a question with the purpose of finding the solution is always so stimulating to thought that we cannot formulate a single solution of even the simplest, most elementary question without increasing our own mental breadth and thus adding to our own mental stature.

Our Need and Duty.

This is a particularly deep question, too, and ramifies into many, many things. Not only our need for better help, but our duty to educate our help; our moral responsibility for those younger than ourselves who are placed under our tutilage. And in just the measure that we recognize that responsibility and fulfil this duty shall we enjoy the services of better helpers.

The changes which have come about in the grocery business during the past 30 years have really been rather hard on the young fellows. Back in the 80's there was no sort of argument about it; a boy simply had to be taught some things before he could be turned loose in a store. It was obvious even to him that he had something serious to learn—something he often cannot see in these present days of packages, paper bags, and slovenly wrappings: You of a generation ago will know what I mean. You remember how we had to start the boy at putting up sugar in a flat paper; then graduating him to rice, and beans, green coffee and crackers. Bless you! he had some respect for his calling those days. He could see at once, or if he could not, a single trial at the wrapping business showed him that he had something very definite to learn.

The Good Old Days.

Now that those "good old times" (Note quotation marks, please) have gone, what are we doing to give the required education to our helpers? They must be educated just the same; for it will not do for us to complain of imperfect service if we have no system for developing the faculties of our boys and girls. If we look about us to-day, we, shall find that, whereas the old education called for a good deal of leading and showing on the part of the proprietor, the present system is made up mostly of "don'ts." We put a green clerk onto the job, probably setting him to some task under another who has had little more technical training than himself, and from that time onwards it is apt to be: "Don't do that, Henry," at nearly every turn, until it becomes a matter of wonder that the boys develop at all. What is needed here is a system of the same old rudimentary drilling in the old tasks, just to instill into the minds of our boys the truth that the grocery business is something to be learned, not a matter that can be known by intuition; something so important that even teaching will not cover the ground, but that much must be absorbed sub-consciously, through long practice and leading along right ways. Every new clerk should be taught to wrap packages just as our fathers wrapped them.

Weighing Correctly.

Next, take the task of weighing correctly — the most important single thing about our business. It matters not what kind of scales you use, whether computing, even balance, automatic or other, it is the "man behind the gun" who counts for right weighing or the reverse. Thus, leading, careful, time-taking teaching must be given. It will not do simply to pick up a package and finding it overweight, say; "John, this is too heavy; you must not do that." No, do not blame the boy for that. Blame yourself for failing to teach him to begin with. All you have to do is watch the half-baked, slovenly, untrained way in which a clerk over-fills a package; digs out parts of the contents; fills again; again digs out; finally dribbles the goods in with exasperating, time-wasting slowness, to see the need for some systematic training in this matter of weighing. And mark you, it is not all in the clerks, either. I see many grocers do this same thing themselves, which, however, mostly goes to show that they, too, are of a recent generation and had little real apprenticeship in this business of beingg a grocer.

Rudiments of Weighing.

The first thing to learn about weighing is the size of bag it is proper to use for a given article: No. 2 for a pound of coffee, or Jap tea—also that the No. 2 bag is a quart bag and will hold a quart of beans; also that this multiple of 2 holds good all through the measured foods, such as No. 8 for a half peck, etc. The next step is to learn to fill the package slack, that is, allow for MORE to be put into it in the weighing—never so fill it that any has to be dug out of it. Next, place the package on the scale and, while continuing to fill it from the scoop in the RIGHT hand, keep one finger of the LEFT hand on the scale scoop or platform, to get the "feel" of how nearly the correct weight is being put into the package. This faculty to "feel" the weight is workmanlike, greatly time-saving, makes for the utmost accuracy, looks businesslike and will develop the utmost speed in anybody. If after a fair show at this kind of training the young man does not respond, then you have done your part and can justly feel that "it is not in him" and he can be eliminated, as he should be, if not fitted for the work. This is fair to both parties and will tend to "increase the efficiency of your help" both through the agency of development and elimination; whereas now your only course would seem to be elimination.

The Cost and Price Book.

Next, keep a cost and price book; then have a sample can or package of all goods provided with a paster which reads: "Sample; not to be sold." On that paster mark the price each, per dozen, and per case. The new clerk is to be shown around carefully, after he has passed through his weighing and wrapping apprenticeship, to acquaint him with the general arrangement of the stock—and right here will be seen the need for the systematic departmentizing of your stock if you are not now handling things that way. Then he should be shown the price book, wherein the selling prices may be in plain figures, should be so, in fact, and the cost can be in cypher. It should be carefully impressed on him that everything has its place and must be replaced there EVERY TIME it is used; this is to be imperative and not to be excused by the statement that he was "busy" or anything like that. After which, he may be turned loose—and then carefully watched and guided with helpful hints—told what to DO, not what NOT to do.

Which gets us back to about where we started: That to have good clerks, we must first have good grocers. That to teach a thing, we must first know it. That, in short, the Efficiency of our Salespeople (a stilted phrase, borrowed from the department store, which does not make a hit with me) is strictly "up to us," and if we fail to have them, the fault is really chargeable to our own personal account and not to that of the presently rather neglected clerk

O, by the way; by all means have the boys read your trade paper—every bit of it, and talk with them about it.

To Purchase Sugar at an Open Price

Suggestion Advanced by Wholesaler Claims That It Would Eliminate All Conditions Tending Towards Demoralization of This Trade—Refiner Would Sell the Wholesaler, and He the Retailer, at Price Prevailing Time Order Was Booked.

Now that sugar has developed an unmistakable inclination to soar to higher price levels, it will probably be an opportune time for the trade to discuss the distribution of the staple, with a view of hitting upon the best method of purchasing by all the parties to the transaction.

From time to time men have come forward with suggestions calculated to work for a bettering of conditions, but none of these have had much effect in the handling of the product. Now it is a wholesaler, Hugh Blain, of Eby-Blain, Toronto, who puts forward a method, which, if not comprehensive enough to meet the wishes of all Canadian merchants, is at least worthy of serious consideration by manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers alike throughout the whole Dominion. Mr. Blain barely outlined this proposed method at the recent meeting of the Ontario Wholesale Grocers' Guild, held in Toronto, during a discussion on the best methods to be adopted in the handling of the staple, but, although his proposition was endorsed by some of the leaders in Guild work, it was not discussed at any length.

Briefly, Mr. Blain would have all sugar, bought by all parties through to the retailer, on an open basis. That is to say, he would have a wholesaler place an order with a refiner, for a certain quantity; the refiner would accept the order and charge the wholesaler the rate per hundred pounds at which the product was quoted at the time the order was received. Then, to project the example still further, the traveler representing the wholesaler would go out on his route and accept orders for sugar, on a precisely similar basis. The wholesaler would accept the order from his man and enter it upon the books, charging the retailer the price at which sugar wholesaled at the moment the order reached his office.

Speaking in support of his suggestion, Mr. Blain pointed out that he felt sure this "open system" would have the effect of eliminating all possibility of friction between wholesaler and retailer, arising out of fluctuation of prices, and the competition of wholesalers for the business. Conditions at present, he said, were not calculated to work for any great amount of harmony because there was too much selling of sugar to-morrow at to-day's prices. Sugar was being sold at prices other than those actually prevailing at the moment of sale, and this state of affairs was not growing any better. It was a pity, he said, because the trade was becoming more or less demoralized. He felt certain that the "open price" system would work for the changing of all this. There would still be the advantage to the wholesaler from careful buying; likewise the benefit to the retailer because of this careful purchasing by the wholesaler from whom he usually obtained his supply of sugar. The traveler would not have to do any hedging; he would simply book the order and transmit it on to his house where the prevailing quotation would be set against it. The wholesaler who proved to be possessed of good judgment would then be in a fair way of securing even more business than was the case when the "price" method was in vogue

At the Guild meeting already mentioned there was not any unanimous expression of opinion on the proposal. The tone of what discussion there was, however, was friendly, and it is probable that it was the simplicity and magnitude of the scheme, that prevented action by resolution at that time. But, apart from any action which wholesalers, individually or collectively, may take it would seem to be an opportune time for dealers throughout the country to turn the matter over in their minds. The scheme is at least worthy of careful consideration by retailers even if the only objects gained consist in familiarity with the subject when it does become, later on, a really important issue.

Leaving goods on the counter after the customer to whom they had been shown, has left the establishment is not calculated to convince the next arrival of your neatness and care of goods.

Phenomenal Rise in the Price of Sugar

Increase Reported on Tuesday Brought Total Advance for Year up to Ninety-Five Cents—In Month of July Alone, the Rise Amounted to Fifty-Five Cents on the Hundred—Advances Credited to Damage to Growing Beet Crops in Europe, and to Strong Raw Markets Generally.

The month of July saw the most excitement in sugar known in many a year. On July 1 the grocer could purchase this article at $4.60 per hundred-weight on a Montreal basis, but the closing days of the month saw it selling at $5.15, a total upward movement of 55 cents, an extraordinary advance in so short a time. The given reason for the sharp upward trend was the unfavorable condition of the growing beet crop in Europe. The weather throughout the growing districts had been extremely warm and rain was sorely needed and all reports of late from Europe have read: "Weather unfavorable for the growing crop." The leaf surface, on account of the hot and dry weather, is especially small, which is an unfavorable condition at this stage of growth, as, from now on, the sugar in the beet is gathered by the leaves and the larger the leaf area or surface the larger the sugar produced, as a rule.

Looking Backward.

If we look back over the past seven months' doings in the sugar market, we find some interesting features. From the lowest point of the year there has been a steady upward movement amounting to 95 cents, the market never wavering or showing any signs of weakness during that whole period. On January 24th, raws in New York dropped to $3.42, which proved to be the lowest point of the year. On February 1st refined was at the lowest point, namely $4.20, on a Montreal basis. At this time refiners were holding off in their purchases of raws, hoping for a lower market. While they were waiting, there came reports that the Cuban crop would be 200,000 tons short. At once there was a flurry. Speculators began to get busy but still refiners held off, hoping that things would take a turn and they would still be able to purchase at the low price. But this did not happen, for the raw market shot up fully 20 points, and refined advanced 10 cents, the beginning of the upward trend.

Then began a period of steadiness, with upward movements of 10 cents in refined on Mar. 3, and 24th and on Apr. 21st, as the shortness of the Cuban crop became more apparent, and as the European market remained ahead comparatively of the Cuban quotations. Final estimates of the Cuban crop put it at 1,527,000 tons as compared with 1,804,000, in 1910. It was evident that this shortage would have to be filled by shipments from elsewhere, either Europe or Java, and both of these were a considerable margin ahead of Cuban. For this reason those in touch with the market expected a strong sugar market during the preserving season, with the movement in prices depending on the demand during that period.

The Bolt from Europe.

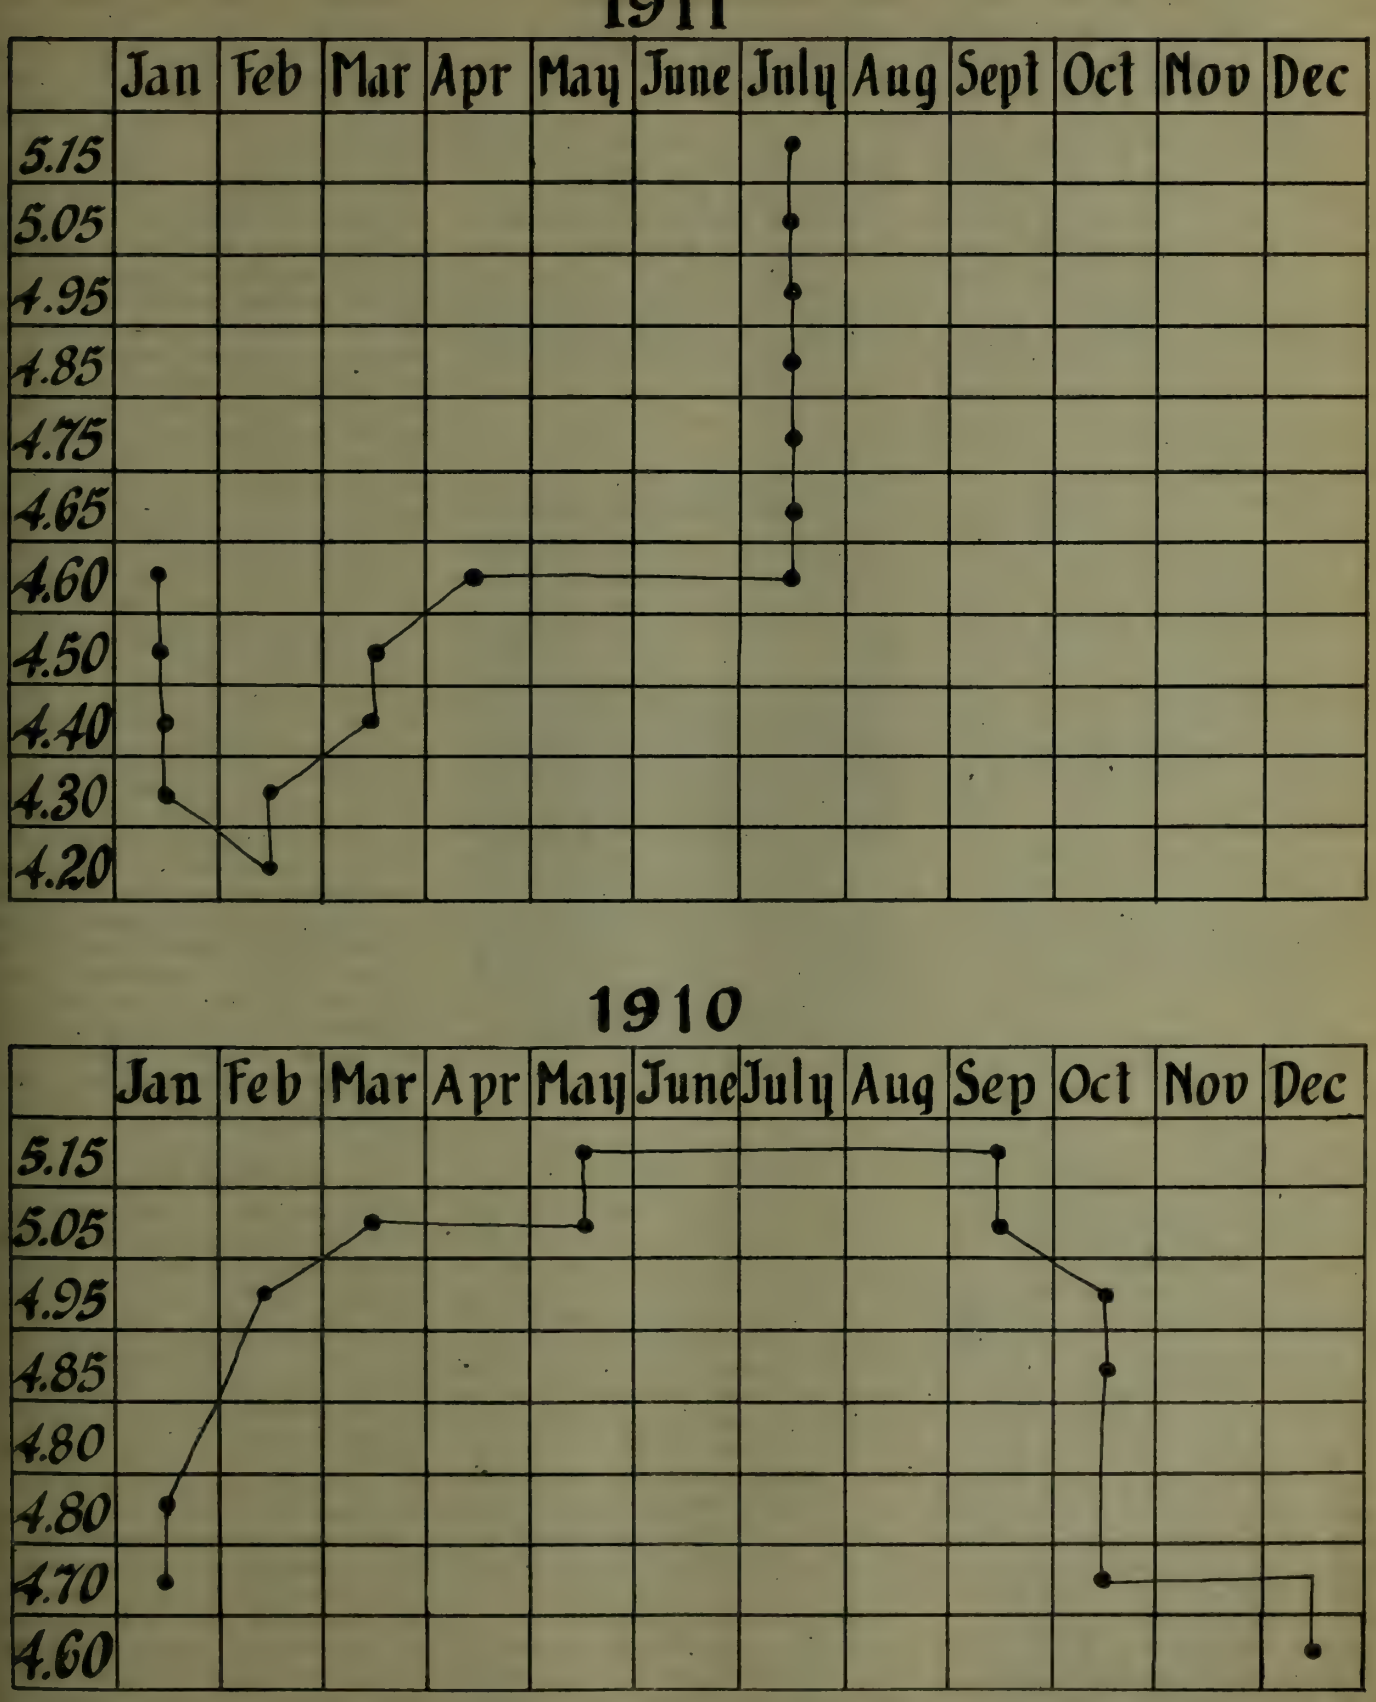
It was at this stage that the unexpected happened. On June 30th, quotations from Europe were 11s. The first week in July this price began to gradually expand, while the European markets gave little reason for the advance. Within a week prices had increased a full shilling and reports began to come out that the beet crop in Europe had been damaged by warm weather. Of course the speculators in New York, knowing that refiners were short of supplies, took advantage of the situation and the price on Cuban raws began to move upward also. Reports from the beet districts continued unfavorable, beet prices moved upward, with Java and Cuban following. As raws ascended refined prices were also marked up. Following a 5c advance at the first of the month, refined went up 10 cents on 11th, 20th, 24th, 27th and 31st, making a total upward movement for the month of 55c, an extraordinary advance indeed.

"The market is still strong," said a jobber in touch with the situation, "with European quotations holding firm. During July the total upward movement in beet quotations was equivalent to 60 cents per hundred-weight, while Cuba has been acting in a similar manner."

"Still," he said, "the market is a speculative one. There has, without doubt, been considerable damage done to the European beet crop but the extent of the damage cannot be exactly estimated.

With Europe continuing to rise there can seemingly be no relief to high prices until the domestic sugar crop comes in the market in October. Prices will be regulated by the consumption which is ruled in turn by the supply of fruits available for preserving on the one hand, and also by the progress of the European beet crop."

No One to Predict.



"No one would pretend to predict what course the market will take after October 1st. The dry spell in Europe during the past month is said to equal that of 1904 when the crop was severely damaged. Now on Oct. 1st of that year, refined in barrels at Montreal was $4.65, and by Feb. 1st it had advanced to $5.75. I would not want to say that the market will advance similarly this year nor would I say it will not. At the present it is pretty much a gamble and I do not think anyone would pretend to predict more than 8 weeks ahead just now. But, it looks," he concluded, "as if the market would hold till some time between Sept. 15 and Oct. 1st, and probably after that if conditions warrant."

As stated already the total upward movement in refined prices since the lowest point for the year has been 95 cents, and quotations are now equal to those of one year ago. In 1910, prices held firmly but without any great advances until September when on account of the slackness of demand, a decline of 10 cents was recorded. With the arrival of the new beet crop in October, prices declined a total of 35 cents with a further lowering of 10 cents on the 1st of December. Looking back over previous years, it is found that prices have generally held pretty firm during the preserving season. The fluctuations during the past two years are shown below:

Practical Methods in Retail Stores

A Chatham Man Who Uses His Delivery Man to Secure Orders —Maritime Merchant Who Sells Gasolene to Good Advantage —The Drawing Power of Goods—Lethbridge Man Finds Tobacco a Good Side Line—Appearance as a Factor.

Deliveryman Takes Orders.

Chatham, Ont., Aug. 3.—"I don't know whether many grocers make use of this expedient, but latterly my deliveryman has been bringing me back quite a few additional orders from his trips," remarked a grocer recently.

"I find that very often a customer will forget some article when ordering, and remember it only when the goods arrive. Usually the customer will put off buying till another time, unless the article is urgently needed.

"My driver now is instructed, in making a delivery, to state to the customer that if she has any additional orders, he will be pleased to take them back with him to the store and see that they are promptly filled. He mentions the fact very deferentially and politely—those are his express instructions—and I find that even where there aren't any return orders, his thoughtfulness is appreciated. There are, of course, orders now and then, sometimes fairly large; and all this business counts up.

"It is coming to be recognized that my deliveryman is an ordertaker as well, and I find that occasionally customers will hail him as he passes and tell him to bring them something on his next trip. It might be difficult to do this with some deliverymen, who aren't well posted in regard to the stock, and, in fact, know precious little in regard to prices and quality, but I am fortunate in possessing a man who knows something of these things and is in a position to talk business."

Selling Gasolene.

St. John, N.B., July 6.—What has been found to be a profitable and interesting side-line for a few grocers in the northern section of the city is the sale of gasolene. It may be argued that a retail grocery store is hardly the place to find gasolene if there are hardware stores in the neighborhood, but this is not the case with at least three grocery shops of recognized standing in North End, for the dealers have during the last year or two cleaned up a tidy sum each summer through the sale of gasolene.

It has been found that it is not difficult to store, as a very large quantity is not kept constantly on hand, and what is in stock is kept in an out-of-the-way place and divided in small lots of from five to twenty gallons. It is stored in tins or large cans and sold the same way in the same tins, usually, as they are later returned by the customer. The reason for his delving extensively in the sale of gasolene was said by one of the grocers to be the fact that there were a large number of motor boat owners in the vicinity, and many of them were regular grocery customers of his. They needed to be supplied with gasolene quite frequently, and he might as well "make a dollar on it as any other." And he has.

Drawing Power of Goods.

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 3.—A local grocer proves that a reputation for the best goods is a thing that brings trade to the merchant. "During the summer," he says, "the housewife has great difficulty in securing eggs, the quality of which she can depend on. Several years ago, I recognized this fact and I then made special arrangements for supplies of eggs which I was sure were decidedly fresh. Of course, in order to make sure of this fact, I have to pay a little more than for the ordinary run of eggs but I find that my customers are willing to pay more for eggs, which they can depend on. This egg specialty brings me considerable extra trade, many customers coming to my store for their egg supply and to them I am generally able to sell some other lines."

Tobacco Side Line.

Lethbridge, Alta., Aug. 3.—A local dealer believes that tobacco is a good side line for the grocer to carry because it not only gives a profit itself but helps to develop the business in general. At first he thought tobacco would be a poor line for him because few men visited his store, but he has now found it a good manner of drawing men to the store where they often are interested in other lines. What started this grocer thinking of tobacco was the fact that many people in the vicinity purchased their tobacco at the drug store and he could see no reason why they should not patronize the grocery just as well.

He did not go into it extensively at first, but still he put in a large enough assortment to please the majority of the users of the weed. For a while he used his windows until he got the customers coming, and he then fixed up a display case near the door where a good sized tobacco business is transacted.

Appearance a Factor.

New Westminster, B.C., Aug. 3.—"Appearances count for a great deal in business," said a local grocer recently. "And the merchant should see that everything about the store is so "spick and span" as to leave a good impression upon customers. The store that appears busy appeals to customers and for this reason, merchants should keep their clerks busy at some work. In the sale of food, such as the grocer is engaged in a cleanly appearance of everything is an important factor in selling goods. From the appearance of the store front and window, a customer generally forms their opinion of the interior and the goods sold there and the merchant should attempt to impress probable customers favorably. The appearances of clerks, wagons, horses, display, bill heads, etc., all have their place in moulding an impression of the store, favorable or otherwise upon the customer.

Keeps Lists of Accounts.

Toronto, Ont., Aug. 3.—W. C. Miller, a grocer on Yonge street has a method whereby he has before him at all times the names of all customers with overdue accounts and their amount. Each month he goes over his books and compiles a list of all customers who owe him, with the amount of the account. As the customers pay him, their names are marked off the list, so that he can at any time of the month at a glance see just what customers have not paid their bills.

Next month he makes another list but all who owe and have stopped dealing, he keeps in a separate column so that he can at any moment find out just what his bad debts amount to.

The Counter Check Book.

Montreal, Aug. 3.—The counter check book proved its value to a Montreal grocer enabling him to stop a leakage that had been draining his resources for some time. The cashier in going over the list of sales for the day once noticed that a slip was missing. This was an easy matter for each page in the check book is numbered and the general rule is to arrange them in numerical order after they have completed their first usefulness in the office.

Not long afterwards another slip was found missing and in looking over the duplicates it was found that they represented sales to this particular woman. It was afterwards discovered that when she received her slip from the office she went to the cashier and merely asked her to change a dollar or some other such thing in order to create the impression in the store that she had paid her bill. This woman, too, had what is known as plenty of money.

The Montreal Grocers Take a Day Off

Enjoyed Splendid Weather and Refreshing Air and a Boat Trip to the New King Edward Park Which had Been Selected as the Rendezvous—Banquet Proves Most Enjoyable — Foot and Horse Racing—The Speakers.

Staff Correspondence.

Montreal, Aug. 3.—The Montreal grocers and their employes no doubt felt the effects of the recent heat wave more than those whose occupations kept them outdoor, and who had not to keep hustling from early morning till late at night. It was a great relief for them to get off to King Edward Park for a nice cool breezy water trip and a big day's enjoyment at this popular amusement resort.

Words of praise were plentiful for M. J. D. Boileau, the president, and M. O. Fournier, secretary of the Association, because the excursionists realized that these two energetic workers and other members of the committee had succeeded in arranging a splendid programme, and making everything meet with the entire approval of all present.

The Races.

The Montreal grocers have always proven pretty good runners and there seems to be a great deal of rivalry between certain members of the Association in this respect. The crowd was no sooner on the island than a move was made towards an open stretch decided on as the race course. Perhaps the 220 yards was not so smooth as desired, yet the competitors seemed to come over it pretty well.

The man with the megaphone was J. T. Lussier, of course. He had also a bell with him this year. He found both necessary to get the entrants to the starting post, and when he found it necessary to summon anyone from a distance his voice seemed to sound all over the island. Yet he needed no sugar lumps or currants. No even chiclets.

J. A. Phaneuf looks as if he will figure in next year's Olympic festival. He is possessed of a great stride and does not break any blades of grass as he travels. He runs "as smoothly as the gentle stream," but he assures the Association that if he does decide to leave the grocery business he will always carry the colors of the R.M.A.

M. J. Mesnard is another crack runner and had a ding-dong battle with J. A. Phaneuf. In the first contest they ran a dead heat for the benefit of the onlookers and then went back to the post to show that they were only getting up steam.

The Fair Sex.

Ah, oui, the ladies were there, and didn't Mr. Boileau look after them ! The ladies' event was as big a success as ever, and if the first prize had been a man with a fortune the keeness evinced could not have been any greater. King Edward Park is not blessed with any too many restaurants and as the horse racing attracted quite a number of the grocers, it was decided not to hold the banquet till 7 o'clock. The idea met with the approval of the majority but there were some who felt that even a plate of soup would have kept things going till the fatted calf was killed.

"The Hour is at Hand."

This announcement from the ubiquitous A. Laniel gathered the crowd and soon the gaily decorated dining hall was filled to its capacity by the happiest looking lot that have ever set there. A gentle rap on the table from the fairy fingers of Monsieur Boileau secured silence and after giving all present a hearty welcome he did not waste much time in introducing the genial Mon. Armand Chaput.

This gentleman was no stranger but rather one of the most popular there, as was evidenced by the round of applause when he got up to speak and let his dinner get cold. He assured the retailers that any deputation to the Chamber of Commerce, Montreal, would be received in a brotherly spirit. Although the early closing question was troubling quite a lot, as they felt like demanding that the park be kept open till a very late hour, yet Mr. Chaput could not refrain from talking on the early closing laws as connected with the grocery stores. His sentiments were endorsed by all present.

Other Speakers.

M. Nap. Sequin, J. A. Beaudry, Jos. Ethier, J. D. Boileau, R. LeBlanc and M. T. Woods.

At the table of honor were J. D. Boileau, J. Ethier, N. Sequin, J. A. Beaudry, Armand Chaput, A. Laurendeau, J. Moquin, L. Moquin, D. Payette, J. G. Filion, J. A. Mesnard and others.

After the banquet, dancing and music took place and would have been kept up till a later hour has not the "Early closing laws" been in effect.

Grocerlets.

Who kept the dinner late? What were J. D. Boileau, J. Phaneuf and a few others doing in the banquet hall at 2.30?

Little Laniel kept a close eye on the banquet hall. He wanted to know if the freight boat had dropped their supplies overboard.

Did you see President Boileau taking care of the little ones—we mean the ladies? Gee! but he had a fatherly look!

Some of the grocers are being sought by the "bookies." Some one drew from them wholesale. Who made the $40? Yes, the races paid pretty well for some. Just some, remember.

The grocery business has often been termed the "wheel of fortune." Perhaps this has something to do with the fact that a number of the retailers played the wheel at the side show. But they were stung!

Where did J. A. Phaneuf get to? A search party went through the groves, but no trace. He was found O.K. in the store next day. No reward was offered.

M. Dufresne wanted to know why there was nothing served at the scheduled lunch hour.

SUGAR ADVANCES AGAIN.

Sugar has advanced another twenty cents since the last price list was published in The Grocer, and there seems to be a general opinion that the end of the upward movement has not yet been reached.

Two weeks ago, when the news was sent out to a waiting world that the London, England, market had taken fright because of rumors and reports of damage to European beet crops there was a feeling that later on the news would be discounted by other word that the injury was less than had been feared on the spur of the moment. But this philosophical way of looking at things has not been productive of much contentment of mind during the subsequent period. There surely has been ample time and opportunity for those who so desired, to find out for their own satisfaction just how the crops stood. But, whatever the result of these investigations, the rise in values has not been checked; rather has it gone on with greater speed than before.

Even now the reports that have come from Europe regarding the damage to growing beet crops—have been little more than vague. No definite understanding has been arrived at as to the actual hurt. The fact that has been swinging the sugar pendulum upward on this continent seems to be the surety that there is going to be a big shortage in fall supplies anyway, because of the failure of Cuba to measure up to requirements. The damage to the European supply is accepted, on top of that, as sure to aggravate the trouble.

The crops on the other side of the Atlantic may not be damaged as much as has been anticipated, and the whole bubble may be pricked later on; but the real strength of the position of the holders of raw sugar on this side is based upon the shortage existing here now. The sugar world will probably, therefor, be on the anxious seat during the next few weeks.

SERVE CUSTOMERS PROMPTLY.

It is human nature to grow impatient when a person is forced to wait, and especially when it is some one else's fault.

You have seen the man who is waiting for a train. His surroundings may be beautiful, and of a kind which under ordinary circumstances he would enjoy, but just because he is forced to wait, instead of enjoying it he becomes impatient, and has all kinds of nasty things to say about the railroad and the service which it gives.

The merchant and clerk will see that this is applicable to the grocery business. The customer who is forced to wait is apt to be put in a bad buying mood and also to form unfavorable opinions regarding the store and its service. Therefore serve your customers as promptly as possible before these thoughts which are apt to affect the customer's buying forms in their mind.

CONDITION OF TOMATO CROP.

Reports to The Canadian Grocer during the past week would seem to indicate that the cool weather has kept back the growth of tomatoes in Prince Edward Island county.

This does not mean that the crop in that district of big tomato yields is to be a failure, for if warmer weather but come the total output should be well up to the average. The sun has been beating down with increased strength upon the province of Ontario generally during the week which is just closing, and it is quite probable that the vines will have taken on added strength because of that fact. It is sincerely to be hoped that this is so.

In the same district, the reports continue, peas and berries are short. No figures are as yet available to show the probable gatherings.

A correspondent in Nova Scotia sends word that canned peas and beans will probably go to the trade there at one dollar per dozen. The Maritime wholesalers, he declares, fear a considerable shortage and are anticipating higher prices.

The intense heat of the early days of July worked havoc with the berry crops, and the days of chill following one another towards the close of the same month spelled depreciation for the vine crops, which thrive in light soils, and which are absolutely dependent upon heat. It would almost seem as if the weather had been arranged with a special view to the discomfiture of the fruit and vegetable growers.

THE CANNED GOODS DEMAND.

Because of the shortage of supplies in small field fruits, it is altogether probable that the housewives of the nation will start the winter with but sparsely stocked preserved fruit shelves. This will, or, at least should, be, particularly the case with raspberries and strawberries. Both these berries, usually the source of fruit supply upon which much dependence is placed, practically failed, and what did go on the retail stands for sale was at such a high price that buying in quantities for "putting down" was out of the question except for the well-to-do. Peaches and plums are now relied upon in most quarters to make up the deficiency.

All this means that the retail grocer will supply the households of Canada with the bulk of the jams used during the coming winter season. It spells opportunity for him, and he should lay his plans now for an extensive business in these lines of canned goods. The products being produced at the canneries of Canada are steadily creeping into public favor, and the stocks put away by the busy housewife is reducing automatically as the years slip by. This may prove to be a critical year. The stocks sold from the shelves of the grocery store will be tried as by fire, and if the verdict is satisfactory there will be a much greater demand for canned goods, in all lines, during the year following than will even be the case this year. The dealers should not overlook these facts.

FRUIT DAMAGED BY STORM.

There appears to be a relentless nemesis pursuing the Canadian apple crop, the Ontario part of it particularly. Last year there was a shortage in yield, as every dealer will remember, so very marked that the fruit was literally worth its weight in gold. There were not enough to go round. This season, when the country was resting under the impression that the output, while not as large as it might have been, would be considerably greater than last year, storms and hurricanes have ravaged the country and the prospective yield has been greatly reduced thereby.

Reports have been coming to The Canadian Grocer which go to show that the damage wrought during the blows of last week was greater than originally feared. It is now taken for granted that thirty per cent. of the Greening, half that percentage of Baldwins, and about forty per cent. of the fall varieties of apples in Ontario, as a whole, have been wiped out. Both Bartlett and Duchess pears have also suffered severely.

In Simcoe and in Brant close upon one-third of the expected yield of the green varieties of apples have been ruined. In Lambton county, the apples to the extent of almost twenty per cent. were blown off the trees, but in that county, according to report, the damage to plums and pears will not be so marked. The Niagara district also suffered but not to such an extent as other sections of the province already mentioned.

WESTERN CROP SITUATION.

Considerable difference of opinion is prevailing with regard to the condition of the growing crop at the present time. Reliable reports, however, indicate that owing to the continued mild weather that has been prevailing during the last week, the crop is not as far advanced by any means as it should be, in fact some experts state that it is two weeks late. During the last week, some good dry warm weather has been experienced over the various sections of Manitoba and Saskatchewan but it has not been general throughout the entire West.

Reports from Chicago that state that the north western crop is suffering from black rust are decided fabrications. No rust whatever has been reported so far by any of the Government experts throughout the Western provinces, and when the condition of the season is taken into consideration it is not likely that black rust will be very predominent this year.

Harvesting of barley started in Manitoba last week in various sections. The majority of this barley it is understood belongs to the variety known as Sixty Day. The later varieties are not ready yet, and are not likely to be ready for the next week.

To sum up the situation of the crop it might be well to say that the outlook is not as promising as it was two or three weeks ago. However, no severe damage has been done as yet, and should we get warm weather in August there is no doubt that a very good crop will be harvested this fall.

PLANNING FOR THE FAIR.

Only a month stands between the dealer and the fall fair, for with the close of the National Exposition at Toronto, the regular round of Agricultural Society exhibitions will commence.

One month is not too much time for the retailer to lay his plans to capture the trade of the visiting legions from the country districts. There is always a great deal to be done. The man across the street may already have thought the thing out thoroughly.

Windows can be arranged for, and a systematic scheme of interior decorations calculated to coax the reluctant dollars from the pockets of the farmer be worked out. Show cards can be lettered with an eye ahead to that period, and, generally speaking, a whole complete campaign, mapped out. There only remains a month to do all this.

WHEN WOMEN TALK.

What do the gossips say of your store? This is important, especially in the small town, where a large majority of your customers have an interchange of conversation. It is surprising how the good and bad points of the merchants in the town are brought out at assemblages of women such as sewing clubs, etc., or even in the conversation between a couple of women in the town. It is a means of advertising for your store, but it may be either good or bad. More often it is that the bad points are brought out and the good ones overlooked. Merchants should as far as lies in their power try to conduct their store in such a method that the gossips may find no faults which might serve as a subject of conversation.

THE FUTURE OF ORANGES.

Oranges have been stiffening in price during the past couple of weeks on all markets both in Canadian and in the United States. California late Valencias are the only kind now available, and on account of the high prices of fruits in general, and the somewhat shortness in the supply of many lines of Canadian fruits, a larger demand than usual for oranges for the season has been in evidence with a consequent advance in prices.

While some dealers have expressed the opinion that prices are liable to continue firm, there are others who argue that with the late fruits coming on the market that there will be a consequent slackening in the demand, while they also hint that shipments are now being curtailed which will work for a larger supply later on. Much, however, depends upon the supply of late fruits which will regulate largely the demand for oranges.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The fourth annual meeting of the merchants of Galt, which was held last week to Grimsby Beach, on Lake Ontario, will doubtless go down into history there, as the largest ever held. May next year's be bigger.

The sudden dissolution of Parliament rendered impossible any immediate change in the parcels post regulations. But Parliament will meet again in the fall of this year, and no matter which of the two great parties is returned to the treasury benches it is certain that this question is sure to receive some attention before the next session of the law makers of the nation comes to an end. Certainly the Honorable Rodolphe Lemieux, the Postmaster General, has definite views regarding this matter, and he intimated, in response to a query last month in the house that certain changes were in the making. Dealers cannot afford to allow this thing to slip their attention, not even for a moment.

Corn Syrups—Advanced.

Montreal, Aug. 3.—One of the features of the week has been further advances in refined sugar amounting to 20 cents, making the fifth advance within a month and placing local quotations at $5.15 per cwt. The market still shows considerable signs of strength, the raw sugar market under late damage reports from the beet growing district in Europe maintaining its strong position.

Wholesale dealers are asking $1.10 for any further orders for canned peas and even at that figure are not over desirous for orders, until they ascertain exactly how they are going to be situated in regard to supplies of this vegetable Jobbers are now wondering what price tomatoes will open at. One opinion was expressed that they would be as high as $1.17½, while it is generally believed that they will not be cheap at all.

Sugar.—In sympathy with the continued strong advices from American and European sources in the raw article and the further rises in prices for refined in New York the local market was strong and refiners advanced prices for all grades twenty cents per 100 lbs. since our last issue.

Syrup and Molasses.—Owing to the higher price for corn, syrups have been advanced this week. Case goods are up 15 cents per case, while bulk is advanced ½ cent. Molasses should be watched very carefully as owing to the increase in prices of sugar, it is not at all unlikely that figures for molasses may also appear larger. There is a fair trade passing in molasses, while syrup is in good demand.

Dried Fruits.—Currants and raisins seem to be the most in demand of dried fruits. Advices from Greece by cable indicate no material change in the crop situation there. There is a slight demand for dates and it is expected that the Persian crop will be about a fortnight later than last year. There is a shortage in the new crop of apricots and the tone of the market is strong.

Tea.—It was generally expected that the new laws governing the coloring of Japan teas would hurt the appearance, but the new arrivals prove this to be wrong. Recent reports show that rain has damaged the second leaf crop and it is strongly argued that the low grades will be of a rough nature. The market remains in a satisfactory condition, and there seems to be an all round increase with demand for Japans.

CANNED GOODS

Montreal.—Distributors of canned goods are giving little attention to offerings of anything in the line of vegetables save peas. These they want badly, but their difficulty is to find any seller able to accommodate them.

The prices of early vegetables are likely to show an increase owing to the scarcity caused by heat and lack of rain.

Toronto.—Canned peas, which opened last week at $1, are being held by all firms at $1.25 per dozen. As pointed out last week, those who purchase after prices were named will have to pay whatever prices are warranted by the existing conditions and wholesalers believe that peas are worth the price now asked, $1.25. It is also pointed out that retail dealers who get their supply at $1 are entitled to the extra profit and should sell as if they had bought at the ruling price of $1.

Some difference exists in regard to beans which also opened at $1. "Our price for any beans sold now," said one jobber, "is $1.25 per dozen. Although we don't know definitely what percentage we will get, they will at least be short, probably not more than peas." Other firms were found which were however willing to sell yet at $1, but nearly everyone conceded that strawberries were worth $2 per dozen.

Where buyers have placed orders for standard peas only, they will receive 35 to 40 per cent., and they will be given the privilege of taking 15 cents per case for the amount short of 60 per cent. of their orders or of taking the balance up to 63 per cent. in early June and sweet wrinkle, 13 to 18 per cent. in early June and 10 per cent. sweet wrinkle. Those who ordered a general assortment will receive 63 per cent., 35 to 40 per cent. standards, 13 to 18 per cent. early June and 10 per cent. sweet wrinkles. Of extra fine sifted peas 95 per cent. will be delivered. If it had not been for the dry hot weather there would have been an ample pack and as it is the pack is in excess of last season.

Canners will deliver 90 per cent of 2's spinach, 70 per cent. of gal. rhubarb, 80 per cent. of 3's rhubarb, 65 per cent. of 2's strawberries, 80 per cent. of gal. strawberries and 60 per cent. of pint strawberries. Delivery of early packs has now commenced.

In regard to tomatoes, hail wrought some damage to the crop in the Niagara district this week. It will require extremely favorable conditions and a long season to give a full pack, and according to many, chances are against it. The prospects for corn are good and it now looks like a full pack of this vegetable. Peaches, plums, apples and grapes in the Niagara district were also damaged this last week by hail.

Spot stocks of corn are down to a low basis and prices are higher 5 to 10 cents per dozen. Tomatoes are ranging from $1.60 to $1.65, present supplies being brought from the States where prices are higher. Lobsters are quoted at $2.60 to $2.75 for halves, supplies being none too plentiful when it is considered that there in ten months' trade ahead. Coming on an absolutely bare market the new pack was quickly taken up.

Wholesalers expect prices on new pack salmon to be named at any time now. Late reports give the sockeye pack on the Skeena as much below last year. As far as "red springs" are concerned, they have run very well in the Skeena, but that does not affect canned salmon in Canada much as most of the catch are exported to Germany, mild, cured and uncanned. It is reported that one of the salmon steamers bound for Liverpool and London has been wrecked with a cargo of 91,860 cases. If this is true, and the total salmon supply is decreased by that amount, it will help along in the firmer feeling in salmon.

Toronto, Aug. 3.—Both country and city travelers have taken up their grips again, and with the energy accumulated during their two weeks' holiday are gathering in a satisfactory amount of trade for their various houses. Jobbers report that the summer trade has so far been good, comparing favorably with other years, which with fair collections now reported, places trade in a satisfactory condition.

Sugar is up another 20 cents since our last report, further damage to the growing beet crop being responsible. The market is still strong and any further adverse reports from Europe will work for higher prices in refined. United States refined advanced 40 cents per cwt. during the past ten days as compared with 20c. in Canada.

Drought is also responsible for another advance in price this week, corn syrups having gone upward. Higher prices were asked for corn with the consequent advance in syrup. The high sugar market may have also exerted some influence in this direction.

Sugar.—The special emphasis given to the sugar market last week was well warranted, two advances of 10 cents having taken place since our last report. This brings sugar on the local market up to $5.25, a total advance of 55 cents since July 1st. The market is still strong and according to general opinion liable to hold until close on Oct. 1st anyway. While there is a feeling in some quarters that the damage to European beets has already been fully discounted, still sugar on this side is 30 points above Europe. While last sales of Cuban raws were made at $4.67, latest quotations on beets is 14s. equal to $4.98 duty paid New York. Prices for new crop December are 13s. 1d. equal to parity of $4.79, a full 1-8 cent above to-day's cane market, so that there is still a margin of safety. Some Java sugar is now loading which is quoted at $4.66 New York. The future movement depends on the weather in beet growing districts and any further adverse reports will no doubt cause further upward movements in price. Local demand for sugar is good.

Syrups and Molasses.—The higher price for corn is responsible for an advance in corn syrups this week. Bulk goods are up ½ cent per pound, while tin syrups have been advanced 15 cents per case. Molasses are also somewhat firmer in sympathy with the high price of sugar. Syrup trade is normal, while molasses is inclined to quietness.

Dried Fruits.—About the only thing being done in spot stocks is in currants and raisins for which demand is normal.

The situation in new crop currants and raisins shows little alteration. Just now there is an excited market in future prunes and what the outcome will be is somewhat uncertain. Prices for the moment at least are higher and there are some who look for them to hold. Reports are current that Europe is making big purchases of both California and Oregon stocks. On Tuesday of this week a wire to a local wholesaler from California said that prices were up ½ cent, while another one from Oregon gave news of large sales to Germany. All early stocks have been contracted for.

Tea.—The Ceylon tea market is ruling steady. One report says: "Exports from Ceylon for the first half of July, namely four million pounds, fall short of expectations, and the month's estimate has been reduced to 9½ millions as compared with actual shipments for July last year of 11 million pounds, whilst latest advices from Colombo indicate that the effects of the recent drought may in some instances be of more than a temporary nature."

Coffee.—No further firmness has set in in the coffee situation, while options in Europe towards the end of last week were slightly lower. The local situation is one of steadiness, with a satisfactory amount of business being transacted at ruling prices.

The strength of the primary market may be noted from the fact that spot quotations in New York are at present below the parity of primary markets. Trade is quite satisfactory, while a moderate trade is in evidence in rice.

Winnipeg, Aug. 3.—Active interest is being taken in the various lines of the grocery trade this week. The arrival of warm weather during the last few days is having some effect on the ripening of the crop, which according to many experts is regarded as being two weeks late now. The railroad companies are nevertheless determined to take time by the forelock and the first excursion of the 50,000 to 60,000 harvesters needed this year, will leave Nova Scotia on August 1.

In the same way that the companies are fast preparing to handle the large crowds the retail country merchant has been putting in his supplies, to cater to the increased demand of the farmers to feed this extra help. The result has been that during the last two weeks many large orders have been speedily rushed out to customers who neglected to send in their orders earlier.

Apart from the interest in the increased trade expected while harvesting is on, the sharp advances in sugar, coffee and beans during the week have caused some commotion. The southern markets in raw sugar have been steadily advancing owing to the small stocks held by refineries, the report of bad crops, as well as an unprecedented demand. At any rate, this is the fourth advance of ten cents per cwt. that sugar has taken in the last three weeks. Reports indicate that the high point has by no means been reached yet, and local wholesalers predict that higher figures will be seen before the new crop arrives.

The coffee situation is also a very acute one at present. The fact that the supply of actual coffee the world over shows a decrease of nearly 4,000,000 bags as compared with last year is well worth considering. The exceptionally high price of coffee this year has consequently brought about the lowering of stocks held by the jobber, as he has bought sparingly to save interest and other charges. Reports are prevalent also that a large percentage of the crop is seriously damaged by rain, and that as high as 30 per cent. of the coffee already sold would not grade up to requirements of the trade. The result is that brokers will have difficulty in securing enough of the good stuff to meet their sales, which will result probably in higher prices. Considering these points it is little wonder that prices have been remaining firm.

Beans, the third line which has been advancing this week, is also being watched.

Sugar.—As stated above, this line took a further advance of 10 cents per cwt. this week. An unprecedented demand combined with lack of supplies at bases are the chief cause. Local stocks are only medium, and many large orders were shipped out last week. Present quotations are:—

Beans and Peas.—A further advance of 5 cents per bushel in beans took place last week. This makes the third advance, totaling 20 cents per bushel in all, during the month. The demand has been extremely strong, and as eastern stocks are reported to be extremely low, higher figures are yet looked for.

NEW BRUNSWICK

St. John, N.B., Aug. 3.—With the travelers for the city and country districts from the majority of local houses away on their vacations, trade in grocery circles during the past week has not been so lively as might otherwise have been the case, but with their return next week, quite an impetus in business in anticipated.

In sympathy with sugar the price of molasses is now noticed taking an upward trend. The market is very firm, and higher prices, it is thought, will naturally follow the several advances in sugar. Fancy Barbadoes is now bringing 29 and 30, and since stocks in this line on the Island are said to be exhausted, an increase may be further expected.

As was confidently expected sugar is still firm and made an advance of thirty cents this week. Of the increase 20 cents was from the New York refineries, and 10 from the Canadian. Some of the local dealers are feeling well pleased with themselves because they appreciated a timely hint in The Grocer, and took advantage of it to protect themselves early in the upward movement.

Short supplies and high prices are being anticipated as regards the canned goods outlook for the coming season. Especially are local dealers of the opinion that in canned fruits the greatest difficulty will be presented, and high prices will prevail. Tomatoes, also, according to advices received, will be none too plentiful, and therefore the canned tomato has already increased ten cents in price. Grocers in St. John say that the demand for canned goods during the summer up to the present time has been most satisfactory, particularly in peas, corn, and tomatoes, and the stock on hand is none too great to meet present business. Spot stocks are said to be light, and the tendency of the wiser heads is to sort up for immediate use at once because the new pack will not be marketed for three months.

Native vegetables are daily increasing in abundance in the country market, and beets, carrots, and turnips, considering the earliness of the season, are fairly reasonable. Beans and peas have been on the market for some time, but have remained quite firm. The crop of new potatoes is giving much encouragement from present indications to both dealers and farmers, and the weather has been favorable to their growth. The price asked for them this week is $1.40 per bushel.

NOVA SCOTIA MARKETS.

Halifax, Aug. 3.—Sugar prices continue to soar. Since last report there has been an increase of twenty cents per hundred. This makes a total advance during the past fortnight of forty cents per hundred.

This season's pack of canned peas and beans will go to the trade at $1 per dozen. As the packers are only making light deliveries, wholesale dealers would not be surprised at an early advance in prices.

According to advices received here there will be a shortage of California raisins, and already there has been an advance of a quarter of a cent per pound.

Stocks of Bermuda onions on the local market were pretty well cleaned up this week. The few offerings were quoted at $1.85 per crate.

First class oranges are high. California stock is quoted at $4.75 to $5 per case. Lemons are also high and scarce, good stock selling from $6 to $6.50 per case.

Flour is in light demand and prices are considered low. Ontario blends range from $5 to $5.10. Rolled oats per barrel are quoted from $5.40 to $5.50. American clear pork is selling at $21.50 and beef at $16 to $17 per barrel. Hams and bacon are in good demand, with prices firm. Butter remains steady, but the supply of Nova Scotia eggs shows a heavy falling off. Good fresh stock is quoted at 21 cents per dozen. Potatoes are now coming on the market in good supply. The stock is excellent for so early in the season. As the old potatoes have all been cleaned up, the new stock is in good demand. They are quoted at $1.60 per bushel this week.

FOREST CITY NOTES.

London, Ont., Aug. 3.—(Special)—The executive of the local Retail Grocers' Association, at the visit they made to Toronto recently, extended an invitation to President Miller of the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association and the executive of that organization to visit London on the occasion of the picnic here the Port Huron grocers and their friends. That will be on August 23rd next.

The London grocers have decided to hold another moonlight excursion to Port Stanley on August 14. The detail work for this outing has been left in the hands of President Norman McLeod, Thomas Shaw and E. J. Ryan.

RAIN HELPS BEAN CROP.

Chatham, Ont., Aug. 3. (Special).—The Western Ontario peninsula, comprising Kent and Essex and adjacent territory, which includes practically the entire bean-growing section of Ontario, was visited by rains recently. Reports from outlying sections indicate that the bean crop, which was commencing to suffer from the prolonged drought, has benefited immensely as a result of the general rains. A report from the Blenheim district, which is one of the most important bean growing sections, states that in some fields the plants have already attained their full growth, and never looked so well before.

EARLY CLOSING AT CHATHAM.

Chatham, Ont., Aug. 3 (Special).—Practically all the outlying grocers of the Maple City have joined hands in support of early closing, and have signed an agreement to the effect that they will henceforth close their places of business at 7.30 every evening, Saturdays and days before holidays being excepted. Sixteen grocers have subscribed their names to the agreement.

CIVIC HOLIDAY DATES.

From many towns and cities in Ontario information has reached this office relating to the days set aside for Civic Holidays, and also the weekly half holiday. The table given below covers those municipal holidays soon to be held and also includes a few which have been held recently. It will be noted, in this connection that the date for Belleville and Kingston has passed already.

The letters "C. H." and "W. H." at the top of the column stand for "Civic holiday" and "weekly half-holiday":—

	C.H.	W.H.
Barrie	Aug. 14	Wednesday
Brantford	....	Wednesday
Belleville	July 31	Wednesday
Brockville	Aug. 7	Wednesday
Cobourg	(?) Aug. 16	Wednesday
Collingwood	Aug. 14	.....
Chatham	(?) Aug. 14	.....
Galt	.....	Thursday
Guelph	Aug. 7	Thursday
Hamilton	Aug. 7	.....
Kingston	July 31	Close at 5
Lindsay	Aug. 14	Close at 5
North Bay	(?)
	2nd or 3rd Wed. Aug.	Wednesday
Oshawa	Aug. 7	Thursday
Peterboro	Aug. 7	Thursday
Orillia	.....	.....
Owen Sound	Aug. 7	Wednesday
Port Arthur	Aug. 9	.....
Port Hope	Aug. 1	Wednesday
Sault Ste. Marie	.....	Thursday
St. Mary's	Aug. 7	Wednesday
St. Thomas	Aug. 7	Wednesday
St. Catharines	Aug. 7	Wednesday
Trenton	Aug. 7	Wednesday
Whitby	Aug. 7	Thursday
Windsor	Aug. 7	.....
Woodstock	Aug. 7	.....

Blanks indicate, in the case of Civic Holiday, that the date is uncertain. In Cobourg, the holiday will likely fall on one of the afternoons during horse show, Aug. 16th, but in the morning the stores will open. In Chatham the grocers hold a half holiday during 1st week of August. In North Bay, the holiday is usually held on the second or third Wednesday of August. Orillia will observe the holiday on the day of the Firemen's Tournament at Huntsville, the date of which has not been definitely fixed. Blanks in the case of the weekly half holiday indicate that none is observed. In St. Mary's, St. Catharines, Windsor, Barrie, Galt, the half holiday is not universal.

CABLE NEWS FROM INDIA.

Half of India is stricken with a drought, and the monsoon, on which all crops depend, is spasmodic. The outlook for vegetation is very serious. Tea, requiring, as it does, a great deal of moisture, will suffer badly, and the 1911 crop is likely to be short. Advance prices for this commodity will doubtless follow.

INFORMATION FOR BUYERS.

Supplied to the Trade by Sellers.

The Montreal Biscuit Co., Montreal, held its annual picnic this year to Lavaltre, by S.S. "Three Rivers," where a most enjoyable time was spent. The firm showed themselves as capable of providing a good social time as "good things" from a confectionery standpoint.

W. H. Millman, of W. H. Millman & Sons, has arrived home after two months' absence visiting Germany, Holland, Belguim, Scotland and England in the firm's interests and casually enjoying a holiday, which he deserved. He says he is now ready for business again.

Live Hog Prices Fluctuate Slightly

After a Slight Advance Prices Drop Back — Demand From Packers Not So Keen—English Bacon Market is Steady—Provision Prices Maintain Steady Position — Butter is Slightly Firmer—Eggs Not So Plentiful.

Provisions in general seem to maintain their position of steadiness. Especially is this so in those lines that are in good demand at this season such as smoked hams and rolls, and cooked hams. Prices on these have been stiffening at the various centres since the advent of the warm weather and are still steady as supplies are not large.

At the end of last week, live hog prices were slightly advanced but have since eased off to their original position. Supplies on some markets have been larger, while the demand from packers has not been quite so keen. The English bacon market according to a late cable is steady with only moderate supplies. United States live hog markets are steady.

The butter market is inclined to firmness. There seems to be no overplus of supplies, although Montreal reports receipts in excess of last year for the same period. There is a steady home consumption, while the export movement is quite good.

The egg supply is below that of last year but prices are practically unchanged. Finest quality are in good demand. Shrinkage is still a feature of considerable annoyance to dealers.

MONTREAL.

Provisions.—On Saturday last a strong feeling prevailed in the market for live hogs and prices advanced with sales of selected lots at $8.00, but on Monday the market grew weaker again on account of increased supplies and prices declined to $7.50 to $7.75 per 100 lbs. weighed off cars.

An active trade continues to be done in all lines of cured meat, there being a good demand owing to the warm weather.

Butter.—Receipts of butter are much in advance of those for corresponding period last year. The local market is firmer owing to the higher trend of prices in the country, the strength of the market being largely due to the improved export demand. Butter.—Fresh made creamery bricks continue to decline, and at present sell at 23c per lb. while Manitoba fresh made boxes are quiet at 1c lower. The supply of dairy butter is also light, and strictly No. 1 is quoted at 16c while No. 2 is at 12c to 14c and No. 3, 7 to 9c.

Cheese.—Owing to the increased demand for new cheese and the limited supplies that have arrived in the city an advance of from ½c to ¾c per lb. has taken place. The quality of the cheese shows a decided improvement over that of last year, and the price quoted at the present time is 11c to 11½c. for Manitoba new made.

Eggs.—Owing to the limited supply of fresh eggs the price has advanced 1c per doz. during the week. Strictly guaranteed fresh eggs are very hard to secure, and retailers are selling what they have secured from farmers at 36c per doz. The wholesale price for ordinary eggs is 18c per doz.

Dustless sweeping compounds are lines that would stand some attention. Anything that tends to lessen the labor about the house appeals to every housewife. If you have not already established a trade in this line, it would be well to consider its possibilities.

The partnership between John Livingstone and M. M. Newman, groceries and small wares, Picton, Wellington, Napanee and Gananoque, Ont., doing business under the name of The Fair, has been dissolved, A. G. Wagorn, buying out M. M. Newman's interest.

Letters to the Editor

Editor Canadian Grocer.

I was glad to see in your issue of the 21st inst. a letter from a Hamilton grocer on organization. It is time the grocers of this Province organized to look after their own interests. The Wholesale Grocers' Guild will not do it, judging them on their past efforts.

The Hamilton grocer asks who is the retailer. One of the gentlemen elected to the manufacturers' committee might answer that question, but as I understand it, he who sells to consumers is a retailer. Now, I know of several London wholesale grocers who sell to consumers and yet these are the men who want the manufacturers to make declarations. How many wholesale houses sell restaurants, Chinese laundries, yes, and their wholesale dry goods and hardware men? More than that, I know of some of them who sell their personal friends as little as five pounds of tea and still want the manufacturer to make a declaration. If the retailers of this Province would organize, the manufacturers would have to come to them as they do in many states in the U.S.A.

The Firming Up of Provisions in Last Two Months

One year ago live hogs on the Toronto market were quoted at $1.65 per cwt above the present price of $7.35. The present price, however, shows some slight advance from the first of the year, prices on Jan. 1st of hogs at country points being $6.90. Then began a gradual downward movement and $5.75 was reached in May. Since then the English bacon market has been firming up, which, combined with the none too plentiful supply and the keen demand from packers, has raised prices to the present level of $7.35.

Provisions are also a little higher than at the first of the year, but a considerable margin below those ruling a year ago. There has been a particularly good demand for smoked and cooked meats this summer and prices have ruled high. Lard has shown a big decline from 15 cents in tubs a year ago to 13¼ at the first of the year, while now the quotation is down to 10½ cents. A comparison of prices ruling on the Toronto market is given below :—

	1910 Aug. 1	1911 Jan. 1	1911 Aug. 1
Long clear bacon	15	12½	11¼
Smoked breakfast bacon	20	17	18
Roll bacon	15½	12½	12
Light hams	19½	16	17½
Medium hams	19½	15½	17
Large hams	18½	15	15½
Cooked hams	27	21	27
Plain backs	19½	18	20
Lard in tubs	15	13¼	10½

A comparison of prices may be secured in another way. If on Aug. 1, 1910, a person purchased a pound of each of the lines listed, the total cost would have been $1.69½, while the same could be purchased on Jan. 1 at $1.40¾ and on Aug. 1 for $1.48¾.

The chart for live hogs at country points as quoted by Toronto dealers for the past seven months is as follows :

Jan. 6	$6.90
Jan. 13	7.10
Feb. 17	7.00
Mar. 3	6.90
Mar. 24	6.75
Apr. 1	6.65
Apr. 14	6.15
May 5	6.00
May 12	5.75
June 2	6.00
June 9	6.40
June 16	6.75
June 23	7.10
July 1	6.90
July 7	6.75
July 21	7.10

PICTON LIBRARY CASE.

Prosecution Launched by the Retail Merchants' Association.

Picton, Ont., Aug. 3.—(Special)—A police court summons has been issued against G. Green, of Toronto, and also some merchants of this place, who have been connected with the formation of a library voting contest and the case will have its preliminary airing in the police court to-morrow afternoon. Considerable interest is evidenced.

It appears that, about the first of July, the promoter launched his voting scheme here. Lately E. M. Trowern, general secretary of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada, arrived in Picton and commenced an investigation into the matter. He ascertained the magnitude of the contest, and then took the question up with Roland Brown, Crown Attorney, and the summons followed.

The case will be prosecuted under the provisions of The Trading Stamp Act, and the R.M.A. secretary contends that the contest comes clearly within its scope. The Act, he says, must be enforced, if the retail trade is to be kept above suspicion.

RETAILERS TURN JOBBERS.

One hundred Chicago grocers have formed a wholesale company to conduct a co-operative buying system. The Retailers' Wholesale Company, as it is known, is incorporated for $10,000, and the prime object is to give the individual members a greater buying power and secure for them the profit that now goes to the jobber.

Good Summer Trade in Confectionery

Confectionery in Good Demand—Consumption of Sweets Increasing—Chocolates a Favorite Line—Flour is Steady—Trade is of Hand-to-Mouth Character—Wheat Remains Within Narrow Margin—No Special Features in Cereals.

The trade in confectionery is good, both in regard to the present demand, and also business on the whole. Dealers state that the consumption of confectionery in Canada is on the increase and accordingly the wide-awake grocer who is featuring this line will derive the benefit of the increased use of sweetmeats. Chocolates are a favorite line, the demand for medium-priced ones especially being good. Those dealers who are giving the necessary attention to these lines are well satisfied with the trade, as the summer is an excellent time for the sale of all kinds of confections.

The general situation in both the flour and cereal markets has undergone little change. Wheat hovers around the same point, so that the flour market is steady but without any special features. Trade is of a hand-to-mouth character and consequently not overly brisk. Some trade was done for export at eastern points in new crop winter wheat flour last week, but values this week are a little out of line.

Black rust was reported to have damaged wheat somewhat in both the Canadian and American West last week. It seems, however, that it has not in the Canadian side and it is regarded as questionable whether there has been any serious damage done on the United States side either. Nearly 7,000,000 bushels increase in the United States visible supply of wheat lowered prices somewhat at Chicago at the beginning of the week.

TORONTO.

Flour.—The general situation in the flour market shows little alteration, wheat values having shown no change this week. The general tone of the market is, however, one of steadiness. There was some trade transacted for export last week in new crop Ontario wheat flour, but prices of Ontario wheat having advanced, have put values out of line for the present at least. According to reports, Ontario wheat will run much heavier this year for while it generally runs 60 to 62 lbs. to the bushel, this year it will reach close on 65 lbs. There will be very little smut this year either, while last year there was a great deal.

WINNIPEG.

Flour.—The domestic demand for flour has been quite satisfactory during the last two or three weeks, and mills report that they have no fault to find in this line. Stocks at country points are fairly small, consequently it is expected that the demand which is at present prevailing will continue to exist. The export trade is fair, but the millers are still complaining of low bids. They claim that flour was not advanced enough when wheat was up to the higher figure, and now that there is a lower tendency in grain, flour values are not unreasonable. The result is that prices remain unchanged in quotations, namely: 1st patents $2.65 per 98 lb. sack, 2nds $2.45, 3rds $2.25; 1st Clares, $2.00, and common grades $1.50.

Cereals.—Except for the demand from the East, business is quiet. Local dealers do not look for much improvement until the new crop is off. Bran is still quoted at $17.00 a ton net, in sacks delivered to the trade, shorts at $19.00, oats, barley and mixed chop at $25.00 per ton.

DON'T WORRY.

Don't worry about the business the other fellow is getting. Go out and get what is coming to you.

PRESIDENT MILLER EXTENDS.

Novel Idea Introduced in His New Window Scheme.

Wm. C. Miller, president of the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association, has recently made extensive alterations to his store at 632 Yonge St. Besides a general re-arrangement and enlargement of the interior, a new idea, the first to be used in a grocery store in Toronto has been introduced into the make-up of the window. It consists of a double platform, the main display being about three feet above the sidewalk while the space underneath serves as a silent salesman. In this way the value of the window as a medium of showing goods is about doubled.

Mr. Miller believes that money spent in display is well spent. "It pays to have your goods displayed in a proper manner," he says, "because it sells them." He will arrange his shelf display along systematic lines, so that the clerks will know exactly where to go to secure a certain article. Along one side he will have nothing but goods in glass, along the other side canned goods alone, while the back shelving will show other package goods. Each sections will be divided into the different lines carried. He will keep large package goods, such as cereals, etc., in the reserve stock room.

A new silent salesman for bottled goods has been installed, a show case in the centre of the store will feature cakes as a side line, while a meat slicing counter has been put in at the rear of the store. In front of this counter is a biscuit display rack just high enough that customers may see the meats displayed but will not be able to handle them. Counters will be placed along one side only, allowing more space for interior display and for customers to move about the store.

TEACH THE CLERK.

When the store is first opened in the morning is the time to assemble all goods that you know you will use during the day, arrange the shelves and dust and sweep properly. That is also the best time to wash the windows and sweep the pavement before there are people around to be splashed and spattered by the operations.

Do not sweep the dust and papers out to the store house or back of the building and allow them to stay there. Burn the paper or place it in the proper receptacle but do not allow it to accumulate about the store or back shed.

It is a good thing to make large profits, but it is mighty poor business to advertise the fact.

Some clerks hand out just what you ask for. Another sells what you ask for and then goes right on and sells you more.

Next in importance to showing the goods is the use of plenty of show cards. They make people look at the goods.

How Too Much Talk Tires Out the Listener

Mark Twain Explains How Preacher Out-Talked His Subject and Allowed Ardor of His Congregation to Cool—How This Applies in Clerkdom—A Few Suggestions for Salesmen Inclined to be Tempestuous.

The talk, and the manner in which he talks, is an important part in the make up of every salesman. On it depends, to large extent, the impression made on the customer. It works either good or bad, and also the amount of the sales which that clerk makes depends upon the manner in which the arguments are presented to the customer.

A clerk may talk too much as well as too little. By not knowing when to stop he may spoil the whole effect of his arguments. Mark Twain tells a story showing the result of too much talk and illustrating the necessity of knowing when to stop talking. "A man," he says, "went to church to hear a missionary give an address. The speaker dwelt upon his favorite subject, telling of the need of funds to carry on the work, and doing so in such a manner that this man became enthusiastic and impatient for them to pass the collection plate that he might give them all his handy cash and then rush to the bank to draw out his available cash of $200 for the cause. But the speaker wanted to clinch his arguments and he continued on and on in a long, tiresome, and nerve-racking talk. This man began to lose interest. His enthusiasm began to depart. When at last the speaker had finished his long drawn out discourse, and the plate was passed, this man who had previously been worked up to fever heat quietly added 10 cents to the collection."

Thus the salesman, who after handing out a convincing line of selling talk, spoils it all by not knowing when to stop.

There is however, grave danger of the clerk not talking enough. When he has taken a customer's order he allows them to depart with a "thank you," instead of introducing to them some line other than what they have purchased and attempting to sell it to them.

Then there is the salesman who might be called "the rhymer." He rushes over everything he carries in stock from A to Z in less time than he should devote to one article. He might just as well have saved his breath and his customer's nerves as far as results are concerned.

The correct way is to take one thing at a time and do it well. Say: "Mrs. Customer, we are making a special of these pickles this week. The regular price is 25 cents but we are selling them this week at 2 for 45 cents. As you use a lot I thought you would like to know." This is the kind of talk that interests the customers and gets results.

Another brand of clerk has plenty to say and talks about everything from the weather to the church news but will forget entirely to introduce any real business into his talk. The valuable salesman is the one who can sell over and above actual demand and when he has a customer before him, is his opportunity to do so. Instead of talking about the weather and on similar subjects, let him deal with things that will bring results.

Some clerks are mechanical talkers. In the morning they will select some subject and to each and every customer who visits the store that day they will give the same talk. Generally this kind of a clerk is great on weather talk and a customer visiting the store twice in the same day will be greeted with the same comments about the weather.

Knowing the importance of talk every clerk should select his subjects, his grammar and his manners that he may escape the errors which he is liable to commit.

STORE HINTS.

Window displays must be something more than attractive. They must make people want the goods.

Use plain language in your advertisements that will be understood by everyone. It is next to impossible to get an advertisement too simple for the mind of the average reader.

Do your window displays show the goods you are advertising in the newspaper, or do you run the two without any relation to one another?

The successful merchant is generally a man who is able to take advice at times.

Tell your customers all about the good qualities of your goods but don't claim one bit more than the facts warrant or you cannot expect to retain the confidence of your patrons.

Mere hard work will not bring success. There must be some brain work connected with it.

TORONTO, : : ONT.

Oranges are Firm; Tomatoes are Lower

Fruit Prices Fluctuate—Oranges are Higher Under Better Demand—Tomatoes Lower—Supplies are Larger — Lemons are Fairly Steady—Canadian Late Fruits Make Their Appearance —Canadian New Potatoes in Larger Supply.

The total volume of business in fruits is large, comparing most favorably with other years. Canadian fruits as they appear, are being given prominence, but there being somewhat of a short supply in a number of lines, trade is not as large as it otherwise would be. The small supply of numerous fruits has resulted in a better demand for oranges, which are generally quiet at this season. This improved trade, combined with no overplus of supplies has resulted in higher prices in this fruit during the past couple of weeks.

The warmer weather this week has created a better demand for lemons. Prices in general are pretty well maintained, supply and demand governing at various centres. There is conceded, however, to be no exceptionally large stocks at any centre. The quality of recent arrivals is good, being somewhat of an improvement on some earlier shipments.

Tomatoes are still being imported from across the border, but the larger amount of business is being done in the Canadian article. Supplies are increasing with a consequent downward movement in price. Watermelons are in good supply, being taken up well at somewhat easier prices.

Various districts of the Dominion are beginning to send out shipments of plums, peaches and pears, but the supplies are as yet limited. California fruits are still being imported, and are meeting with ready sale.

Although the supply of Canadian new potatoes is on the increase, it still falls far below the total demand. Country districts are consuming about all supplies in their own neighborhood, so that the large towns and cities depend principally on the imported product.

Green Fruits.—The warmer weather has brought an improved movement of lemons. Market prices are somewhat uncertain, for while some firms are quoting lower at $5.00, others have maintained prices as high as $5.75 for No. 1 stock. Oranges are firmer again, under limited supplies, and prices are slightly higher at $4.75 to $5.00 for late Valencias.

Prices of Canadian small fruits vary from day to day. Red raspberries are practically done, Lawton berries now being offered, while blueberries are quite plentiful at $1.00 to $1.50 per 11-qt. basket. Canadian plums, peaches and pears are now on the market, although in rather limited quantities. Considerable business is also being done in the California fruits. Tomatoes are lower in price, 85c to $1.00 per basket being the ruling quotations. Canadian green apples are in ample supply, with demand good. Watermelons are slightly lower.

of last week prices in New York became slightly firmer, although it has not been felt here. More of the Canadian product are coming forward but the supply as yet falls far short of the demand. They are going to the retailer at $1.50 per bushel. Canadian cucumbers are plentiful and lower in price, 25 to 30 cents per basket being asked this week.

Fairly Satisfactory Trade in Fish

Bright Spots at Intervals Help—Summer Demand Naturally Inclined to Quietness—Prices on the Whole are Steady—Mackerel Prices Remain High—Due to Small Spring Catch—Scarcity of Bait on Nova Scotian Coast.

Bright spots here and there in the fish trade make business on the whole fairly satisfactory for the season. Prices generally are steady. Owing to the small catch of Spring mackerel prices still rule high.

While the weather on the Nova Scotian coast has been favorable for the fishermen of late, lack of bait has kept the catches small. While receipts of haddock are somewhat larger, cod is scarce.

QUEBEC.

Montreal.—Although this is the dull fish season, dealers find things brightening up and towards the middle of the month will be getting ready for the heavy business.

It is reported that the bankers have been hampered by lack of bait, but supplies have been procured.

Owing to the small catch of spring mackerel prices are still pretty high. There is a scarcity of Gaspe salmon at present.

Toronto.—Dealers say that a steady trade for the season is in evidence in fish, business on the whole comparing favorably with other years. Fresh halibut is arriving freely and is being taken up at 10 cents per pound. Trout is also a favorite line. Prices on the whole are seemingly steady.

NOVA SCOTIA.

Halifax.—The local fish markets are inactive at present. While the weather has been favorable for the fishermen, bait is scarce, and in consequence the catches on the inshore grounds are small. There has been some improvement in the receipts of haddock, but cod is scarce. The demand for fish for local consumption is light, the sales for the past week or so being below the average. Fresh mackerel are becoming scarce, and the few fish received have retailed at 25 cents a piece. Stocks of finnan haddies are light, and in consequence of the scarcity of fish, there is not much doing in the export trade.

During the week some large fares of fish have been landed at Gloucester by vessels of the banking fleet, and the price of cod has been advanced 12½ cents per hundred pounds. Codfish are in good demand in all the markets. Prices of salt mackerel are firm, and those who have stocks on hand are holding out for higher figures. Swordfish are plentiful, but they are not a ready seller on the local market.

Canned lobsters are high, and the export trade is good. They are quoted from $16.00 to $17.00 per case.

A Dried Fruit Situation Not Equalled in Years

At the first of the year, prices on dried fruits were considered extra high, but what must the person who makes a comparison of prices think of the quotations ruling at the present time. Six months ago prices were described as high and the situation as acute. Since then supplies have been gradually growing smaller and prices gradually advancing, so that the situation now is one unparalleled in many years. Many of the lines especially prunes and evaporated apples are hardly available at all while there is a decided bareness of stocks of all lines, and the new fruits are assured an extremely bare market.

A comparison of prices ruling on the Toronto market on Jan 1st and on July 1st is given below. It shows that a pound of each of the articles listed on Jan. 1st, would have cost $1.00½, while at the present time, they would amount up to $1.21.

HOLD FRUIT EXHIBITION.

Hopes Held Out for New Brunswick as Fruit Growing Province.

St. John, N. B., Aug. 3 (Special).—While it has always been a matter of belief with those interested in the matter that New Brunswick has remarkable possibilities as a centre for fruit growing, yet during the last month or two, the discussion has become far more noticeable and widespread than has been the case for a long time. Even at this early date, plans are under way for the holding of a fall fruit exhibition in November or October. To stimulate interest, and to encourage the fruit growing industry in the province, local merchants in different branches of trade to the number of fifteen have subscribed prizes of $10 each to be awarded as the board of directors of the fair deem wise. The Board of Trade has also donated a handsome silver cup for a prize in the exhibition.

The clerks of Moncton are organizing themselves into an organization for their advancement, protection, and interests. Such associations flourish in other cities and the clerks of the railway city are of the opinion that they can make a success of their body, the aims of which will be similar to clerks' associations elsewhere.

THE BETTERMENT OF EGGS.

Why Merchants Should Exercise the Greatest Degree of Care.

The wholesaler is making complaints about the larger number of bad eggs which he is receiving and the loss occasioned by it. He is not the only person, because from both merchants and consumers come similar reports. The merchant no doubt wishes, as far as it lies in his power, to eliminate this loss, and should consider ways and means of doing so. Many country merchants are not strict enough in this respect. They do not give the attention they should to guard against the receiving of poor quality eggs. It would be well if he would candle all eggs as received so that the farmer would have to bear the loss as he should, and not the merchant, commission man or consumer. He might also be able to do a little educational work among the farmers from whom he receives supplies, so that the standard of the eggs brought to market may be improved. This has been done by means of egg circles in some parts of the country but where they do not exist, the dealer should attempt some educative work among the farmers.

The bad egg question has become so bad in some parts of the United States that strict regulations have had to be made. In Nebraska, dealers are required to candle all eggs purchased by them while one section of the ordinance reads: "It is unlawful for the farmer, merchant or other dealer to sell or offer for sale bad eggs."

A circular has been issued giving instructions to farmers, which might be valuable for the dealer to use in his campaign:

"Provide plenty of clean dry nests for your hens. Gather the eggs daily in cool weather and twice a day in hot or rainy weather.

"Do not wash eggs. Use dirty and small eggs at home. Keep your eggs in a cool, dry place, which is free from odors. Don't sell eggs which have been in an incubator. Market your eggs daily if possible; if not, every other day. Don't sell eggs which were found in a stolen nest. Keep the eggs out of the sun when taking them to town. Don't keep eggs near oil, onions, etc., as they readily absorb odors."

INFORMATION FOR BUYERS.

Supplied to the Trade by Sellers.

A number of large factories are situated in the east end of Montreal, but perhaps there is none so striking as the newly built factory of Ramsay's Limited. This firm is better known to the trade from coast to coast as the Imperial Syrup Co., but since it was decided to manufacture biscuits and confectionery on an extensive scale the name was changed, and to-day numerous housewives in Canada on buying biscuits insist on being provided with Ramsay's. The Sunshine Bakery in the east end of Montreal is the home of Farm Cream Sodas, and the proprietors are particularly fortunate in having secured the services of a number of biscuit experts from the Old Country, even if the wages demanded are much higher than the ordinary. Those not already acquainted with these high grade lines should get in touch right away, and take advantage of the extensive advertising campaign now being carried on by the manufacturers.

Scotland is universally and aptly called the "Land o' Cakes," for no other country in the world produces such sweet yet wholesome and nutritious teatable delicacies—especially those highly digestive biscuits and short-cakes which have nourished the hardy Scot for many ages past. Macfarlane, Lang & Co., Ltd., of Glasgow, true to their native traditions, combine in their biscuits and cakes the highest degree of taste and quality with the greatest food value. Such biscuits as "Granola Digestive," "Rich Tea," "Playmate," "Large Water" and the up-to-date "Coronation Biscuit" are all quite distinctive in character and flavor, yet are all equally palatable and satisfying. The biscuits manufactured by Messrs. Macfarlane, Lang & Co. are meeting with a warm welcome from the Canadian trade and public. They are now sold by grocers all over Canada and will undoubtedly attain the success which their quality warrants.

Advices from England state that Holbrooks, Limited, of Birmingham, manufacturers of sauces, etc., have been commanded to supply the House of Lords and the English House of Commons with their leading product, Holbrooks Worcestershire Sauce. This is a signal honor coveted by all manufacturers of food products, for only those goods of the highest reputation are favored with such distinctions and only after the most searching examination. This item of news is of particular interest to the trade on this side of the Atlantic just now for it is a well known fact that the products of this English house have been coming much to the front recently. Holbrooks, Limited, were the first to grasp the many opportunities which the Dominion affords to English manufacturers and they jumped into the market with both feet, so to speak, by opening offices in Toronto to supervise their Canadian trade on the spot. This information is history but it may not be generally known to what proportions their trade has grown by this system of development. Their Toronto branch has now become their executive offices for not only Canada but the entire Continent from Halifax to Vancouver and from Boston to San Francisco, with subsidiary offices in Chicago and Montreal and controlling local distributing agents in all the important centres of Canada and the United States as well as from 25 to 30 specialty salesmen.

The Standard Brokerage Company, Vancouver, B.C., whose advertisement appears in this issue, commenced business in 1903. They are now one of the leading commission houses in Vancouver, representing several large Canadian and British manufacturers. In February of this year they moved to their present premises in the new wholesale section of Vancouver, and have one of the most up-to-date warehouses in this city. They have a staff of travelers, and cover the whole of British Columbia territory. They are extending their business, and are looking for one or two more first-class agencies, amongst others, a canned goods line. They purchase some goods outright. The firm is composed of Arthur Nelson, W. B. Shakespeare and A. P. Watkins (who joined the firm recently, after fourteen years' experience with the Hudson's Bay Company).

The Grocer's Encyclopedia--The Lime

Some Interesting Facts About This Fruit Which Flourishes Down in the Tropical Islands of the British West Indies—Its Medicinal Properties—Method and Manner of Growth—Yield of a Tree—Suggestions to the Dealer.

The sale of limes or lime fruit in Canada is as yet rather limited. This is probably due to the fact that the majority of dealers in fruit are not as well acquainted with this product as they should be. However, its nature and use is becoming better known and its sale will no doubt show substantial increase as dealers begin to recognize the opportunities for the extension of its sale.

Producer of Citric Acid.

The lime is one of the most important producers of citric acid, well known for its medicinal properties. The juice is highly valued for making cooling drinks with the aid of sugar and water. Those dealers who give it prominence, especially during the warm weather, find that it meets with a ready sale. Along with other properties, it is regarded as an effective purifier of the blood. Hotels use the fruit more or less extensively for flavoring fish, meats, etc., as well as for mixing with drinks. In the West Indies, it is used for cooking and making sauces in much the same way as lemons are used here.

The lime is about half the size of the average lemon or even somewhat smaller and of a species closely related to the lemon and orange. They are more juicy than the lemon and their acidity more acrid. In fact they are the more keenly acid of all fruits, but somewhat flat and bitter.

Where They Thrive.

While the native home of the lime is South Eastern Asia, it has spread to many other tropical countries. Canada's supply comes from the British West India Islands of Dominica and Antiqua, principally the former. Some are also produced in Florida and California, although the quantity is not large. They are of a globular or roundish oval shape, and as stated before smaller than a lemon and with a thinner rind. They have a nob at the tip resembling a nipple.

The lime tree is not a large one—in fact it might be called a shrub. An average yield is 70 barrels of fruit per acre while in full bearing.

In some places the trees are raised from seed in nurseries, and transplanted when 10 or 18 inches high to the orchard, where they are planted in rows about 15 feet apart, or 150 to 200 to an acre, light, rich, sandy loam being best suited to their growth. The flowers are small, white and very fragrant. The trees bear fruit in three or four years after transplanting and continue bearing for about twenty years. They are easily damaged by frost.

As stated before the Island of Dominica is a big producer of limes, and the quality measures up to any other grown throughout the world. The luxuriant growth is attributed to the rich volcanic nature of the soil. The trees attain the size of apple or pear trees and produce more limes to the acre than anywhere else in the world.

Those dealers who have given attention to this line of fruits, have received good results. The lime makes a thirst quencher that appeals to everyone during the warm weather. It is for this reason that the total consumption in the Dominion is on the increase, and the dealers who feature them are deriving the benefits.

Need of Explanation.

When the dealer stocks them for the first time, he will need to explain their good qualities to his customers, and give them prominence both in display and personal talk until a demand has been created.

Limes are imported into Canada by way of New York in boxes containing about 100. For a time around the first of July, there was somewhat of a scarcity but are now quite plentiful. At present they are selling in Eastern Canada at $1.25 to $1.50 per box.

How Can I Save Money?

You Can Save Money

for yourself and customers by serving them with the best product of its kind, no matter what that kind may be.

You save yourself money, because reliable products, which are known to the consumer or have in them the quality, that when once used always used, never stick to your shelves and become fly-specked members of the has-been counter.

You save your customer's money, because a quality product, although it may be a shade higher in price, can be served or prepared without any waste in a much more attractive manner and more readily than the inferior product, thereby saving your customer's time which is money, giving better satisfaction and insures your customer's confidence in prepared food products and in you.

You can readily see that you can save money by looking after the fine points of your business, as some might say trifles, but it is trifles that make perfection, although perfection is no trifle.

Highest Quality

The absolute purity of Cox's Gelatine makes it a standard product of world-wide fame. Whether in powdered or shredded form, it is still as free from foreign substances as the clearest rock crystal from mother earth.

Cox's Gelatine

It has never disappointed, and never will, because folks get what they expect and want when they buy the peer of all—"Cox's." Highest quality to-day, to-morrow and all the to-morrows to come. A safe and certain asset for a grocer's stock - in - trade — always worth its face value of 100 cents on the dollar.

Codou's Macaroni, Vermicelli, Spaghetti, fancy letters and pastes, represent the top-notch of quality—the highest attainment of skill, experience and cleanliness in a model factory, said to be (by those who really know) one of the finest in the world.

Codou's Macaroni

A macaroni whose delicacy and whiteness bear witness to the caution used in selecting only finest wheat (from Taganrog) for the making. Tender as a macaroni can be, nutritious to the highest degree. Let the name on every package "Codou" serve to assure you of highest quality when you buy.

A SOURCE OF PROFIT IN ARROWROOT

One of the best gifts of the New World has only recently come to its own in a large way. For a century or more St. Vincent has shipped the bulk of the world's supply because St. Vincent Arrowroot is the best.

Recently, the enormous increase of the use of cocoa and chocolates and the study of domestic science and nursing have brought it into common use among a much larger portion of the people.

There is a large profit for the dealer in handling Arrowroot as it rapidly makes its way among the consumers.

Arrowroot makes delicious Blanc Manges, Puddings, Biscuits, Cakes, etc., and is invaluable as a diet for invalids.

They Ask for Their Saleslips

The seventy thousand merchants in all lines of business who use

With Only One Writing The McCASKEY SYSTEM The End of Drudgery

find that their customers ask for their saleslips—the itemized accounts of their purchases---showing the total amount due. They want to know what they owe.

¶ The McCaskey System saves time, labor and money for the merchant. It protects him against forgetting to charge, (if he fails to write the slip the customer asks for it.)

¶ It is an automatic credit limit.

¶ The McCaskey System cuts out useless bookkeeping. It keeps every account posted and totaled to date. It is an automatic collector. It furnishes proof of loss in case of fire.

¶ It flags the merchant at every danger point.

¶ No merchant can afford to be without it---it is sold on easy payments if desired and pays for itself.

Have Your Wife Try a Bottle

Mexican Vanilla Bean Gatherer

Take home a bottle of Shirriff's True Vanilla to-night. Have your wife use it for flavoring her sauces, puddings and cakes. Get her verdict. Then you'll know how pleased other women—your customers—will be when they have tried it on your recommendation.

Shirriff's

is made from first-quality Mexican Vanilla Beans. It is the REAL extract—aged until its strength, flavor and bouquet excel all others. Very economical—a little drop goes a long way.

You are doing your customer a good service in persuading her to try Shirriff's True Vanilla in place of extracts which are vanilla in name only. There is a good profit on each bottle of Shirriff's True Vanilla. Each bottle you sell is another step gained in the "good-will" of your customer.

New PEAS (with MINT) in Cooking Nets (Farrow's Patent)

You may have new peas now, or at any time of the year, if you buy Farrow's "Patent Net" Peas and cook them as directed.

FARROW'S 'Patent Net' PEAS

are the finest early green peas, gathered at the beginning of the season when peas are sweetest, most tender and delicious. Our process preserves ALL their natural flavour. When cooked they are so delicious and tender that you cannot detect them from fresh garden peas. They are very easily cooked and remarkably cheap—a 10 cent Net provides liberal portions for 8 people. Farrow's "Patent Net" Peas are English grown, absolutely pure, free from all preservatives and colouring matter.

The grandest 10 cent line the Old Country has ever sent us.

SOME DEALERS ALWAYS WANT TO SELL WHAT THE PUBLIC DO NOT WANT TO BUY

In other words, anything that the people desire and are willing to pay for, they handle reluctantly. They think it is profitable to fight the consumer, but it is not. That kind of man eventually goes out of business, for anything that he sells with reluctance the public soon cease asking him for, and get elsewhere.

In Canada and the United States, is the only tea for which there is a universal demand. It pleases every tea drinker and pays the grocer, in actual profit, very much better than any other tea. There is no article in a grocer's stock in which an investment of $30.00 will show, at the end of the year, so much profit. That $30.00 can be turned over every month or oftener and each time it will show 25 per cent. profit, so that at the end of the year he has made at least 300 per cent. on his original investment.

Some grocers (but they are getting fewer) prefer to invest a hundred or more dollars in bulk and other slow-selling packet teas because they make a little more per pound than they do on "SALADA" but they can't turn over this $100 worth of tea inside of two years—profit 30 per cent. in the two years, against 300 per cent. in one year with "SALADA."

Safest to Figure From the Selling End

Wholesaler Gives Reasons to Support His Conviction That the Merchant Should do Estimating From Sales End of the Business, Rather Than the Buying—The Things to be Considered Before Actual Cost is Arrived at—Result Closer to Selling Than to Invoice Price—Some Examples.

By Hugh Blain.

I have carefully read the correspondence in your issue of the 7th July under "How are you going to figure Profits?"

Mr. Johnson, jr., is no doubt right in figuring the percentage of increase in population, which has only one element to consider, viz., the actual increase on a fixed basis of calculation. When, however, he comes to deal with money transactions, he has to take into account several features incidental to, and which must be reckoned with, in finding the cost of property, but which he has not made altogether clear. A property worth (costing) $1,000 one year ago, may have cost the holder more or less than $1,000 to-day. He must add interest and perhaps taxes, insurance, etc., and, if it has been sold, the legal fees in connection with the transfer of title and he may have to deduct a revenue earned or a charge for occupancy.

Getting at Cost.

In the case stated, where he sells for $1,500, he does not make 50 per cent. unless the revenue was exactly equal to cost of holding it, nor 33 1-3 per cent. unless his outlay in the meantime was exactly $125 more than the revenue. He cannot tell in advance, he must wait until he can ascertain exactly what the property costs, before he can find the actual rate of profit. The same reasoning applies to his sale at $800, because you must add what it costs to carry and transfer the property, to the $1,000 and deduct the revenue, if any, to get at the actual cost. In the case of vacant property where there is no revenue, interest at 6 per cent. alone would cost $60 which would make the property cost $1,060 or a loss of $260 or 24 28-53 per cent., and if taxes or other charges, amounting to say $40 more, it would cost $100 during the year, and the total would be $1,100 and he would lose $300 or 27 3-11 per cent.

In merchandising business you must, in like manner, add to the invoice net cash price, all expenses such as interest freight, cartage, rent, light, wages, salary, depreciation, and a great many foreseen and unforeseen disbursements, all of which have to be provided for in holding and handling the goods, while the profits are the only revenue. These added together make the actual cost, and this is the proper basis on which to calculate your profit or loss. This sum, divided into what you have lost or made, will give you the percentage of loss or gain, and this cost, so ascertained, compared with your sales, will show your profit on your loss.

Selling End Safest.

As already stated, the cost cannot be ascertained in advance, but it will be found in almost every case to be much nearer the selling price than the invoice price, and if you must fix on an arbitrary basis, then what is approximately nearest, if it be safe, should be selected, which is, as already mentioned, the selling price, and the percentage ascertained by calculating on the selling basis, is the safest for the merchant, because if his business is a paying one, he is sure that he is at least making as much as he calculates, while working on the invoice price, he never makes the profit he thinks he does, and is sure to be disappointed at the end of the year.

The Rule.

Your correspondent gives a "Table of quick methods" to find the selling price as compared with the invoice price, but does not give the rule. The rule is, to subtract the percentage required from 100, then multiply the invoice price by 100 and divide this sum by the sum you get by subtracting the percentage wanted from 100. For example, to sell the article mentioned as bought for $3.75 at a price to give him 25 per cent. on the selling price, taking 25 from 100 gives 75, multiply $3.75 by 100 and divide by 75 The result will be $5. To prove the rule, 25 p.c. of $5 is $1.25, which added to $3.75 makes $5. This is absolute, and after subtracting the percentage required from 100, the question becomes one in simple proportion.

To simplify it, deduct the percentage from 100, treat the sum as a decimal and divide it into the price at which you bought. An article costing $7.30 you want to sell at a profit of 27 per cent.; take 27 from 100 giving 73; remove the decimal point two figures to the left, making 73, divide into 27.30 gives $10.00, the price to be sold at. Having a selling price given, to find what an article should cost, add the percentage you want to make to 100 and divide this sum into the selling price after multiplying by 100. In the case already cited (sold at $1,500) if you want to find the cost at a figure to give you 33 1-3 per cent., divide 133 1-3 into $1,500, multiply by 100 and it will give you $1,125 as what should be the total cost. To prove this, add 33 1-3 per cent. of $1,125 equal to $375 to $1,125 and the result is $1,500.

A Misleading Belief.

I have frequently asked a customer what profit he made, and have been told about 25 per cent. His opinion was that when he bought an article at $1 and sold it at $1.25 he was making 25 per cent., and upon inquiry he admitted that he was depending upon the results of his business from the standpoint of the rate of profits he was making on the volume of his sales for the year. I would then point out that $1.25 was the sale price and that the 25c. which had been added was not 25 per cent. on $1.25, but to be exact it was only 20 per cent. while he was depending upon getting 25 per cent. In fact he was doing business all the year in the belief that he was making 25 per cent. on his sales when he was only making 20 per cent. and, of course, was disappointed because he found that upon a turnover of say $10,000, he only made $2,000 over and above the amount of his purchases, instead of $2,500. You can readily see how deceptive this would be for him to make only $2,000 when he thought he was making $2,500. He perhaps knew that his expenses would be about $2,000 and wondered why he had not made any money during the year.

Safety the Important Thing.

This question is especially vital to the success of every wholesale and retail merchant, and your paper is doing a splendid service in educating the business community how to figure profits. Above all things in business the important feature is safety, and in the absence of a known cost it is safe to take the selling price, and the selling price represents the turnover, and all merchants calculate their rate of profits on the turnover at the end of the year.

I think I have covered the ground fairly well (without using mathematical terms) and trust it will be of some interest to your readers.

Profits in Raising Grade of Business

Suggestions for Lessening the Losses and Bettering the Working Conditions of Retail Grocers Throughout the Country—Some Coffee Ideas—Working From the Top Down—Knowledge of Knowing When to Stop Necessary—Pushing to Success.

By Henry Johnson, Jr.

It would hardly be right to call the next problem touched on at the recent convention of retail grocers as a question—rather is it an assortment of questions, as follows:

"How shall we increase the profits, lessen the losses and shorten the hours of the retail merchant?"

Surely, the attainment of these three desirable ends will carry us a long way forward toward the millennium; yet not only are these ends worthy of all effort to attain them but they can be attained; and not only that, but they will be attained, because we are now in process of their attainment.

Wheels Within Wheels.

But these are sweeping questions. The first involves all others, practically, since, to increase the profits really means to decrease the losses at the same time—though not absolutely so; and the full and complete answer to this question should cover almost all there is to successful merchandising.

To increase present profits we must RAISE THE GRADE of our business; that is the only way I have yet evolved to express the idea. For you cannot increase the profits through raising prices nor always through reducing costs; certainly not by substitution of inferior goods; and not thru merely knowing how to figure margins in the best way. No: you must blend all these things—except reduction of quality—into one and apply the result to the elevation of your business. This elevation is accomplished through taking time and giving deep meditation to the problem of how to advance the sale of goods which pay us well. Take the most important item first—coffee. Look over what you have, to satisfy yourself whether it is just the right assortment; whether it admits of pushing, with resultant satisfaction and profit, as it stands now. If it does, go to work on it. If it does not, work on it from the other end—to make it right FIRST. This last can be accomplished through taking the matter up with your roaster—going into heart-to-heart details with him; telling him just what you are after and how it is up to him to get you on the right track. If he is the right man, as I assume he is, he will see that you are in serious earnest and will give the matter the consideration it deserves. Then you mark what he tells you—learn the details of this complicated and profitable line as fast and fully as you can. Then when you have the right line, fix the right prices.

A Generous Margin.

Never mind temporary conditions, nor high markets, nor anything of that sort; but start with a generous margin for yourself—a margin which is wide enough to make it reasonably certain that you will not have to change your selling prices for years. I fixed my scale of prices when I bought a roaster, in 1902; and that scale was generous enough to enable me to stick at the same figures until January, 1911, when I advanced a flat 5c per pound. Now I feel reasonably sure that I shall never go back on those figures, no matter where the cost may go to; hence, as the market declines, I shall get back all I have gradually lost during the steady advance of the past three years.

Raising the Grade.

Suppose your line sells at 40c, 35c, 30c, 25c, 22c, and 20c. That gives you six blends, which is enough for almost any store—certainly enough until your coffee trade exceeds a ton a month, when it may be widened to, say, ten blends. Note two things. That I name the higher grades first and work downwards; and that the lowest price named is 20c. In some localities—in many localities, in fact—it will be well to have one at 18c, and maybe even at 15c, though these should be avoided wherever possible. But the plan is to RAISE THE GRADE, and this is part of the plan. But to go back: The higher prices are named first, as a matter of psychology, since the suggestion conveyed is that the best is the desirable coffee and every decline from that is reaching an article less desirable—hence the tendency on the part of the buyer is to constantly lean toward the better grades. The 20c limit is placed for the excellent reason that you cannot sell anything GOOD for less and make any profit for yourself. Lastly, even where it is presently necessary to have one at 18c or 15c, the method I propose will gradually eliminate, often very rapidly, the need for anything below 20c value.

Short Cut Course in Card Writing

LESSON II.

Instructions in Letter Formation and Shading—How to Hold the Brush in Order to Get Best Results—Gradual Development—Constant Practice Essential to Success—Watch the Arrow.

By J. C. Edwards. (Copyright Applied for).

The previous lesson (No. 1) dealt with "Single Brush Stroke Block Capitals." The capitals or upper cases, as printers know them, are used either as a whole word or line of words, or as the beginning of a word or series of words.

In show card writing the custom is to begin every line with a capital and in many cases every word. However, the privileges that a show card writer enjoys are greater than that of a printer, so long as he uses good judgment.

The capital letter is not as speedy a letter as the lower case or small letters, and is, therefore, used mainly for emphasizing or strengthening certain portions of the card, while the rest of the lettering may be done in either lower case or capitals and lower case.

One illustration on this page shows the proper position for holding the brush while lettering, another cut shows the mode of lining a card, and the inset in the upper left hand corner of the large plate shows the outfit necessary for the beginner, also another position of the brush while lettering.

Shading the Letter.

It will be noticed in the plate on the opposite page that each completed miniature letter has been shaded on the left side and bottom. This is the simplest form and quickest accomplished shade in general use in card writing. The main point to observe is that the shading on each letter is at the same angle. Say that the light falls on the letter at about 45 degrees it will cast a shadow about as shown in the accompanying card and plate. Shade with a mixture of zinc white and lampblack if a grey is desired. Do not get the shade too dark and always leave a narrow space between the shade and letter in relief shading. This shade is particularly advisable, as the wet shading ink is liable to cause the block letter to run and smear the lighter shade.

Spacing Rules.

A great deal of practice is required to properly space a card, but if a person follows the simple rule that an even amount of space should be left around the lettering, there will be little or no trouble.

For instance, the space between the line and the letter "P" should be the same as that between the little "e" and the line in the word practice.

The same rule applies in the other lines and also at the top and bottom of the lettering. Of course, where a light shading on the letter is used, there need be little notice taken of the spacing of the shade, as the letter stands out prominently and the shade is merely a relief on the supposed shadow of the letter itself, as will be noticed in the various shaded words in this lesson.

No Stroke is Too Easy to Practise Often—Watch the Arrows.

The letter "a" consists of three strokes as indicated by the arrows and numbers in the plate. Turn the brush slightly in the hand in the first stroke at each curve; the other two strokes are simply done with a single movement, being careful to over-lap them at the curve. The letter "b" shows the straight line ending with the curve at the bottom to the left and the reverse curve indicated by arrows 2 and 3.

"c" introduces another set of strokes which will appear in a great many of the letters in this and other alphabets and have already been shown in the capitals. "g" shows the "o" strokes with the segma—the figure at the top of the "g" which is an important one and should be practised much, as it appears often in many of the later lessons.

The straight lines come in the h, i, k, l, and many others in combination with the "o" or "c" formations and follow the various movements in the formation of each and every other letter. Note the arrows and the small marks indicating where curves are overlapped and you will soon learn the strokes accurately and with practice will be able to handle the brush with precision and speed.

Note.—Use a red sable flat brush in albata, about No. 6 to No. 8, a T square and a good lettering ink in black.

A stamped envelope to The Canadian Grocer, or to the author of this course in care of the MacLean Publishing Co., Toronto, will bring any information desired.

PROFITS IN RAISING GRADE OF BUSINESS.

Push for the Business.

Now PUSH! You have the right stuff—you KNOW you have it—you need take no back seat for anybody—have the strong courage of your well-founded conviction and GET THE BUSINESS. This is a long campaign; one without any end; for if you are to RAISE the GRADE of your selling, you must work at it all the time; and the game is worth the candle. First, train yourself, and your clerks steadily, and with infinite, kindly patience, to name prices on coffees—and naturally on all other things—from the top down. Work this all the time. Herein will come the greatest test of your ability as a salesman—to know when and where to stop in naming prices downward, so as to "get off" at exactly the right station. Some buyers can be raised quickly; some more slowly. Be careful about this. Raise them as fast as they will stand for it—but not fast enough to get them thinking that your store is high-priced. Advertise your coffees—never mind if this seems to overload that department, for the sale of coffees to people who are now buying elsewhere, whether your customers or others' customers, will mean the sale of other goods in steadily increasing proportions. Display coffees; have a sample can, or bowl, of one coffee on your show case with a price-tag, or neat sign on it, indicating that this is the coffee you are working on this week and that you are shading the price 2c a pound as an inducement for the buyer to try this one. Do this every week, beginning with the 40c and running down to the 25c, occasionally displaying the 20c, say once in four weeks. Use your windows in the same way. Thus you will soon make your store the coffee-store of your town.

Dressing the Window.

Now observe: You cannot do this without quickly becoming conscious of any short-comings in your business. If you start to use a window which you have long neglected you will speedily and automatically realize that you have been abusing the best advertising medium you have—have been allowing the very forefront, the vestibule, of your store to be an adverse advertising medium, so that you have not only neglected to make it a good medium, but have been making it the worst handicap on your own progress. Likewise, when you come to use your show case, if you find it all littered up with miscellany in dusty, hodge-podge disorder, you will realize that here you have been handicapping your business in another direction. In both instances you will "clean up," vastly to your own betterment. And so it will go throughout your whole store methods. You will walk in an atmosphere of betterment every minute of the day—ideas will occur to you with every tick of the clock—before you know it, you will have the reputation for the neatest store in town.

You will next tackle any other goods to which your attention happens to be directed.. Maybe chocolates, or canned vegetables, or soups—a line which has developed wonderful possibilities during the last five years—and whatever you take up you will look into in the same way; bettering the assortment, increasing the line, making attractive displays.

Feeling the Pulse.

In every particular you will keep your finger on the pulse of your trade, just as the physcian does when administering anaesthesia (which is not saying that you are going to chloroform your trade, you know!) to see that you are not crowding things too fast. Keep your old line; have the cheaper goods, only do not display them; be quick to note whether a customer seems to want to be "let alone" with what she has had, and fulfill her expectations without a trace of friction; in other words, have the lower priced things, but intelligently push the the better goods. Your advertising and all your finer goods will attract new trade of the best character and before you fully realize it, you will be doing a much larger business on a much higher plane.

Did I say there was a lot to this question? Yes: too much for this article. I must "continue in my next."

SWAT THE FLY.

If the grocer would stop to think that every fly is capable of carrying around with it a million germs and that only a few flies means a few million germs he would increase his efforts to rid his shop of every single one. All kinds of bacteria, all imaginable disease-causing microbes fasten themselves to the spongy, hair covered feet of the fly, and if the grocer allows him he will come into the shop and wipe his feet upon the different foodstuffs the grocer has on display.

There is no more industrious spreader of disease than the common house fly, and the dealer who is interested in the health of his customers upon whom he depends for his living will see that his foods are not exposed to the fly. His store is greatly improved in appearance by the absence of the fly so that it is to both his own and his customers' interest to banish it from the premises.

Remember the remedy, as has been set down before. Have every door and opening both back and front perfectly screened. The cost is small and results good. Then attempt to clear out all those that have taken up their habitation within and also clean up the surroundings of your store so that there will be no attraction for them.

WHAT EXTRACTS ARE.

The term "extract" is generally applied to those preparations obtained by evaporating expressed juices, or the decoctions, infusions or tinctures of vegetable or animal substances, until a mass of a solid, semi-solid, syrupy or fluid consistence is formed. Extracts differ from essences in that the former are less concentrated and usually contain water, alcohol, ether or other matter in which the base, or extract itself, has been dissolved. When water is employed, they are called aqueous extracts; when spirit is used as the solvent, they are called alcoholic extracts. When underproof spirits are used, they are termed spirituous extracts; when acetic acid is employed, they are distinguished as acetic extracts. Sometimes ether is used, and then the extracts are called etheral. Simple extract is a term applied to an extract prepared from a single plant, seed, fruit, flower or other vegetable substance. A compound extract is one prepared from two or more of such substances.

STILL ANOTHER SUGAR ADVANCE.

A further advance of 10 cents this week in refined sugar, places that staple 65 cents above the price ruling on July 1st. Even now the market exhibits considerable strength, so that any further adverse reports from Europe regarding the beet crop will probably result in reflected strength in the refined situation.

It is impossible just at the present to make any close estimate of the final output of the crop: many predictions are made including one as low as 6,500,000 tons, which is considered too low, but a conservative estimate sets the total European beet crop at 7,000,000 tons against 8,100,000 tons in 1910-11 and 6,136,911 in 1909-10 —provided that improved weather conditions prevail during the remainder of the season.

While there is a feeling in some quarters that the damage to European beets has been fully discounted, under the impetus given by speculation which has entered into the market, still with raws on this side a full 30 points below Europe there seems still a margin of safety, while late advances in new crop, October and December tends to strengthen this idea.

WESTERN CROP SITUATION.

Much indignation is being expressed both by the Press and the grain growers of the West upon the continued reports that are being circulated of damage done by black rust to the growing crop. From reports received daily by The Grocer, it would indicate that these are being made by interested parties who desire to cause a scare on the Winnipeg grain market. No damage of any extent has as yet been reported. The season has undoubtedly been an admirable one for the development of this disease, but Western farmers are beginning to realize that it is better to treat the seed before sowing, and consequently little damage is reported.

The weather during the past week has been more favorable toward the ripening of the crop, although it is not yet all that could be desired. However, reports indicate that if a sharp frost does not appear too early, a good crop will be harvested. Help from the eastern provinces has already begun to arrive in the West, and for the next four weeks, harvesting excursions will be the order of the day.

Barley cutting is already in progress, and some fields of wheat in the higher localities have been cut within the week. In two weeks it is expected, however, that the three provinces of the West will be in the throes of a gigantic harvest.

LOOK TO VINEGAR STOCKS.

With the pickling season approaching, the grocer should now be giving some attention to his stocks of vinegar. It is necessary that he be fully supplied, when the demand commences, for when it does come, it is with a rush.

The dealer who hopes to retain a customer's trade from year to year must necessarily supply her with quality vinegar. The housewife who finds her pickles spoiling through lack of best quality vinegar is likely, and most rightly too, to withdraw her trade from that store.

Leaks are liable to cut away the profits in vinegar unless carefully looked after. In this respect, leaking taps are the chief offenders, and to avoid this, many dealers have found a vinegar pump a good investment. Then, again, a dealer sends out vinegar in his own jars quite often and these are never returned. To overcome this defect, most grocers now charge for all jars or sealers sent out for this purpose. If the customer returns them, the amount charged is refunded.

BATTLE FOR YOUR OWN.

In one day last week, a mail order house in Toronto sent out catalogues weighing a total of 30 tons.

This gives an idea of the extensive manner in which consumers throughout the country are being reached by the big mail order houses in the city. It shows the large amount of money that is being spent by these houses to advertise to the people outside their own city and the attempt that is being made to draw trade that rightly belongs to the merchants in the smaller towns and villages. It should bring these merchants to a realization of the necessity of combating this evil of the trade.

Let this be the rallying cry for those merchants who are losing trade through the inroads of the mail order house to battle for the trade that rightly belongs to them. If the big stores are winning away their customers, let them make a determined effort to offset it. Now is the time to act before the outsider gets a hold on your trade that will not be so easily broken.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Offer suggestions to the clerk on how they might improve their selling power.

Go to the store in the morning with a determination to increase your sales during the day.

At the convention of Merchants' Clerks, of the Province of Quebec, held in Quebec City recently, Charlemagne Rodier, legal adviser in connection with the early closing movement in Montreal, delivered an address in which he declared that hygienic, as well as humane reasons urged the limitation of the hours of the store clerk to ten. Controller Ainey, of Montreal, spoke in laudatory terms of the example of Quebec, and thought Montreal would do well to follow the lead of the Ancient Capital. He would limit, he said, to fourteen years, the age at which children could be employed in stores.

Practical Methods in Retail Stores

London Dealer Who Has Display Cases for Vegetables and Fruit on Sidewalk — Featuring Specials on Awnings — Systematic Collecting of Accounts—Wall Spaces for Bags—Calgary Man Believes Sanitary Methods Pay Well—Order-taking.

Show Cases in Front of Store.

London, Ont., Aug. 10. (Special).—Scandrett Brothers have taken advantage of the sidewalk space in front of their windows on Dundas street to instal two cases for the display of vegetables, fruit, poultry and such perishable goods. The case is not original, being made by a firm in Toronto, Ont., but the interest of the affair lies in the way in which they have been built to fit the space.

The Scandrett windows are farther back by a couple of feet than the store fronts on each side. The cases are about four and a half feet high, including the feet, and of course shut off almost entirely the view of the windows from the street, but they present seasonable goods in an insistent way, which is more important. A galvanized iron box in each holds a supply of ice to keep the goods cool, and handles at the ends permit of the whole thing being carried in. The space beneath the cases, the glass fronts and tops, constitute an excellent way of complying with the demands of the most exacting health inspector, in the matter of exposing goods.

System of Collecting Accounts.

Vancouver, B.C., Aug. 10.—A local merchant believes that the only way to successfully collect accounts is by a systematic follow-up method which continually keeps the matter before the customer.

He goes through his books at intervals and picks out all those accounts that are past due and that should be paid. For each of these he has a follow-up system of letters which he sends to each debtor at intervals. The idea in this is to start in a mild manner with a mere suggestion to the customer in reference to the account, gradually following it up with stronger letters. It is best to collect an account with the least unpleasantness possible for the merchant wishes to have the good will of as many people as possible. This merchant has a book in which he places the wording of each letter sent out, so that when he wishes to send another, he can look back and see just what he said before and therefore judge how strong this letter following should be.

Features Specials on Awnings.

St. John, N.B., Aug. 10.—The importance of having what he called a "useful" awning was referred to the other day by a local grocer. He has four windows in his store with an awning over each, and one over the doorway as well.

"I don't believe," he said, "in letting any opportunity slip by when I can do a little advertising without costing me much. On account of having quite a stretch of awning I am able to feature specials each day on the coverings on the edges. I have had strips made of canvas on which I get letterings stamped featuring some particular line of goods which I wish to dispose of. For instance on a strip eight feet long and about four or five inches wide I have lettered "Fresh Hennery Eggs To-day," on another I place "New Golden Molasses," or "Choice Vegetables Just Received," and so on. You get the idea? Of course I change these signs every day or two, and almost always affix the price of the goods featured.

"I really believe that by tacking up these strips of ads, I am getting more and better results than if I simply had lettered on my awnings, 'Groceries, Provisions, Fruits, etc.,' as might otherwise have been the case."

Wall Spaces for Bags.

Port Arthur, Ont., Aug. 10.—"Up to a year ago I had kept my surplus supply of paper bags all piled together in a portion of the store house. If a clerk went out for two pound bags he would probably have to hunt through the whole pile to get what he required. Of course in these cases, the clerk is generally in a hurry and as a result quantities of bags were destroyed by being torn and strewn about the floor.

I decided to eliminate this loss and had spaces built on the wall that would just nicely hold a bundle of each size of bag. When a clerk went out all he had to do was to lift the required number off. This not only kept the bags in good shape but I was able to tell at a glance what bags I needed to order."

Banks on Sanitary Methods.

Calgary, Alta., Aug. 10.—A local dealer has demonstrated that a sanitary method of handling foods will in the end win out.

For some years he had been following the example of other grocers on the same street and displaying numerous articles of food outside. He recognized that this was not the proper method of showing foodstuffs, as when they went to the customer they were covered with dust and dirt and other disgusting substances. When he decided to show nothing outside, he had an uphill fight, as other dealers around him continued in the old way. However, he pointed out to his customers that it was for their good that he did this, and in many cases they were so impressed with apparently unclean methods used by some other dealers that they began to buy all their foods from this merchant, and were willing to pay a little more, knowing that they were getting clean food.

Delivery Man an Order-taker.

Regina, Sask., Aug. 10.—The deliveryman can be of a great deal of help in selling goods along with his regular work.

A local dealer in telling of the excellent chances presented to the deliverer to sell goods said that he received a great deal of extra business through this channel. His man, while delivering is instructed to be on the look out for any extra orders and he does help the sales sheet out wonderfully. Last week while on his delivery trip, he took along a package of a jelly powder that the store had just stocked and as a result of his salesmanship efforts he sold over one dozen packages, and also interested several other housewives, so that orders from them will no doubt follow.

This merchant takes as much trouble in instructing his deliverers about the goods carried as he does the salesmen behind the counter.

A Dealer Who Praises Good Work.

Winnipeg, Aug. 10.—During the hot weather, the clerks' ambition in the matter of dressing windows and arranging counter displays, naturally lags a little, and of course it is the merchant who can maintain enthusiasm in his employes that will get the best results.

A local merchant who has made somewhat of a study of this recently said: "In order to keep the enthusiasm of the clerk up, I make suggestions now and again that I think will interest them. I will come in some morning and say: 'I see Jones has a good display of so and so,' and then offer a suggestion that I think would be a good one. The clerk then generally goes to work determined to turn out a window trim that will attract more attention than Jones.' When they do turn out a good window, I praise them for it, pointing out the great value of the window as a selling medium. When they see that I recognize their efforts and give them credit for their work, it induces them to try even harder.

Montreal, Aug. 10.—A further 10c advance in refined sugar, bringing quotations $1.05 above the lowest point for the year, is a feature of the grocery market this week. The market is still strong and expected to hold, at least for some time.

Molasses are in good demand and this week an advance of 2 cents has taken place in choice Barbadoes which in half barrels is quoted at 35 to 36 cents. The strong sugar market was responsible in part no doubt for this increase. A fairly good trade in corn syrups at the advanced prices is reported.

Sugar.—On Wednesday of this week, prices on refined sugars were again advanced 10 cents per cwt., bringing quotations here up to $5.25. The general opinion seems to prevail that the market can be expected to hold for some little time, the movement in the immediate future depending on how the European beet crop progresses.

Syrups and Molasses.—There is a good demand for molasses and syrups, and the business done during the past week has been very satisfactory. The high price of corn has naturally caused an increase in the price of syrup and dealers thought that there might be some slackening in the trade but they were under a wrong impression, and expect the prices to be maintained.

Tea.—There is practically no change in the Japan tea market since last report. Teas are active and buyers are picking up small quantities of early picked teas which had been already shipped here at full prices. The home market remains quite firm and during the week import orders have been cabled out at a slight advance in many instances. The market is now practically bare of last season's teas.

CANNED GOODS

Toronto.—Prices on new pack canned salmon are expected to be named at any time now. While it is believed that opening prices will be higher than last year, the extent of the advance is uncertain.

Prospects for tomatoes have shown some improvement of late and a normal pack is expected if conditions continue favorable. They have got a fairly early start and much now depends on the length of the season. Indications are that there will be a good pack of corn. Opening prices on tomatoes and corn will not be named until late in September. Last year they were announced on Sept. 28th.

The general opinion is that strawberries are well worth the money now asked for them. "There is not a large demand for canned strawberries here," said one wholesaler, "but this year it will be larger than usual as few strawberries were ureserved this year."

Prices on spot tomatoes and corn are seemingly well maintained. Canned apples are practically cleaned up. Salmon is in fair demand.

ONTARIO MARKETS

POINTERS—

Sugar—Up 10c.

Prunes—Futures high.

Salmon—Opening prices soon expected.

Toronto, Aug. 10.—Trade is quite satisfactory for the season of the year, demand being pretty well spread over general lines. Summer lines are still in good demand, while a fair movement is reported in sugar, although it is expected to be larger later on when late fruits become more plentiful.

Continued unfavorable reports from the European beet district have forced raws upward and a further advance of 10 cents has taken place in refined, making quotation $5.35, a total advance of $1.05 since Feb. 1st. The market is still strong and expected to hold until near October, and probably afterwards. Any further unfavorable reports from Europe will likely result in another upward movement in refined.

Re-orders for sealers have not been large as yet, retailers being well supplied, the amount of fruits preserved this year so far having been rather small with a consequent slackness in demand for sealers.

Sugar.—Another 10 cents was added to refined sugar prices on Wednesday of this week, bringing quotations in Toronto up to $5.35, and making a total advance of .65 cents since July 1st, a phenomenal rise indeed. The case may be summed up in that further adverse reports of the growing beet crop in Europe has caused further expansion in raws. Holders in New York have in many cases withdrawn offerings, and Cuban raws are nominally $4.61, while sales for August are reported at $4.74 and the latter is nearer correct value to-day. Reports from Europe continue unfavorable and authorities agree that the weight of roots at present shows a deficiency of 50 per cent. Some authorities estimate that the crop will be a full million tons short, while other estimates exceed that amount. It is generally agreed that sugar can be expected to hold until close on October 1st, with further advances if conditions of growing beets keep unfavorable. The opinion is gaining ground that it will hold even after that, probably until the new crop in January, but this is still uncertain. This opinion has been strengthened by the fact that beet quotations for October and December have been advancing of late.

Dried Fruits.—The excitement in the California prune market has partially subsided. Just whether the high price reached will be held is somewhat uncertain and in this respect differences of opinion are expressed. A local fruit broker said, "I believe that prices will be maintained, for the drought that has affected the sugar beet in Europe has also damaged the prune crop and for that reason Europe has been purchasing California prunes." Another broker thought that prices had been advanced to an unwarranted basis, considering the large crop in California. "With the country's consumption only 40 per cent. of the probable output, even if Europe does take a large quantity, I do not see how the market can hold, and without the interests come to the rescue by buying up and holding surplus supplies, I expect to see a break. I have quotations on prunes from Servia and Bosnia in Europe at 1 cent per pound less than present California prices."

"Currants is another line in which I would not be surprised to see a break," he continued, "for while the crop is a large one, prices have opened just as high as last year. Valencia raisins are on a fairly reasonable basis, around 23 shillings which will allow them to be retailed at 3 pounds for 25 cents."

There have been reports from Europe that the citron crop will be 50 per cent. short and the candied product is accordingly firm.

Nuts.—Trade in nuts at this season is not particularly bright. The peanut stand disposes of a large quantity of this kind. Shelled varieties are in fair demand, but the other lines are decidedly quiet. The general situation in Brazil nuts is one of steadiness.

MANITOBA MARKETS

POINTERS—

Sugar—Advance of 10c.
Coffee—Firm.
Beans—Advanced 5c.
Prunes—Advanced.

Winnipeg, Aug. 10.—Trade continues to be as active as ever in all grocery lines, and with the ripening of the crop a feeling of security is beginning to prevail amongst the wholesalers. Optimism, however, has been a feature of the trade this summer, and it is confidently expected that if a good crop is reaped this year, one of the best fall trades in the history of the West will be encountered. Harvesters have already begun to arrive and retail merchants at the present time are fairly well stocked with canned goods, and other lines, that will be needed by the various private farmers and threshing outfits, who will make use of this extra help.

The sharp advances in sugar which have been a feature of the trade during the last three weeks is not yet broken, another advance occurring this week. The local market is following very closely the attitude of the southern raw markets, and at the present time is very firm. There appears to be little chance of reduction, as from all sides nothing but higher prices are being talked. The arrival of the new crop is looked forward to with much anticipation.

The situation in the coffee market is practically unchanged from last week, except that no advance has been made within the last few days. As was pointed out last week, the present situation is very black, and the clouds have by no means cleared away yet. Local stocks are of medium size, and wholesalers are keenly watching the market to the south of us.

Dried fruits are practically cleaned up. Apricots and evaporated apples are off the market, and it would be hard to find enough odd lines in the whole city to fill a small order. A small stock of prunes are still being held, and this took a sharp advance during the week. It is confidently expected, however, that the market will be completely bare by fall.

Beans are the only line which has continued on its upward advance, and an increase of 5c. per bush. has taken place this week. This is the fourth advance in five weeks, and from the reports of scarcity in the east there is little doubt that higher prices will prevail. Peas are reported to be 5c. lower.

Sugar.—The demand for sugar continues as strong as ever, several country merchants having anticipated the further advance of this week. Prices quoted below are by the carload, and in small lots would be 5c higher.

Syrup.—The syrup market is being watched closely at the present time, and although it is hard to predict exactly what will take place, the tendency is for higher prices. Local stocks are good size, but the demand is strong, and it is quite possible that any bullish reports from southern and eastern centres will have the effect of sending prices up. There was no advance this week, and prices remain as follows:

Syrups—
24 2-lb. tins, per case	2 23
12 5-lb. tins, per case	2 58
6 10-lb. tins, per cate	2 46

New Orleans molasses, half barrels, per gallon	0 45

Dried Fruit.—The dried fruit market, as stated above, is practically bare at the present time, and all merchants are awaiting for the arrival of the new crop. A sharp advance has taken place during the week in prunes and 90 to 100s. are now worth 15c. per lb.

Coffee.—In spite of the steady market to the south of us the coffee market shows no advance this week, but the local dealers are keeping their weather eye open, and are fully alive to the southern situation. An active trade is being carried on, and prices remain as follows:

Coffee, standard Rio. 0 15	Coffee, choice 0 15
	Coffee, extra choice 0 17

Beans and Peas.—As stated above, an advance of 5c. per bush. in beans took place again this week. Scarcity in the southern market has accounted for this advance of 25c. per bush. which has taken place within the last few weeks. It is predicted by many of the large firms that higher pricee will yet be seen. Split peas are quoted this week at a reduction of 10c. per bushel from last week's price.

Beans, 3-lb. picker, per bushel	2 30
Hand picked, per bushel	2 40
Peas, split, 100 lbs	2 75

NOVA SCOTIA MARKETS.

Halifax, Aug. 10.—Wholesale grocers report business good in all lines, and collections fully up to the average for the season of the year. Dried fruits have practically all been cleaned up. Local packers have advanced the price of hams and bacon one cent per pound during the present week. Sales of syrups and lime juice are very heavy this season, and sugar is in good demand at all districts. Sugar advanced 10c this week.

Good dairy butter in small tubs is plentiful in the local market, and some of the dealers are quoting it at 20c to 21c. The stock is choice, and the price is considered reasonable, as just now the majority of farmers are busy making hay instead of butter. Fresh eggs are in light supply, particularly Nova Scotia stock. The price, however, remains unchanged.

The fruit trade continues brisk, and fruit is in good demand. The stocks of Jamaica oranges are pretty well cleaned up, but a steamer is expected along from the West Indies in the course of a few days. The last stock of repacked Jamaicas sold at $7.50. California pears are 50c lower, at $4 per box. Some early varieties of American apples are selling from $5 to $6 per barrel. Lemons are firm, and fancy stock is quoted at $6. Bananas are coming along slowly, and are selling at $1.75 to $2.50.

NEW BRUNSWICK.

St. John, Aug. 8.—Several interesting changes were noted in the local market during the past week, and because it is still in an unsettled condition, dealers look for other sharp changes in the market at almost any time now. Naturally, the most striking, although anticipated, feature of the market is the persistent rise in sugar, that commodity having ascended 55c in a month, and 10 cents again this month. Molasses is firm.

Pork is reported to be scarce, and an increase is noted in American clear. Beans are still on the upward trend, a further advance being looked for.

FORMER SUGAR FLURRY RECALLED.

The damage to the European sugar beet crops recalls a somewhat similar occurrence in 1904-05, but the damage to the crop was not fully realized until late in the year. The first regular estimate of that crop was 5,120,000 tons (Oct. 20, 1904), but the crop finally outturned only 4,708,758 tons, being over-estimated 411,242 tons. Quotations during the campaign ruled as follows:

	Beet	Centrifugals
Oct. 20-04	11s 0¾d	4.25
Nov. 10-04	15s 4½d	4.41
Nov. 23-04	14s 1½d	4.75
Jan. 5-05	15s 0d	4.87
Jan. 19-05	16s 3¾d	5.24

After the high prices of January 19, the "bubble" burst with widespread disaster in Europe, ruining numerous speculators including parties outside of the regular sugar trade; prices declined steadily until 8s. 8¼d. was reached in Aug. 1905, on indications of an increase of 2,000,000 tons in the next beet crop.

In June, 1904, refined sugar on a Montreal basis was $4.35, gradually expanding until quotations on Jan. 19th were $5.75. Then followed the decline.

Chatham Likely to Get the Beet Sugar Factory

Chatham, Ont., Aug. 10.—"We are going to build a beet sugar factory in Chatham as sure as you are sitting in that chair," was the definite and specific announcement made by D. A. Gordon, manager of the Dominion Sugar Company, which now has large factories in Wallaceburg and Berlin. "You may say for me that the sugar factory for Chatham is a sure thing and we expect to start work in a very short time preparing for next season. We are prepared to rush the building through in time for the next sugar beet campaign."

Chatham is granting the company a free site of 20 acres on the Barr farm, west of the city, together with a fixed assessment and, if desired, free water. The new factory will cost approximately $700,000 according to Mr. Gordon, in addition to which a drier will be constructed costing $90,000 to eliminate the odors and convert the beet pulp into stock food. The factory will be run as a branch of the Dominion Sugar Company, and will have a capacity of 1,000 tons of beets daily.

A by-law to grant the necessary concessions will very shortly be submitted to the electors of Chatham.

FUNERAL OF MONTREAL WHOLESALER.

Montreal, Aug. 10.—(Special)—The funeral of the late Albert Hebert, who died suddenly in Switzerland about a month ago, took place on Saturday. Financial, commercial and industrial men of Montreal were largely represented in the cortege. Among those in attendance, in addition to near relatives, were the following: Hon. L. P. Brodeur, Minister of Marine and Fisheries; G. W. Prescott, Panet Raymond, A. Ouimet, J. A. Brodeur, N. Dupuis, O. S. Perrault, Samuel Nesbitt, M.P., R. L. Innis, Senator Wilson, Lawrence A. Wilson and Colin Campbell.

TRADE NOTES.

Sarnia, Ont., grocers will picnic on August 30, at Lake Huron Park.

Munn Brothers have opened a new grocery store in Kamloops, B.C.

Wm. Fleming, Dundalk, Ont., has joined the clerking staff of the Stephens Store, Collingwood.

The Gaspe Fish Co., with headquarters at Petit Rocher, N.B., has been incorporated, with a capital stock of $50,000.

With the retirement from the grocery business of W. Clark, Vancouver, B.C., the retail trade of this city loses one who has always taken a considerable and active interest in everything tending to the advancement of the business. For two years he has been president of the Vancouver Retail Grocers' Association, and was also concerned in the extension of the scope of organization to the provincial field. His store has been taken over by Chris. H. Casher and R. Wilson, but the old name will be continued. Mr. Casher has been with Mr. Clark for ten years. Mr. Wilson has also been associated with him for two years.

THE VALUE OF HARMONY.

The business men in every town should work together. In this way much can be accomplished for the benefit of all concerned. In each town the merchants generally have similar troubles, and by working together, much can be done to remedy or improve these obstacles.

If the mail order house is found to be encroaching upon the merchants' trade, much more can be accomplished by combined action than by each merchant, single handed. In such a case as this, the merchants in the town should decide to do all their trading in their own town, purchasing their wants from one another. It would also be well to interest the printer or newspaperman in the town, for with his help a great deal more can be done.

Then those obstacles, against which the merchants in every town have to contend can be remedied much easier if the business men will only work in harmony. Some new and valuable measure that would greatly benefit trade sometimes may fail to be adopted because there is no union between the different men concerned. This should be different and each dealer should do his part to bring about a union of the merchants in the town.

Canned Salmon

Only a short time now until the prices for new pack will be named. From what information we can gather the market is likely to open at high figures. We are offering for shipment now:

Victor Red Salmon, 1's Tall, = $1.75 Doz.
Shamrock Red Sockeye Salmon, 1's Flat, 1 90 Doz.

Both excellent value.

Dates

Most kinds of dried fruit are now unobtainable, having gone into consumption at high prices. No doubt there are buyers who are looking for something to offer their trade at a reasonable price. We have some Choice Hallowee Dates at a price that should appeal to all---4¾ per lb.

Think of the puddings and cookies that can be made with this delicious fruit.

Coffee

Do not overlook our specials in this line:

Monarch, 30c. per lb.
Victor, 26c. "
Pantry, 21c. "

EDUCATE CONSUMER TO A HIGHER KNOWLEDGE

Suggestion That Retail Merchants Everywhere Should Exert Every Energy to Offset Apparent Conviction in Public Mind as to Oppression of Distributors of Foodstuffs—The Bettering of Trade Conditions by Conventions of Trade Sections.

By A. H. Harvey.

There seems to prevail in the minds of a great many consumers, the belief that the retail dealer is exacting more than a fair profit from them. Every convention of retail or wholesale dealers is looked upon with a certain amount of suspicion by the general public, who are inclined to believe that at these meetings, those interested "cook" plans for their own benefit, but never give a thought to the consumer. That such a belief exists is shown by a recent short communication to a Toronto paper, which read:

THE POOR CONSUMER.

Editor World,—Do you think it is fair to let the consumer of groceries broil while the wholesalers and gilded retailers cook plans for honest dealing? Who at the grocers' convention spoke for the consumer? Is it not a fact that the consumer simply has to take what is given to him? Why not have the consumers convene and agree to do their own grocery business?

Co-operation.

This shows that every move made by grocers' associations is believed to be for their own benefit, and will, in the end, exact a higher rate for the goods from the consumer. This prejudice is one of the big difficulties against which the dealer has to contend. If it could be removed, it would certainly be of wonderful benefit to the trade in general. Just how it may be overcome is somewhat of a problem, but each individual dealer, knowing that such does exist, should do what little he can to overcome it. Much could be done if each dealer would try to win the confidence of his customers by impressing on them the facts that he takes them into consideration as well as himself, that he wants a fair living profit upon the goods sold and no more, and that association work is for the improvement of trade conditions in general, and is not any union of dealers to rob the consumer. Such would work for both the good of each dealer and the trade in general. But it is wished to be impressed upon the dealer that he do nothing that will in appearance strengthen this prejudice which has already gained ground in the consumer's mind.

The establishment of the C. H. Catelli Co., Ltd., manufacturers of alimentary pastes, is situated in Upper St. Denis Ward, corner of Comte and Sanguinet Streets, Montreal. It is under the management of an European expert and the manufacturing of all varieties of macaroni, vermicelli, spaghetti, macaroni short cut, small pastes assorted, melon seeds, stars, egg noodles, is an enlightenment to anyone. The success obtained by this factory with their "Swallow" brand depends in a large measure from the best flour, which is used and the method of mixing and preparing the paste mechanically in order to insure its perfect homogeneity. The best and newest machinery is exclusively used. A great advantage which this factory possesses over foreign factories is that it can deliver goods in a more palatable and fresher form. Another superiority which speaks volumes for the Catelli Company is the perfect control exercised on the standard weight of every package. They insist on this fact, because it is a guarantee of the highest, both for the trader and the consumer.

Big Trade in Cooked and Smoked Meats

Cooked Meats in Demand During Hot Weather—Temporary Lull in Trade for Other Lines—Hot Spell Affects Appetites—Provision Prices are Steady—Live Hogs Unchanged—Butter is Firmer—Prices High in England—Eggs Unchanged.

The warm weather of the past week has not worked any good for the provision trade, for as the temperature goes up, appetites for pork products seemingly take a slump. However, it is only a temporary decline and with a change to cooler weather, demand will again be switched back into its ordinary channels. The feature of the summer, and especially of warm spells like the past week, has been the big demand for cooked and smoked meats.

Provisions on the whole are steady in regard to prices. Live hogs are practically unchanged on Canadian markets. The English bacon market last week week was none too firm, but live hogs in the western States are maintaining their position well.

Butter is firm, with slight advances reported from some centres, higher prices ruling at country points. The farmers are now busily engaged in harvesting, which may account for smaller receipts at some points. The price of butter in England is higher than for some time back, due to the prolonged dry hot spell there.

There has been no notable change in the egg situation. There is quite a quantity of eggs arriving, receipts being on about a par with this time last year. Shrinkage continues heavy to the case. There is a good demand for strictly new laid stock.

A somewhat uncertain situation seemingly prevails in lard. While the Toronto market is firm, with some firms quoting slight advances, in Montreal the compound product has declined ½ cent per pound.

MONTREAL.

Provisions—Although the supply of hogs was much smaller than a week ago yet the feeling in the market was weaker, and prices ruled 50c per 100 lbs. lower than a week ago. At this reduction the demand from packers was fairly good and trade was more active, with sales of selected lots at $7 to $7.25 per 100 lbs., weighed off cars, but there were a number of lots which were contracted for at the latter end of last week, delivered at $7.50. The market is still strong, owing to the increased demand resulting from the hot weather. Prices for hams and bacon are all higher, and the price of pork has been advanced 50c per barrel. Compound lard has declined ½c per lb.

TORONTO.

Provisions—Just at the moment, under the torrid weather now prevailing, demand for pork products is inclined to quietness, but with a change to cooler weather, trade will, no doubt, return to normal again. Cooked and smoked meats are being given a good deal of attention. One firm quotes lard this week at ¼c advance over present quotations in both pure and compound. While a representative of a Chicago house is quoting pure at a full ½c advance. Live hogs are unchanged.

Butter—The steadiness in the butter market reported last week has turned into an advance of 1c per pound in some lines of both creamery and dairy. Dairy was none too plentiful last week, but arrivals of late have been more free. The weather is affecting it to some extent.

Honey—This season's new clover honey will soon be on the market. No. 1 comb honey for delivery in two weeks is quoted at $2.50 per doz.

WINNIPEG.

Poultry—A little activity was noticed in the poultry market last week with the arrival of a small supply of chickens from the country. At present the supplies received are from Manitoba alone, as eastern goods will not arrive until the Christmas season. The outlook at the present time for the fall trade is very good. Supplies are expected to be a little larger, but it is predicted that trade will be more active, as the high prices which prevailed last year, both for buying and selling, are agreed to be a detriment to the volume of trade transacted, and consequently lower prices are likely to prevail this year. It is rumored that some houses which bought stocks at the high prices prevailing last year are barely clearing expenses at present prices.

BEAN PROSPECTS ARE IMPROVED

Chatham, Ont., Aug. 10.—That the recent rains throughout the bean-growing district practically ensure the big crop of approximately one million bushels predicted earlier in the season was the statement made to-day by N. H. Stevens, president of the Canada Flour Mills Co., and one of the leading Canadian authorities on bean-growing.

"The bean crop has improved wonderfully in the past two weeks," he declared. "I think we can look for the crop of beans to go 20 per cent. more bushels than we got last year. There are some fields where the vines are curled, but these little showers lately have brought them along nicely. The acreage is about 20 per cent. higher than last year."

Mr. Stevens estimated the 1910 crop at between 700,000 and 800,000 bushels. This year it will quite likely reach the million mark. The rains in mid-July came at a critical moment, and have proven immensely beneficial.

Flour is Firm Under Higher Wheat

Some Talk by Millers of Advancing Prices—Others Wish to Find Out if Wheat Will Hold Before Making Change—Wheat Prices Forced up by Black Rust Reports — Amount of Damage Done Somewhat Uncertain.

Flour, under higher quotations for wheat, has taken on a much firmer aspect this week, and there has been some talk by millers of advancing prices. Some mills have advanced prices 20c per barrel in the Maritime Provinces, but there has been no change elsewhere. Others are inclined to wait until it is found if the wheat market is going to hold. Whether any advance takes place or not in flour depends on the action of the wheat market. On Tuesday prices broke slightly, for while the quotation on the Toronto market at the end of the week was $1.06 for No. 1 Manitoba, on Tuesday it declined to $1.04½.

Black rust reports from both United States and Canadian wheat fields have been the chief factor in the recent expansion of wheat prices. Just the exact damage that has been done by black rust is uncertain, for until early in the week Canadian authorities denied anything serious from this cause. A report from Chicago says: "Crop experts declare the atmospheric conditions in the Canadian west just the kind to spread black rust and to hold the growing grain back enough to increase the chance of frost in the west about the middle of the month." There may be no truth in this whatever.

Trade in flour and cereals, as is natural for the season, is inclined to quietude, business being of a hand-to-mouth character. Western Canada reports an improved trade in flour with the Orient, and there seems to be a good opening for the Canadian product in this part of the world.

MONTREAL.

TORONTO.

Flour—Under pressure of black rust reports, both in the Canadian and United States west, wheat prices have been advanced during the past week. Under the higher price for wheat there has been some talk of advancing prices on flour, but some mills are inclined to wait in order to ascertain whether wheat is going to hold before making any change. One Toronto firm reports an advance of 20 cents per barrel in the Maritime Provinces. Trade continues routine in character.

WINNIPEG.

Flour—Domestic trade in flour continues to be exceptionally brisk in all provinces of the west. Export trade to the Orient is rapidly developing. One large company at the present time is sending monthly shipments of high-grade flour to Suva, Fiji, and report not only that the prospects are very bright for the development of trade at this port, but that there is a large field opening up for Canadian flour in other parts of the Orient. Prices remain unchanged from last week. Quotations are:

1st Patents, per 98-lb. sack	2 65
2nds	2 45
3rds	2 25
1st Clares	2 00
Common grades	1 50

Mill Feeds—An increased interest appears to be taken in bran and mill feeds this week, and in view of the strong demand, bran has advanced to $17, and shorts to $19. Eastern provinces are the best customers at the present time, and in view of the activity of the eastern trade prices have advanced. A large part of the local mill feeds is being sent to the New England States of America, where the farmers are busy putting flesh on their feed stock. Winnipeg firms are able to put their stocks on the American market, after paying duty and heavy freight rates, at the same price as the local mills are able to do.

The Time to Look to Stocks of Spices

Rapid Approach of Pickling Season Renders Advisable an Inspection of Supplies—How Dealer Could Anticipate Amount to Buy—Some of the Things to be Considered if Maximum Profits are to be Reaped From Minimum of Expense.

While the pickling season is not yet here, still it is close enough for the grocer to begin thinking. Now, when business is none too brisk, is an excellent time for the dealer to anticipate his wants. Nothing will be gained by holding off to the last moment when the rush of the season is on.

When forming an estimate of his wants, the dealer should consider the amount he has sold in previous years and also the amount now on hand. If his spice trade has been gaining ground from year to year, he will probably find it necessary to order a little more than last year. If there are any lines which were asked for last year and which he has not in stock he should consider the advisability of stocking those. Some dealers may argue that only a couple of customers asked for those particular lines. But if two customers asked for them, why cannot a demand be created among other consumers for them? The retailer should attempt, as far as possible, to supply all the wants of his customers.

The Housewife's Pride.

The pride of the housewife in a shelf-full of home-made pickles has created a big general demand for spices during the annual pickling season. In some places a large percentage of this trade is going to the druggist simply because the grocers in those towns or districts have not given to this important fall side-line the attention they should. But those dealers who have put forth some extra efforts in this direction have found the results pleasing.

Spices are not the easiest thing in the store to handle, but by proper arrangement this handicap may be reduce to a minimum. It must be remembered that spices contain a volatile oil, which is really the strength of the spice. This oil easily evaporates, and to avoid this the spice should be contained in a receptacle that will prevent evaporation.

How Spices are Kept.

A tin canister, in which spices are generally sold to the retail trade, is as good as any, but care should be taken that it does not become dinged so that the top will not fit on securely. Spices in packages hold their strength well, too.

Some grocers also keep their spices in wooden receptacles, with apparently good results. Others have them in glass bottles with glass stoppers, which, besides preserving the strength of the spice, displays it to good advantage. The stopper must, however, fit tightly. The name should, of course, appear on each vessel.

When new stock arrives—if bought in bulk—and is opened up, care must be taken to place each spice in its proper receptacle. Mistakes in mixing two spices and the consequent displeasure of customers has been bad, not only for the spice trade, but the store. If possible, a separate scoop should be used for each spice, as traces of turmeric amongst cloves, for instance, does not work well for the store's reputation for carefulness.

The Keynote.

Carefulness is the keynote of a successful spice trade, with weighing also a most important feature. Purchases being mostly in small quantities, and in the majority of cases in two-ounce parcels, this is all the more necessary. The most sensitive scale that can be bought should be used if the grocer wishes to retain his full profit on this line. Exact weight—no more and no less—should be forcibly impressed upon the clerks.

"How can I sell the largest quantity?" is a question the grocer will ask. Of course, ample advertising will do much in this direction. The keynote should be quality, and accordingly it should be backed up by quality goods.

Displaying of spices in the window is a difficult matter, because, thus exposed to the air, they are liable to lose a certain percentage of their strength. However, a small quantity of each kind could be shown, with price card attached, or, if the grocer can arrange some method of showing them in glass, so much the better. When the pickling season opens the spice receptacles should be moved up to a position of prominence.

A good fair profit is reaped from the properly-conducted spice department, but, as said before, carefulness and no "leaks" are necessary.

Grocers' Letter Box

Editor Canadian Grocer.—A question which has been asked often is: "What should clerks pay for their goods?" Should they receive a percentage off all goods purchased for themselves? Should each clerk take his own order and send it out without being checked? Please answer through the columns of The Grocer. Our clerks will find out through the paper, as it is watched keenly.

H. B. O.

Victoria, B.C., Aug. Grocer.

Editorial Note.—The question raised in the foregoing letter is one that all merchants do not regard in the same light. There are some merchants who give employes as much as 10 per cent. off all goods purchased for themelves; others give a smaller reduction, while many refuse to give any discount whatever on the goods purchased by salesmen. One merchant in giving his opinion on this matter to The Grocer, said: "I prefer not to give any discount whatever to any clerk. I, myself, would rather pay a little higher wage to a clerk, and let him pay the regular price for his goods. Some years ago I did give a percentage off to my help but I found the privilege in some cases to be abused by clerks buying goods for their friends and relatives and securing a rake-off on the deal. Of course, a really honest clerk would not do this, but in many instances it was the case, and accordingly the just had to suffer, if they really did suffer, with the unjust, for I did away with the discount practice."

"In my opinion," said another grocer, "it does not seem as if it made much difference to the employe which way it works. If he gets a percentage off, he is not really entitled to the same salary as he otherwise would. Then, again, some clerks will not require any groceries at all, and if a percentage off is given to other clerks, other things being equal they are being given a preference over those who do not purchase goods, but who have to pay their board. The next thing the unmarried clerk would be asking a discount off his landlady's groceries, so he might secure his board cheaper.

"In the face of this, I think it would be better not to give any discounts whatever to clerks. The large city stores, which are somewhat of a model in business methods, give no discounts to employes.

"In regard to clerks doing up their own goods and sending them out without being checked up by another member of the staff, this should not be. Not that any dishonesty might be practised but most clerks would wish, and demand, that this be done just to remove or prevent any suspicion that the employer might have that he was taking more than he paid for."

Both the lemons and oranges now coming on the market are of excellent quality.

WHEN SERVICE COUNTS.

Department Store Salesman Explains How Courtesy Helped Him.

"Several years ago," said a salesman recently, "I was employed in a departmental store. Now the clerks in these establishments are not always as obliging or polite as they might be, but I realized that it did not cost anything and as it helped in sales, I was always as courteous as possible. One day a lady came to my counter and I succeeded in selling her quite a good sized bill of goods. When she had finished she enquired my number and I began to wonder what I had done to offend her, thinking that she was going to report me for some offence. However, I heard nothing of it until about a week later, the manager of my department walked up to my counter with this same lady and said, "This is the number you enquired for." I thought that I was surely in for it, but I found out differently. The lady told me that I was the first clerk who had ever been really civil to her in the store and she had enquired my number so that she might come to me each time she came to purchase. Now, my courtesy brought that lady back to my counter many times to be served, while her enquiry of the manager for me had placed me most favorably in his opinion."

It certainly pays the clerk to be courteous. Not only should he be civil but should do all in his power to oblige customers. A store's patronage depends upon the service given and nothing is so much appreciated by customers than these little obliging acts of the clerk. It may be only opening the door for the customer to pass out, tying a parcel extra well or many of the other small things that the clerk may find to do, but the customer nevertheless makes a mental note of them and they help in binding the customer to the store or the salesman. The cost is small when compared with the results.

THE STORY HE TOLD THAT NIGHT.

Not often does the public have the opportunity of hearing some of the great men of the country talk and spin yarns in their leisure moments. A newspaperman was in the Mount Royal Club the other night and happened to be able to get a little group of old railway pioneers together—men who are now financial forces in Canada. One of them, whose name has to be witheld, but who used to be "The Assistant Engineer" out in the Rockies when the C.P.R. was built, tells a tale about himself and a horse—a yellow horse—which is really worth reading. It appears in MacLean's Magazine for August.

Sugar Market Report In This Paper Made Much Money For Manitoba Dealer

When a merchant can say he made more than Two Hundred Dollars reading a trade paper, that paper must be closely studied. S. H. Wright, Dauphin, Manitoba, is another of our thousands of readers who makes The Canadian Grocer a profitable investment. He writes as follows:—

"Dear Sirs,—

"Enclosed you will find $2.00. Kindly renew my subscription to The Canadian Grocer, as I feel I cannot be without it.

"It made over One Hundred times its subscription for one year for me in one sugar deal, when I bought just in time, after reading The Canadian Grocer.

"Yours truly,

"Dauphin, Man. S. H. Wright"

A paper that makes money for its readers is bound to be a profitable one to advertisers, its advertising pages will command attention and must form impressions on the minds of readers.

Home Grown Fruits in Larger Supply

Late Canadian Fruits Now on the Market—Trade on Fruit Markets is Brisk—Lemons in Good Demand—Prices are Unchanged—Tomatoes are Lower—Larger Supplies of Canadian Potatoes—Watermelons Sell Well.

Impetus has been given to the fruit markets at most centres by the arrival of home-grown fruits in larger quantities. Small fruits of various kinds are now nearing an end, but considerable late fruits, such as peaches, pears and plums, are being offered, and retailers are beginning to push the sale of these lines for preserving.

Lemons are in good demand at present, the weather at most centres being more favorable for their sale. Supplies on the whole are only normal and prices will likely rule steady for a time, much, however, depending on the weather and the consequent demand. Oranges are holding their own, although prices in New York last week were slightly easier, due largely to the increasing supply of fresh apples. One report from New New York says: "The general impression seems to be that the stock will clean out pretty well at the present market price. It is pointed out that there is a marked falling off in shipments from the coast, and that this is going to have its effect on the situation here before the end of the month."

Potatoes are unchanged, but the tendency can naturally be expected to be easier, as the supply of Canadian potatoes increased. Prices at buying centres in the United States were easier at the first of the week. The available supply of Canadian potatoes falls far short of total requirements and will for some little time. High prices are inducing farmers to dig them before they have attained their full growth, so that many lots are small in size.

MONTREAL.

Green Fruits—In spite of the high prices prevailing, dealers report good business and seem more satisfied than they were this time last year. California plums are somewhat cheaper this week, as are watermelons. Valencia oranges are dearer, but are expected to resume their former prices very soon.

TORONTO.

Green Fruits—Trade in fruits is quite brisk at present, the arrival in larger quantities of Canadian fruits having given impetus to demand. Prices on peaches, pears and plums are lower, with a good brisk trade being done. Tomatoes are coming in freely, the recent warm weather having ripened them quickly, with the result that prices are down to 30 to 40 cents per basket. Lemons are steady, while oranges hold their advance fairly well. The present weather is bringing a good trade in lemons. Lawton berries are plentiful and this week are down to 5 to 7 cents.

Vegetables—New crop Spanish onions now arriving are meeting with a good reception. The quality of some lots, however, is not quite all that could be desired. Canadian beets, carrots, lettuce, cucumbers, etc., are plentiful. Potatoes are unchanged, although primary markets are slightly lower. There are considerable Canadian potatoes on the market now, but receipts will not measure up to demand for some time yet. Green corn is a present good seller.

WINNIPEG.

Fresh Fruit—An active demand is in existence for fresh fruits, and large supplies are being received at the present time from Ontario, as well as British Columbia. From the latter place a moderate supply of cherries and raspberries are still coming in. The plum and peach crop of B. C. is reported to be very short, and it is not likely that there will be any of this line for this market. This western province has the largest apple crop in her history, and as Ontario is also reported to be shipping freely, it is likely that this fruit will be fairly cheap on the local market this winter.

Green Vegetables—There is little new in the green vegetable market this week, except a few minor changes in prices. American vegetables are practically off the market, having been replaced by the native-grown, and a few from Ontario. Prices have fallen with the arrival of local supplies, but they are, nevertheless, at a figure which pay market gardeners a very remunerative revenue for the growing of the same.

Fish - Oysters

Season of Quietness in Fish Trade

Warm Weather Naturally Brings Slackness in Fish Trade—No Improvement Until Cool Weather—Oyster Season Will Open Around September 1st—Nova Scotia Receipts are Small—Bait Continues Scarce, While Weather Has Been Bad.

The warm weather prevailing in most parts of the Dominion is not proving beneficial to the fish trade. Business under such conditions is slack and no great improvement can be looked for until the cooler weather. The oyster season will open the end of the month.

Receipts of fish on the Nova Scotian coast have been light of late, due to two causes, the continued scarcity of bait and the bad weather prevailing. The arrivals were principally cod and haddock. The latter showing a marked improvement in quality of late.

QUEBEC.

Montreal.—The present hot weather is not proving beneficial to any of the wholesalers. Business is slack and will remain so till the colder weather arrives.

Haddock and cod are plentiful, but the prices are low. Fresh Gaspe or Eastern salmon are about finished. Brook trout and fresh dore are scarce yet, but will be in a better supply by September. Boneless and skinless cod are scarce.

MANITOBA.

Winnipeg.—An active fish trade has been in existence, as this summer fresh white fish has been in good demand and is selling at 9c. per lb. The source of supply is practically exhausted as the limit of catch has been reached in Lake Winnipeg. This will tend to have a depression on the trade in this line, as fresh frozen fish will have to be used in place of the fresh fish. A few may be expected from western points, but the quantity will not be large enough to have any material effect on the trade. Trout, which is received from Rossport and Port Arthur, have been a little scarce during the last three or four weeks but is expected to be fairly plentiful toward the end of September. Present price is 11c. per lb. Halibut, which is received from Vancouver, has been steady, and supplies are extensive. This fish is selling at the same price as white fish. Salmon at the present time is commanding the highest price of all, namely 15c. per lb., and is predicted to go higher, owing to the scarcity prevailing in New Westminster and Vancouver, from where our supplies are received. In spite of the high price prevailing in this line, the demand has been very strong, and the volume of trade transacted very satisfactory.

ONTARIO.

Toronto.—Trade in fish is quiet, for while the warm weather should be a good time for the sale of this line, still the difficulty in shipping and handling during the torrid weather causes the retail dealer to lose interest in this line at this time of the year. Prices are unchanged as well as the whole general situation in the fish market. The oyster season will open around the first of September.

NOVA SCOTIA.

Halifax.—Trade continues quiet in the local fish markets. The receipts during the past week have been light. The arrivals were principally cod and haddock. There has been a marked improvement in the quality of the latter fish, in fact they are now better than for several months. Smoked fish is in good demand and local dealers report largely increased sales of finan haddies. Orders are on hand for all the smoked haddies that the dealers can fill, but the weather is bad for curing, and also for exporting. Some shipments of Nova Scotia haddies that were sent to the Canadian market arrived in poor condition, owing to the excessive heat, and the dealers therefore are not over anxious about making shipments during the warm weather.

Scarcity of bait continues to be the principal drawback to the vessels operating on the Banks. The weather has also been bad. Several of the Lunenburg fleet put into Newfoundland this week for bait, but failed to procure any. Their catches ranged from 500 to 700 qunitals each, which is considerably below the average. Some small catches of mackerel have been made on the Nova Scotia coast this week, but there are not enough fish on the market to supply the local demand.

STORE PHILOSOPHY.

It is important that your clerks know just what you are advertising and what you are saying about it.

It is a bad thing for salesmen to have too little to say, and equally as bad for them to talk too much. Educate them to the happy medium.

One good quality in your make up won't make you a success. You must have many. Honesty, courtesy, hustle, and the other qualities, single handed are of no great use.

Teach your clerks how to serve a customer correctly by setting them a good example.

Don't allow your talk to customers to become mechanical, like some clerks, who hit on a certain line of talk in the morning and keep it up all day.

If you have a clerk who is a relative, don't let that be an excuse for treating him any differently to the rest of the staff.

When placing your order for Canned Fish, be sure you have the name right :

The Merchant and the Mail Order House

Encroachment of Department Store More Apparent in Places Where Dealers are Inclined to Hang Fire on the Question.—A Comparision Between City and Country Prices.—The Power of the Merchant's Example.

By W. J. B.

It is an undisputed fact that the heads of mail orders houses in the large centres are fast growing rich with the enormous trade they are receiving from all parts of the country, and which rightly belongs to the home merchant.

It is also well known that this trade has been growing larger of recent years and that it will continue unless the merchants of the country make a determined attempt to combat it.

A great deal of this trade which is helping to swell the revenue of the departmental stores comes from the towns and villages, and it is the merchants of these places that are affected to the greater extent. But the merchants who have suffered the most and whose trade has been affected most by the inroads of the large city stores are those who have done nothing whatever to combat it. If there is anyone who is to blame that customers are sending out of town for goods it is themselves, for allowing the mail order house to entice their customers away.

Some there have been, here and there, among the many, who have made some little effort to hold their own, but evidently they have not commenced with a determination to win out, or they would now be enjoying a much larger patronage. Most dealers expect loyalty to their home town to keep the people from trading elsewhere. But loyalty alone will not. People will buy where prices are lowest, quality and service considered. Dealers have waged loyalty campaigns, with such slogans as "Trade at home," "Build up your own town," etc., but to no purpose. If you wish to secure the trade of the people of your own town, you must appeal to their business instinct.

Merchants' Prices Lower.

It is true that most merchants in the smaller towns can undersell the mail order houses. This fact has been demonstrated many times. A careful comparison of the prices of any dealer with those of the mail order house will show it. The city houses may undersell on a few lines which they use as a "bait," but taken straight through everything considered, the country dealer has them "beaten to a standstill." If this is not so, there is certainly something radically wrong.

That this is true is only what can be expected when one carefully considers the question. The expenses of the mail order houses are enormous: They pay out thousands annually in the issuing of their catalogues alone. They have many expenses that the smaller merchant has not. They have higher rents and wages to pay, as well as many other extra items. All these must be paid and the people who deal with them must pay it.

The fact that the country dealer can sell as cheap or cheaper than the mail order house is not however going to hold the trade at home. Past experiences have demonstrated that. The people must be convinced that such is the case, and how to do so is the problem with which the merchant is confronted. The first step in this direction is that the merchant be thoroughly convinced himself, which should be easily done by a comparison of prices, and then follows the work of convincing the customer. A great many of the merchants in the smaller towns and villages are convinced themselves that the country dealer can sell as low as the mail order house, but even in the face of that belief they will themselves at times send to the mail order houses for goods.

Case of Furniture Dealer.

In a country town not more than a hundred miles from a big centre is a furniture dealer who bitterly complains about the damages that the mail order houses are doing to his business. Yet this same dealer, who claims that the people should buy their furniture in their home town, sends to the mail order houses himself for supplies of dry goods and groceries. Why he does so is not explainable, because he states that the country dealer can sell just as cheaply as the mail order house. At any rate, this is another example of a man's action being completely contrary to his advice.

How, in the face of his own actions, can this man expect the people of that town to continue to purchase goods of him. Whether it is or not, it looks like an admission on his part that the mail order houses can give more for the money than the country dealer. At least, that is the way that the people in that town will take it any way.

This policy is no doubt carried out in many other towns throughout the country. The retail grocer is complaining that the department store draws trade from him, that the wives and daughters of the dry goods, the boot and shoe and of the furniture dealer send to the department store for their groceries, but he does not take into account perhaps that his own wife and daughters send to the same place for dry goods, instead of making their purchases in their home town.

Loyalty Versus Pocket.

In other words, loyalty to his town goes just so far as it affects his own pocket. When it is a question of groceries, the citizen who sends to the city for them shows shameful disloyalty to his town. The dealer hotly discusses the question, asks the citizen who helps pay his taxes, build his sidewalks and maintains his town. He declares, and proves it accurately in figures, that the country dealer can sell just as cheaply as the mail order house, and his customers are inclined to believe him. Then, a few days afterwards, they see the expressman deliver a parcel from a mail order house to his home. What is the result? Only too well the dealer knows. Merchants in other lines of business in that town do the same thing and as a result the yearly purchases of the merchants themselves from the mail order houses amount to a considerable sum and the citizens of that town, under this demonstration begin to more strongly believe that the mail order house is the cheapest place to buy.

Let Merchants Remember.

It would be well if merchants in these towns would form a friendly compact among themselves and agree to purchase all their supplies from home dealers. This would be one step in helping to convince the people of the genuineness of their arguments and would have a much greater effect than the reader on first thought would think. Example is a strong asset in directing the actions of the public and in this case would be of great advantage to the merchant.

TALES FOR SUMMER WEATHER.

For six months the editorial department of MacLean's Magazine has been collecting little short stories from Canadian writers, until now there is a large enough stock to allow the magazine to give in the August number several of these "Little Tales for Summer Weather" all at once. There is "The Green Hour," by Deshler Welsh, a regular contributor for the better American Magazines. Then "Sally's Soul," "The Lonesomeness;" "Music Hath Charms," and others, offer short, crisp reading for these hot months. Of course, in addition to these articles there are the regular longer short stories. There is another of O. Henry's inimitable tales of New York life, and other material from some of the best Canadian, English and American writers.

The Grocer's Encyclopedia--Macaroni

Facts in Connection With the Manufacture of This Foodstuff—How the Essentials Entering Into the Making are Mixed Together—A Comparison of Food Qualities With Other Standard Products.

Retail grocers throughout Canada are showing a mote lively interest in macaroni during the past year or so, and, as business has increased appreciably, it is wondered by manufacturers why this article has not been more generally received long before this present year of grace.

It is wholesome and nutritious and the price is surely well within the range of the average pocket. Everything seems in its favor. It is not that macaroni is not a familiar term, and most people have tasted it at some time or other. One is lead to believe that the grocer has not put his selling power behind this article. It is one of the goods that he has probably bought "just to have in stock," forgetting that in it he had something which offered many strong selling points. This is perhaps one reason and because of the fact that the handling of macaroni presents another avenue of profits it should surely commend itself to the retail grocer.

What Macaroni Is.

To begin with macaroni is made of flour and water. The flour used, for macaroni of the best quality, is the finest product of the Canadian West. Two bags of flour are mixed with about 40 lbs. of water. This is believed to be the average, although with some manufactures it may vary more or less. The "dough," if such it may be called for convenience, is thoroughly mixed in a special machine. It is passed into another where all the lumps are broken up, and following this operation it is passed into the "presser." Most people have seen a sausage machine and have watched the operator filling the castings—the material pressed out through a single opening. In the manufacture of macaroni the bottom of the press has numerous holes of whatever design is required. The machine exerts a pressure of—in at least one particular case—1,400 lbs. to the square inch. There are no casings into which the macaroni is passed. The long tubes appear through the openings at the base of the machine and hold their form after coming out, thanks to the fact that there was only the necessary percentage of water.

The macaroni tubes are cut into certain lengths, are allowed to dry, and are then ready to be placed in boxes for shipment. Roughly, this is the method usually followed, and it is surely evidence of the nutritiousness of macaroni.

In the best quality macaroni, as manufactured in Canada, a mixture is made of semolina and the best winter wheat flour. The semolina is the heart of the wheat. It is simply so many little crystals, whereas flour is powdery. To those who have never seen macaroni made the outstanding feature is the seeming simplicity with which it is accomplished. Of course the real difficulties occur in the proper mixing of the flour and water in the right constituencies that will give a dough sufficiently moist to pass through the press and yet not too moist so that it would fall to pieces after it had come through.

It will be understood of course that the dough is quite firm. Just sufficient water is adhed to hold the flour together. At least that is all that appears to the onlooker. The press works slowly, otherwise the machine would be unable to withstand the strain, and some part would have to go. When you examine a stick of macaroni you will be able to realize how firmly the particles have been pressed together, thus explaining the reason for their remaining in their tubular form.

Macaroni and Its Uses.

It is not necessary to go into the history of macaroni. That will probably be done in the course of another article on this subject. The principal point is to show that is is worthy of attention from the retailer. It has been often said that bread is the staff of life. So it is, and also it occupies a prominent position in the list of necessaries that keep life in us. But compare the nutritious qualities of bread with those of macaroni. The latter is the essence or rather quintessence of the wheat. It might also be worthy of note to know that macaroni has been a favorite with many of the foreigners who do our railroad construction work and other laborious tasks, and if it has proved valuable as a food to them it is surely good for others. Macaroni is wholesome, nutritious, and there is a good profit in it, facts all that should appeal to the retail grocer who is willing to put a little effort behind it.

A GROCER'S CO-OPERATION

RISING SUN Stove Polish in Cakes gives a lustre which far outlasts all others under the heat of the stove, and that is why it has so many friends that call for it over the grocery counters the world around. We believe that the real live grocer wants to push the goods that please his customers, and that is why we have the hearty co-operation of thousands upon thousands of grocers everywhere. It pays you to push it.

Blanc-Mange Is Not The Only Thing

Most women think of Cornstarch in connection with only one single dish—the making of blanc-mange. If they only knew it, there are one hundred and one different uses to which it can be put. For instance, is fine to powder candies, such as marshmallows, etc. It has a flavor which brings out the sweetness of the candy. This is a little thing, perhaps, but it is telling your customers little things like this which proves to them that you are interested and thus helps trade for you.

BENSON'S PREPARED CORN

The Best Proposition!

Looked at any way you please, no line of goods holds out the same inducements to the Grocer as

UPTON'S

Jams, Jellies and Marmalade

First, they are made from the finest fruits in the world---Canadian Fruits---selected by experts and preserved and bottled in an up-to-date, sanitary factory, which is a model of cleanliness. Second, the "Upton" line never 'sticks,' because our extensive consumer advertising has created a demand for these goods; and third, selling "Upton's" specialties invariably leaves a satisfaction and profit-margin behind that makes trading a pleasure.

The absolute purity of Cox's Gelatine makes it a standard product of world-wide fame. Whether in powdered or shredded form, it is still as free from foreign substances as the clearest rock crystal from mother earth.

Cox's Gelatine

It has never disappointed, and never will, because folks get what they expect and want when they buy the peer of all—"Cox's." Highest quality to-day, to-morrow and all the to-morrows to come. A safe and certain asset for a grocer's stock - in - trade — always worth its face value of 100 cents on the dollar.

Codou's Macaroni, Vermicelli, Spaghetti, fancy letters and pastes, represent the top-notch of quality—the highest attainment of skill, experience and cleanliness in a model factory, said to be (by those who really know) one of the finest in the world.

Codou's Macaroni

A macaroni whose delicacy and whiteness bear witness to the caution used in selecting only finest wheat (from Taganrog) for the making. Tender as a macaroni can be, nutritious to the highest degree. Let the name on every package "Codou" serve to assure you of highest quality when you buy.

A Word To The Wise

Don't be Misguided or Gold-Bricked. All Pure Spices are Not First Quality.

A WARNING

NOW the Spice Season is again approaching, we want to emphasize the absolute purity and high quality of all Litster's Spices. Some people consider the words "Purity" and "Quality" synonymous, but this is not a fact in the Spice trade to-day. The days of wooden Nutmegs and sanded Peppers may be gone, but the exploitation of "pure" goods of "poor" quality is flourishing.

After the manufacturers of essential oils have exhausted by their scientific methods all the goodness contained in the large quantities of spices they use, the poor spent article is sold to any spice mill willing to use same. These millers are within the law in Canada at present. They can label their goods "Pure" and by mixing with different proportions of unexhausted spices can give a semblance of quality. The United States Government now prohibits the use of such spent spices and probably by reason of that fact the sale in Canada has assumed large proportions. Within the past few days we have had offered to us spent Cloves of good appearance at half the price of what we are using, ground Pepper skins at four cents per pound, "very hot and pungent," Pepper shells 3½ cents per pound, broken Pepper at 2½ cents per pound, "pure and a good ash test," spent Ginger at six cents per pound (after the Ginger Ale men get through with it) and exhausted Allspice at two cents per pound "good for whole Pickling Spice" (but tastes like sawdust.)

Now just as there are many spice mill men who will use this stuff, so there are grocers who do not object to handling it. If either sold it at low price commensurate with the cost, it would not be so bad, but they usually keep the price just about the same as the genuine above board article. Again, most of the grinders of spent spices are cute. Nothing is said about using them in their product. Neither their salesmen nor the purchaser know anything about the fraud. The consumer gets the worst of it. The moral is plain—a word to the wise is sufficient.

When the Litster Pure Food Company commenced business, they resolved to produce only high grade goods of absolute purity. This decision has been strictly adhered to Not one ounce of spent or exhausted spices of any kind has been or will be used in their factory.

MACLEAN'S MAGAZINE

Note the contents of the August Issue:

DID LAURIER BETRAY US,

When he spoke, and acted, as he did at the Imperial Conference? No. He did not. But somebody did, somebody that the average Canadian has never suspected before. We really believe that the "average Canadian" will find something along this line to think about in an article in the August issue of MacLean's Magazine, written by the Editor, who went to London, and who followed the proceedings of the Conference from the beginning to the end.

THE LINE-UP OF THE FINANCIERS.

A writer of much painstaking industry has figured out that the financial interests in Canada are in the hands of twenty men, and these twenty capitalist-directors are subdivided into three groups. This financial combination controls industries and utilities of far-reaching importance. The August MacLean's gives a complete history of the Canadian financiers and the industries with which they are connected.

OUR BAD MANNERS AND WHO IS TO BLAME.

Every now and then somebody rises out of the congregation of the Righteous and declares that the "Manners" of the Canadian Child are "terribly neglected." The latest critic was Earl Grey, and following his charges there was a prolonged discussion in which the Public Schools of Canada were apparently on the defensive.

In the August MacLean's is a contribution in which the writer claims that Earl Grey is right in attacking us—although he should attack more than Canada—and that at the same time the Public Schools are right in saying that they are not solely to blame. The trouble is from a much deeper source. The Canadian people should try to find the cure. This article hints at it.

WHY THE JEW IS HEALTHIER THAN THE CHRISTIAN.

In the midst of squalor the "poor" Jew thrives. Under the same condition the "poor" Gentile contracts disease and falls into degeneracy. In an epidemic it is the Gentile who suffers. In the recent hot weather it was Gentile babies that died, not so much Hebrew little ones. The August issue of MacLean's contains an article explaining or suggesting an explanation for this phenomenon.

LITTLE TALES FOR SUMMER WEATHER.

For six months the editorial department of this magazine has been collecting little short stories from Canadian writers, now there is a large enough stock to allow the magazine to give its readers several of these "Little Tales for Summer Weather" all at once.

There is "The Green Hour," by Deshler Welsh, a regular contributor for the better American magazines. Then "Sally's Soul," "The Lonesomeness," "Music Hath Charms," and others offer short crisp reading for these hot months. Of course, in addition to these stories there are the regular longer short stories. There is another of O. Henry's inimitable tales of New York life; and other material from some of the best Canadian, English and American writers.

THE STORY HE TOLD THAT NIGHT.

Not often does the public have the opportunity of hearing some of the great men of the country talk and spin yarns in their leisure moments. A newspaperman was in the Mount Royal Club, Montreal, the other night, and happened to be able to get a little group of old railway pioneers together—men who are now financial forces in Canada. One of them, whose name has to be withheld, but who used to be "The Assistant Engineer" out in the Rockies, when the C. P. R. was built, tells a tale about himself and a horse—a yellow horse—which is really worth reading.

MacLean's Magazine is on sale at all news stands. Twenty cents a copy. Two Dollars a year.

Where Canada Stands in Canned Goods

Outlook for Ensuing Year is Not Bright—General Shortage in Fruits—Will be a Big Demand as Little Fruit was Preserved—Goods Will Have to be Imported — Pea Supply Not Large Enough to Supply Demand but Prospects for Tomatoes and Corn are Quite Good.

Wholesalers and jobbers are wondering just at present how the canned goods situation is going to turn out this year. There have been short packs in a number of lines of both early fruits and vegetables and dealers are somewhat uncertain as to the outlook in different lines of canned goods for the ensuing season. With a view to ascertaining how the dealer stands in this particular, The Grocer got in touch with a number of Canadian brokers and wholesalers familiar with the canned goods trade and received their opinions on the subject.

Fruits on the whole so far this year have been short. True it is that there was a full pack of cherries, currants and gooseberries, and lawton berries will probably also come up to the standard, but the consumption of these lines is comparatively small. Strawberries and raspberries are the chief fruits in demand and they are both short.

Big Western Demand.

"Strawberries, of which about 65 per cent. of orders will be delivered," said one broker, "are shorter in regard to the total pack than last year. While it is not definitely known what percentage of raspberries will be delivered, still the pack will be a good deal short of last year. The West where the consumption of these lines is large is already clamoring for stocks."

Fruit and Sugar High.

That there will be a big demand for these lines is apparent. According to fruit dealers, the amount of fruit preserved by the housewife this year was particularly small." Everything was against it," said one dealer. "In the first place we couldn't get the fruit to sell, then it was high in price while the higher sugar market has not helped to increase the amount of preserving at all."

Then the consumption of fruits this year will be particularly large. The West with its increasing population is a big consumer. According to one broker the amount of canned goods consumed in the West per person is three times as large as in the East of the Dominion.

"It is quite apparent," remarked a wholesaler, "that the amount of canned fruits, especially raspberries and strawberries will not be nearly large enough to supply the demand during the coming season."

"Where will we get supplies to fill in this shortage?" he was asked.

"They will have to be imported. There will probably be a lot of preserved fruits imported from Great Britain and the continent. There was a great deal brought in last year as this trade is growing and with the shortage in fruits this year, imports will no doubt be larger than ever."

The late fruits such as peaches, pears, plums, grapes and apples are still to come yet. Peaches is another line that the housewife preserves a goodly quantity of when possible, and if they turn out to be favorable, this may tend to lessen the general demand a little for other lines.

Prospects for peaches, pears, etc., lines which are now beginning to come forward, seem fairly good, although the later part of the crop is as yet uncertain. Apples are not extra favorable in Ontario but it looks like a good crop in the Maritime Provinces. The quantity and price of dried fruits also enter as a factor in determining demand. Prunes may be fairly reasonable but peaches and apricots will be quite light.

Small Vegetable Packs.

Of vegetables, peas and beans were both short. Only 63 per cent. of orders for peas will be delivered and while the outcome for beans is not exactly known, they will be a considerable amount short.

"On account of the scarcity of green vegetables available," said one dealer, "there has been a steady demand during the past month for peas and accordingly the supply will be more speedily cleaned up. Then there is an increasing population in this country and canned goods are also becoming more popular, so that the consumption per person is larger."

"I do not think the pea situation is as bad as some believe," was another broker's opinion. "The total pack of peas has been considerably in excess of last year so far as I can see, and while only 63 per cent. was delivered, I believe that wholesalers in most cases profiting by experience of short delivery in past years, ordered a larger quantity than last year. Still, I do not think there is going to be enough to go around and imports of the Belgium and French product will have to be made."

Tomatoes and Corn Favorable.

The prospects for both tomatoes and corn up to the present are quite favorable. Tomatoes got started well and are shaping for a large pack, but much however depends on the length of the season. An early frost will curtail the pack, while if it keeps off until late, it will add considerably to the total production. A large pack will, however be necessary, as last year's stock has been completely cleaned up and for some time, imports have been made from the United States.

Asked as to the ability of the Maritime Provinces to supply their own demand for canned goods, a broker said that the production in the eastern provinces was considerably below the consumption on account of the uncertainty of the season. Especially was this so in tomatoes and corn, and supplies had to accordingly be brought in from Ontario.

Opening Prices in the Past.

A list of the opening prices, Group A, on some lines of canned goods for the past four years is given below:

Intensive Tension Prevailing in the West

Will There be Frost or Not?—Two or Three Days More Will Tell the Tale—Bright Promise of Record Grain Yield—Opportune Rains Filled Out Heads Well, But Increased Danger From Frost.

Staff Correspondence.

Regina, Sask., Aug. 16.—The tension throughout the Canadian West at the present time is great. It can only be thoroughly realized by a man on the spot. Not only farmers, but everybody is anxiously waiting to see what the weather-man will bring forth during the next three or four nights.

The fact is that if no frost visits Saskatchewan within the next four or five nights, this province will have the biggest grain yield in its history.

The Grocer, in traveling over the province during the past ten days, got in touch with a number of the farmers among whom the tension is, of course, the greatest. One would think at times that something would have to happen, or that these men would lose their heads. The writer also was in communication with Prof. Bracken, of the Agricultural College. Saskatoon, the latter explaining minutely the scientific points in reference to the character of the growing crops, as well as what the future will produce.

Farmers Pleased With the Rain.

In the first place the weather conditions have been splendid so far as the filling out of the grains is concerned. This is best exemplified by the remark of a farmer who said :—"If I had had control of the turning on of the taps, I could not have turned on the water at more opportune times." This was his method of expressing his appreciation of the rainfall during the growing season.

These opportune rains tended to fill out the grain admirably, but on the other hand, they have delayed the maturing of the crops at least ten days, and in many cases two weeks. So large are the grains, and so well have they filled out that in many cases The Grocer saw heads of wheat actually bending over with the weight. If this were universally the case, it would have a tendency to spoil the grain even if the remainder of the season were favorable. It would have the same effect as a garden hose bent so that the water could not run through—the nourishment from the earth would not be able to get into the heads. There is, however, little danger of much damage from this cause, as the stalks are, with the exception of a few cases, sufficiently strong to maintain the comparatively heavy weight.

Frost or Not?

The cause of the intense tension that prevails all over the West is the speculation as to whether frost will occur too soon and thus largely interfere with the crops. If by Saturday night, August 19th, no frost occurs, the danger of great damage will be past. On the other hand, if frost appears before that time, the West will be robbed of the best harvest in history. This is because the grain is not yet sufficiently matured to be only slightly damaged by cold weather. Next week there will be no occasion to fear any great damage, although frost at any time before harvest, will tend to cause a certain amount of injury.

One man summed up the situation like this : "If we do not have any frost by Saturday night next, the West will reap a great harvest ; if none arrives before harvest time, the West will literally go crazy."

The farmers with whom The Grocer talked are expecting 25 to 35 bushels of wheat to the acre, providing nothing interferes. This, of course, will be due to the rains coming at the proper time during the season of growth.

Farm Help Waiting.

The harvest will be from one to three weeks later than the average, as intimated above. Very little wheat in Saskatchewan as yet has turned its color. Farm hands by the score are to be seen at every station waiting to "jump" into the fields as soon as the sun ripens the grain. Warm, dry weather is prayed for from now on—and no frost at night. Many farmers have already made sure of their help by giving farm hands their board until harvest time has arrived.

Business promises to be the best ever, and, should no frosts appear and the wheat ripen early, it will be a safe gamble that the West will see the biggest and best year on record.

Neglected Credits--Giving of Coupons

Alberta Dealer Makes Inquiries About Changing From Credit to Cash—Advice on Dealing With the Farming Community—Quebec Merchant Wants to Stop Giving Coupons and Discounts to Customers—How to Go About It.

*By Henry Johnson, Jr.

The trouble related in the following letter may arise from neglected credits, or from lack of sufficient capital—and I think the lack of capital is really the trouble; but we can see:

——, Alta., June 22,1911.

Editor Store Management,

Canadian Grocer.

Dear Sir,—I notice from a number of recent articles that most merchants seem to favor the credit rather than cash business. I have been studying the advisability of going into the cash business. I am located in a small town of about 200. I am carrying between $1,500 and $2,000 on my books all the time, and that prevents me from taking advantage of all my discounts; and at other times I have had opportunities to buy goods at a better price if I could have seen my way clear to meet the bills when due. A recent article headed "SOME SOUND CREDIT ADVICE" suggests that merchants doing a credit business should charge 6 per cent. interest on accounts running over a certain length of time. What length of time would you consid right and proper? This credit business is very annoying. I think it holds us merchants down where we are not able to make as much money out of our business as we could if we got the cash.

Hoping to hear from you in regard to this matter,

Yours very truly,

M. D. O.

Doing business in a town of 200 and having outstanding from $1,500 to $2,000 on an average, it seems inevitable that this man is giving credit to farmers, and that is about the poorest credit a man can deal in. This is not because the farmer is not honest in his intention to pay his debts—for he most certainly is; nor is it because he cannot pay up; for under present conditions, he certainly can.

Reason for Farmer's Attitude.

The trouble is that the farmer has absolutely NO CONCEPTION OF THE ELEMENT OF TIME in financial or mercantile transactions. He reverses the position of the Irishman who, seeing a run started on his savings bank, went after his money; and when the cashier promptly counted it out to him, looked up amazed and said: "Why, can I get it?" "Certainly you can," was the reply; whereupon the Irishman shoved it back through the window saying: "Then I don't want it!"

The farmer thinks that so long as he is "good for" the amount, so long as it is true that, if he wanted to do so, he could pay the bill, the merchant should not want the bill actually paid; and, moreover, the farmer will become indignantly astonished if he be asked to pay up on any particular occasion, asking you in return whether you are "afraid you will not get your money;" and hardly any quantity of detailed, explanatory argument will get the matter off the footing of personal feeling onto the correct basis of impersonal business rules.

Slowness is Natural.

This is due to the psychology of the farmer which has become formulated under conditions peculiar to his calling. He has been accustomed to wait, watch, take chances and have such abundant patience with the action of outside agencies that he is unfitted to appreciate the inevitable precision of business laws and rules. Notice how he plows, cultivates, seeds; doing his work by fits and starts —18 hours to-day, 4 hours to-morrow—getting something finished with a rush one day, merely getting through with the chores the day after—all in subserviency of the weather.

Then after all preliminaries are completed, all he can do is drill around at the routine work of his farm and wait to see "what will the harvest be"—wait with a fatalistic view almost as blind as the husbandman of Egypt for what the gods may do for him—or to him. He is thus unfitted, utterly, to grasp the reason why of any man-made rules or laws which regularly and inevitably run their cycle in "30 days net;" and he simply cannot understand why you MUST meet your bills on the dot when due—irrespective of whether your rating is "$500 or $1,000, 2nd," or "over $1,000,000 1st." That is why the farmer is a poor credit risk and why I have always axiomatically ruled myself on the basis of "Never trust a farmer."

Why Cash Trade is Favored.

This mental structure of the farmer has the advantage that, if you set out to do a cash business, he is one who will approve of such business, trade with you freely, and thus be a good, staunch friend of yours on the Scotch basis of "Short Accoonts Mak Lang Freens." But here again you must "show him," and maybe my correspondent is not situated so he feels that he can make prices interesting on a cash basis. Yet he should be ideally fixed for that kind of business, for the reason that the town of 200 cannot be a place of exacting service nor expensive help. There must be little call for much quick delivering; little demand for goods of a perishable character; the necessary help for such a business should be procurable at the minimum wages. So that, while I, too, much prefer the credit to the cash business, if I were doing business where a big proportion of my trade was with farmers, I should stick to the strictly cash basis of doing business. Even then, however, I should have a line of good, reliable customers in the town to whom I would extend credit on thirty days' time; handling that end of my business myself and watching and nurturing it so that it might grow to be strong and vigorous.

I should like to have this man send me more details of his business. Let me know whether you are in the general store or simply grocery line; amount of stock; what capital; how much business done; full details of your expenses—in detail, or I cannot tell much about it; and tell me how nearly I have "sized up" your troubles in regard to credits at this time. Then I shall be able to analize things carefully and with fair completeness, and thus maybe really and practically aid you. Understand, that your communication may be perfectly free and open as it will be held absolutely confidential.

Safeguard Against Overstocking.

I would say, however, that as far as taking advantage of better prices through heavier purchases goes, I do not regard that as much of a disadvantage, and it may be a safeguard against the very tangible evil of over-stocking. A man to whom $1,500 or $2,000 average book accounts proves hampering can have nothing to do with charging 6 per cent. or any other interest on past due accounts. He is not and cannot be a money lender—let the banks attend to that end of it yet awhile. Learn to say NO; and say NO well within your limits of ability in the financial end of your business. The only length of time which is legitimate in the grocery business is 30 days. Credits should be extended only on the clear understanding that 30 days is the limit; that bills must be paid in full at the end of each month; and this rule must be rigidly enforced. Then if you catch a "tartar" take your loss at the end of the first month, when he owes you $8 balance; and do not wait, with any hope of "getting it all," until that balance is $18 or $28—and then closing the account anyway, having done every bit of your work for absolutely nothing—or worse. I shall await with great interest the further letters of this merchant.

*The writer of this article is one of the most successful dealers on the continent. He has spent almost 30 years in the retail grocery business and is well equipped to answer questions and smooth out difficulties with which others may have met.

Here is the Something-for-Nothing idea again:

————, Que., July 21, 1911.

Editor Store Management,
Canadian Grocer.

Dear Sir,—Permit us to ask your advice regarding the discontinuation of coupons and cash register tickets which we give at 2½ per cent. valuation. We did quit giving them at one time and were over-persuaded to put them in again, which we have always felt was wrong, and we would like to put a good and sufficient reason before the trade for taking the stand against them, but do not like to sacrifice trade in order to do so.

Could you briefly formulate a few reasons which we might set forth as stated above. Thanking you in advance for the favor.

Yours very truly,

B. C. & T.

My advice is to stop giving 2½ per cent. discount, or rebate on any such plan; stop it quickly and stop it finally; nor ever permit yourselves to be influenced to begin it again. But for formulating reasons why, or any other explanations, I advise with equal positiveness against any such thing. My reason for the first item of counsel is that you cannot afford to give 2½ per cent., or granting that you can afford it, you can use that money to vastly better advantage; and for the second item my reason is that "explanations do not explain."

Would Advertise Instead.

I should remove all evidences from my store—signs, etc.,—that I give coupons or discounts; then I should notify those who have begun to save such things that I was going to stop issuing them. I would in some way fulfill all contracts and keep faith with those who had taken my word for what I was going to do; but I would not start another soul on the saving of coupons, etc. Then, without any kind of reference to my old method, I would use the 2½ per cent. (or 2 per cent.) in bright, new, snappy advertising, to extend my trade among my present customers and attract new trade to replace those who might, temporarily or permanently, leave me because of my change.

The explaining business I should do personally and individually, because human nature is various and a straght business-like talk which would satisfy most people, or many people, would prove unsatisfactory—liable to be positively antagonistic—to many more. Tell those who ask just why you stop; that you lost money by it; that it did not work out; that you could do better in other ways. Do this frankly, revealing, if necessary, your expenses, etc., for there is no great mystery about two plus two, and frankness is always engaging. Tell me more in detail, and I shall try to give more helpful advice.

THE TENSION IN THE WEST.

Only those who live in the West or whose business connections enable them to feel the Western pulse, can realize the tension that has existed there during the past few weeks and will continue until the wheat crop is safely harvested. This pre-harvest tension, fully referred to on another page of this issue, has become an annual occurrence in the West, but it has been intensified this year by weather conditions that have given prospect of an enormous increase in the yield but increased also the danger of damage through frost.

During the growing season frequent rains are needed to fill out the grain. This year there has been an abundance of rain throughout the West and the heads of wheat are unusually large. A Saskatchewan farmer remarked to The Canadian Grocer that if the farmers of the West had had the control of the rain taps they could not have turned on the water at more opportune times. But these opportune rains have retarded the ripening of the grain for which the warm rays of the sun are necessary. Consequently the harvest will be from one to three weeks later this year than usual, and the danger of damage through frost proportionately greater.

The Western farmer does not welcome frost at any time during the summer but he is particularly anxious that it should not come while the grain is in the blossom. If it does the crop is not worth cutting. So during the past few weeks, while the grain was approaching that degree of maturity when it would pass out of the blossom, the tension has been intense because of the fear that through the lateness of the season the frost would strike the maturing grain and wipe out in a night a yield that promised to be much the greatest in the history of the West.

The two or three nights of last week when the moon was at its full were particularly anxious ones for the Western farmer because the danger of frost is greater at full moon than at any other time. The temperature dropped several degrees during that period but no harm was done and by the end of this week the danger of serious damage from frost will be over, for practically all of the crop will then have reached the stage when frost (unless it be unprecedentedly severe) will cause but little injury.

SOURCE OF PROFIT TO OUR READERS.

Every week The Grocer publishes an encyclopaedia article on something handled in the grocery store. The writer of this series is a practical grocer who combines with his own knowledge that of other retailers as well as wholesalers and manufacturers. The result is that an article containing good, practical knowledge is presented to our readers.

These are particularly interesting to clerks who are anxious to learn all there is to know about the goods they handle. To be first-class salesmen they must be able to talk intelligently about what they sell, and not reply, "I don't know," to almost every question put to them.

Our encyclopaedia is an important department in the paper. Hundreds of dealers and clerks are taking advantage of it. Our circulation representatives have been told by subscribers that it is worth much more than the annual subscription. Those who are not reading it every week can profit by studying it carefully.

LOSING MONEY ON ORANGE SALES.

The value of carefully checking up shipments of goods cannot be too strongly impressed upon the merchant. In the first place he should see that he receives the full amount called for on his freight bill. Then he must see that the count or weight of each article is the same as that called for by his invoice. Last, but by no means least, the cost of the article should be carefully reckoned and compared with the selling price in order to ascertain if the amount of profit is large enough.

In a country town, the other day, a grocer was selling 176 oranges at 40 cents per dozen. The writer thought he was selling them too cheaply, so asked the merchant to figure up the exact cost. He first looked up his invoice and found the case was invoiced at $5—higher than he had formerly paid. He was unaware of any rise in price. Then the total cost of transportation from the shipping point to his store was found to be 42 cents. The case therefore cost him $5.42 and he figured on selling 14½ dozen out of the case at 40 cents which would bring him $5.80, a total profit on the case of 38 cents, or less than 7 per cent., and that was allowing only for two oranges going bad. What about his cost of doing business?

Surely, it pays a merchant to carefully check up his goods.

HOW HE SOLD THE WASH-BOARD.

The Grocer witnessed a sale in a grocery store the other day which shows the value of suggestion in increasing sales. A customer had purchased some soap and was about to depart when the clerk remarked: "Any other lines for washing, such as blue, starch, washing soda or wash-boards?"

"I was just going over to the hardware store to get one.

"Oh, do you keep wash-boards?" said the customer, Let me see them, please."

So the clerk showed her and sold her a wash-board, and incidently it might be mentioned that being close to the brooms he also showed her one and succeeded in selling it.

Every merchant and salesman should ask himself, "Do I take full advantage of the opportunities presented to increase my sales?" "Are there any customers whom I allow to depart without selling them all that it would be possible if I put forth enough effort?"

It is unfortunately true that there are still clerks and dealers in retail grocery stores who serve customers without attempting to sell additional lines.

The real salesman sells more goods than actually asked for.

EGGS THAT ARE NOT EGGS.

A clipping from a Western Ontario paper reads as follows:—

> "Born.—In a local grocery, on Saturday last, a well developed chicken hatched from one of the eggs in a basket delivered by a woman customer. The young chick was carefully cared for by the grocer and his staff, but as the season is not far enough advanced for the handling of live stock yet in the stores, the young fowl died on the following day. Like the other merchants, this grocer feels that when he is buying eggs, he prefers them to be eggs and not chickens."

Just whether the merchant would prefer a chicken to an egg of the bad odor variety is a question. At any rate, it seems that he has little choice in the matter. There is a fortune awaiting the man who can invent some use for eggs of questionable quality besides bouquets for unfortunate actors, for the amount of bad eggs being delivered to dealers is extremely large, with the situation probably becoming worse instead of better. The country merchant or the commission man is not the person who should bear the consequent loss, but the farmer who continues to send them to market.

It would seem that the only direct solution of the problem is that the country merchant candle all eggs he receives and reject those that do not come up to the standard.

In the meantime, he might attempt to educate the farmer to deliver only good quality produce.

WORK FOR CLEAN STREETS.

A fruit dealer in Kingston, Ont., was fined during the week for throwing decayed fruit on the street.

Kingston is anxious to have clean, sanitary streets and its anxiety in this respect is to be highly commended. Retail dealers should in all cases take pride in the welfare of their home towns. A clean, healthy appearance always has a good effect in building up any centre, for in these days the general public is becoming more and more particular in the matter of selecting a premanent abode.

A public-spirited dealer is the best asset of any town. Its progress means his profit and each should do his own part in keeping clean his place of business as well as the section of the streets over which he has nominal control.

ABOUT THE ADVANCE IN FLOUR.

Manitoba flour during the past week has advanced 20 cents per barrel in Ontario and the West, and 10 cents in Eastern Canada.

This upward movement was due to the higher wheat market caused by adverse crop reports, chiefly of black rust in the Canadian West. It is now claimed that there has really been no damage from this source and quotations on wheat are less firm; or at least below the level ruling when flour was advanced.

For this reason and because of the favorable conditions for the present wheat crop, there is a feeling in some quarters that this advance may not hold long. Still, the advance is so small, that even if the wheat market does become easier, no change may be made until something definite regarding this year's crop is ascertained, when a price taking in the general outlook for the year will probably be named.

At the present time, barring some uncertain rumors of black rust, conditions appear favorable for a large yield. The wheat, however, has not passed the stage where it is liable to be affected by frost or rust.

A definite idea regarding the outlook will be known in about two weeks.

PREPARE FOR THE SPICE TRADE.

The pickling season is now not far off and the grocer who intends to reap the full advantages of the consequent demand for spices will now have preparations well under way for the handling of this annual fall trade. The dealer should now know pretty accurately what supplies he will need, and it is well that he get his stocks in order, so that when the call for these lines begins, he will be fully prepared.

In last week's Grocer, some advice in regard to the handling of spices was given which might well be studied carefully by the dealer, as from it he may glean some hints that will be of use in making his spice trade a success. Quality is most important in spices, for without it a dealer can not hope to maintain a hold on the better class of trade. Some precaution in the keeping, handling and weighing is also essential in order that this department may reap a good fair profit.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Opening prices on salmon were expected to have issued this week, but as yet no announcement has been made. Canners are apparently waiting in order to ascertain as accurately as possible the probable production this year before naming prices.

The fourth annual convention of The British Columbia Retail Merchants' Association will be held on August 28 and 29 in Vancouver. The Grocer would advise all dealers who can possibly arrange it, to attend the meetings as the questions deliberated will be of a highly interesting and profitable character.

A correspondent interested in the article in last week's issue as to whether a clerk should receive a discount on goods he purchases from his employer or not, relates the method of the late Timothy Eaton in this regard. The late Mr. Eaton in buying from The T. Eaton Co. not only paid the full retail price but paid cash as well, the same as any other buyer.

The seventeeth annual meeting of the Maritime Board of Trade was held in Moncton, N.B., Aug. 16 and 17th, and was largely attended by representatives from New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island. Many important trade questions affecting the Eastern provinces were discussed and dealt with. A full account will be given in next week's issue from a staff correspondent.

B.C. Organization After the "Deadbeat"

Annual Meeting of Vancouver R. G. A.—Information Bureau Becomes a Good Detective Agency — New Officers Elected— The Peddler Question Before The Meeting.

Special Correspondence.

Vancouver, B.C., August 17.—Much interest was taken in the annual meeting of the Vancouver Retail Grocers' Association, held on the 8th instant. The association has a membership of ninety-five and the good work being done is causing the organization to number among its members nearly all of the grocers in the city.

There are a few outside the fold, and the benefit of organization has been brought home to them in a very material way. During the last two weeks three parties have come to the city, and have been able to get accounts with non-members. The local association is in touch with Mr. Hyndman, of the Winnipeg association; Mr. Cope, of Lethbridge; and Mr. Ketchum, of Edmonton, as well as secretaries in this province, and any deadbeats are soon made known to the members. In the cases in point, the members were on their guard, and the cost to the non-members will be much more than a year's subscription. The local association has affiliation with the State of Washington, so that the organization is thorough, and the fullest protection is given to members.

On the Trail of Deadbeat.

This is done under the head of an information bureau, and its effectiveness was shown by a case this week. A man had got into grocers in Winnipeg and went to Regina, repeating the successful operation of separating merchants from good goods without cash payment either before or after. Then he went to Nelson, and to Revelstoke, and was located in Victoria by the association as he was about to open another account. Members were advised. Now the association is waiting to hear of him in Vancouver.

The past year has been a successful one with the local association. Much work has been done in the interests of the members, and the close of the year sees a fair balance on the right side. The meetings are enthusiastic, and the indications are for better work than ever.

Officers for Coming Year.

At the annual meeting the following officers were elected:

President—Thos. Duke, one of the old time grocers of the city.

Vice-president—T. F. McDowell.

Secretary-treasurer—A. A. Blain.

Directors—J. A. Henderson, A. Macfarlane, A. G. Main, F. W. Welsh, W. A. Walsh.

R. D. Dinning, the managing-secretary of the association, is making preparations for the annual convention of the provincial association to be held on August 28 and 29, during Exhibition week.

Among the matters discussed at the meeting on Tuesday evening was that of peddlers. The Wholesale Produce and Fruit Exchange has made a protest to the city council against peddlers being allowed to roam the city streets hawking their wares. This is also in the interest of the retailer, who has made protests in the past. At that time, the wholesalers were at fault as they supplied the fruit. Now it is being brought in from Seattle.

The assistance of flour and feed merchants is also being asked, carload lots of flour are said to be brought in and distributed without being warehoused.

B.C. Merchants to Convene in Vancouver

President Welsh Sends Out Call to All, Whether Members or Not—Discussions on Trade Matters by Both Wholesalers and Retailers.

Vancouver, B.C., Aug. 17.—F. W. Welsh, president of the Retail Merchants' Association of British Columbia has sent out the following letter to dealers of the Pacific coast province regarding the fourth annual convention of that body:—

"I have the pleasure of reminding you that the date of the fourth annual convention of the Retail Merchants' Association of B.C. is drawing nigh.

"August 28th and 29th are the dates selected as most convenient to the great bulk of our merchants, and as these dates coincide with the Vancouver Exhibition, when special rates will prevail on all railroads and steamboats, I trust you will make a special effort to attend. It is not necessary that you be a member of any association to ensure your welcome to this gathering.

"It is the earnest desire of the Executive that there shall be concerted effort upon the part of the entire retail trade of the Province to work together for the common good.

"The sessions will be held in the Orange Hall, cor. Gore avenue and Hastings street, commencing at 2 o'clock on the afternoon of the 28th.

"An interesting programme of discussions of interest to the different trades is in course of preparation, and the speakers will be men prominent both in wholesale and retail circles.

"The Vancouver Retail Grocers' Association have undertaken the responsibility of entertaining visiting merchants, and will tender a banquet to all visitors, and others, on the evening of the 29th.

"That adequate arrangements may be made, will you be good enough to notify R. D. Dinning, secretary, Room 21, Hadden Block, if you intend to be present.

"I would impress upon you that this convention is not for Grocers only, but for every retail merchant in B. C.

"I trust, Sir, I shall have the pleasure of meeting you on August 28th."

Practical Methods in Retail Stores

Winnipeg Merchant Tells Why Good Delivery Outfit is a Trade Attracter—Will Clean All Fish Ready for Cooking Befor Sending Out—Attention to Butter and Eggs Worked Up Trade—Reason for Cleanliness in Grocery Store — Montreal Grocer Does Not Let Syrup Trade Drop Off During Summer.

Value of Good Delivery Outfit.

Winnipeg, Aug. 17.—"In regard to appearances as a trade attractor, the value of a good delivery outfit cannot be too strongly emphasized," says a local merchant.

"A customer does not wish to have a wreck of a horse with a dilapidated wagon driving up to her front door with the supply of groceries. Chances are they will reason that a dealer who drives such a wagon is likely to give little thought to the manner in which he handles the food he sells. How much better an impression is made on the customer by a nicely groomed horse with a clean wagon in good repairs and nicely painted. This is the kind of a delivery outfit that is likely to bring returned trade to the grocer."

Adds Fish and Meat Departments.

London, Ont., Aug. 17.—Harry Ranahan, has added a meat department in the premises adjoining his grocery at 517 Richmond street. He has had it especially arranged for this purpose and he will give special care to the handling of meats, fish, poultry and game. Two large refrigerators have been installed, so that the meats may be kept in first-class condition.

One of the features of the new business will be that all fish will be cleaned and ready for cooking before the orders are sent out.

Makes Specialty of Butter and Eggs.

St. John, N.B., Aug. 17.—"When I started in business in this city eight years ago," said a local grocer, "I decided to make a specialty of butter and eggs. While I did not neglect the ordinary lines of groceries, I put forth a special effort to secure the very best obtainable in butter and eggs. These are articles of food which the housewife, especially in the city, has great difficulty in obtaining the best quality.

"I know of many customers whom I hold just from the fact that they can always secure good quality in these lines from me. It has always been the means of getting many new customers for me. First they would buy their butter and eggs. I would succeed in selling them some additional lines and in a short time they were regular customers. Of course, it is essential that the quality of these lines be the best. Good goods must not only be bought but they must be handled in proper manner after they reach the store."

Cleanliness as Trade Attractor.

Vancouver, B.C., Aug. 17.—"Perfect cleanliness in the store is an important factor in attracting trade for the grocer," asserted a local dealer recently. "It is an essential in every store, but most necessarily in the grocery, where food is handled.

"Every morning when our store is open, it is carefully swept, counters, ledges and show cases dusted, and as many shelves cleaned as time allows. I aim to keep my window looking clean and change it often, for even if the same goods are replaced, the dusting makes an improvement. I do not allow clerks to stand around idle during working hours, but intrust them in their spare moments to clean show cases or counters or re-arrange displays. I see that scales, knives, scoops and ladles are kept washed and do many other things that will help to give the store an appearance of cleanliness."

Maintains Syrup Trade in Summer.

Montreal, Aug. 17.—"My sales of syrup even during the middle of summer amount to a considerable volume," said a merchant of this city. "Trade in this line is greatly changed from a few years ago, when selling syrup after the first sign of spring was looked upon as being somewhat in the same class as attempting to sell fly screens in January.

"The truth of this matter was that the appetites of the people for this line did not drop off nearly as much as the ambition of the merchant to sell it. I have, however, demonstrated the fact to my own satisfaction that syrup is not only a winter food but a staple line of groceries. Of course, I do not sell nearly the amount in the summer but still my sales are large enough to warrant carrying a stock."

"No," he added, "I do not hide it under the counter and wait for customers to force me to surrender it up. I keep it in a prominent position on the shelves and at intervals I make a counter display and draw people's attention to it. My sales are accordingly maintained at an appreciable figure."

Believes in Variety.

Regina, Sask., Aug. 17.—"The housewife does not want to do any more walking or any more shopping than possible during the summer, and the store that can supply her with the largest variety of goods is generally the one she will patronize during the summer months, thus saving her the trouble of visiting many stores." Thus spoke a local grocer who realizing this fact last year put in a cake, biscuit and bread department in his store. There was no bakery in the neighborhood and as he knew that the housewife did not do much baking in the summer, it would be to his advantage to supply her with these articles, thus saving her a considerable walk. Near the door he placed a silent salesman in which cakes and tarts were displayed while on the shelves glass front biscuit boxes showed the fancy biscuits up well to the customer. He found this a valuable sideline, so much so that he is continuing it this summer.

Forward Principles.

Grand River, Ont.,-Aug.17—Five years ago Fristian Simpson, proprietor of the Opera House Grocery commenced business in this village and every year since there has been an increase, the past one being the banner year of all, double the amount of business done the first year having been transacted. Straight forward business principles and special attention to keeping his store bright and clean has done much. Mr. Simpson being situated in a farming community finds it to his advantage to look after the produce of his customers, and many people are attracted to his store because he pays cash for butter and eggs. Thus, while they have the ready cash, they find many lines which interest them, with the result that sales are increased a great deal.

Changes Display Often.

St. John's, Nfld., Aug. 17.—"Variety in display," says a local merchant, "helps to keep up the interest in your window. It should not be dressed with the same line of goods continually but changes to new lines should be made often.

One week I will make a display of canned goods, followed the succeeding week by something entirely different, such as flour, meats, or woodenware. The window should at least be changed often, even if the same line of goods is shown, so that it will present a differenet appearance to customers on each visit. A customer soon loses interest in your store if the window is kept continually the same, but if you are continually showing something new, they will get to watching your window closely for any changes."

QUEBEC MARKETS

POINTERS—

Imported Jams—Up 5 per cent.
Canned Peas—Almost exhausted.
Spot Tomatoes—$1.65.
Evaporated Peaches—Price advanced.
Seeded Raisins—Higher.

Montreal, Aug. 18.—Business is hardly as brisk as it has been during previous weeks, a little tinge of quietness being noticeable. This is attributed to several reasons. The harvesting season is generally regarded as a quiet time as the farmers are busy with their crops and are unable to get into the towns for supplies. Wholesalers mention this factor and there is no doubt that it has more or less effect. Then there are the approaching elections which generally provide a diversion from concentration on business and as the result of the two influences the markets show a little quietness. This feeling is not very prominent but still it exists in contrast to the heavy business that has been unbroken throughout the present year.

Sugar continues to create considerable interest, those who follow it closely asserting that the future depends largely upon the weather condition in Germany. With rain the tense situation will likely be broken, otherwise crops will be more seriously affected, and it is impossible to tell what the result might be. The local market is a little easier this week as far as demand goes, buyers seemingly being provided with supplies.

Dried fruits are still firm, prunes being higher in price this week. The growing crops are not being treated to the best weather and this combined with other conditions which have been referred to make the market strong. The same applies to practically all the dried fruits.

Sugar.—The market began to ease off slightly early this week, but it was regarded as nothing more than a temporary movement. The demand is a little easier, but there is still considerable buying. A big share of the annual business is yet to be transacted as the fruit season has just about reached the half way mark.

Dried Fruits. — Seeded raisins are quoted by some at from 10 to 11 cents, which is an advance on the quotations that have been in force. The market maintains its strength in every case. Prunes are high and just now are almost unobtainable, to use the words of one wholesaler. To refer to the condition would be simply reiterating what has been said time and again of late, for the present conditions have been obtaining for a month or thereabouts.

Teas.—The market for Japan tea has continued firm and quite active during the week. Importations are giving general satisfaction both in style and cup quality, and new season's shipments of first and second crop are readily picked up. There has also been a good demand for Ceylon greens but blacks have been exceptionally dull. One report of the tea situation says: "Last month's shipments to the United Kingdom were over 1,000,000 pounds short of the estimate given at the beginning of the month, which makes the total quantity shipped from January 1 about the same as for the corresponding period of last year. With the estimate for the present month being about a million pounds less than the shipments for July last year, we see no prospect of lower prices in the near future, more especially as the quantity of common teas will be now reduced each week owing to the gradual improvement in quality."

CANNED GOODS

Montreal.—"What's the use of you quoting canned peas at that opening price? Might as well cut out peas altogether. If I had any they would be at least $1.25, but as I am already oversold the problem is where to look for supplies." Such was the comment of one wholesaler. Another quoted standard peas at $1.35 and Early Junes at $1.50. Peas are very scarce and the canners will not ship as big a percentage of the orders as was at first anticipated. Foreign markets must now be depended upon for supplies, and it is a question to what extent they will be of service.

Still another wholesaler was lamenting the fact that he had sold 25 cases of spot tomatoes at $1.65. "It's a shame," he said, "that the retailer has to pay that money for tomatoes," and continued his opinion upon the present extraordinary conditions in many of the grocery markets. "I have never seen anything like it," he remarked. "Whether we have outstripped production, or whether it is speculation or whatever the cause, things are certainly in an unusual condition right now."

And so it goes from week to week with no near signs of improvement.

Toronto.—Canned peas are firmly held at the present quotations of $1.25 for standards and even at that figure dealers do not appear over-anxious to take orders. The truth is that many are uncertain how the situation is going to turn out. While the total production this year is above last, still they came on a practically bare market and already there has been a marked consumption unknown in other years on account of the scarcity of green goods. Then again, it is generally believed that a larger demand on account of increasing population and other factors can be looked for.

The percentage of delivery on red raspberries will only be 50 per cent., while in the black varieties it will amount to 60 per cent. This small delivery was generally looked for on account of the hot weather that in some cases cooked the berries on the bushes. The opening price on raspberries was $2.02½. Gooseberries were an extremely small pack, only 24 per cent. being delivered. Eighty per cent. is the amount set down for lawton berries, but packing is still going on in this fruit. The delivery of rhubarb has been increased to 95 per cent. Prospects for tomatoes are good just now and with a lengthy season, a fairly large pack can be expected. Corn looks good.

Although expected before now, prices on salmon have not yet been received. Canners are evidently waiting until something definite is known before naming prices. One wholesaler volunteered an opinion that Clover Leaf and Horseshoe brands would open around $2.25 per dozen for talls.

ONTARIO MARKETS

POINTERS—

Canned Peas—Firm.

Beans—Prices well maintained.

Italian Macaroni—Strong.

Toronto, Aug. 17.—Trade as reported by local wholesalers is exceptionally brisk for the season of the year, harvesting throughout the country having had little or no effect on business. Orders are coming in freely and jobbers are well satisfied with the amount of business that is being transacted. Collections are also reported good.

Contrary to what might be expected, business in and with the fire-swept country in New Ontario is good. Trade has not been depressed as was thought would be the case, but instead is extremely favorable.

There is a steady movement of sugar to the retail trade and prospects are for a good movement during the remainder of the preserving season. Fall fruits are now beginning to come on the market, and it now looks like a big yield of peaches and plums.

Sugar.—While quotations for beets have eased off somewhat during the week on account of light rains in Germany, the sugar situation has still many features of strength. Much now depends on the weather in Europe. Rain in the beet-growing district will break the tense situation, while if the drought continues, it is uncertain just what might follow. It will be remembered that in the previous similar campaign in 1904, the full effect was not felt until the following February. The facts of the case just now are that New York refiners need supplies and are trying to draw them from Porto Rico and Java. If they can't get what they want, higher prices will result, while bad weather in Europe will have the same effect. It is interesting to note that since June, the advance in refined in Canada has been 65 cents, while during the same time United States markets have advanced 95 cents. Demand locally continues at an appreciable figure, with prospects of a good run during this and next month.

Syrup and Molasses.—There are no special features to record in either syrups or molasses. Prices on both lines are well maintained. Trade is naturally inclined to quietude but in comparison with other years trade at this period is quite favorable.

Dried Fruits.—In regards to spot stocks of dried fruits, what has been said before still applies. Many lines are almost unobtainable and for this reason the trade as a whole is not large. Raisins and currants are practically the only lines in which there is a steady movement and prices on them are well maintained.

Future prunes are still at a high figure with little interest being shown. The situation in Valencia raisins is somewhat firmer. One dealer in this regard said: "The dry weather now prevalent in Europe is no doubt affecting the crop to some extent. All prices up to close on 24 shillings have been withdrawn, while speculative prices up to a short time ago were as low as 21 shillings." There is little or no change in the currant outlook.

Teas.—The general tea market is steady, with similar tendency in primary markets. There was little fine Ceylon tea offered in July. The large supplies of the common grade that were offered were readily disposed of at fairly steady prices, except for the commonest teas, which were rather easier towards the end of the month. "In regard to the future," says one report, "it does not appear at the moment that much further setback can take place in the price af Ceylon tea, as severe drought has been experienced throughout the whole of the tea-growing districts, and also in Southern India. This has caused another temporary shortage which must have its effect on the market for the next month or six weeks."

Coffee.—Coffee prices maintain a position of steadiness, the local situation showing practically no change. The general demand that New York coffee holders expected to increase is still slow. While coffee options are irregular, the undertone is steady.

Spices.—There is not a single line in the spice market that is not steady in price. Peppers are perhaps most prominent in this regard. Wholesale spice men have practically completed their purchases for the pickling season, and shipments are now going out to the retail trade.

Prime beans, per bushel	2 15 2 25
Hand picked beans, per bushel	2 25 2 35

Macaroni.—There is a strong market on macaroni imported from Italy, which is manufactured from Russian wheat. The outlook for wheat in Russia is extremely poor just now, and the total outturn is expected, according to one report, to be fully 200,000,000 bushels smaller than last year, or a deficiency of 25 per cent. Last year at this time under unfavorable conditions prices were advanced, and the market at the present displays signs of strength.

Olive Oil.—The prospects for the growing olive crop appears so far to be quite favorable, although some dealers claim that it is not far enough advanced to form a definite idea of what the production of oil will be. One broker who deals in fine oils has a shipment of the Italian article on the way which cost him 35 per cent. more than it did a year ago.

MANITOBA MARKETS

POINTERS—

Syrup—Steady.

Coffee—Firm.

Beans—Firm.

Dried Fruits—Being watched with interest.

Winnipeg, Aug. 17.—There is little sign of a decrease in the trade in all grocery lines during the past week. The rumor of severe damage being done to the growing crop by black rust appears to have had little detrimental effect whatever on the amount of orders that are being received. Country merchants are still stocking heavily for the extra harvesting help which arrives from day to day. In fact, harvesting will be general throughout the West the early part of next week.

Sugar, as was expected, continued its advance during the week, a ten-cent increase being reported this week. The local market, needless to say, is extremely strong and those jobbers who stocked up heavily at the low point two months ago will make a nice profit owing to the recent advances. Wholesalers refuse to express their opinion as to the probability of the local market during the next six weeks, as they claim all depends on the action of the Southern markets, and consequently they know nothing about it. Stocks in the city at the present time are fairly large, and there is no danger of a shortage.

The dried fruit market is beginning to cause some speculation and keen interest is being taken in the situation in California at the present time. Seeded raisins are very firm and new Valencia raisins are expected to arrive in the market shortly. It is quite probable that the price of this latter line will be reasonable. New currants in all probability will be a little lower than was expected at first, while the new prune crop is showing a higher tone.

Sugar.—The 10-cent advance in sugar last week places Montreal and B. C. granulated locally at $5.75. Country merchants owing to the sharp advance which has taken place recently have been stocking up fairly heavily but are expected to hold off for a while on account of this last advance.

Coffee.—Coffee remains firm this week, and no further advance is reported. Prices quoted are:

Beans and Peas.—No further advance has taken place in beans and the demand remains just as strong. Stocks of beans are by no means large, and there is a liklihood of there being a slight shortage in this crop.

NEW BRUNSWICK.

St. John, August 17.—During the past week several interesting changes have been recorded on the local market, the majority of them, however, being anticipated. The scarcity of hand-picked beans was responsible for a further advance in that commodity, and local grocers are of the opinion that the scanty supply will practically amount to a famine before this year's crop has reached the market.

The market in dried fruits is steadily advancing. Canned goods are also firm, and further advances are looked for. Both Manitoba and Ontario patents have gone higher, an increase of 10 cents being noted in all grades of each. Local merchants attribute the advance to conditions in the speculative market, which is said to be firm, in spite of the fact that abundant harvests are being looked forward to in Ontario and Manitoba, and the Northwest. An advance in feed is expected, owing to the hot weather and the consequent drought in the West.

NOVA SCOTIA MARKETS.

Halifax, Aug. 17.—Several advances in prices in the wholesale grocery markets have been recorded this week. Following the advance in sugar of ten cents per hundred pounds last week, flour has been marked up ten cents per barrel, and provisions have also shared in the advance. Pork is 75 cents per barrel higher and lard has been advanced one-half cent per pound. Ontario beans are from ten to fifteen cents per bushel higher.

Some canners have reduced their percentage of delivery of canned peas to the wholesale trade here. They claim they can only deliver 40 per cent. of the orders booked for standards, but wholesalers, if they choose, may take the balance, up to 63 per cent., in other varieties.

INFORMATION FOR BUYERS.

Supplied to the Trade by Buyers.

Cais & Co., Genoa, Italy, have realized the importance of the Canadian market and accordingly opened a branch warehouse at 9 St. Nicholas street, Montreal. Stocks of canned tomatoes, sardines, olive oils, macaroni, wines and liquors are carried there, and merchants would do well to get quotations from these people as they have a number of good things to offer.

The annual Salesmen's Convention of The A. J. Deer Co., Inc., Hornell, N. Y., held recently, was an interesting event. One hundred salesmen from all parts of the United States and Canada were present and some profitable discussions on coffee mills, infringements on patents, complaints from customers, salesmanship qualifications, etc., took place. Wm. H. Ukers, editor of the Tea and Coffee Trade Journal, gave an address on "Cultivation and Production of Coffee" which was one of the many features of a valuable convention. This company is to be congratulated on its splendid salesmen's conventions.

W. M. Whyte, who has been in the employ of the Pure Gold Mfg Co., Toronto, for a number of years, and who is leaving this week to take up residence in Porcupine, was the recipient of a gold watch suitably engraved, as a token of the high regard and esteem of his associates who wished him success in his new undertaking, and took this occasion to give him a token of their regard. T. B. Greening, president of the company, made the presentation.

During the convention of the New York State Retail Grocers' Association held recently at Buffalo, those present were tendered a banquet at Niagara Falls, "The Home of Shredded Wheat," by The Shredded Wheat Co. General Manager Mason, Sales Manager Traverse and other officials met the visitors and gave them a hearty welcome. The banquet was one of a magnificent nature, elaborate preparations having been made to give the grocers an entertainment to be remembered. The feature was the debut of the Shredded Wheat Choral Class whose singing during the evening was greeted with rounds of applause. Several addresses were made and a general good time was experienced.

Odds and Ends for Busy Dealers

Gathered From Here and There—Openings for General Stores —Class Legislation in Favor of Peddlers—Tendencies to More Sanitary Methods—Another Alleged Ptomaine Poisoning Case Ventilated—Spell Customers Names Correctly.

According to a recent circular of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, there are openings for general stores at Change, Redditt and Willet in Ontario; Beaudry, Cabot, Dugald, Gregg, Oakner, Quadra, Rivers and Uno in Manitoba; Duff, Goodeve, Lorlie, Tate, Undora, Vera and Zeneta in Saskatchewan and Deville, Jarrow, and Ryley in Alberta.

It is the opinion of the city law department of Chicago that peddlers, although licensed by the city to travel about the streets, have no more right to shout their wares than the grocer has to howl his goods in front of his place of business, or the owner of a hardware shop to call attention to his place by the ringing of a fire gong. They claim that to permit the hucksters to engage in vocal advertising while forbidding other noises would constitute class legislation that would be held invalid by the courts.

The Retail Grocers' Association of Detroit, Mich., has adopted a resolution urging the Board of Health there to take immediate steps to stop the sale of decayed fruit and vegetables by peddlers, farmers and gardeners. The grocers complain that some of the peddlers make a business of buying "any old truck" they can find, left over and half rotten stuff that is unsalable on the markets, pick it up for a song compared with the price of fresh goods, mix in enough fresh stuff to make it look presentable, and sell it for a good deal less than the grocers have to ask.

If you give your customers a bargain be sure to let them know about it. If you sell an article below the regular price, bring the fact to their notice, There is nothing like tooting your own horn. If you don't, nobody else will.

The death of a child in Sturgis, Ky., was reported in May from ptomaine poisoning generated in a can of tomatoes. The National Canner's Association of the United States began an investigation, and later secured a certificate from the attending doctors that death was from another cause and not ptomaine poison. Doubtless if rigid investigation followed other reported cases it would be found that a large proportion of sickness attributed to this cause is done so mistakenly.

People are extremely sensitive about having their name spelt wrong or even having their initials incorrect. Make it a point to have these correct on the customer's parcels and bill.

"The effect of the high prices on coffee during the year," says the New York Journal of Commerce," was to check consumption in the United States, resort being had to substitutes, while compounds were also more extensively used. Thus deliveries, which it should be noted would be swelled by shifting of valorization coffee, were 272,079 bags less than in 1910.

CANADIAN FLOUR IN WEST INDIES.

The Trade Commissioner at Barbadoes, West Indies, writes that the increase shown in the importation in flour in 1910 was chiefly in Canadian brands. The prejudice that existed up to a few years ago against Canadian flour has now entirely disappeared. An increasing annual import may be confidently looked for, as all Canadian flours now used in the West Indies are able to withstand the heat without deterioration.

"THE FRA" ON HONESTY.

"It takes humanity a long time to learn that a plain honest statement in business, or in any transaction in life, is the only way to success. A man who is always trying to drive a sharp bargain has little time to work, and can get little of it done. Besides the one who is cheated once, seldom comes again."

Tinge of Quietness in Provisions

Demand for Pork Products is Not Quite So Brisk—Tendency in Provisions Rather Uncertain—Live Hogs Steady at Present—Higher English Cables on Produce Due to Strike—Butter is Firm—Eggs Unchanged.

There is a tinge of uncertainty in regard to the immediate future of provisions. Just at the present the provision market is steady under a similar condition in live hogs, but there are dealers who are looking for an easing off in live hog prices, but whether it will come is a question. The offerings of live hogs of late have not been large, due perhaps to the fact that the farmer is busily engaged in harvesting. Trade in provisions is inclined to quietness, or at least there is not the same brisk movement that has been in evidence. A fairly good trade, however, continues in smoked and cooked meats.

Cables from the English markets on various lines of produce have been uniformly higher, due no doubt, however, to the abnormal conditions caused by the strike of railwaymen and dock laborers. Higher cables have come forward for bacon, butter and cheese, but on account of the strike these quotations are somewhat unreliable.

Butter is holding a position of steadiness, especially in regard to good quality stock. Demand is good and conditions point to a continuance of steadiness. Eggs are unchanged, but prices are holding well.

There is some trade being done at various centres in new crop clover honey. Prices this year are higher. The production in Ontario, the leading factor in the Dominion, is considerably below last year, due to the drying up of the clover during the period of drought.

MONTREAL.

Provisions.—The local market is unsettled, and it is a question as to what the next movement will be. Packers are looking for a drop in the price of hogs, but it is a question whether there will be any further downward movement. The demand for hams, bacon, etc., is a little easier, according to reports, the bulk of the business having decreased slightly. There is still quite a trade passing, but hardly that activity that was apparent some weeks ago.

Provisions. — The provision market shows no special change, but prices are ruling steady. Live hogs are 15 cents higher at $7.50 quoted at country points. The offerings during the past week have been small, while the English bacon market is higher under abnormal conditions. Trade in pork products is none too brisk, although a good trade is present in smoked meats.

Butter.—The butter market maintains its steadiness and the tendency is a little stronger, especially in good quality stock. There seems to be plenty of dairy butter offering at present, or at least enough to supply demand.

Honey.—There is some of this season's new clover honey on the market, mostly in 60 lb. tins, quoted at 12 cents per pound. There has only been a sprinkling of comb offered at $2.25 to $2.50 per dozen. These prices are higher than last year's, when tins opened at 10¼c and comb at $1.75. Comb advanced shortly afterwards, however, to $2.25 to $2.50 per dozen. The higher prices are ascribed to the partial failure of the white honey harvest, due to the drying up of clover in the prolonged drought in Ontario the latter part of June and the first of July. Last year there was an average of 58.3 pounds to the colony, while this year the average has fallen to 50.6. As the number of colonies in Ontario this year is less than last, it is estimated that the decrease in the province will be nearly one million pounds.

Provisions.—Trade in the various lines of provisions has been exceedingly active this summer. Cured meats have been moving steadily, while salt meats show a decided increase. Lard, as prices below show, has been fluctuating according to the price of live hogs. As large quantities of these animals are being shipped in at the present time and will continue all fall it is expected that lower figures will be seen before long.

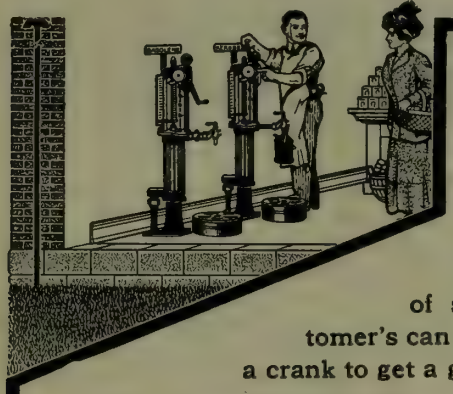
Eggs.—Supplies are exceedingly scarce as regards "guaranteed strictly fresh." None of this quality is offered wholesale, while Manitoba fresh eggs are offered at 18 cents. Retailers who get supplies of "strictly fresh" direct are retailing them at 35c per dozen.

Butter.—Creamery butter shows a considerable decline from last month's price. Manitoba fresh made bricks are now selling at 23 cents per pound, and large quantities can be bought at that price. Provincial creameries have been shipping in supplies of late to the city with resulting lower prices. Butter in boxes is quoted at 2 to 2½ cents per pound less than the bricks. Dairy butter shows little improvement in quality, and fair quantities are being received. Prices quoted are: 16 cents for strictly No. 1, 12 cents for No. 2, and 7 to 9 cents for No. 3.



Cheese.—Market is active and firm. Demand is good and higher prices are looked for in both local and Ontario manufactured. Manitoba new cheese, delivered Winnipeg, is quoted at 11 to 11¼ cents per pound.

EARLY CLOSING IN ST. JOHN.

No Definite Understanding Has Been Reached Yet.

St. John, N.B., Aug. 17.—(Special)—And still there is no definite understanding regarding the early closing by-law. A further adjournment was made last week in the police court when the test cases under the act came before the magistrate. The matter is fast losing interest, because of the fact that the summer is well over, and any trade which might have come to grocers in some sections of the city through being allowed the privilege of keeping open if they desired, has been lost. Local merchants, however, would like to have a definite understanding of the matter arrived at. Some of them who are situated in the residential districts claim they have lost a goodly sum of money through their doors being shut after 7 p.m., the hour mentioned in the by-law, and the hour in which many a housewife makes her purchases for the next day, her housework keeping her at home through the greater part of most days. Other dealers claim to have benefited by the by-law being enforced. It is expected that final judgment will be given next week.

A cooling and healthful drink for summer may be made from cream tartar.

Slight Advance in Manitoba Flour

Prices at Toronto and West Go Up 20 Cents Per Barrel—Only 10 Cents Advance in East—Wheat is Less Firm—Crop Conditions are Good—Some Definite Idea of Outturn Known By End of Month.

As hinted would be the case last week, flour prices have been generally advanced. In Toronto and Winnipeg an upward movement of 20 cents per barrel has taken place, while in Montreal and the Eastern Provinces only a ten cent advance has occurred. Some dealers are already hinting that the advance may not hold for long, as the wheat market is less firm, while conditions of the wheat crop are good. Still no reduction may take place until something definite can be learned concerning the general wheat situation, when prices taking in the general outlook for the year will be named.

Something really definite regarding the wheat outturn and the prospects for the year will be known by the end of the month. Harvesting is not yet general in the West, and it will be ten days to two weeks behind last year. The rumors of frost and black rust which forced the market upward last week did not amount to anything.

While the outlook is favorable just now, the critical point has not been altogether passed yet. One dealer, in speaking of the situation, said: "While conditions just now are as good as can be expected, still it must be remembered that the crop is later this year and that wheat is not yet past the stage where it is immune from frost or rust. Therefore, while dealers may look for lower values, they should not place their price expectations at too low a figure."

Cereals in general are steady, and an advance of 10 cents per sack in rolled oats is reported from Montreal this week.

TORONTO.

Flour.—The strength in the flour market referred to in our last report has resulted in an advance of 20 cents per barrel in Manitoba. Some uncertainty prevails among dealers as to whether this will hold for any great length of time, as the wheat market is already somewhat easier than when the advance took place, while the prospects for the present wheat crop are favorable just at the present. The definite outlook for the season will be pretty well known by the end of the month. Trade just now is naturally quiet.

Flour.—Owing to the increased demand in both domestic and export lines, the price offlour has advanced 10 cents on all grades. Export bids continue to arrive in large quantities and prospects for a large fall business are very bright. Trade with the far east is developing, and an exceptionally large field is expected to be opened up there before long. Prices quoted are:

Right from the drop of the hat "Perfection" Cream Sodas win out

Once you offer "Perfection" Cream Sodas to your customers you are in a fair way to not only sell them the first order but to make them steady patrons, thus building a sure foundation for future business. No grocer can well afford to jeopardize his business by selling his patrons poor, stale soda biscuits. Sodas, of all things, should be crisp and palatable, with a real creamy flavor. Mooney's "Perfection" Cream Sodas meet these requirements. Try a small order, if you are not already handling them.

Briskness Prevails on Fruit Markets

Weather is Favorable—Supplies of Fruits are Large—California Fruit for Table Use—Canadian Being Pushed for Preserving—Some Dealers Hint Lemons will be Higher Later on—Easier Tendency in Valencia Oranges.

Briskness prevails in most of the fruit and vegetable markets at the present time. In the first place the weather has been quite favorable for the handling of most lines. Canadian late fruits are increasing in quantities and both wholesalers and retailers are pushing them. Then California peaches, pears and plums are being given a good deal of attention, retailers doing a good trade in these for table use, while Canadian fruits are being pushed for preserving purposes.

Lemon prices after a series of fluctuations are seemingly content to remain stationary for a little while at least. A nice steady trade is being transacted in this line. While stocks are fairly large just at present, some dealers are hinting that higher prices may rule later on. They argue that although stocks here are quite plentiful at present, supplies on the way are small while prices in Italy are high. The production of the Verdelli is about at an end for this season.

The tendency in oranges is a little easier, due to a general slackening in demand. The production of watermelons in Indiana from where Eastern Canada is now getting her supply is drawing to a close. Musk or sugar melons are being offered in considerable quantity.

The tendency in new crop potatoes is naturally towards a lower level. Canadian potatoes continue to increase in quantity but large supplies are being brought from across the line, at present from New Jersey. New Brunswick is expected to begin shipments at the end of this week or the beginning of next.

MONTREAL.

Green Fruits.—There are no important changes to note. Trade remains brisk in all quarters and dealers are generally satisfied. It is likely that Valencia oranges will be somewhat cheaper next week.

TORONTO.

Green Fruits.—Lemons are unchanged, extra fancy stock being quoted at $5 per case and extra choice at $4.50. Some dealers are looking for steadier prices on lemons, for although there is a fairly good supply locally, there is little on the way while prices now ruling in Italy are higher. The lime situation is again back to normal and prices are down to $1.25. Oranges are easier this week. Lawton berries were down to 5 cents at one time during last week, but the season is now growing to a close and prices are advancing. Canadian tomatoes are plentiful at 20 to 30 cents and a big trade is being done in them. Canadian peaches, pears and plums are increasing in supply, and a larger trade is accordingly being done in them while California fruits are also being taken up well. Canadian grapes made their appearance on Monday, 6 qt. baskets selling at 75 cents.

WINNIPEG.

Fresh Fruit.—No new lines are being offered, and prices show little change from last week. Raspberries are practically off the market, only a few retail stores offering this line at present. Cantaloupe are scarce, and are selling as high as $7 per crate. Single melons are retailing at 35 cents a piece. Prices quoted this week are:

Green Vegetables.—An active trade continues to be carried on in this line. Owing to the arrival of a trifle warmer weather the demand has increased, and home grown products are being used extensively. The season has been a good one for the local gardeners, and the high prices prevailing are enabling them to secure good profits. Prices this week

Fish in Rather Limited Supply

None Too Plentiful Offerings—Will Become More Plentiful Later in the Fall—Trade is Quiet at Present—Will Continue So Until Cooler Weather Sets In — Drop in Prices in Newfoundland Reported—Talk of Oyster Season.

Trade in general in fish just at the present time, as can naturally be expected, is quiet. The situation shows no change other than that supplies of fish of various kinds are inclined to be scarce.

Only a small quantity of mackerel have been taken along the Nova Scotian coast this week. Herrings have, however, struck in along the shore in larger quantities. One report from the East says that there has been a sudden sharp break in prices in Newfoundland without an apparent cause on the surface, other than a slight improvement in the catch. This is somewhat of a surprise in the face of the fact that markets are generally firm with fish in good demand.

QUEBEC.

Montreal.—Haddock and cod are in good supply with reasonable prices. Halibut is coming in from the Pacific Coast. Fresh Gaspe or Eastern salmon are finished, but there is some fresh B. C. stock still remaining. Boneless and skinless cod are scarce.

ONTARIO.

Toronto.—Trade in fish is naturally at this season of the year quite quiet, and can be expected to be so until the arrival of cooler weather. Fish are not plentiful just at the present time and will not be for several weeks yet when the fall run sets in. Prices are unchanged. There is already some talk of the oyster season which will set in by the end of the month.

NOVA SCOTIA.

Halifax.—According to advices received here there has been a sharp break in prices in the Newfoundland fish market. Codfish has dropped eighty cents per quintal at St. John's. The fish that sold a week ago at $6.50 per quintal are now quoted at $5.70. The sudden decline in the price came as a great surprise, particularly when all the markets are firm and fish is in good demand. There is no explanation as to what caused the break. There has been considerable improvement in the catch of fish on the Newfoundland coast during the past week, and as the receipts have increased, this may have something to do with a sudden change.

Fish continues in good demand in the local market, and prices still hold firm. Swordfish are plentiful along the coast here, but they are in light demand. The most of these fish are shipped to Boston where they find a ready sale.

Only a scattering of mackerel have been taken along the coast during the past few days. Some of the traps have been taken up, and the fishermen are putting them in shape for the fall run.

Herring have struck in along the shore in large quantities, and some of the fishermen at Portuguese Cove got about 3,000 in their nets. They are selling at twelve cents per dozen.

John A. Neville, of one of the large canneries, states that the past lobster season was the most successful that the fishermen have had for years. They have received higher prices than ever before. Codfish are plentiful on the Cape Breton and herring have also struck in and the run is heavy. Fifty boats in one day landed from 8 to 14 barrels each at Gabarus.

Fruit Display That Brought Business

Much Care and Attention Given to Produce Best Results — Pyramids and Diamond-Shaped Boxes of Fruit Arranged Symmetrically—Reasons Why Dealers Located Such a Business at Corner Where Traffic is Large.

Toronto, Aug. 17.—(Special)—The fruit display shown in the accompanying photograph is one in the window of the Rome store, owned by P. Frank and situated at the corner of Church and Carlton Streets. It attracted a great deal of attention and was the means of bringing considerable business.

The full effect of the window cannot be completely secured from the photograph, but the general outline of the method of procedure in arranging it may be gleaned.

How Display Was Made.

The bottom of the window was laid with moss, sloping downward to the glass and showing the fruit up to good advantage. The two pyramids were made of three rods covered with moss at the bottom on which was a diamond filled with oranges while in the centre of the pyramid was shown different fruits and vegetables.

Between the two pyramids was a diamond filled with grapes, leaning against a pedestal on which rested a fern. At each side were boxes of California fruits while farther out were baskets on their side with apples sloping out of the mouth. Oranges made a border along the front of the window while small baskets of grapes, plums, berries, melons and boxes of confectionery were situated here and there about the window. A palm at each side added to the attractiveness of the display.

Window Brings Business.

Mr. Frank has only been in business in Toronto for seven months and the special attention given to his windows has brought him a good patronage.

He conducted a store on Queen street for a time, but wishing for a place where he would have better opportunity of display—which he believes is one of the most important features in selling goods—he selected the present site at the intersection of two car lines. Here he has two splendid display windows, the one shown herewith on Church St., and the other on Carlton street.

He handles fruits and confectionery and intends to add groceries soon. He stocks only high grade goods, believing in giving his customers only first-class quality and charging them higher prices than if he only gave them the ordinary run. He finds that the public is willing to pay the higher price when it is always assured of quality goods.

The window shown here he dresses only once a week, giving special care so that it will present an attractive appearance. Of course during the week he may replace some of the lines displayed by fresher goods, but the general outline remains unaltered for six days. The other window he changes oftener, whenever it is found expedient.

In regard to window-dressing Mr. Frank believes that judgment and good taste are the chief assets, backed however by the ambition to turn out an attractive display. Each article, in his opinion, should be placed so that it will show to the best advantage, and to secure this time must be taken. The display must be symmetrical and evenly balanced. Neatness and cleanliness are essential features.

Selling Flour During Summer Months

Montreal Dealer Who Has Particular Methods That Bring Good Returns—An Example of What Salesmanship Will Do —The Lesson Taught That the Dealer Loses Money Who Waits For Demand.

Montreal, Aug. 17 (Special).—There is just the possibility that some of the trade are overlooking their flour business. The summer demand is still with us and their attention is directed toward other lines that may sell more rapidly. It is natural that the new lines now doing so well—but often with questionable profit—should receive special notice during their season, but at the same time the old staples must not be overlooked.

Flour may not be one of those articles that cuts a wide swath in a day's business. Rather is it a steady dependable staple that brings a sure and certain trade and with more recognition of its possibilities and effort on the part of the store's staff it could be built up to an even better basis than that upon which it now rests.

An Effort Needed.

Summer is really not the season when flour demand is at its best and it is for that reason, if for no other, that it should be given just a little extra selling force. There is always a fair trade, however. People desire light foods and cakes, pies and other delicacies take the place of the heavier desserts that are common in winter. Then, too, picnics and outings are so numerous that the special demand they create is rather marked.

One Grocer's Method.

John Foster, a Montreal grocer, on Pine Ave., east, does not neglect his flour trade even though summer does bring fruits and other articles equally interesting. To The Grocer he stated recently that there is a good demand in summer for flour but it is mostly for pastry, biscuits, cakes and such dainties. The flour he buys is a Manitoba spring wheat, and he carries the principal brands of two of the leading companies in the country. This is advertised to the trade as being equally good for bread or for pastry and he recommends them as such and has built up a good trade with them.

Recently, Mr. Foster had a flour window which helped considerably. One of his plans now is to have always on hand small bags of flour of different weights which of course retail at different prices. During the week when there is a little lull Mr. Foster has his clerks tie up generally two barrels of flour in the manner just described. One section of the shelving is devoted to flour near the rear of the store and as might be expected the various weights are separated. Thus a customer may purchase a one pound, a three, a five or a seven pound bag, according to her requirements. This stock of flour, always ready to be handed over the counter or placed in the delivery box, is not allowed to become exhausted.

Mr. Foster claims that the flour sold in this case is what might be called the best that Canada can put forward and that is about the best there is anywhere. The quality thus being assured he has no hesitancy about putting it forward to the public. With the knowledge that his stock is of the best there is an added incentive to try to sell it.

Salesmanship Necessary.

That there is a good demand for flour in summer for purposes already enumerated is not denied. It is this that should be catered to. Mr. Foster is only one of a large number who could give similar evidence.

There are few, however, who really put forth much initiative to hold their flour trade through the summer months or who try to build up the demand for a pastry flour.

Place of Order-taking and Collecting

How a Doubter Became Convinced That He Could Not Hold Old Customers Unless He Adopted New Methods of Securing Orders—The Importance of Work of Order-taking—How the Collecting is Made Simple and Easy.

By C. H. Crysdale, Oshawa, Ont.

Some people believe to-day that order-taking is hardly necessary for the development and maintenance of a good grocery trade. A few years ago I belonged to that class. Probably I would not have commenced sending out for orders had I not been forced into it. I preferred to stand aloof and have the business come, relying on good service to hold it. When the other dealers in town inaugurated the new order of service, I held off because I belived that I would not have to go out after the business. I discovered my mistake. Soon after the other merchants in town had commenced the new method I noticed that the orders of many of my good regular customers were decreasing in size. I watched this for some time and finally becoming anxious enquired the reason of one of these patrons of mine that happened to come into the store.

The Psychological Moment.

She informed me with a smile that she was not thinking of abandoning me, but one of the men of one of the other stores had called on her one morning when she wanted some goods and she had given him the order. That was all there was to it, but I recognized the fact that the change had become a part of the regular business of the town and held out no longer, deciding to work along the same lines immediately.

Taking orders is a delicate phase of the business and requires diplomacy and tact, if it is to be carried on successfully. One has to know when the lady of the house has time to talk, or if the time is opportune to bother her in the matter at all. For that reason the average clerk would not do for an order man. He would probably get on the nerves of a few good customers every week by blundering along at the wrong time in his effort to force an order. So when I seriously decided to adopt the new order of things I made arrangements for my son to go out on the road and deal directly with the customers. When he could not go, I went myself, and when I was unable to do the work through being absent or for any other cause, one of the clerks did it for us. But, generally speaking, I try to always have some responsible person looking after that particular line of work.

Order Man Sees the Customer.

The order man is the only one in the business to see a customer sometimes for months at a time. Accordingly, he must be in a position to keep her informed accurately of all the buying opportunities the store affords from time to time. He is the active intermediary between the firm and herself. He must not try to sell her more goods than he knows her account can stand, and neither must he in any way endeavor to increase his daily budget of sales by coercion or persistence. It is his business to let her see the store and its stock through his own explanations almost as well as if she stood before the counter herself. He must never be a bore, and yet must always bear his employer's interests in mind.

The order-taker is also, by virtue of the change, the collector for the firm. He is the man who must have accurate knowledge of the state of each account, and that is where the qualities of tact and diplomacy enter into the business. This, in my opinion, is another reason why the order-taker should be a responsible member of the firm. He must have authority to act with decision always. It is for him to know just how long Mrs. Brown's account has been running, and how much she has been buying, week for week, during that time. The average clerk would not be able to enter into the work with this spirit, because he would not feel that he had sufficient interest in the business to do so. It would be in a day's work for him, and whether he came home loaded with new business or reporting an absolute indifference on the part of the customers, there wouldn't be a change of countenance probably in his part during the telling.

The Store of the Future.

It's a new order of business entirely, and is probably the development of certain modern conveniences that have made it possible for the housewife to remain at home and transact the bulk of her business. It will have to be considered seriously and given its proper place in the scheme of the average business. Developments are sure to come, and I suppose it would not be idle to prophecy that in time to come the grocery store will be more or less a place where clerks fill orders taken by the salesmen who have been out on the order route during the morning. This won't be absolute, of course, but it is going to be more manifest, I am sure, in the future than it is now. It is bound to come as surely as the modern conveniences for eliminating distance become more widely used. For that reason, if for no other, the subject is worthy of serious consideration.

"Rush My Car"

Consider this selling axiom, Brother Grocer—
That no sale is complete while the Consumer is without the goods.
To-morrow's delivery will not secure the sales of To-day.
So part of the Sale is Service.
Quick Delivery—Prompt Shipment—Rush Orders—these are needed equally with Quality.
For Quality does not avail where the other fellow gets his goods in.
The sooner a building is finished, the sooner it yields a return on the investment.
The sooner your flour comes in the sooner it pays dividends.
The quicker it diverts profits to you, Brother Grocer.
There is no money in flour while it is in our hands—
There is no money in flour while it is in your hands—
The sooner the consumer has it the better it pays us both.
The FIVE ROSES shipping department is in a better position than most to "drive deliveries."
The system is perfect.
And the smallest order gets as prompt and courteous attention from our many local warehouses as the biggest jobber's carlots get direct from the mills.
Special attention is given by the railways on account of the lever of big shipping.
Though we continually urge the need of rapid delivery, we are equally strong on Economy of Cost and Uniformity of Quality.
We have never sold so much FIVE ROSES flour as we are selling now. Because the customer is better pleased, and because YOU are better pleased.
You know the Quality of the LAKE OF THE WOODS products, Brother Grocer.
Do YOU know the Service?

Highest Quality

The absolute purity of Cox's Gelatine makes it a standard product of world-wide fame. Whether in powdered or shredded form, it is still as free from foreign substances as the clearest rock crystal from mother earth.

Cox's Gelatine

It has never disappointed, and never will, because folks get what they expect and want when they buy the peer of all—"Cox's." Highest quality to-day, to-morrow and all the to-morrows to come. A safe and certain asset for a grocer's stock - in - trade — always worth its face value of 100 cents on the dollar.

Codou's Macaroni, Vermicelli, Spaghetti, fancy letters and pastes, represent the top-notch of quality—the highest attainment of skill, experience and cleanliness in a model factory, said to be (by those who really know) one of the finest in the world.

Codou's Macaroni

A macaroni whose delicacy and whiteness bear witness to the caution used in selecting only finest wheat (from Taganrog) for the making. Tender as a macaroni can be, nutritious to the highest degree. Let the name on every package "Codou" serve to assure you of highest quality when you buy.

You may have new peas now, or at any time of the year, if you buy Farrow's "Patent Net" Peas and cook them as directed.

FARROW'S 'Patent Net' PEAS

are the finest early green peas, gathered at the beginning of the season when peas are sweetest, most tender and delicious. Our process preserves ALL their natural flavour. When cooked they are so delicious and tender that you cannot detect them from fresh garden peas. They are very easily cooked and remarkably cheap—a 10 cent Net provides liberal portions for 8 people. Farrow's "Patent Net" Peas are English grown, absolutely pure, free from all preservatives and colouring matter.

The Science of Tactful Collecting

In Beginning a New Business a Dealer Should do Cash Trade Only—Some Differences Experienced in Customers, Illustrating Why They Must be Handled Differently — When a Merchant Can Afford to Extend a Little Credit—The Fussy Customer.

*By Henry Johnson, Jr.

Another question from the "Question Box" already so frequently referred to: "What is the best way to collect accounts from customers who are well-to-do, but slow pay, and still retain their patronage?"

Questions like this always remind me of the sign I once saw in a cash grocery store; "Nobody can please everybody; we sell for CASH." For it is a fact that nobody can conduct a credit business anywhere and not offend, or at least annoy, some people. The best any of us can do is to offend and displease as few as possible while yet taking care of the main chance, to see that we always "get ours." The ability to accomplish this very desirable result goes with a peculiar faculty which some of the more fortunate among us possess and which cannot be defined, but is expressed in that short word, TACT. If you have tact, you get through the world with comparative ease. If you have it not—and many of us "have it, NOT"—you may be conscientious, kind, anxious to please, of the best of intentions, have a big measure of good-will toward men in your make-up—and yet have much trouble and many misunderstandings in handling your credit business. Tact can be cultivated, however, to a great extent; and we should all cultivate it, for it is a valuable asset, even if we give no credit at all. It will follow that we cannot make a rule, applicable in all cases, for handling customers of the class above referred to, for each must be handled according to his—or her—make-up, with due regard to the human, personal element. But I can say this much, by way of general rule: You CANNOT "collect" such accounts and keep them; you must let them alone to come and go in their own sweet way and according to their own whims.

Begin With Cash Business.

Now I shall tell you the WHY of this decision, relating my experience which, I think, will fit into what others have discovered. In the beginning, when a business is small and capital very limited, goods must necessarily be sold for cash; I say necessarily despite the fact that some have given credit even at this stage and got away with it, because the best results cannot be realized from a small capital unless a cash business is adhered to. No merchant can do justice to his business nor can he intrench himself behind effective credit unless he takes his discounts; and a man of limited capital cannot take discounts unless his money is available; and his money can only be available if he sells for cash.

The first step in credit giving comes when he has some reserve, some capital ahead, which he can afford to invest in good, prompt credit; and I will say that there is no better investment that a business man can make, but it will be noted that I stipulate GOOD credit, and, at this stage, it must also be PROMPT credit. Up to six or seven years ago this is the only kind of credit I tried to carry, because my reserve was very limited and I needed to have prompt receipts so that I could take all discounts. I was so "fussy" about my credit trade that I could to-day write quite a lengthy list of those whom my "too particular" methods offended. But I was philospher enough to stand it, reasoning that I could stand that much better than the indefinite, uncertain, worrying loss always to be counted on in giving anything like indiscriminate credit; whereas good credit is certainly profitable—and I knew it perfectly well. Some of the advantages are: It holds some good trade. It admits of the making of better profits and it insures a certain basic quantity of business every day, which may be counted on to keep things going during otherwise dull periods.

A Good Thing for Many.

There is another advantage seldom taken into account; that is, the extension of credit, by employing a man's surplus, sort of "holds him steady"—I mean that the very fact that our money is not always available is good for many of us; makes us stop to think before snapping up some "good things" which a little enforced reflection may indicate to us are not so very good after all. It has been good for me not to be able to do just what I wanted to do. That is often good for all of us.

I constantly read complaints about the abuses of credit. Merchants oftentimes want to break away, but are afraid of what will happen. Some do it boldly, and succeed. Others find, after experiment, that the credit plan is the best, and go back to it. Thinking thus a few days ago while looking over my accounts, I was pleased to note that there was not a bad one among them. After 18 years of "going it alone" I have nothing on my books that is not good. That does not mean that I have had no losses, nothing to wipe out, during those years—for I certainly have—one or two very bad ones; but the results of carefulness are there in evidence to-day.

Where Angels Fear to Tread.

The reason for this satisfactory condition is that I have been everlastingly careful—that's about the "answer!" I have investigated all accounts at the beginning, and I have never hesitated to say NO with full decision whenever for any reason I have decided that I did not want the account. It takes time, but it is worth while—what more so? This is not appreciated by many merchants. They are so fearful that the applicant will go over to the other fellow if asked for references and time for investigation, that they "rush in" where verily angels would "fear to tread." Why should we not adopt a system of careful discrimination between persons and their accounts same as jobbers do in granting credit to us? Why should not our investigations, like the jobbers,' take in more than the mere question whether the applicant is "good" for the bill now and "probably good" for future bills? Why should we not consider general conditions—the labor situation, prosperity, dull times, etc.? I take all these factors into consideration with this class of accounts, and have done so for years.

* * * *

So much for stages Nos. 1 and 2 in business; the necessary cash-dealing stage and the limited time-credit stage, for it all accounts so far considered I have had a primary understanding that 30 days was my absolute limit, the account to be paid at the end of each month and no balance carried over. But now we come to the last class of credits, that referred to in the question quoted; the good, well-to-do, slow-pay people. This class of accounts should only be taken on by the merchant with sufficient reserve capital that he can afford to make a definite, fixed investment of, perhaps, 60 per cent. of the total investment in those accounts. That is to say, if he plans to carry $2,000 of such accounts, he must be ready to lay aside $1,200 as a permanent investment therein. Then he must become intimately acquainted with the character and habits of each one of these customers and treat them individually according to their foibles; and in this way the investment of $1,200 can be made the best investment the grocer has.

*The writer of this article is one of the most successful dealers on the continent. He has spent almost 30 years in the retail grocery business and is well equipped to answer questions and smooth out difficulties with which others may have met.

The Difference in Customers.

Some of those customers will want to get a bill every month regularly; others will be put out if you ever mail them a bill at all. I have one who pays no attention to his bill though it goes to him every month, but who is not in the least offended if, when his account reaches $200 or so, I call him up on the phone and ask him to send me a check; and you can imagine how some people would feel about being "dunned by telephone." I have another who thinks she is a close buyer and fusses about certain things. She always and invariably asks for "that 25c. Blank Marmalade," on which the price has been 30c. almost beyond memory; but she never has objected to the 30c. charge on her bill. She pays when she pleases; but she also pays any prices charged, and, as special service is many times provided, she certainly pays enough for her goods; so things are well evened up with her.

Another sees prices all over town, but invariably keeps her order for Johnson's. She thinks she is a close buyer, too. A few weeks ago she came for some vegetables and saw some very elegant asparagus—nice, white goods. The price, I told her, was 20c. a pound. "O, my, I saw some beautiful 'aspahragus' at Wilson's for a shilling this morning—but send me two pounds, Mr. Johnson; and may I pick out these nice, straight stalks?" I told her I would select it just that way and put it up myself. I did that; and put her up two pounds for which she was charged 60c. or, as you will note, 30c. a pound. She never said a word; but if she had done so, I should have called her attention to the special selection which depreciated the remainder of the stock; but even then, had I seen the least sign of real displeasure on her face or that I was making the lady feel badly, I should have allowed her the 20c. reduction to the regular price, knowing well that she would pay me in another way.

An Interesting Study.

That is what I mean when I say you CANNOT "collect" those accounts, and I have told you how and why it is better not to try to do it. I know of no more interesting study—will you give me some of your ideas in return?

URGES OCCASIONAL HOUSECLEANING.

Charlottetown, P. E. I., Aug. 24.—A local grocer who has recently made alterations to his store and accordingly had to make a rearrangement of his stocks points out the value of occasional housecleaning by the retail dealer. "I found many articles," he said, "which I thought I was sold out of and which I had to make a re-arrangement of his have and therefore turned them away. Without this re-arrangement I would have allowed them to continue in their hiding place until perhaps they were unsalable. Housecleaning, however, brings all these things to light and the merchant is able to put them in their proper place. If there are any lines which are liable to spoil if kept much longer, means and methods may be planned for their disposal. Besides it gives the dealer an idea of what articles are selling well and those that are not. "Yes," he concluded, "I believe every grocer needs to have an occasional housecleaning."

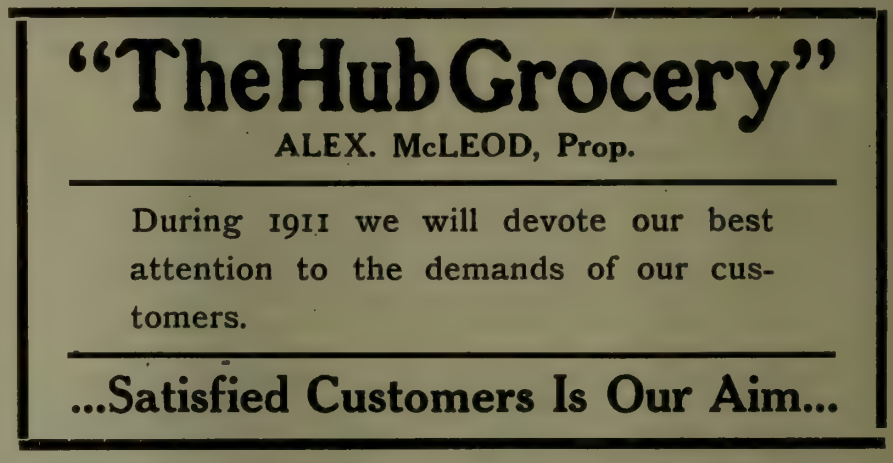
Definite Assertions Needed in Ad. Copy



Some Criticisms on Newspaper Advertisements Written by Maritime Dealers—General Statements Do Not Bring New Trade—Suggestions That Might be Followed With Profit.

By A. H. Harvey.

Every retail advertisement should contain at least one definite clear-cut idea. Generalities seldom or never hold attention for any length of time, and in most cases such advertising is waste of money.

Advertising to be profitable in the daily or weekly newspaper must attract attention, must be interesting enough to hold attention, must create a desire to buy, and last, but most important, must transform that desire into action.

Let us consider the newspaper advertisements reproduced here from three Maritime Province newspapers. Two of them are good—those of Forsyth, Jr., Dartmouth, N. S., and Yerxa's, Woodstock, N. B. These advertisements contain definite information—information that should cause the reader to act. For instance, when Forsyth, Jr., says about cheeese, "We have just cut another of those nice, rich June cheese. Excellent for Macaroni and Cheese, Cheese Sandwiches or Cheese Cakes, 18c a pound," he gives something that is bound to create a demand from some quarters.

Original Ad. From Westville, N. S., Paper, Lacking Something Definite.

His entire ad. is made up of definite, readable statements of this nature, and must be classed as excellent. The original covered half a page in a Dartmonth paper.

The Yerxa's advertisement features "Pickling Goods," making it quite appropriate for the season. The introduction is splendidly set forth, and the naming of prices is a good feature. This firm, as well as Forsyth, Jr., is recognized in the Maritimes as a good advertiser and the writer of good copy.

Lacks Particulars.

The original advertisement of "The Hub Grocery," Westville, N. S., is an example of generalities, and is not conducive to getting new customers into the store. When the ad.-writer says: "During 1911 we will devote our best attention to the demands of our customers," he doesn't aim to bring a reader into the store to-morrow to make a purchase. It is generally conceded that all dealers aim to do this very thing, so that "The Hub Grocery" makes no exceptions.

We have appended a suggestion of a much different character, which we believe would arouse the interest of at least a few prospective buyers of pickling spices.

Advertising "Good-Will" is, of course, always good, but if new customers are wanted something else must be added. Give your readers straight, attractive, readable talks and results are inevitable.

Wide Awake Methods of Retailing

Sealers Make a Good Side-line for Grocer—Time Saved by Taking Orders Carefully—Methods Used in Maritime Provinces.

The Grocer will pay for good items on Wide-Awake Methods.

Makes Well on Side-line.

St. John, N.B., Aug 23.—"Yes, they may look slightly out of place in a grocer's window, but don't you think that the scope of the grocer's business is widening all the time, and that there are being sold nowadays articles which a few years ago grocers would never have thought of including in their stock?"

This was the interrogative answer of a local dealer when the matter of having displayed in one of his chief windows several up-to-date preserving bottles, with cards bearing short, pithy sentences descriptive of their advantages as such, was referred to.

"Why, I have sold a surprising number," he said, "and I am not at all sorry for having gotten them. I expect to dispose of the whole lot before the fruit-preserving season is finished, as they are particularly adapted to the preserving of plums, pears and peaches on account of the shape of the mouths. I have found them to be a good side-line, and I have also found that the average housewife will buy them in her grocery store as quickly as she will in any crockery establishment, and generally order some with her preserves."

Carefulness in Taking Down Orders.

Summerside, P.E.I., Aug. 24.—"A great deal of time and trouble could be saved in many stores," claims a local merchant, "if more care were given by the clerk to taking and writing out an order. When a customer gives an order, the clerk should put down clearly and plainly all information that may be of use in having it delivered without mistakes and with the least trouble.

"One of the important features is that the writing be plain. The order should first of all give the date of purchase. Following this should be the name, correctly written, with the initials and address of the purchaser. In putting down the list of goods, full particulars of each article should be given. Instead of merely writing, 'Sugar, 25c,' the amount and kind of sugar wanted should also be given. The order to be complete should contain the clerk's initials, as well as the hour at which the customer wants the goods delivered. It will be found that a few extra seconds spent in getting the order down correctly will prevent many mistakes."

MARITIME METHODS.

Morehouse & Co., grocers, Woodstock, N.B., are concentrating their efforts on preserving jars, this being a most favorable time. Recent advertisements of the firm have featured this line, pointing out the fact that they are constructed of extra heavy glass and have only one-piece top. They quote the prices of the different sizes in their advertisements.

J. E. Lloyd & Son, Bridgetown, N.S., in introducing their advertisement on tea and coffee, say as follows: "The cup that cheers and refreshes is made more certainly possible when our coffees and teas are used. They have a flavor, a body that cannot fail to appeal to coffee and tea drinkers."

MARITIME QUESTIONS DEBATED.

Another convention of the Maritime Board of Trade has passed into history. It was the Seventeenth Annual, and the special report appearing in another section of this issue gives our readers a good idea of the importance of the questions debated yearly by the strong body of men who comprise the Board.

Probably one of the most important questions discussed, so far as the retail merchant is concerned, was the "Good Roads" problem. There is no question that good roads in a particular locality are advantageous to trade, and trade is what makes or mars a town.

Another important question brought forward was the shipping facilities between Canada and the West Indies Islands. It was felt by the members present that with more facilities, trade between these two countries could be greatly enhanced. The West Indies has products to sell which we want to purchase, and we have our flour, hay, potatoes, lumber, etc., which the West Indian is anxious to get.

Among the other problems of importance were Express Rates, the Advertising of the Maritime Provinces in Great Britain, and Immigration, Maritime Union, Inspection of Foods, whether for export or not, Freight Rates, etc., all of which were handled in a business-like fashion.

Delegates were present from different sections of the provinces of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, and the business of the meeting was carried on with precision. Truro, N.S., will be the next Convention city.

WESTERN CROP SITUATION.

Ideal conditions for the maturing crop have at last been prevailing during the greater part of last week. Hot, warm days with fairly cool nights are fast bringing the crop into maturity and cutting is now in progress throughout the length and breadth of the West.

Black Rust scare appears to be a thing of the past, and while it is recognized that certain localities have undoubtedly been seriously damaged by this disease, the area in proportion to the acreage under cultivation is so small that the loss will hardly be noticeable in the total yield. Manitoba is the province hardest hit, in fact, reliable reports from Saskatchewan and Alberta indicate that harvest is in full swing and that there is no perceivable evidence of the dreaded disease.

The reports of experts touring the country inspecting the crop continue to create much interest. All sections of the country have been covered and while it would be impossible to arrive at a correct estimate at the present time there appears to be little doubt that a yield almost twice as large as last year will be harvested from the West. Excursions bringing in help by the thousands have been arriving steadily and the shortage which was anticipated appears to be a thing of the past, owing to the energy of the various railroad companies.

CANADA'S APPLE CROP GOOD.

From information gathered by The Canadian Grocer, it looks like a good yield of apples in Canada this year, or at least a crop considerably in excess of last year, when the production was comparatively small.

Nova Scotia will have the largest crop in its history, bordering around the one million barrel mark, while the production in Ontario will be 50 per cent. more than last year, although it will not be a normal crop.

In Eastern Ontario the yield will be quite good, while from Lake Ontario up to Georgian Bay there will be a medium crop, although plenty of rain just at the moment would be welcomed.

Along Lake Huron the crop will be inferior, the result of dry weather and wind-storms. That district was also poor last year.

Altogether in Ontario we would judge that the production will be about 50 per cent. larger than last year, although it will not be as large as the year before.

In Nova Scotia, as intimated above, a bumper crop will be secured, notwithstanding some unfavorable dry weather. Conditions at the present time are excellent.

In Prince Edward Island although the crop will be good, the size of the apples has been affected by dry weather.

On the lower mainlands of British Columbia, owing to unfavorable climatic conditions, the winter apples will be light to medium. The outlook is for a medium to full crop in Okanagan and Kootenay districts.

Another good feature of this year's crop is that the quality will be generally good. The fruit is clean and of good size, and the percentage of No. 1's should be large. Even in those districts where crops are light, the quality is quite good.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Are your scales correct? It is important, no matter which way they lean. If you are giving overweight you are losing money. If you are giving underweight, you are in danger of losing customers. One is as bad as the other.

Large Maritime Questions Discussed

Seventeenth Annual Meeting of the Board Held at Moncton—Better Roads, Lower Express Rates, and Shipping Facilities Between Eastern Canada and the West Indies, Among the Subjects Debated—Convention to be Held at Truro, N. S., Next Year.

Staff Correspondence.

MONCTON, N.B., Aug. 24.—Drenching rain delayed the seventeenth annual meeting of the Maritime Board of Trade, which met on Wednesday afternoon last week instead of this morning. An excellent attendance of delegates, a strong and interesting list of subjects, and a capable staff of officers, made the opening hum with enthusiasm. Forest fires delayed delegates from various points, and Thursday saw the full quota of nearly 100 representative delegates from all parts of the Provinces.

Captain J. E. Masters, the president, occupied the chair, and the Assembly Hall of the Y.M.C.A., was well filled with local men of prominence and visitors.

After welcoming the delegates, the president appointed the following committee on unfinished business, including W. B. Snowball, and Hon. W. C. Robinson. They retired and brought in later a revised list of subjects for discussion.

Address of the President.

The president then delivered his address. He said:

Gentlemen,—Members of the Maritime Board of Trade, at this our Seventeenth Annual Convention, before we proceed with the business as set out in our programme, it is in order for me as President to briefly review our work for the past year, and to call your attention to what we hope to accomplish in the year to come, also to make some references to matters of importance to the people of the Maritime Provinces, that may not officially come before the convention.

Our subjects last year were: Reduced freight rates. Better Roads, Quick Mail Despatch. Emigration. Freight rates to and from P.E. Island. Killing of sheep by dogs. Protection of Inlet and Costal Fisheries. Importance of Natural Resources and Guarantee of Municipal Bonds.

Most of them were discussed in a very satisfactory manner, and resolutions passed. For want of time some were laid over, and may be taken up this year, if it is the pleasure of the convention.

You will note that all of these subjects were of a general character, and not local in their demands, which in my opinion is the only policy for the Maritime Board to follows.

We may naturally ask—what has been the result of our deliberations, and have we received sufficient recompense for any sacrifice we have made. In my opinion—yes. For instance in the matter of "Better Roads" there is a feeling in every part of the Maritime Provinces, for a Permanent Road. Individual members of the New Brunswick Legislature have been approached, and while we cannot announce anything positive, I do not hesitate to say that the way is opening, and the question has reached a stage where it cannot be set aside by our governments, and I trust this convention will make a still greater effort to secure this much-needed improvement. Let your motto be Good Roads, Better Roads, Best Roads.

DR. DUNBAR, Truro, N.S.
The new President of the Board.

Emigration.

In what way can the Maritime Provinces receive their full share of emigration? The subject was very fully discussed and I regret to say, that we have not been yet able to get the matter placed in a manner which is satisfactory. Private corporations are very aggresive, so much so, that our railroad and steamship companies combining are able to control almost the whole situation, consequently the west gets the greater bulk of the people who are coming to Canada as permanent settlers to make new homes for themselves. We have so much to offer our brother from across the water that I am sure a proper presentation of the conditions of things will bring to us a fair proportion of what we are anxious to secure, that is—men of the Anglo-Saxon race, who are leaving crowded Great Britain, to make new homes in Greater Britain. Better freight rates, quick mail despatch, freight rates to and from P.E.I., killing sheep by dogs, protection of inlet and costal fisheries, importance of natural resources and guaranteeing of municipal bonds. All received their portion of time, but with the exception of the latter, not much progress has been made. Mr. Lodge, a member of the Moncton Board, has brought to the notice of the Dominion Government the matter of better mail service, with but indifferent results, the Railroad Department demanding pay for the extra service, and the Mail Department saying they would not be warranted in going to that expense.

Municipal Bonds.

The resolution brought in by the Moncton Board relative to municipal bonds, sinking funds, etc., at the last meeting of the Maritime Board and left over to the present meeting bore some fruit.

The Provincial Government of New Brunswick at its last session passed an Act respecting municipal and other debentures which prescribes the form, how record shall be kept of same, etc. That all future debentures shall have a sinking fund to meet the payment at maturity and all premiums from sale of bonds are to be paid into the sinking fund. Existing issues of debentures not provided with a sinking fund must provide same. If incorporated towns or municipalities fail to provide for a sinking fund the governor in council may direct such town or municipality to make an assessment of sufficient amount to form a sinking fund.

It also provides that sinking funds may be paid into the Provincial Treasury and held in trust for the purposes for which designed, and that the Provinces shall pay interest at the rate the Province is paying on its loan.

All future town and municipal bonds have to be certified to by the auditor general of the provinces, thus guarding against over-issues and other irregularities.

The auditor general of the provinces has also power to make examinations of the books and records of municipalities in connection with loans and sinking funds.

Altogether the Act is a long step in advance in the protection of purchasers of municipal bonds and of municipalities themselves, and this Board may claim some credit in connection therewith.

Gentlemen, our work is still ahead of us. You will be asked to discuss subjects that have been before this board on former occasions, and I trust that this fact will not discourage you, but make you more determined than ever to put all the energy possible into these questions that are of such vital importance to these Maritime Provinces.

This is the time when we will have to stand together as one man. Our interests must be protected.

Growing Rapidly.

We are glad the western part of our country is growing so rapidly and so well, but we must not forget for a moment that Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island can to-day offer better inducements to the farmer, can hold out just as good prospects to the manufacturer and laborer, as any country in the world. Coal, iron, lumber, fish and agricultural products are here in abundance, and of a superior quality. Our Maritime Province apples are among the best that get into the British market—this is something new for New Brunswick. Most of you have seen through the press what Mr. Palmer of the London Financial News says, that we have the best part of Canada right here. This is an altogether disinterested opinion, as this gentleman's business was to report on Canada—not a portion of it. Our country will be what we make it. Lumbering and shipbuilding were our only industries a few years ago, to-day every avenue is open to us and as the subjects come up for discussion at this convention let it always be impressed on our minds, this fact, that what we say and do here will pass into history, and it is our business to go on record as a body of men who are determined to have what we are entitled to, and hold what we get; let us have our political differences, but business union, we should give no encouragement to needless waste of public money, but where necessity demands, as it does on the subjects before you—we should insist upon what we believe we are rightly entitled to.

Before closing my address I desire to call the attention of this convention to the wonderful discovery and development of the gas and oil wells in our immediate vicinity—perhaps a brief sketch of their history might be interesting.

Oil and Gas.

In 1859 oil men from Pennsylvania became interested in the conditions existing in Westmorland and Albert counties, some drilling was done, and oil and gas were found in considerable quantities, but the work had to be abandoned for want of capital. In 1876 the late H. A. Whitney succeeded in interesting American capital in the district, wells were drilled to a depth of 1,000 feet and this continued into 1880, when the work ceased. In 1889 Matthew Lodge interested the Hon. H.

HON. C. W. ROBINSON,
President of Moncton Board of Trade.

R. Emmerson, then Provincial Premier in the subject, and the result was an Act to encourage and develop oil and natural gas in the Province of New Brunswick, declaring these articles minerals under the general meaning of the Mining Act. In this year the New Brunswick Petroleum Co, got a license to prospect on conditions that $100,000 was to be spent in five years. Some eighty (80) wells were bored in Westmorland, Albert and Kent counties. Two pumping stations were erected, and something like 10,000 barrels of oil marketed. In 1906 it was decided by the company that a larger amount of capital was required. Through the efforts of Messrs. M. Lodge and F. W. Sumner, Dr. Henderson of London, England, has formed a syndicate to carry on the work. Capital has been secured, and everything points to a most successful development. About twenty wells are in operation, with an output of 50,000,000 cubic feet per day. Pipes are being laid from the wells and through our city. Not only will this be a great benefit to Moncton, but the whole Maritime Provinces are going to get an uplift that will turn the attention of capitalists, and particularly manufacturers to our resources.

Gentlemen, in conclusion, allow me to thank you heartily for electing me to this honorable position. In making me your president you paid me the highest compliment in your gift.

Once more let me say—that I trust our deliberations may be of much good to the different communities we represent, and our Provinces in general.

Faithfully yours,

J. E. MASTERS,
President Maritime
Board of Trade.

The president's address was received with hearty applause.

Correspondence.

The secretary read a telegram from Yarmouth regretting that for many reasons the Yarmouth delegates would find it impossible to attend. Forest fires, etc., was the cause. They requested that the Yarmouth subject be dropped.

A second telegram was read from the Halifax Board, stating the time their delegates would arrive, and asking that hotel accommodations be reserved for them. They wished their subject taken up Thursday morning.

An invitation was read from the Truro Board asking that the annual meeting be held in that town in 1912.

Secretary's Report.

The secretary-treasurer here read his report as follows:

To the President and Members of the Maritime Board of Trade:

Gentlemen,—The 16th annual meeting of the Board was held at Chatham, N. B., on Wednesday and Thursday, the 17th and 18th August last, with 34 delegates in attendance. It was found with much regret that St. John Board was not represented.

A very interesting meeting was held and some important subjects were very fully discussed and resolutions passed bearing on same.

A banquet was given by his Honor the Lieutenant-Governor of New Brunswick in honor of this Board; and the Chatham Board entertained the delegates and friends to an excursion on the river with music and refreshments, closing a very successful meeting.

The subject brought up by Port Hood Board of Trade asking for a reduction of freight rates on the Intercolonial Railway was referred to a committee with Mr. McLean, of the Port Hood Board as chairman. He advises me that he did not call the committee together as he found the consensus of opinion as developed in the discussion on the subject was that the I.C.R. rates are as a rule lower than on company railroads, and it would be difficult to obtain a reduction.

Four resolutions with respect to better roads were consolidated into one, and thoroughly discussed.

The subject was brought to the attention of the several local governments, and it was hoped that in New Brunswick at least, a good roads convention would have been called by the local government before the close of the session, but it was found impossible to do this on account of prolonged session, and the near approach of the coronation.

The matter of the quicker despatch of the English mails from Rimouski eastward in the winter and early spring was taken up in Parliament by Hon. Mr. Emmerson on the request of Mr. Lodge of the Moncton Board, and thoroughly threshed out, many of the Maritime members taking part in the discussion. The Post Office department tried to minimize the fact of delays to the mails, but the figures were against them. Mr. Lodge furnished additional information to Hon. Mr. Emmerson and the subject received another airing in Parliament. But the matter stands where it has so long—the Intercolonial Railway will not put on a train without payment by the Post Office Department, and the latter declines to pay for a special train—the interests of the Maritime Provinces continue to suffer.

The subject of immigration was thoroughly discussed and a resolution passed thereon demanding that the Maritime Provinces receive more attention and consideration at the hands of the immigration officials in Great Britain.

A copy of the resolution was sent to the superintendent of immigration at Ottawa.

The resolution from the Moncton Board re municipal indebtedness was debated and, by request, was allowed to stand over.

As you will see by the president's report, the discussion has borne some fruit in New Brunswick in legislating relating to sinking funds, registration of bonds, etc.

Freight rates to and from Prince Edward Island:—Copies of the resolution were sent to the several transportation bodies, and I received the usual acknowledgements. Your secretary feels that no advantage can be gained in this respect short of placing the Government railways under the Dominion Railway Commission. So many and great advantages have accrued to the people of this Dominion from the decisions of that Board it seems anomalous that any railway system in the Dominion should be exempted by special legislation from its jurisdiction.

A resolution was passed relating to the fostering of the sheep industry, but when your secretary secured copies of the legislation of the three Provinces relating to the protection of sheep he found that the fullest legislation had been provided for the safety of flocks. Provision is made for the killing of dogs chasing sheep, and for the recovery of the value of sheep killed. The difficulty rests with the farmers, themselves, mainly. Dogs-at-large are incompatible with successful sheep raising, but the claims of the dog appear to bulk larger with the average farmer than those of the sheep, and a large and profitable industry has become almost extinguished. The Dominion Government Commission on the Sheep Industry has toured Great Britain and the Dominion and it is hoped that its report, which should be ready shortly, may lead to a revivial of that great and valuable industry.

CAPTAIN MASTERS,

A strong resolution on the conservation of Canada's natural resources was passed. At the present time the Government Conservation Commission is taking evidence and obtaining information as to the natural wealth of this Dominion, and public opinion is being roused as to the necessity of conserving for the people the wealth of coal, water powers, lumber, etc., in the Dominion.

On 20th of September last a circular was sent to each of the Boards of Trade of the Maritime Provinces giving the text of the several resolutions passed by the Maritime Board at Chatham in August and asking that the several Boards would bring their influence to bear on the members of the Dominion Parliament and the Houses of Assembly to secure the furtherance of the objects covered by the resolutions.

On 3rd January last another circular was issued covering copies of that of 20th September and calling attention to the fact that M.P.'s and M.L.A.'s would shortly be resuming their duties after the Christmas recess, furnishing the Boards an opportunity of bringing the resolutions again before the members.

I have requested the president to suggest that one hour of one of the sessions of this Board be given to the subject: "How Best Can the Work of the Maritime Board Be Made Effective?"

A heart-to-heart discussion may bring to light the link that is missing between resolutions and results.

Correspondence has been had with parties in Chester, Lower Stewiacke, Sydney and Sussex re Boards of Trade in those places, but satisfactory replies could not be obtained.

Respectfully Submitted,
THOS. WILLIAMS,
Secretary.

This report was, as was the president's, received with enthusiastic applause, and on motion the reports were received.

Want St. John Members.

The president here referred to the case of the St. John Board. He had been asked to make efforts to have St. John delegates in attendance. He had gone to St. John personally, and had interviewed several of the business men there. Their answer had been that their demands were that additions be made to the by-laws in the matter of subjects to be discussed. He had, the president said, immediately set to work to meet, if possible, the demands, and the additions set down in the programme, to come before the meeting were the result.

The St. John Board had, however, refused to come in until they were assured that a majority of the delegates would support the move.

At the evening session the question of Maritime union was discussed at considerable length.

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON.

The committee on unfinished business then reported. They recommended that Resolution No. 5 be amalgamated with the Halifax Resolution No. 7, both touching on emigration.

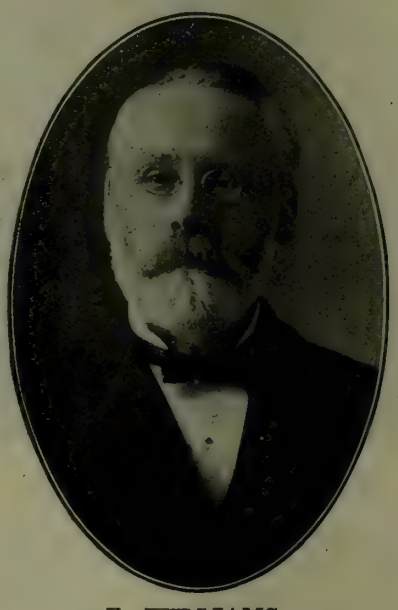
Also that Moncton's subject on "Maritime Union" be taken up first.

Also that subject No. 2, touching on an Automobile Highway from St. Stephen to Halifax, be so amended as to include Campbellton to Moncton.

On motion, the report was allowed to lay on the table until subject No. 4 was taken up.

Maritime Union.

R. W. Hewson, of Moncton, then moved the following resolution named "Maritime Union," which was in itself explanatory:—



"That a committee be appointed by this Board to consist of * members representative of the three Maritime Provinces, to memorialize the Governments of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island with respect to Maritime Union; and to take such other action with a view to influencing public opinion as shall to them seem best calculated to bring about the union of the three Maritime Provinces."

Mr. Hewson suggested the leaving of the appointing of the committee in the hands of the present chairman. He further suggested a committee of four.

The motion was seconded by D. A. Morrison, of Amherst.

The motion was then put and carried.

Moved by Capt. Read, Summerside, that the blanks be filled by four members from each province, a committee of twelve.

T. WILLIAMS,

Secretary, and necessarily a busy man at the Convention.

Seconded by E. C. Cole, of Moncton, and carried.

The report of the committee on unfinished business was then taken up. Some technical discussion then ensued when it was moved by J. T. Hawke, of Moncton, that the report be referred back to the committee to make the suggested changes.

This was seconded by Capt. Elderkin, of Amherst, and carried.

Trade with Cuba and West Indies.

Capt. Elderkin then introduced Amherst's subject, "Better Trade Relations With Cuba and the West India Islands." He regretted very much that H. J. Logan, who was to have introduced the subject, was unavoidably absent. The resolution, however, he considered of great importance; and he thought it could very properly be brought before the Maritime Board. In connection with the people of the West Indies and Cuba, from personal contact he had with them he was prepared to state that they were intensely sympathetic with, and took a deep interest in, the people and conditions of Canada. As an instance, he cited the case in 1908, where Canadian flour had sold in those islands for 25 cents per barrel less than United States flour, while in 1910 it had sold for 25 cents per barrel more, simply because they had become acquainted with the fact that it was better flour.

In the matter of the movement to secure a firmer commercial foothold there, the speaker, wished to bring particularly to the attention of the Board the question of the steamship service. Pickford & Black deserved credit for the manner in which they had built up their line. The main point was to have a service that would commend itself to us as well as to the West Indies. It was a nice trip, and he would heartily endorse any action which might be taken by the Board that would induce the government to grant a substantial subsidy to some company, with a view of having another good line. He believed in mortgaging for the future and letting future generations bear a part of the burden, the results of which they would reap their share of the benefit.

There was a very large trade to be developed, but it must be done through personal solicitation. The further opening up of these islands to Maritime Provincial trade would prove a great benefit to these provinces.

Ask Aid From Government.

Capt. Elderkin moved the following resolution:

"Whereas the volume of export trade largely influences a country's material prosperity;

"Whereas, owing to the geographical position of the confederated provinces of Canada, different markets appeal to some more strongly than others;

"Whereas the West India Islands are large importers of food products manufactured articles and live stock;

"Whereas Canada through the Maritime Provinces has a direct route with the Islands;

"Whereas up to the present time these Islands are largely supplied from the United States;

"Whereas, believing that these markets can be won for Canada if a persistent effort is made to keep before them the advantages of dealing with Canada;

"Therefore, resolved that this Maritime Board of Trade in annual meeting assembled in the city of Moncton, respectfully asks the federal government through the ministers of trade and commerce and agriculture, to use every available means to win this trade, especially that of live stock, for Canada;

"And further resolved, that in the judgment of this Board a modern and up-to-date steamship service should be inaugurated with boats of not less than 12 knots speed and sufficient accommodation for at least fifty first-class passengers and a dead weight capacity of not less than three thousand tons."

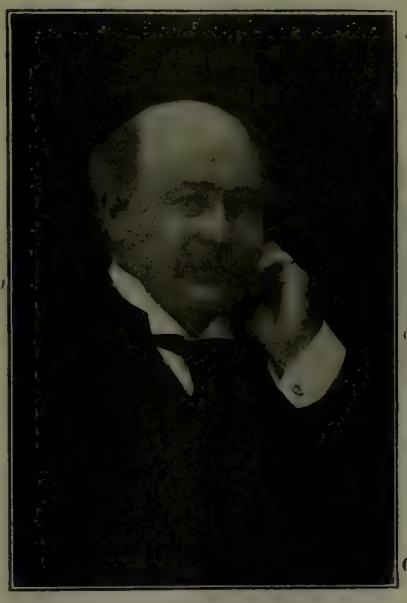
Mr. Christie, of Amherst, spoke briefly on the question. He had taken a trip down that way last year. He heartily agreed with the resolution and was prepared to endorse the mover's statements as regards the feeling of sympathy which seemed to exist in the West Indies for things Canadian. They wished to trade with Canadians. The people there were willing to take hold of anything British or Canadian, in preference to those of other countries. A St. John firm was doing a big business down that way. He knew it was a good opportunity for Canadian trade and Canadian manufactured goods. The main point to get at was to make the steamship service quick with large boats.

Important Subject.

Mr. Higgs, of Charlottetown, stated that the subject was a vitally important one. He knew from personal experience that the people of Cuba and the West India Islands wished to foster trade with Canada, providing we could give them the goods they wanted at a fair price. He touched on the Island's facilities for trade down there and stated that under present conditions, they were not as well situated as New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. He considered that it would be a good idea for the Dominion Government to send, say three business men from each province down to talk the matter over personally with the business men there. Much could thus be accomplished.

Freight Rate Too High.

W. B. Snowball, of Chatham, had an unanswered letter, to the effect that their prices on lumber were right, but that the freight rates were too high. There was a good trade to be done there in fish, lumber, etc., which Canada could secure and was entitled to.



If any resolution could be passed by the board that would impress upon the Government the need of this they would have accomplished much.

Mr. Davidson, of Halifax, brought up the question of the granting of the subsidy. Would it be possible to subsidize for the carrying of cattle and first-class passengers on the same boat? Much objection was raised by first-class passengers in this connection. He suggested the subsidizing a class of boats for cattle and another for passengers.

Capt. Elderkin, of Amherst, stated they would have to go step by step. It would be too much to ask for a combination subsidy now.

Capt. Read, of Summerside, was of the opinion that at the start a good course to pursue would be to ask for a subsidy for freight only. He thought that whoever took the subsidy would themselves provide for the passenger traffic. His idea would be a line of boats to start from Montreal in the summer, reserving space for points in the Maritime Provinces, so much for each port of call. The time would come, he contended, when those people would perforce have to draw trade from Canada.

Favored Canada.

F. McDougall, manager of the Moncton branch of the Royal Bank of Canada, who had spent much time in the West Indies and written much about conditions there, was called upon, at the suggestion of Hon. Mr. Robinson. Mr. McDougall had spent a couple of winters there and had found the sentiment much in Canada's favor. New York, however, had captured much of the trade, by reason of the fact that the commercial travelers from that city covered the ground, not intermittently, but regularly. This question was, in his mind, a most important one for Canada, in fact, they could hardly discuss a more important one. If some one could be induced to put on a good weekly, or ten-days, service, the benefits would be great. Touching on the point regarding the fact of carrying cattle clashing with the passenger traffic, Mr. McDougall said that he did not see how such could be so as the greater bulk, if not all, of the beef was not taken in on the hoof, but dressed and chilled. True, he went on to say, Canada had geography against her, but they must do their best to overcome this.

The motion was then put and carried unanimously.

Committee Report.

The further report of the committee on unfinished business was heard recommending the amalgamation of subjects 5 and 7 touching on immigration and advertising in the Mother Land. On motion of Capt. Read, seconded by Capt. Elderkin, the report was adopted.

Mayor Welcomes Delegates.

At this juncture, His Worship Mayor Reilly was called to the platform and in a brief but straightforward speech welcomed the visiting delegates. "It affords me much pleasure," he said, "on behalf of the citizens and aldermen to welcome you to our city to-day. I thank you as a body for the honor you bestow upon me at this moment." He wished the visitors to take some little time from their duties in the sessions to look about the city and trusted they would take away with them pleasant recollections of Moncton. "On behalf of the citizens," His Worship went on, "I open to you all welcome; and trust you will avail yourselves of the opportunity of acquainting yourselves with the extent of our natural resources. I feel safe in saying that the aldermen will be pleased to assist you in any way in their power."

Government Inspection of Farm Products.

At the conclusion of Mayor Reilly's remarks, Capt. Read, of Summerside, introduced their subject and moved the following resolution:

"Whereas Government inspection of products increases the value of all such articles by reason of the confidence of the buyers and consumers, and

"Whereas, such inspection protects the honest and careful producer against the dishonest and careless, and

"Whereas, inspection of certain commodities for export abroad only leaves all the inferior, damaged, or infected products of the farms to be used by local consumers thus increasing the ratio of inferior, damaged or diseased goods to go on the local market; and

"Whereas, inspection will promote more care in production and marketing; and

"Whereas, the public health of the community will be in many respects guarded by inspection;

"Be it resolved, that this Maritime Board of Trade request the Dominion Government to appoint a sufficient staff of inspectors to inspect (a) grain, (b) hay, (c) meat products used for home consumption and traded in between the three Maritime Provinces and Newfoundland, and also all cows, the milk of which is used for making cheese, butter, condensed milk, etc., and that the local Government pass such as will protect the local consumers, when and where the Dominion Government has not the necessary jurisdiction."

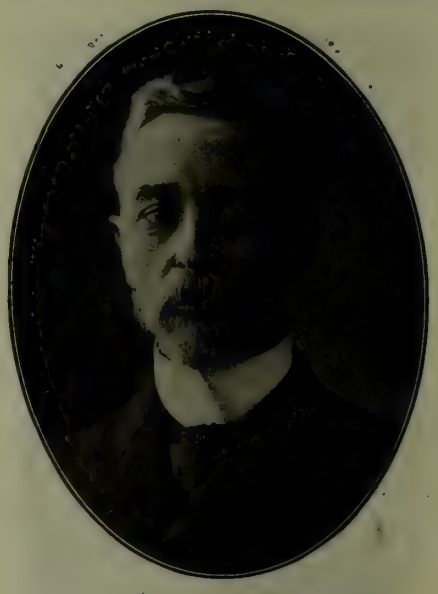
This was seconded by Capt. Elderkin, of Amherst.

Capt. Read, in introducing the resolution, stated that the farm products exported from the Island to points outside the Maritime Provinces had to be inspected, but for shipment to points within the provinces, such was not the case. In this connection, all tubercular animals, detected in the inspection, were burned on the spot, while, when there was no inspection, the disease was liable to be transmitted in this way. This was the point they wished to get at, to guard against this by providing for inspection. He touched on the great fight being waged against the white plague, and thought the inspection of all products such as these should be stringently compulsory in the Maritime Provinces. This applied to the matter of milk for sale, for cheese, for butter, and in all cases, in conjunction with all kinds of meat products. He also touched on the matter of oats, hay, etc. Inspection was here a great necessity as well.

Want Pure Foods.

Capt. Elderkin, in seconding the resolution, expressed himself in hearty accord with the purport of it. "We cannot lay too much stress on this matter," he said, "and, as a matter of fact, we cannot go too far in an endeavor to have the food products put on the market of the purest and best quality."

Mr. Snowball, of Chatham, in his remarks, brought up a case where Newcastle diseased meats had been detected and destroyed. He was heartily in sympathy with the resolution. Not sufficient care was taken in the inspection of milk, as well as many other such products.



Mr. Fielding bore out Capt. Read in this matter. He cited an instance of a hog that was, as he termed it, a "beautiful looking" one. It was found, however, upon examination by a veterinary surgeon to be full of disease from head to foot. Such cases as these he thought should tend to make people more careful and inspection more rigorous.

Mr. Hennessey, of Newcastle, and others briefly supported the resolution.

Mr. Stables spoke of the way they were cheated in the matter of apples for want of an inspector.

Mr. Miller, of Newcastle, brought up the case Mr. Snowball had spoken of regarding the diseased meat. This meat, he said, bore the stamp of the government inspector. Nothing, he thought, could go from the Board that could too strongly set the matter before the proper authorities.

Mr. Snowball thought the case Mr. Miller had spoken of should be a matter for the Newcastle board to take up and follow to an end.

After some little further discussion on the matter, the motion was carried unanimously.

For Good Roads.

Hon. Mr. Robinson moved the following resolution from the Moncton Board:

"That with a view to fostering tourist travel between the United States, Quebec and the Maritime Provinces, the Governments of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick be memorialised by this Board to reconstruct and improve the highways between the United States boundary and Halifax (via St. John) and Moncton to Campbellton in order to make them suitable for automobile travel; and that a committee of members be appointed by this board to prepare such memorial and take such other action as may be necessary to further the object of this resolution and that the Government of Prince Edward Island be petitioned to repeal the prohibition of the running of automobiles on Prince Edward Island."

Mr. Robinson in moving the resolution stated that while he appreciated the fact that there was much antagonism against the auto, it had come to stay. It was in the line of progress. He touched on the benefit of tourist travel that come to the Provinces by automobile, and stated that in many parts the roads were so impassable as to almost discourage such altogether. Much of this tourist travel was attracted here through the medium of the game of the Provinces, and as a direct result, the revenue for licenses last year was some $50,000. Much more than this was spent by the tourists.

"We have," he continued, "our climate and sea coast to sell and under existing conditions we cannot get those to market. It would be good business to try to provide a market for these commodities." There had been an agitation at the Canadian Forestry Convention for a general highway through Canada from the Atlantic to the Pacific. This would, if brought into effect, provide for that section from Moncton to Campbellton. He did not favor the macadamizing scheme, but thought the scheme could be worked out by fixing up the bad pieces of road.

Mr. Miller, of Newcastle, agreed with Mr. Robinson, but did not see how they could cut out the section from Moncton to Campbellton. The North Shore was the game country. He was heartily in accord with the move to take in this section, and thought the government, under the ciscumstances, could well afford it. He seconded the resolution.

Mr. Snowball, of Chatham, Mr. Davidson, of Halifax, and others spoke on the matter, but as the hour was growing late it was decided to postpone the discussion until the evening session.

The meeting then adjourned to meet again at 8 o'clock.

Wednesday Evening Session.

When the evening session openeh at 8 o'clock, the president announced he would consider it a good move to suspend the order of business for a half-hour and devote that time to a discussion on the question as to how results could be best obtained. It was practically useless for a body of men to come from all over the Provinces, pass resolutions and let the matter rest there. He called upon Mr. Snowball of Chatham for his opinion.

Mr. Snowball was of the opinion that it would be a good idea to have a committee of three appointed from each province, to follow up the resolutions, take them up with their respective provincial governments and report back at the annual meeting of the board. He did not believe in large committees—three, he considered, sufficient members. He also suggested a committee of three to interview the Dominion Government on such matters as came under the jurisdiction, the members of the latter committee to be chosen, at the discretion of the Board.

Mr. Bell, of Halifax, was in accord with the suggestion of Mr. Snowball in connection with the committees reporting back. In connection with the committee of three to meet the Federal Government, he thought it would be a good idea to have them interview the Ministers while they were on their vacations. While at Ottawa they were busy.

Mr. Stead of Chatham, suggested that copies of the resolutions be presented to the members and ministers.

Mr. Hennessey, of Newcastle, thought it would be a good idea for each local board to have copies of the resolutions, and place them in the hands of their representatives. No representative would ignore the requests of the Board of Trade. This, he suggested, as one means to gain the desired end.

Mr. Brace, Summerside, and Mr. McCurdy, Newcastle, agreed with Mr. Hennessey. The demands of such a representative body as the Maritime Board of Trade could not be ignored. The local boards, however, should be energetic.

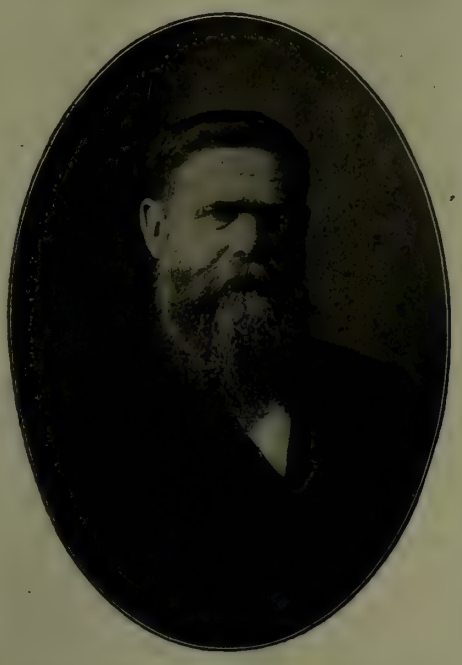
The Weak Spot.

Secretary Williams stated that the last speaker had put his finger on the weak spot. He has sent out a communication to the local boards calling attention to the resolutions passed at the last meeting of the Maritime Board and asking that they take up the matters vigorously with their local members. Another such circular had been sent out after the Christmas recess. The matter with the local boards was that they did not take themselves seriously.

Mr. Watt, Chatham, also claimed the boards did not take themselves seriously enough on matters that did not interest them locally. He, however, considered that something along the line Mr. Snowball had suggested was the only cure.

Mr. Morrison, Amherst, thought that a combination of the suggestion brought out would bring the best results. The local representatives should be the men to follow the matters up, and they, in turn, should be followed up by the board members. He had found in the case of Amherst the plan worked well.

Mayor Reilly, Moncton, stated that the difficulties they were now endeavoring to overcome, occurred in all interprovincial bodies. Such difficulties had cropped out in the Union of Canadian Municipalities. He outlined their plan of action, in this connection. The matters were taken up from a provincial standpoint, and the individual provincial committees reported back to the main body.



The culmination of the discussion was the appointment of Mayor Reilly and Mr. Snowball to bring in in the morning a resolution in this connection.

Back to Good Roads.

The discussion on the automobile highway was here resumed where left off in the afternoon session.

Mr. Snowball stated that roads were the main feeders of the railways. He touched on the immigration question as influenced by roads. The class of immigrants we had coming in were used to good roads, and would in many cases turn away disgusted with their conditions going west in search of better. The time, he thought, had arrived when Canada should pay more attention to her roads. It was a question, if the suggestion of a bonded debt of $1,000,000 for road purposes was not a good one. Were he a member of the local government, he would advocate such a move and he believed the people of the country would bear him out in it.

Mr. Forbes, of Charlottetown, stated that from what he had seen of New Brunswick and its roads he would say that the New Brunswick people in the matter of roads had the heartfelt sympathy of the people of P.E.I. As regards the last section—that touching the move to have the Act repealed which prohibited the use of autos on the Island—he thought it rather out of the province of the board. It was, anyway in his mind, useless. The farmers would not listen to it. It was merely a waste of time.

Mr. Cotten, of Charlottetown, said he would not like to go so far as had Mr. Forbes. There was a movement on foot in some circles to have the prohibition of running the autos repealed. He thought, however, the discussion was useless.

Mr. Forbes moved that the section be struck out. This was seconded by Mr. Cotten.

A Contrary View.

Mr. Sumner, of Moncton, wished to correct Mr. Forbes. He could not have been over the New Brunswick roads very much. He (Mr. Sumner), as an auto owner, would say that he found the roads to St. John excellent. He had made the trip in four hours. The New Brunswick roads were away ahead of those of Nova Scota, Quebec and other provinces. In the Island they had fair roads. They were, however, not wide enough. He agreed with Mr. Forbes and the seconder of his motion it would be unwise to tamper with this matter of attempting to have the law repealed.

Mr. Sumner touched on the point brought up by Mr. Snowball, in reference to bonding to the extent of $1,000,000 for road purposes. He was familiar with the cirucumstances when this question had been brought up and it had finally been stated at the time that $1,000,000 was not enough—$5,000,000 would be nearer the mark. He touched on enhancing the value of Crown lands through the medium of good roads. He considered it good policy to further if possible this move for good roads.

F. McDougall, Moncton, considered it a wise move to drop the clause at the suggestion of the P.E.I. delegates He also considered that it would be a good move to eliminate the clause "from Moncton to Campbellton." In the interests of all concerned in the matter of a main highway, he thought it would be unwise to attempt to establish branch lines as well. He would suggest to the delegates from the North Shore, the dropping of this section.

Mr. Snowball stated that as one of the committee responsible for the putting in of the North Shore section, explained why it had been incorporated. He could not see his way clear to agree to the striking of it out, and he felt sure that all the delegates from the North Shore would stand pat on the question. He again touched on the matter of the suggested bonded debt and reiterated that he considered it a good business proposition, even to go so far as the $5,000,000 suggested by Mr. Sumner.

Hon. C. W. Robinson called attention to the income for the roads of $5,000 auto tax. The automobile owners were contributing this toward their upkeep.

Mr. Miller of Newcastle, thought that to leave out the North Shore a proposition of this kind was "political suicide." A goodly share of the tourist travel went to the North Shore and he thought they should be encouraged in it. By all means include the North Shore and have the road extended to Campbellton.

Mr. Forbes' amendment striking out the P.E. Island clause was then put and carried unanimously.

Old Country Roads.

Mr. Hawke, of Moncton, said he had listened with much interest to the statement that the roads of New Brunswick were far superior to those of Nova Scotia and the other provinces, but he could hardly see where the statement was consistent with the suggestion by the same speaker to spend millions of dollars on roads that were considered so excellent. He touched on the statement of Mr. Snowball that the roads of England were built a thousand years ago. Mr. Snowball had evidently referred to the old Roman roads. Such an argument as this he looked upon as simply attempting to excuse ourselves. From personal experience he knew of excellent, in fact almost perfect roads in the Mother Country built not more than sixty years ago. He touched on the improved methods of dust laying in certain sections in the Old Country, and passed on to take strenuous exception to the phraseology of the resolution in the main. The resolution provided for improving the roads from the standpoint of the automobile and solely for the benefit of the automobile. While he fully appreciated the factors the auto and the bicycle had been toward better roads, he considered that the resolution should be brought in and discussed from the standpoint of the masses and not the classes. How could they improve the roads so as to benefit the farmer?—that was the basis upon which the matter should be discussed. No government, be it Liberal or Conservative could live and attempt to pass such class legislation. The farmers the provinces over would rise in arms against it. He considered the resolution should be so redrafted as to eliminate the word "automobile" and set the matter up in a more general sense.

Mr. Sumner took exception to Mr. Hawke's remarks regarding the old Roman roads in the Old Country, saying that he had passed over roads which he had been told, had been constructed by the Romans over 1,000 years ago, and went on to say that as regards the wording of the resolution to make it pertain to autos only, he agreed with Mr. Hawke there. He was against that idea. It seemed to be a class resolution. He again touched on the matter of a bonded debt to the extent of $5,000,000 to be expended on permanent roads and considered it a good scheme.

Mr. Snowball spoke briefly on the part played by the frost in Canada in the maintaining of good roads.

Motion to Redraft.

F. McDougall, of Moncton, moved in amendment that a committee be appointed to re-draft the resolution and submit the result at the next session.

This was seconded by Mr. Miller, of Newcastle.

Mr. Robinson, of Moncton, here spoke at some length on the matter. He was to be considered, no doubt, the father of the resolution, and considered that even from the standpoint of making better the roads for tourist travel, the resolution was in his mind a good one, and one which, if carried out, would react with beneficial results. He touched on his statements of the afternoon on the matter, and went on to call attention to the fact that tourists in autos, coming from the United States side were stopped by an almost impassable barrier. One or two touring U. S. automobiles would be seen on the streets here, while given good roads, the numbers would be increased to two or three hundred. They were exceedingly anxious to visit and tour the Maritime Provinces, but with such roads before them as that from St. Stephen to St. John, were naturally discouraged.

Passing on, Mr. Robinson stated that madadamizing was not necessary, rather fixing up the bad sections—coupling the good sections by repairing the bad—utilizing the gravel beds where possible. His idea would be good highways built and kept up by the government, apart entirely from municipal control. It was a big question to bring to the attention of a government, this permanent roads question, involving as it would, an outlay of several millions of dollars.

Some further discussion ensued in which Mr. Cole, Mr. Morrison, Mr. Hawke and others took part, when the amendment was put and lost.

Redraft Resolution Carried.

Moved by Mr. Bell, of Halifax, seconded by Mr. Morrison, that the resolution be recasted to read thus :—

"That with a view to fostering tourist travel between the United States, Quebec and the Maritime Provinces the Governments of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick be memorialised by this Board to so improve the highways between the United States boundary and Halifax (via St. John) and Moncton to Campbellton as to make them more suitable for tourists and general travel and that a committee of * * * * members be appointed by this Board to prepare such memorial and take such other action as may be necessary to further the object of this resolution."

This was seconded by Mr. Morrison and carried.

The main resolution was then put and carried unanimously.

Nominating Committee.

Before adjournment, the president named the following gentlemen as a nominating committee: Messrs. Elderkin, Nova Scotia; Snowball, New Brunswick, and Forbes, P. E. Island.

Thursday Morning Session.

The proceedings opened promptly at 9.30 with Captain Masters in the chair.

W. B. Snowball brought in the following resolution which was seconded by Mayor Reilly and carried unanimously:

RESOLVED that the president, after consultation with delegates, appoint a committee of three from each province to follow up the resolutions passed by this Maritime Board and press them upon the attention of their respective local legislature, and also a committee of three, one from each province, to deal with resolutions that require legislation at Ottawa; and that said committees report back in writing at the next annual meeting. Also that the secretary have copies of the resolutions sent to every member from the three provinces accompanied by a circular letter asking their co-operation.

Mr. Bentley, of Truro, thought it was unfair to place so much responsibility upon the president. One of the wants in the East, was the lack of unanimity among the members of Parliament of the Maritime Provinces. There was a mistaken controversial spirit abroad.

Mr. Bell, Halifax, pointed out that if this work were undertaken after the meeting adjourned it would entail untold correspondence. It would be much better to act now while the Board was in session.

Need of Forest Protection.

"Forest Protection" was the next subject, introduced by the Moncton Board.

"That a Forest Protection Board be appointed by each Province to whom shall be reported by the owner of the property burned over each case of forest fire, and such Board shall employ a competent officer or officers, with power to administer oath, who shall make a thorough investigation into each forest fire and report fully on same to the Board, with such recommendation as shall appear to them advisable in each case."

In the absence of F. W. Sumner and Clifford Robinson, Mr. Hawke, of Moncton, seconded by S. M. Higgs. Mr. Higgs referred to the need of action along the lines suggested in the resolution and especially where he came from on the island. He referred to the blight which fell upon cherry trees on the western part of P. E. Island. He had been unable to get any information as to the cause of this, by writing to the Dominion ethymologist, who had promised to look into it. Carried.

Lower Express Rates.

Transportation was the next subject. It involved the failure of express companies to put into effect the reduction of rates ordered by the railway commission. It was submitted by the Alberton and West Prince (P.E.I.), Board.

Mr. Fielding, of West Prince, said a readjustment had taken place but no reduction. He would like to hear the opinion of others on the subject.

D. B. Bentley said that on the main line considerable reduction had taken place, and before going on record the Board should be sure that no reduction had taken place.

Mr. Bell thought it a mistake to bring such a matter forward without facts to back it up. The readjustment of rates was a matter of weighing which meant a great increase in rates. He thought an express rate worked both ways. A lower rate would help the shippers of goods from Toronto and Montreal and thus compete with home goods. He would advise care.

Geo. Watt, of Chatham, N.B., said that the big departmental stores all over had special rates on the express services and if the companies could cut rates for them, that was a subject worthy of consideration. No preference should be given these big stores.

Captain Read explained that transportation was not a local question. The "hydra-headed" express companies were the ones to get after as well as the big stores, and the Board should call the attention of the government to this iniquity.

W. B. Snowball spoke to the question and referred to the fine parcel's post system in the Old Country. It would be advantageous to recommend a parcels post like that existing in England. He supported the resolution.

Mr. Higgs thought the pith of the resolution was not clear. He knew that the express companies carried out the instructions of the Railway Commission. He therefore would suggest a readjusting of the resolution with facts involved, which would state what redress was wanted.

D. A. Morrison moved that the motion be referred to a committee of three to redraft this resolution.

Captain Masters appointed A. M. Bell, J. P. Fielding and S. M. Higgs, a committee to do this.

Truro the Next Meeting Place.

The location of the next meeting was discussed, a motion was brought in favoring Truro as next meeting place.

L. G. Jones referred to the fact that last year, Yarmouth gave way to Moncton as the meeting place, and that city had expected to be chosen for next year's convention. Mr. Jones made a motion to this effect and was supported by D. A. Morrison as seconder.

Captain Read supported Truro. He said he was not sure that Yarmouth was in Nova Scotia, and created great laughter by telling Captain Masters that when they were "chewing salt water" Yarmouth was not considered on the Nova Scotia map.

Mr. Bentley pointed out that it was thirteen years since the meeting met in Truro. There were many points in favor of Truro. It was central and convenient.

Mr. Snowball said that Captain Cann, of Yarmouth, was in line for the presidency, and it was a question if he would care to go to Truro.

The amendment in favor of Yarmouth was put and lost by considerable number.

Truro was chosen by a large majority.

Captain Masters then asked the nominating committee to bring in a report.

Changes to Constitution.

Amendment to constitution was the next subject.

Notice had been given of the following amendment, by the Charlottetown, P. E.I., Board:

"That Section 9 be amended to read: "Each affiliated Board shall pay annually to the Secretary-Treasurer towards the expenses of the Maritime Board an amount in the proportion of a per capita tax of fifty cents each on its membership."

Mr. Higgs spoke on the resolution to the effect that more money would be an asset to the Board. However, another resolution had been passed which covered the aim involved in this one, and he wished to withdraw it. He would like to see Members of Parliament asked to attend these meetings, and he made a resolution to the effect that the secretary be asked to write officially for the attendance of members of the federal and local parliaments. It was seconded by Mr. Watt, of Chatham.

Express Rates Again.

A new resolution re the Express Companies' rates was brought in and carried unanimously as follows:

"Whereas it has been found that the reclassification recently made by the express companies has not provided the result of cheaper rates aimed at, but acts to the disadvantage of the general public, therefore be it resolved that this matter be again urged to the attention of the Railway Commission with a view to having the grievance remedied.

Question of Local Subjects.

The following suggestion of addition to rules and by-laws was discussed:—

"No. 25.—No subject of a purely local character in which the interest of one Board may be opposed to the interests of others will be allowed on the programme for discussion at any meeting."

"No. 26.—The subjects for discussion at any meeting of the Maritime Board shall be submitted to the president or secretary by the affiliated Boards at least four weeks prior to the date of the meeting, and a list of such subjects shall then at once be forwarded to the several affiliated Boards, each one of which shall have the right to object to any subject in the list on the grounds stated in By-Law No. 25, which subject shall then be eliminated, and from the remaining subjects the committee on unfinished business (see By-Law No. 3) shall select the subjects for discussion at that meeting, and no other subjects shall be discussed except by two-thirds vote of the members present."

A resolution was moved by Captain Read and seconded by Mr. Higgs and carried that clause No. 25 should be added.

Objection to Clause Being Added.

Mr. Davidson on behalf of Halifax Board said their council did not want that clause in as it would ultimately cause the withdrawal of the Halifax Board.

W. B. Snowball spoke in favor of the resolution. He showed the difference between a purely local matter and a subject of breadth sufficiently important to be discussed by the Board.

He felt Mr. Davidson had not quite understood the question, as Halifax men were much bigger than that.

Mr Davidson said this clause had been brought in to "pamper" St. John. Halifax required no "petting" and had stood by the Maritime Board through thick and thin, and he could not see why St. John should be given any consideration for a "whimsical pout."

Captain Masters then said he was responsible for this clause and it was not for St. John, any more than any other place. He had seen so much time wasted at Board meetings, that he urged this clause.

Mr. Harris and Mr. Barnstead pointed out that it would be necessary to determine more clearly what "purely local" meant.

A. M. Bell remarked that the two clauses were interlaced and should be discussed together. He wanted to see contentious subjects retained in the Board. A "scrap" always made things interesting and he would dealy love controversies at the meetings.

No. 26 was then brought before the meeting by itself, and A. M. Bell moved an amendment, seconded by Mr. Bentley, which inserted a clause in No. 26 to the effect that subjects that were considered objectionable by a two-thirds vote of the Board of Trade general meeting, also cutting out all words after the words "affiliated Boards." This was carried unanimously.

Advertising the Maritimes.

Two subjects were then merged into one, including "Advertising the Maritime Provinces in the Mother Country," and "Immigration to the Maritime Provinces."

This was presented on the advertising question by the Halifax Board:

"Whereas there is room in the Maritime Provinces of Canada for a population of thirty millions, though they now have less than one million, and

"Whereas, the opportunities industrially and commercially in these provinces assure a satisfactory living to the man of diligence and sobriety always, and

"Whereas, the Maritime Provinces, because of their older civilization, have educational and social advantages that cannot be found in a new country and are therefore more likely to appeal to men with families who have to consider the education of their children and the importance of social life, and

"Whereas, there are thousands of such desirable people leaving the Mother Country each season who could be persuaded to settle in the Maritime Provinces, and

"Whereas, because of the extensive advertising of the far western provinces, the eyes of prospective immigrants from the Mother Country have been and are constantly fecussed on these new provinces;

"Therefore resolved that the Governments of the Maritime Provinces should appropriatae a liberal amount of money to be expended for the following purposes, namely:—

To educate the people of the Mother Country regarding the variety and natural riches of the Maritime Provinces and to impress them with the advantage of citizenship in such a community as ours."

Optimism Needed.

Reginald N. Harris then read the following paper on this question:

"The resolution of the Halifax Board of Trade upon which I have been asked to speak is one dealing with a matter of great importance.

"A few months ago I visited the Canadian west, and from Victoria to Winnipeg, wherever I stopped, I met and heard of hundreds of former residents of the Maritime Provinces who were now living in some part of the various Provinces of Manitoba, Alberta, Saskatchewan and British Columbia.

"I knew that from fifteen to twenty law students from my own office had in the past ten or twelve years taken up their residence in the Canadian west, and I suppose it should have occurred to me that other young men in the Maritime Provinces, in other walks of life, were doing the same thing, but it required a personal visit to bring home to my mind the full realization that during the last fifteen or twenty years thousands of the people of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island had left us to make new homes in western Canada. I must confess that it was not until I visited the west and saw everywhere so many former residents of the Maritime Provinces, many of whose faces were familiar to me, that I began to realize what it all meant to us in the east.

"To hear that most of these were doing well and occupying honorable positions in their new home, was what one naturally expected, considering the stock from which they sprang, but always there came the thought of what New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island might have been if these people, and the thousands who in previous years had gone to the United States, had remained at home.

Some Figures on Population.

"Few realize the enormous loss the drain upon the population of the Maritime Provinces has entailed upon us. In 1881 the total population of Canada, outside of the Maritime Provinces, was 3,454,200. In 1911 it is safe to estimate it at 7,000,000—an increase in 30 years of 100 per cent.

"In 1881, the combined population of the three Maritime Provinces was 870,600. In 1911 it is estimated at not more than 900,000. The rate of increase is only about 3 1-3 per cent., certainly not more than five per cent., as against 100 per cent. in the rest of Canada. If we had kept pace with the rest of Canada we would have had 1,800,000 people in the Maritime Provinces to-day, in place of about 900,000.

"Those who left us were in most cases the youth of the land—the best blood—and the cause of our anaemic condition is therefore plain. We have not only lost these young people, but their children and children's children for all time.

"In many cases in Nova Scotia the old men only have been left on the farms, with the result that as they grew older they were forced practically to abandon any effort to cultivate their land and to content themselves with simply cutting the grass and selling it, and, of course, the effects cannot have been otherwise than disastrous.

Boys Leaving the Farms.

"I was much struck with this on a visit I made last year to Margaree. The man who drove me from Margaree to Strathlorne was a farmer in the Margaree valley, just below the Forks. On the trip I said to him, 'You have a fine chance here for farming. These beautiful slopes must yield excellent crops, and I suppose you do a lot of farming?' 'Oh, no,' he said, 'my boys are all away, and I am too old to farm. All I can do is cut the grass.'

"On my arrival at Strathlorne I spent the night at the hotel, and in the morning was driven to the station by the proprietor. Here, too, the fertility of the beautiful valley impressed me, and on the way to the station I said to the proprietor, 'This is a splendid farming country. I suppose you do a lot of farming here?' His answer was almost word for word what had been said to me the day before by the man who drove me from Margaree. His boys were all away. All he was doing was cutting the grass. There was no attempt at farming.

"These two conversations took place on two consecutive days. They cannot be isolated instances.

"Who can estimate the enormous loss to the Maritime Provinces due to the emigration which has been going on for the past thirty years? Who can properly estimate the position which the eastern provinces of Canada would occupy to-day, if all our people had remained at home, or if we had held our own with the rest of Canada? Think what it would mean to cities like St. John, Halifax and Moncton if they had to-day double their present population. With the 900,000 people we have lost we could have three cities the size of Toronto.

"There is some satisfaction in the thought that the exodus to the United States has ceased to a very large extent at least. If the people in the Maritime Provinces must go west, we can thank God that they are still citizens of Canada.

"Estimating the number of people who have left us in the last thirty years, with their offspring, at 900,000, it is perhaps worth while to figure up what this means in dollars and cents.

Citizen Valued at $1,000.

"The statement has often been made, and so far as I know it has never been questioned, that the value of each inhabitant to a country is at least $1,000. We, therefore, have a loss to the Maritime Provinces of 900,000 people worth $1,000 each, making a grand total of $900,000,000. In other words, we have lost thirty million dollars every year for the past 30 years by the exodus of our people alone.

"If these provinces were not possessed of enormous natural wealth; if our soil was not in many parts of unsurpassed fertility, and if our people who remain at home were not of the class they are, our condition would no doubt be much worse than it is. The wonder is, not that the Maritime Provinces show so little progress, but that we are able to show any progress whatever. That all the people who have left us could have found homes and employment in the Maritime Provinces is beyond question.

Annapolis Apple Yield.

"Let us take the apple industry as an illustration:

	Bbls.
In 1881 the Annapolis valley produced	44,785
In 1890 do	87,190
In 1896 do	409,733
In 1903 do	615,049
In 1909 do	1,000,000
In 1911 the yield is estimated at	1,250,000

"This valley is just as capable of producing 10,000,000 barrels as it is of raising 1,250,000.

"I am told that there are many districts in New Brunswick where apples can be grown successfully. There are many districts in Nova Scotia, outside 'The Valley' where fruit is being grown to-day which is but little, if at all, inferior to the famous 'Valley' apples.

"If the population had not been lost, who can say what the production of fruit from the Maritime Provinces would have been to-day.

"So it is with all the other products of the farm and the sea.

"Our great want to-day is population; and still the exodus to the west goes on and the people in the east seem content to let it continue.

Are They Natural Rovers?

"People born by the sea are said to be more inclined to move about the world, and perhaps this accounts to a certain extent for the inclination of our people to follow the advice of Horace Greely and 'go west.' Certain it is that many of those who go west would do equally well at home. They would have many advantages in the older, well-settled community, with churches, schools, etc., and I cannot but think many who leave us for the west find this out.

"The question naturally arises, 'What have we done and what are we doing to keep our people at home?' The answer must be, nothing, or practically nothing.

"The west is continually boomed and advertised in the east. Harvest excursions are advertised in every part of the country, and many young men are tempted to leave the east who never return.

"I do not want to find fault with the press of the Maritime Provinces, but I cannot help asking why it is that our people see so little in our newspapers of the advantages of the east? Why should not our newspapers stop advertising harvest excursions, stop the eternal booming of the west, and pay some little attention to booming the east? One of the greatest assets of the west is the spirit of optimism of its people. And it is surprising how infectious it is! It gets into the blood and takes possession of a man's soul. In the west you cannot help being optimistic. There is nothing peculiar to the west to cause this feeling. You have only to read their newspapers to see the cause. They are all preaching of the west and its advantages; and the west is using the press of the east, and of every land, to attract people to it.

"Is there any doubt in the minds of any of us, that if our newspapers would tell our young men less about the west and its advantages, and more about the east and the opportunities there are for making a home here, it would have a beneficial effect in keeping our young men at home? Can we not get some of the spirit of optimism here? If we are to stop the enormous loss that is daily going on we must wake up and get busy. Let us preach the gospel of the east for a few years, and let the west do its own booming.

"I am glad to note that at least two newspapers in New Brunswick, the Sussex Record and the St. John Telegraph, openly favor this idea, and have announced their determination to follow that course in the future, and the Maritime Merchant has been preaching from this platform for some time. There are others. May all the newspapers in the Maritime Provinces soon be of one mind on this question.

"The newspapers alone, perhaps, cannot succeed. We must all get faith in our own provinces, and when we get it, we must not hide our light under a bushel.

"Beckles Wilson, in his very readable book on 'Nova Scotia,' speaks of the amount of Nova Scotian capital invested in the west, and one hears almost daily of people who have invested in western lands.

The West and the East.

"We have given to the west our young men, and the east has financed the west for years. Has the time not come when we should seriously consider whether we would not do better to spend our surplus in building up the Maritime Provinces and in that way help to keep our young men at home? I have said that our people are rovers, and perhaps some will continue to go in spite of all we can do. The question, therefore, arises, Why should we not fill up their places from the stream of immigrants flowing into the country?

"The railways with lands to sell and other interests do everything possible to get our own people to leave us and divert the incoming immigrants to the west. Now that the C. P. R. is becoming more interested in the east, cannot something be done to convince the far-seeing president of that corporation that it will pay to help increase the export, say, of apples from the Maritime Provinces to ten or fifteen million barrels per year?

"For years the Federal Government has advertised the west in Great Britain and on the continent of Europe. Tons of literature have been given away at the Government offices about the west, but the men who sought information about the Maritime Provinces have had to coax it out of the immigration agents. We should insist on having fair play, and our fair share of the advertising done at the expense of the whole of Canada, and, in addition to this, our local Governments should take the matter in hand and advertise the Maritime Provinces, and if the Federal and local Governments do their duty in this respect, the results cannot but be for our good.

"A few years ago I visited the Canadian Immigration Office in London, and asked for literature about Canada. I was handed several pamphlets about every part of the west, but not a word about the east. I asked if there was not a place called Nova Scotia, and on being told there was, I asked if they had any information about it. At first I was told they had nothing, but later the clerk in charge said that perhaps he could find something, and after waiting for some time, I was given a small pamphlet which seemed to have been written years before, and from which little information could be obtained, and that little of a quality not likely to attract.

"This is a state of affairs which should not be tolerated.

"The people of the east pay their taxes for the maintenance of the Immigration Office in London, and we should insist upon getting a share of the advantage. I am told that matters are not quite so bad to-day, and that some information is obtainable about the Maritime Provinces. I hope this is true. That very little has in the past been done by that office for the east is notorious, and the sooner this matter is remedied the better. It is not creditable to our politicians that it was not remedied years ago.

J. A. MARVIN, Moncton, N.B.
Member of Reception Committee

English Writer's Opinion.

"A London correspondent of a Canadian paper, H. Linton Eccles, recently investigated the question as to why the eastern part of Canada was getting little or no share of the immigration, and he says:

" 'Speaking of England as I know it, I say that the west has been and is admirably boomed, and the booming brings the required results. The advantages of going west are A B C to the intending settler. His imagination has been stirred by literature, by lectures, by demonstrations, through paid missionaries, through friends, and through his favorite newspapers. The west is no longer a strange, wild, uninhabited land to him.

" 'Where does the east come in? Well, bluntly, it has been left out. The average man in Britain who is making up, or might be induced to make up, his mind to emigrate, doesn't know the east. He has never been told enough about it, and a good deal of what he has been told he has forgotten because it wasn't told him again or in the right way. Also, he knows nobody in eastern Canada; none of his friends or acquaintances have settled there, and he does not receive letters from men saying that they are getting on well and wouldn't go back to the old drudgery of life in the Old Country for anything.

" 'You have only to be moving about London every day for a few weeks to see the big difference there is between the emigration offices that are interested in the west and those that are interested in the east of Canada, etc.'

"It is pleasing to note that there are some indications that the respective Governments of the three lower provinces have all apparently had their attention directed to this question. There is no question of so much importance to the Maritime Provinces as re-peopling not the waste, but the fertile places of the provinces.

It Pays to Advertise.

"Advertising in business pays. Money judiciously spent in that way has made many fortunes.

"That money wisely spent in advertising the natural advantages of the Maritime Provinces will pay and pay well is demonstrated beyond question by what has been done in Nova Scotia by the Department of Industries and Immigration.

"The secretary of that Department, in his report for 1910, states that his records show that in 1910 1,204 men, 539 women and 504 children, a total of 2,247 arrived in Halifax and settled in Nova Scotia, and of these 2,101 were from Great Britain. He says he thinks that the 2,247 of whom he has a record is but 'a very small proportion of those who have arrived from other quarters.'

"Let us assume, for the sake of argument, that only 2,500 remain, and valuing them at 1,000 each, we have a total of $2,500,000 actually added to the wealth of the province by this addition to the population. He also estimates that these people brought into the province in cash no less a sum than $400,000. He further tells us in his report that he has the names and addresses of over 400 men and their families, having a capital of $600,000, who plan to come to Nova Scotia within the next two years.

"The Province of Nova Scotia spent in 1910 in its Immigration Department the insignificant sum of $22,273, which, I believe, included the cost of maintaining the London and Halifax offices, leaving a beggarly pittance for advertising. From this small expenditure the returns, while they may seem small and insignificant, have amply demonstrated the wisdom of the expenditure.

Western Cities Advertising.

"I am told that Winnipeg alone last year spent $50,000 in advertising the advantages of that city as a place of settlement. Vancouver spent $30,000, and Calgary $20,000, and nearly every western town made a considerable expenditure on this account. Many towns and cities in Ontario are now following the same course. The wide-awake authorities in these places see the advantage of advertising.

"The Department of Industries and Immigration of Nova Scotia has been in existence only a few years. It has scarcely got to work. The results of the small expenditure already made have not yet been fully realized. Every man who has come to Nova Scotia will help to bring out some of his friends. The expenditure is only a small percentage of what it should be, and, I hope, will be in future years.

"That there has for many years been a need for such a department is clearly shown by the census returns of 1901, the latest available at this time.

"According to these returns, the total population of the Maritime Provinces in 1901 was 893,933. All of these except 61,783 were born in these provinces. This means that 93.1 per cent. of the whole population is native. We have done nothing to get immigrants, and we have got none, or practically none.

"The people, irrespective of party, should urge the various local Governments to largely increase the amount they are spending in advertising the advantages of their province as a place for settlers.

"Let us assure our Governments that we are willing to stand for a campaign of advertising which will extend over the next five years, and that, if the returns are not so good as we hope for, we will, as a people, be willing to shoulder the responsibility. A few hundred thousand dollars expended in advertising will not ruin these provinces financially, if none of it ever comes back; and to me the question from an industrial, commercial and political standpoint has become so serious that I feel we should support any reasonable expenditure having for its object results so much desired. That the results will be beneficial and that the expenditure will be justified, no man can doubt.

"That we need have no hesitation in advertising our advantages to the people of the Old World, would seem to require no argument.

Prefers the East.

"It is perhaps worth while to quote the views of Professor James W. Robertson, LL.D., formerly Dairy Commissioner for the Canadian Government, and lately principal of the Macdonald Agricultural College of Quebec. On this point he said:

> " 'For myself, were I, even with my present knowledge of Canada, now coming to the Dominion as a new settler, I would rather come to the Maritime Provinces to make a home for myself than try the fortunes of the west. Here one finds an invigorating climate, good schools, a law-respecting population, with high ideals and standards of life, running streams, plenty of trees, the fragrance of clover blossoms and flowers, fresh fruits and innumerable other satisfactions. In brief, here is a satisfying place in which to found a home.'

"The time has come when the Maritime Provinces, with their diversified resources, rich agricultural lands, immense areas of timber, enormous coal bodies, with iron in close proximity, innumerable harbors, magnificent fisheries, splendid water powers, a geographical position unequalled on this continent for European trade, an excellent climate, attractive scenery and other advantages, should participate in the expansion which her people have done so much to create in the west.

"The resolution which has been proposed has my hearty support, and, I trust, will receive the unanimous vote of the meeting. But don't be satisfied with simply endorsing the resolution. You can't win battles by passing resolutions to fight. Resolutions are all right, but they must be followed up by action.

Five Roads to Follow.

"The action which, I think, should be taken upon the subject dealt with by the resolution may be summarized as follows:

"First. Get every newspaper in the Maritime Provinces to preach the gospel of the east.

"Second. Insist upon the Federal Government giving to the Maritime Provinces a fair share of the advertising and booming.

"Third. Impress upon the local Governments the importance of actively doing something to get immigrants. Let the Governments see that we are prepared to back up largely increased expenditures for this purpose.

"Fourth. Convince the C. P. R. and other steamship authorities that it is in their interest to increase the immigration to the Lower Provinces, and thereby increase the exports by their own steamships.

"Fifth. Get the western spirit of optimism. Believe that this is the best country in the world to live in and try to convince everybody else that you are right in so believing."

Should Get Government Aid.

Mr. Watt, of Chatham, gave some startling figures regarding the small increase in population in the Provinces. He felt that the Provinces had lived in the happy idea that the world knew all about them and their beauties. He believed this Board should ask the government to do something for these Provinces. The Provinces required the help of every man and every newspaper to promote the East. He knew well big companies were interested in booming the west.

John T. Hawke, of Moncton, spoke in favor of the resolution. He objected, as a publisher, to the narrow policy of the speaker who singled out two or three papers which had promoted the Maritime Provinces. He believed the press generally of the East supported the Provinces. He urged more patriotism in the support of the eastern newspapers. It would be idle to neglect the West. The newspapers should not be criticized as they were as far as he knew, devoted to the Provinces.

He also pointed out that in England this summer he saw some wonderful exhibits of Nova Scotian and other provincial attractions. The government had done a good deal lately and let us not condemn them, but encourage them. He believed the Maritime Provinces were well known. What was lacking, was not so much people, as work for people to do. The development of our industries was what the maritimes wanted most.

D. A. Morrison agreed with Mr. Hawke and said it was regrettable that the newspapers should have been criticized.

Want Industrial Activity.

Mr. Snowball said Mr. Harris delivered words and thoughts prepared by another. He pointed out how difficult it was to get the wealthy man down East to invest his money in a local industry. What the East needed was new industrial activity. He noted that immigrants all wanted to be sure of work when they proposed coming out. He referred to Moncton's oil fields which would supply cheap fuel for industrial life.

The province people were too canny and careful of their money when it came to manufacturing plants. He endorsed what the governments had done, but steady employment was not available in the East.

Captain Read wished he could talk politics.

"Be careful"—A voice.

What the Provinces needed was a larger market.

"No politics"—another voice.

The Provinces were the finest agricultural lands in the world, and if the Provinces got a larger market, things would spring into life as never before.

Conditions Getting Better.

Mr. Barnstead, immigration officer for Nova Scotia, told of his experience on his visit to the Old Country, last year and of his experience since he was appointed. Mr. Harris' reference was to a time before any officers like himself had been appointed. He pointed out that the government was doing considerable for the Provinces. Co-operation had been in evidence lately. Government officers had been given Nova Scotia for advertising in London, and conditions were much better.

Captain Masters said he must hold each speaker to three minutes.

Mr. Barnstead was allowed to go on on the strength of Mr. Bell suggesting that he have his three minutes.

Captain Masters said unless the Board would meet to-morrow morning he could not allow the time to be used, as the visit to the oil wells was arranged and must be made.

Mr. Bell moved that the Board should meet at 8.30 sharp in the evening. It was seconded that Mr. Barnstead would speak at the banquet. Carried.

The Chatham resolution as follows was carried :—

"Whereas the Dominion Immigration reports and other government returns show that the efforts of the Dominion Immigration officials are mainly directed to obtaining settlers for the Northwest."

"Therefore resolved, That a committee consisting of...members of this Board be appointed to communicate with the Provincial Governments of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island with a view to securing their joint co-operation in an effort to obtain from the Dominion Government a policy of immigration which shall secure to the Maritime Provinces the same publicity and facilities with respect to immigration as are at present given to Western Canada."

The New Officers.

Mr. Snowball then brought in the report of the nominating committee which embodied a change in the sequence of officers owing to the change in the selection of a meeting place which meant that the vice-president of Yarmouth was sacrificed. Captain Read seconded the report which was carried unanimously.

President, Dr. Dunbar, Truro, N.S.; 1st vice-president, James Paton, Charlottetown, P.E.I.; 2nd vice-president, E. A. McCurdy, Newcastle; corresponding secretary, G. A. Hall, Truro; secretary-treasurer, T. Williams, Moncton, N.B.

Votes of thanks were tendered the retiring president and the other officers for their good work.

C. E. Bentley, of Truro, replied on behalf of Dr. Dunbar, the new president, and thanked them for the honor.

Delegates Banqueted.

The visiting delegates to the Maritime Board of Trade were taken in automobiles donated by members of the Moncton Board of Trade, to the oil and gas wells in Albert county Thursday afternoon. On their return they were royally entertained by Mr. and Mrs. M. Lodge on the lawn at their beautiful residence on Union street. After dinner President C. W. Robinson, of the Moncton Board, who presided, proposed the health of the King, which was responded to by singing the Nathional Anthem.

The President of the United States was next proposed, and was responded to by Col. M. J. Hendricks.

Vice-President J. E. Masters proposed the City Council, which was responded to by Mayor Reilly and Aldermen Charters and Robinson.

At this stage of the proceedings Mr. Barnstead, of Halifax, addressed the gathering. He enlarged on the necessity of the provincial governments of the Maritime Provinces supplementing the efforts of the Dominion Government, and also that a greater variety of the industries must be developed in the Maritime Provinces in order to be able to secure different classes of immigrants coming to us from the Old Country.

President Robinson proposed a toast to the visiting members of the Maritime Board of Trade, which was responded to by C. F. Bentley, Truro; Wilfrid Forbes, Charlottetown; and Rev. W. T. Bates, of Newcastle.

Vice-President Masters proposed a toast to Mr. and Mrs. M. Lodge, to which Mr. Lodge replied.

Our Natural Resources was responded to by Dr. Henderson and O. P. Boggs.

The Ladies was responded to by A. M. Bell, Halifax; C. D. Cliffe, of the MacLean Publishing Co.; F. McDougall and S. W. Miller, of Millerton.

At the conclusion of the toasts, Thos. Williams, secretary of the Moncton Board, delivered a short address.

Capt. Jos. Read, of Charlottetown, on behalf of the Maritime Board thanked the members of the Moncton Board for the hospitality shown them.

The gathering broke up with singing God Save the King.

Gas and Oil Among Moncton's Resources

Destined to Become One of Our Largest Centres—Pipes Being Laid to the City—Moncton's Importance as a Railway and Industrial Centre.

Kipling said that Medicine Hat was the town that was born lucky. In this he might easily have added Moncton, N.B. "Lucky" is a poor word for Moncton when it is considered that the town has within a few miles of its limits natural gas wells and crude oil wells with power and resourcefulness said to be unequalled in the world. Already pipes are being laid for the supply of the city with gas and the lighting and heating arrangements will follow. The possibilities for supplying all the leading cities of the east are great and it will only be a matter of time when the boon of thirty-cent gas will be available everywhere in the province.

Moncton is located in the County of Westmoreland, N.B., 89 miles from St. John, northeast. It is a port at the head of navigation on the Petitcodiac river, and the seat of the large workshops and offices of the Government railway, the I. C. R. The population is about 14,000 people. It has a good harbor, fine municipal buildings, and schools, ten churches, four banks, and two daily newspapers; iron and wireworking factories, cotton, woolen and flour mills, as well as other industries.

Great Railway Centre.

The outstanding feature of Moncton is its railway headquarters. This is its great factor as far as employment of hands is concerned, as it distributes in wages and salaries every year far over a million dollars.

The Moncton and Buctouche Railways have their headquarters here also. That the city will be the eastern terminus of the new G. T. P. is a primary indication of the great possibilities before the city. One of its fine buildings is the Y. M. C. A., in the hall of which the meetings of the Maritime Board of Trade were held. There is also a fine hospital and training school for nurses; in addition to the daily papers there are three strong weeklies, numerous hotels, six wholesale houses, a large biscuit factory, barrel factory, clothing factory, brick works, bottling works, etc.

Situated at the bend of the Petitcodiac river, far famed for its natural phenomenon, "The Bore," or tidal wave, Moncton owns its own water, gas and electric plants and supplies gas and electricity for manufacturing.

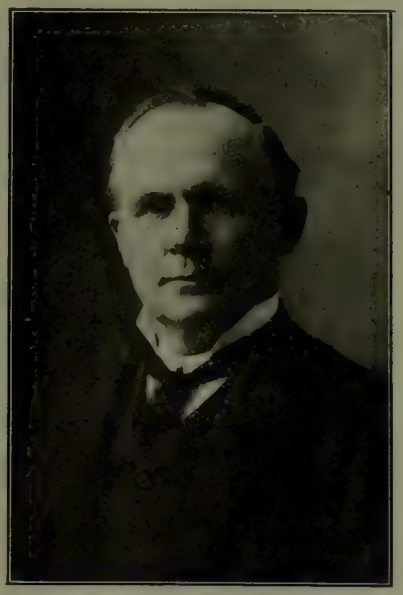
The city is the natural trade centre for the Provinces of New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and P.E.I.

Aid Given Manufacturers.

The city council has secured legislation enabling it to grant exemption from taxation industries locating here, provided the enterprises are of sufficient importance, while in many cases they go even farther and give free water and other privileges.

Landowners are disposed to be favorable and reasonable in dealing with promoters of new industries, and many of the city's largest plants are located on free sites. Labor supplies are abundant. Besides being a railway town, and having a large and growing population, Moncton is the natural centre of a large number of smaller towns from eight hundred to two thousand population—more so than any other city in the provinces.

In the east are Memramcook, St. Josephs and Shediac; in the west Salisbury, Petitcodiac and Hillsboro, and on the north, Harcourt, Buctouche, Richibucto and Rexton.



To say nothing of the natural power mentioned, the city is within easy distance of the Grand Lake coal fields, and also of the great Cumberland areas at Maccan, Joggins, River Herbert and Springhill Mines that yield a splendid quantity of coal for steaming purposes. In every way the city is an ideal manufacturing centre.

The Moncton Board of Trade showed marked energy and enterprise in its open-handed entertainment of the visiting delegates of the Maritime Board, and C. W. Robinson, Ald. Charters and others, like Mr. Marvin and F. W. Sumner and Mr. Jones, and everyone in the city of any standing deserve public congratulation for the success of the meeting.

That Moncton is destined to be one of Canada's great cities is quite feasible. New promoters of the real estate surrounding Moncton have now set to work and are inviting investors to quit taking chances on outside land-office schemes and to try the solid investment in land which promises surely to provide a patrimony enviable indeed.

Matthew Lodge, Discoverer of Gas and Oil Wells

It is an easy matter to sit back and say, "Marvelous," "He's a wonder," and all such like expressions about "Mat" Lodge now. Mr. Lodge does not mind it. He knows what suffering he has gone through in Moncton. He has discovered the oil and gas wells that lie at their very doors. At the doors in fact of the skeptics. The men who said with the wise head-shake—and some say so yet "its a fake," "Can't believe it," etc., need not worry. Mr. Lodge has now the property secured. He has the money secured, and the franchise forever.

MATTHEW LODGE,
Founder of Moncton Oil and Gas Wells.

It is as the writer said on a visit to the oil wells, "If the stars came out only once a year we would all go out to see them." These marvelous oil wells are located only a few miles from Moncton. The long wearisome fight against doubters and others who knew not, has been waged almost single-handed by "Matt" Lodge for the last twenty-five years. That he with almost superhuman prophetic instinct and determination battled it through is almost unbelievable—especially single-handed, and often with no money or sympathy to back him.

It has been said that a professor of Harvard was Mr. Lodge's saviour. He was the Joshua who led him out of groping doubt into light. He proved that the government survey of this land and the tests were all wrong, and encouraged Mr. Lodge to stick to his guns. He did. It would take too long to detail all the early struggles up to the time when Mr. Boggs came to Mr. Lodge's assistance. Mr. Boggs is one of the oldest oil men in the world. He knew the oil property the moment he saw it and being an engineer his word had weight. It had more, it had the backing of years and years of hard earned experience in the oil fields of Pennsylvania where his brain had solved many difficulties. Mr. Boggs is one of the large holders in the Moncton property to-day. They have 10,000 acres of land which for its mineral and other resources is only scratched. Mr. Lodge, Dr. Henderson and Mr. Boggs with their associates are now in that happy position of having the coin with which to go on and no aid is necessary except what they buy.

Visitors See the Oil and Gas.

The Maritime Board were guests of the local Board of Trade on the trip to the oil fields and at a farm house there was shown a gas stove fed by the natural gas flow, and all the lights were natural gas. With many "Ah's" and "Oh's" the visitors saw the gas and it was little wonder that they could scarcely believe their eyes. The delegates then climbed a steep hill accompanied by Mr. Boggs, who took them to a natural gas well and gave a demonstration.

He told them about the crude oil which they saw being pumped out of the wells 1,400 to 2,000 feet deep and still more wonderment.

He told them that there was gas pressure enough to supply a dozen cities like Moncton, and really, it was almost unvelievable because of the crude wild-looking place where the shafts are sunk.

What natural gas and oil has done for Pittsburg it can surely do for Moncton, and an artist poet's dream could scarcely tell what the future may be. The Maritime Oilfields, Limited, have eleven producing wells with a daily capacity of forty million cubic feet of gas. Only the fringe of the possibilities has been touched and every day sees new things.

Thirty cent gas is offered industries to come to Moncton.

A special article is to be prepared later and reference here is largely to accenuate Matthew Lodge, the man, who looks like the late President McKinley, so much that in England he was taken for him. It was Mr. and Mrs. Lodge who entertained the visiting delegates to a banquet on their beautiful grounds on grassy floors where hospitality ruled supreme.

BRUNSWICK HOTEL, MONCTON.

The leading hotel of Moncton is the Brunswick, admirably located opposite the station of the I. C. R. It is far enough away from the station, however, to avoid noise and traffic disturbances and has the advantage of a beautiful garden, which is the talk of Moncton.

The building is large and commodious and comfort is the watchword of the hotel throughout. Accommodation is provided for travelers in large numbers, and most of the leading men stay at the Brunswick. This is caused by the homelike attentions shown by the staff, and the manager, Harry Twigger, who has a host of friends with the traveling public.

Mr. Twigger aims at service and does the best possible with the means at his disposal.

The dining room is always supplied with the latest table delicacies in season, and for the low rate charged, the Brunswick compares favorably with any hotel in the province. Large parlors and waiting rooms afford special comfort for ladies, and the writing room and rotunda are first-class accessories to a good house.

Excellent sample rooms are provided and special attention is paid to the highest-class commercial trade. Tourists in the summer find the house a splendid resting-place, and the gardens have been admired by guests from the four corners of the globe.

Owned by Geo. McSweeney, the house has been famous for its political associations. The big banquets are invariably held at the Brunswick. Mr. McSweeney is one of the best known men in New Brunswick. "Bob," the porter, is a general favorite. The banquet given this summer to the British journalists was held there.

J. FRED STEEVES.

No reference to Moncton business men would be complete without mention being made to J. Frederick Steeves, wholesale grocer and provision merchant, who conducts a thriving trade, not only in his own province, but in all the Maritime Provinces, as well as considerable export and import business in provisions, grains and kindred lines.

It is a little over two years since Mr. Steeves launched his present wholesale venture, having for many years been engaged in a large and successful retail general store business in Moncton.

A specialty is made of quality in all lines and in the grain and flour department Mr. Steeves has made a study of close buying and has facilities for giving good value at all times. He is a close student of the markets and thus his customers get the benefit. When the announcement is made, "Special price car lots," this means something with this firm, and no order is too large to handle promptly. Oats, flour, feed and provisions include the leaders, but a full line of staple and fancy groceries is carried.

The place of business is eligibly located in the heart of the city at 6 Cable Street, and shipping facilities are of the best. Mr. Steeves is in every sense a representative business man and takes a keen interest in the welfare of Moncton.

The business is steadily increasing from year to year.

TOOMBS & SON, PROVISION IMPORTERS AND SHIPPERS.

A thoroughly representative firm in Moncton is that of Toombs & Son, provision importers and shippers, who, for the past thirty-one years or more, have been established as leaders in these lines in the east. The business has steadily grown from year to year and now ranks easily as the largest of its kind in this section of the country, in fact, in the east. It was founded by Benjamin Toombs, and latterly has been carried on by his son, Jack Toombs. The firm has been known for enterprise and ability and have always been identified with the prosperity and general welfare of Moncton.

A specialty is made of flour, meal, feed, grain, apples and fish; also pork, lard, bacon, cheese, etc. Eggs, butter, oysters, potatoes and hay come in for an immense trade, as well as seeds and fertilizers. Thus it will be seen that large and important trade is done. The Messrs. Toombs are among the leading merchants.

J. A. MARVIN, LIMITED.

The biscuit works of the J. A. Marvin Co., of Moncton, are a credit to the east. They are equipped from basement to attic with the newest and most modern machinery necessary or useful in carrying on this branch of trade. A perfect system of manufacturing is employed as well.

The new sheeter, which has just been installed, was manufactured by P. D. Harton, of Philadelphia. They also have one of Thos. L. Green & Co.'s latest cutting machines, which is a combination machine used for the manufacturing of "White Lily" cream sodas, as well as for various lines of sweet biscuits. This machine is used in the cutting of Fluted Vanilla Bars, Cocoanut Gems, Victoria Bars, Strawberry Bars, Chocolate Bars, Havelock Lunch, Social Teas, Arrowroot, Ice Cream Wafers, Sugar Wafers, Vanilla Bars, Chocolate Marsh Mallows, Honey Jumbles, Honey Bars, Ginger Snaps, Ginger Wafers, etc.

They also have installed one of Harton's fig bar machines, which manufactures the "Newton Fig Bar," which has grown so popular of late. Another of the machines which they have just installed is a marsh mallow beater. This machine is used by all the leading bakers of the United States and is capable of turning out the finest marsh mallow goods obtainable. Another of their new machines is a scientific grinder. This machine is used for pulverizing sugar. Other new machinery is a box folder, ginger grinder and fig grinder. Altogether, the machinery has been put in at a cost of about $8,000.

One is impressed upon entering the second floor of this factory, with the "conveyors." This is another improvement which is well worthy of note. The cleanliness with which the goods are handled, also the neat appearance of the female staff employed as packers is a feature. They are supplied with clean caps and aprons by the company, free of charge.

It might be here mentioned that the "White Lily" brand of biscuits were awarded the gold medal at the Dominion Exhibition held at St. John in 1910.

The raw materials are kept in the basement, which, by the way, has a concrete flooring, rendering it a sanitary compartment for the purpose.

Mr. Marvin was prominently identified with the Maritime Board during the convention.

M. WOOD & SONS, SACKVILLE, N.B.

One of the finest of the wholesale grocery houses of the east is that of M. Wood & Sons, Sackville, N.B. This is not surprising when it is known that it has been established ever since away back in 1828. The founder was Mariner Wood, one of the pioneers of Sackville. His son, now Senator Josiah Wood, continued the business, and now the sons of Josiah are in command. They have evolved things in the modern store that old men would marvel at. The premises are among the finest to be seen anywhere. The handsome red sandstone building is fitted throughout with all modern conveniences, with fine offices of modern construction and style, and the latest shipping facilities, with warehousing capacity unsurpassed by any place. They carry on a wholesale jobbing business all over the provinces and have a branch at Sydney, C.B., under the name of Wood & McConnell. They are large exporters of hay and also deal in eggs and dairy produce. Their business is sterling and well-handled.

St. John's Great Shipping Facilities

Government Shipyards to be Established There—Many Manufacturing Establishments—Important Tourist Centre.

St. John still continues to go ahead with leaps and bounds. The latest impetus given the place is the Government shipbuilding yards, which are about to be established there, giving employment to over a thousand hands to start. On the other hand, business activity was never more marked in the city. New enterprises receive every encouragement and the convenient railway connections make shipping facilities unrivalled. It has excellent river and ocean navigation and is the great Atlantic winter port of the Dominion, the C. P. R. running their fleet there all winter.

Raw materials of all descriptions are easily obtained, and the finished products can be shipped handily and with profit.

The climate is unequalled anywhere, being scarcely over 75 in the day at the hottest, and always cool at night. Tourists flock there in the summer, and the trip across the Bay of Fundy to Digby is an ideal one.

Some of the industries at present making the town hum are the manufacturing of cotton, pulp, lime quarries, the fruit and produce trade, and the fishing industry. Many varieties of wholesale trade are carried on, and the city is easily in the front rank of Canadian centres.

The Board of Trade is one of the most active in Canada, and is always in the forefront wherever St. John's interests are concerned.

G. E. BARBOUR & CO.

No wholesale grocers in the east have established a more enviable name and trade than have G. E. Barbour & Co., St. John, N.B. They do a large and growing staple and fancy grocery trade all over the provinces, and are considered among the leading grocers of the east.

Their service is what they claim to be superior to all others, and in specializing upon this they ask in their clever ads. that the merchants of the small towns avail themselves of this. They study localities and try to supply the lines that will bring most profit in certain particular sections of the provinces. They are careful buyers and give their customers the benefit of this. In manufacturing spices, etc., they excell along the same lines and have minimized the chance of any inconvenience to customers.

Satisfaction is guaranteed all along the line and all their special agencies are carefully watched. These include Goodwillie's fruit in glass, Holbrook's pickles and sauces, Wm. P. Hartley's jams and marmalades and many others. They have recently purchased King Cole tea and are driving it into popularity as rapidly as their popular organization alone can.

It is always a pleasure to do business with this firm, and probably no greater compliment can be paid any firm.

C. H. McDONALD, THE TEA MAN.

Charlie McDonald began the tea business a few years ago in a small way, comparatively, and he has by dint of great ability and close concentration built up an enviable trade all over the provinces for his famous blend, "Red Clover." He makes a specialty of blending, and has studied the tea business thoroughly. The steady increase in his specially imported teas blended by himself is the best testimony to his success in pleasing his customers.

THE CROSBY MOLASSES CO., LTD.

The Crosby Molasses Co., of St. John, has steadily grown in prominence from year to year, and to-day ranks among the leading houses of the kind in the Dominion. They have a large western business and import their own molasses specially selected and direct. They make a specialty of prompt service and high quality of molasses of various grades. Mr. Crosby, Sr., is one of St. John's leading citizens, and formerly took an active interest in the Maritime Board of Trade. He is interested in the welfare of the provinces and is a keen business man. Fred Crosby, secretary of the company, travels a great deal, and is a wide-awake, capable young man, who has risen in prominence largely through his own untiring energy and pleasing manner. This year there has been a shortage of some canned fruits, and molasses should have a stimulated sale.

Advantage of Nova Scotia's Capital

Halifax, the City Beautiful—Many Natural Picturesque Spots—Superior Educational Facilities—Open Winter Port.

Halifax is the city beautiful. All the glamour of its military traditions lives only as history. Business in all forms is the watchword there to-day. Industries have been encouraged and enlarged, and Halifax is gradually coming into its own. The business men are nearly all in the happy position of having money and they use it to still further promote business, and at the same time enjoy life. They long ago not only knew how to make a living, but how to make life worth living.

The natural beauty of the harbor and its surroundings, the Arm and the public gardens, coupled with the historic spots of beauty, and the fine yacht clubs, and social clubs, combine to make Halifax a pleasant place to visit.

The prosperity which is covering the Dominion is dominant in the east, and Halifax is sharing abundantly.

That the C. P. R. now have control of the D. A. R. is established, and has created a spirit of new hope down there which should prove a big commercial asset later on.

The educational facilities of Halifax are unequalled anywhere. Their schools include military schools, business colleges, medical schools, two theological schools, two conservatories of music, the Ladies' College, seven convents and a university for higher education.

The open port in winter is a great advantage, and every facility is afforded for shipping the year round.

The Board of Trade of the city is one of the most active and important in Canada, having a membership of over 600. E. A. Saunders, the secretary, is an energetic and capable man. He was at the Maritime Board meeting, and wherever he is, his ideas are dominant.

SMITH & PROCTOR.

When "Blue Nose" butter is mentioned, the name that at once comes to mind is that of Smith & Proctor, one of the largest dairy firms, not only in the east, but in Canada. They make a specialty of dairy work, and have made this one brand of butter, "Blue Nose," famous all over the world, in fact. It is made from the finest of cream available in the splendid pastoral lands of the Island Province, as well as the selected products of other sections of the east, and is guaranteed to be as fine as the dairymaker's art can get it from the standpoint of purity and copiousness of flavor and taste. Their trade extends all over the Dominion and has increased latterly in leaps and bounds. Prompt, efficient service at all times, coupled with the guarantee that all goods are just as represented, has given them the confidence of the largest buyers, and at the same time the assurance of a continued trade unprecedented in the provinces.

THE ACADIA SUGAR REFINERY.

The Acadia Sugar Refinery Co. have taken on a new lease of life lately and their business was never so good. The new staff of officers are energetically aiming at enlarged markets and are getting them. How? Simply by having gone after them, defying competition in the excellent goods manufactured and the variety of grades, all of the finest sugar, which will suit a diversity of trade everywhere. Mr. Daviss, the secretary, is keen, alive and careful and his directors, Messrs. Brand and Smith, have backed him up in his progressive steps since he took charge. They have increased their facilities and shipments are prompt at all times and a steadily growing business is being done.

I.C.R.'S PASSENGER MAN.

J. B. Lambkin seems to be getting younger every year as the passenger agent of the I.C.R. at Halifax. "Jim" as he is familiarly known has fitted in beautifully down east and has won the good-will and respect of all who know him there just as he did years ago all over the West.

This year he was as usual about the Halifax Hotel and other places showing his tireless energy in looking after the comfort of visitors. It is his pleasure to show people how they can best enjoy themselves in the city beautiful and ultimately use the I.C.R. unconsciously to see other beauty spots about which James can make such splendid "spiels." He is the kind of man one would like to meet at Christmas time as he is always in good humor, always entertaining and bubbling over with a contagious form of enthusiasm that never wears out. "Keep it up Jim," is what his host of friends say and more power to the I.C.R. to select others who have the capacity to make the government road more popular every year.

The MacLaren Imperial Cheese Co., Limited, beg to advise the wholesale and retail grocer that they will have in the Manufacturers' Building at the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, two of their best demonstrators demonstrating MacLarens' Imperial products. Our W. H. Wilson will be in charge, and will be pleased to receive a visit from any of the grocers and their friends when visiting this Exhibition, which displays the greatness of Canadian enterprise and industry.—Advt.

Equipped With Modern Conveniences

New Brunswick Store Built to Give Best Possible Service and With a View to Sanitary Conditions—Fish and Meat Departments Separate From Grocery, but Under Same Roof—List of the Equipment and Value of Each.

For neatness of design, rich and attractive decorations and up-to-date equipment, the grocery, meat and fish stores, opened at the corner of Charlotte and Duke streets, St. John, N.B., by Vanwart Bros. during the latter part of April, will compare favorably with many of the best in Canada.

Everything that tends to make a store attractive to the buying public, and modern appliances for quickly and efficiently catering to the wants of customers, have been installed, and only the most recent devices for the proper displaying of goods have been placed in position. J. W. Vanwart, who is the sole proprietor, after his thirty years of experience, realizes the importance of having his goods as attractively displayed as possible, and also the value of modern appliances for cleanly and proper handling of food stuffs. The store presents a very pleasing appearance, and even the most unattractive looking lines of goods may be displayed to the best possible advantage.

The building occupied by Vanwart Bros. for many years was sold, and this made a move necessary. Fortunately, Mr. Vanwart was the owner of the building across the street, and though the task was a big one, involving the digging of a new cellar under the whole premises, and the remodelling of the ground floor, he decided to take up its occupancy, and architects were at once set to work on the plans. The beautiful new store which is a source of admiration from passers-by, and an impetus to the increase of business, was the result.

Metal Ceiling Installed.

Three separate stores formerly took up the space in the premises now occupied by Vanwart Bros., and they have now been merged into one, though the three separate entrances have been maintained. The centre of the grocery store, a large square room, is entered through the main door-way, and here is seen a new floor of a cement device which is both durable and attractive. Steel, painted white, forms the ceiling, and it is divided into large blocks by the heavy cross beams, which add to the general attractiveness and originality of design in the big room.

Sanitary Bin Fixtures.

Mr. Vanwart has regarded with care the economical side of the storing of goods to advantage in the arrangement of his bins or large cases, which are to be seen beneath shelvings, all of oak, each with a glass cover and designed so as to allow of its being easily tipped forward, giving immediate and convenient access to its contents. They make it possible for an enormous stock to be carried very economically.

Modern show cases of the latest and most approved design, are in evidence in front of these bins. These are used as counters, and as they have glass fronts, through them is presented an opportunity to display to advantage many lines of goods, while reserve stock is provided for in the shelves behind the glass.

Counter for Holding Barrels.

At the rear of the room a counter has been fitted with devices for holding barrels of flour, sugar, etc., and it is so arranged that the clerk has easy access to the contents because of the barrels being placed so as to be swung about with ease.

The shelves run to the ceiling, and to enable the clerks to easily reach any desired article on any of them with comparative ease and quickness, four ladders, similar to those employed in shoe stores, running on little tracks on the floor, have been placed in position.

The fittings throughout are all beautiful in design and finish and are entirely in harmony with the general design of the room, and represent the newest and most modern suggestions in the way of fixtures for up-to-date grocery stores.

The effectiveness of the display is increased through the installation of handsome plate glass mirrors in the southern and western walls, as well as in one of the walls beside a plate glass show window.

Panelled Glass Ceiling.

Either through the main store, or direct from the street one may reach the meat and fish stores, where is repeated the general attractiveness in finish and design, which called for so much admiration and commendation in the main grocery store. The fittings are of the latest and most novel creations, while the floors are of the Tarana cement used in the main floor. The walls are finished in white tiles with a white glass panelled ceiling, while on each wall are numerous glass brackets for the display of goods. The meat racks are of approved style, fitted with up-to-date appliances, while the chopping blocks in appearance resemble large pieces of furniture. On this floor is a modern glass and marble refrigerator, for butter and other goods which need to be kept cool, while a large rack for green vegetables, is seen at the back.

The Water Sprayer.

The goods on this rack are kept constantly fresh and green by means of a water sprayer, which ensures cleanliness as well. On the same floor with the meat department is the office, opening off which are a cloak room, and lavatory.

For cleanliness, satisfaction and general attractiveness, the fish store vies with the meat department. Marble counters are used for the display of the fish, while the cleaning work is done in a tiled tank with a marble bottom. Numerous glass shelves are in use on the walls, and the fish are handled in a cleanly and sanitary way by the clerks, through the assistance of every requisite device of recent design.

Water Flows Down the Window.

An innovation which is greatly appreciated is the installation of a device which makes it possible to direct a stream of water down the whole length of the big plate glass windows in both the fish and meat stores, which is a valuable aid to the sanitary condition of the shop, and tends to effectively rid the place of flies in warm weather.

The Oil Tank.

Another innovation in the store is a modern kerosene oil pump, of the automatic measuring kind, which connects with a big tank in the cellar. The premises in this way are kept entirely clear of the smell of oil, as the tank is filled by a pipe which leads from the yard.

With electricity as the operating power, other modern devices of valuable service, have been installed, such as a bone cutter and knife grinder, combined, in the meat store, and an improved coffee grinder in the grocery store. A vegetable display stand is still another of the many expense-lessening devices. Particularly effective and attractive are the electrical fixtures in the roomy windows and throughout the three stores as well, providing for an abundance of light.

The Elevator.

In order to handle the goods more easily an elevator has been placed in the store which will permit of articles being hauled to the alley on Duke street and from there taken into the main store or landed in the cellar, whichever is desirable. Ample storage space is provided in the cellar, while the room in which the hot-water furnace is situated, is closed off from the rest of the premises.

A comfortably and thoroughly modern barn has been fitted up for the horses of the firm, and one of its unique features is the fact that the horses have their stables not on the ground floor, which is usually the case, but on the second storey, which is reached by an incline winding about the building. The carriages are found on the ground floor.

Mr. Vanwart has found that in his thirty years experience it pays to have attractive fixtures for the showing of his goods, almost as much as it is of value to have the best class of reliable wares to display.

Montreal, Aug. 24.—There is a rather marked improvement in the grocery business this week in contrast to the quietness that was noted a week ago. Orders have been larger and more numerous and business is in a much more healthy condition. This is accounted for partially by the return of people from the various summer resorts. They have returned to their homes and their purchases are appreciable, as might be expected after their absence from the centres of trade.

Another reason is the first touch of cool weather. With the approach of September there is a re-awakening of business after the summer lapse. During the past few days the nights have been noticeably cooler than usual and it would seem that a sudden departure had been made from the decided summer conditions that have prevailed. Not only is business brisk, but collections are satisfactory, although one wholesaler not so long ago pointed to several large drafts that had been returned to him without any explanation. He fancied the coming elections were to blame but this does not seem to be general.

One house asserts that there has not been as marked an influence as was expected. The people are turning out in larger numbers than ever to the various meetings, but this is not the disturbing factor that might be expected of it.

Sugar.—The sugar market is firmer with the general expectations being for an advance in refined before long. Raw sugars are higher and the reports from Europe are anything but rosy. The demand for refined is steady and should be heavy when plums, gages, peaches and pears are at the height of their season. The situation is tense and the market conditions indicate firm markets with higher prices more than probable.

Dried Fruits.—New evaporated apples are on the market at fifteen cents. Prunes have entirely disappeared and the new price is not encouraging. Prunes are expected to rule high. Tea.—A recent report says the market shows a decided advance during the past month for all grades of tea, the movement being especially marked in the commonest kinds. Better grades have shown improved quality, and this has also affected prices. The great activity displayed toward the end of July was brought about by information from the producing countries of a falling off in supplies. Shipments to the United Kingdom from Calcutta for the first half of July showed a decline of two and one-half million pounds as compared with the corresponding period last year.

In Ceylon and South India a severe drought has been experienced which has caused a heavy shrinkage in supplies. The small estimate of ten million pounds for the month of July has not been reached, and the estimate for August shows no increase over last year. From China, alarmist reports have been received as to the scarcity of low grade tea, and while it is as yet too early to say what ultimate supplies will be, it is certain that there is going to be no excess, while low price Monings are practically non-existent in London, and at the present not to be bought in Hankon.

Canned Goods.

MONTREAL.—According to one report the outlook for corn and tomatoes is rather encouraging, better than was expected at one time. It seems that the whiole trend in the canned goods market is upward. Recent reports in regard to French peas announce an appreciable advance, and quite a number of figures have been changed in the list of late.

Belgian peas have been advanced from five to sixteen francs, and to those who forget their foreign exchange, a franc is equivalent to twenty cents. The first pea crop in Belgium was a failure and supplies that should have reached here by August 1 will not arrive until the middle of September. The second crop is just being packed now and it is from this that supplies will be taken. The representative of The Grocer saw one order for 400 cases of corn and 400 of tomatoes. Peas were a blank. The particular house did not have any goods. Their customers only received a percentage of their orders. The peas asked for by this buyer will probably be foreign unless they are forthcoming from some other source. Spot tomatoes pass from jobber to jobber at $1.35. There is every likelihood that peas will be high. One price has been rumoured, but it is not yet in existence although altogether likely to be quoted before long. There will be very few raspberries left after orders are filled. Canned goods are receiving considerable attention just now and they require it. It looks as if plums, pears and peaches will show a good crop.

TORONTO.—According to general reports, the prospects for tomatoes and corn are quite favorable. However, a recent report from the Picton district states that tomatoes are progressing not so favorably, although corn looks good. In regard to the size of the pack much depends on the latter part of the season and how early frost arrives. "From present conditions I believe," said a canned goods broker, "that prices won't show much difference from last year when prices opened at $1.15 to $1.17½. There are some of the new pack on the market, as dealers have been clamoring for them, so they will not have to import any more. They are worth from $1.50 to $1.60."

Blueberries is another line which general reports say will be extremely short this year. They are mostly packed in Nova Scotia and some of the canners in that province have withdrawn prices. One firm is quoting 2s at $1 per dozen and gallons at $4.15. One jobber said: "I believe that the percentage delivered to this market will be extremely small, and are not quoting prices until we see what we get." Packing of this line is still going on.

The French and Belgium pea crop has been nearly a complete failure and the pack, according to one wholesaler, will only be one-third of an average. The dry, hot weather prevalent in these countries is the cause and prices have been advanced from $1 to $1.50 per case. Last year there was a considerable amount imported into this country.

The salmon pack will not be any larger than was expected, and will be, according to report, below that of last year. The future cannot bring forth much improvement as humpbacks have appeared in Puget Sound, a sign that the Sockeye run is nearing an end. There is a feeling that the best sockeye will open at a figure that will mean $2.25 to the retail trade. "Cheaper grades will be higher also," said a canned goods broker, "but not in proportion to the advance in better grades. I believe there will still be pinks to retail at 15 cents or 2 for 25 cents." The fishermen on the Fraser river are petitioning the government for an extension of the season from August 25 to September 15.

The prospects for the pack of peaches and plums are favorable.

Toronto, Aug. 24.—A good healthy trade is now in evidence according to reports of local wholesalers and an appreciable volume of goods is being sent out to the trade. Prospects point to an excellent fall business, and with the good collections, even now present, jobbers are well satisfied with trade conditions.

Opening prices on salmon have been expected for some time but as yet have not been named, although they may be at any moment now.

Sugar.—No further change has occurred in refined sugar, but strength is not at all lacving. Reports from Europe concerning the beet crop do not tend to ease the market at all and raws are firmly held. Cuban supplies are about cleaned up and refiners are now looking elsewhere for supplies. A further advance in United States refined is anticipated, and a similar change in Canadian would not be a surprise. The movement continues good and with larger fruit supplies should be heavy.

Dried Fruits.—In spot stocks, there is practically nothing available in such lines as prunes, apricots and peaches. Currants and raisins are about the only lines in which any trade is being done.

As noted last week, there is a firmer tendency in new crop Valencia raisins, there being a feeling among sellers that the speculative prices named by some firms were too low. There is even yet a big variation in quotations, the majority around 23 shillings, or at least orders have been booked at that price for early shipment to arrive the middle of October. "The dry weather has been the cause of the stronger feeling," said one dealer, "but still raisins are not as high as last year and the retailer will be able to sell them at 3 pounds for 25 cents." New crop currant prices are practically stationary at the present time. "Prices are fairly moderate in my opinion," said one broker, "and are a trifle lower than last year."

Coffee.—Locally, and also in the general situation, coffee is steady at the present time. Just what the future will bring forth, there is some difference of opinion. New crop seems to be moving forward somewhat slowly. Interest is now beginning to centre more or less in the estimates as to the crop of 1912 to 1913, but it is as yet too early to obtain an accurate idea as to what this crop will be. Trade locally maintains an average volume despite the fact that some of the cheaper grades have advanced from 4 to 5 cents in the past year.

Rice and Tapioca.—The drought in India has been responsible for boosting prices in the lower grades of rice by the amount of 15 cents per hundredweight. Standard B. on our list is accordingly marked up, single sacks on a Toronto basis now being $3.15. Primary markets on Patna are also higher by the amount of ½ cent. One dealer reports that Rangoon is the largest seller in country districts and Japan in the city. Tapioca is steady in price.

"Foreign beans, mostly from Austria and Rangoon, are being imported into Canada," said one dealer, "at a much less cost than home grown. While quality and flavor is not equal, they are selling and affording some relief to the situation."

Winnipeg, Aug. 24.—"Never have prospects been so bright for fall trade," is the unanimous opinion of the wholesale grocery houses of Winnipeg, which can be taken as a fairly good mouthpiece for the entire western trade. Harvesting may be said to be general, and, in fact, large areas of the crop have already been cut and show little damage by black rust. A light touch of frost has in different localities impaired the grade of the grain somewhat, but on the whole an average crop will be reaped, at least over the larger part of the west, and as a result the feeling is reflected in the trade. Upon enquiry as regards damage done by rust, one of the largest houses replied, "So far we have been unable to confirm any reports from information we have received from our travelers. About this period of the year the collection departments generally become active, notifying country and local merchants of payments due on notes after harvest. If the crop is in any way damaged we always receive enquiries for extension of time, but so far this year there has been little hedging whatever, and all indicate the intention of making payment in the fall

Sugar—The advance in sugar has been temporarily checked, and prices remain unchanged from last week. The demand is just as strong, with high prices, as when it was considerably lower two months ago. Southern markets are still active, and consequently the local one is keeping in sympathy with it.

Peas, split, 100 lbs.	2 75

NEW BRUNSWICK.

St. John, N.B., Aug. 24.—The fine weather of the past week or more has been responsible for an increase in trade with the local grocers and has especially given an impetus to the sales of camping supplies. The market, however, for the most part, was quiet, and few changes were recorded. Flour is still on the upward trend, further advances being noted this week. This is also true with molasses, while cheese and eggs are advanced slightly as well.

Local grocers are unable to receive more than sixty per cent. of their orders of peas, owing to the shortage in the crop. In most cases this will not meet the demand, as the orders for peas are heavy. The price on peas had gone up, on this account, also. The following are the market prices:

NOVA SCOTIA MARKETS.

Halifax, Aug. 24.—Business is excellent on the local grocery market, and some large orders are being filled for points in the province. Dealers report that so far this month business is of greater volume than for the same month of last year.

The provision market is showing considerable strength in beef, pork and lard.

There is a shortage of Valencia onions on the local market. All the available stock has been cleaned up, but some new stock is expected next week. Egyptian onions are quoted 2¾ to 3 cents per pound and Valencias at 2½ cents. There has been a decided drop in the price of tomatoes. Ten-pound baskets of local stock are selling at 40 cents. Local dealers have been notified by canners that canned tomatoes will open at higher prices than last season.

The sugar markets continue firm. Extra standard granulated is now quoted at $5.40, United Empire $5.30, bright yellow $5.20. No. 1 yellow $4.90, and unbranded $4.75. Sugar is in extra good demand, despite the high prices. Rice has been advanced half cent per pound. There is an improved demand for flour. Manitobas are quoted at $6.15 to $6.25, and Ontario blends $5.10 to $5.20. Rolled oats in barrels $5.40 to $5.50, and corn meal, $1.60 to $1.75. Hand-picked beans are selling at $2.40 to $2.45, and beans prime, $2.20 to $2.30.

Toronto Grocers in Monthly Session

Trade Problems Discussed and Dealt With—Newspapers are Censured—Travelers Criticized for Certain Practices — Association in Favor of Fruit Display By-law—Wholesalers Should Not Sell to Consumers— Drug Stores Cutting on Laundry Soaps.

Staff Correspondence.

Toronto, Aug. 24.—The Toronto Grocers' Association met in monthly session at the Temple Building on Monday night, when questions concerning the welfare of the members were discussed and dealt with.

It was reported that fruit was still being displayed contrary to the fruit by-law and in many cases not even covered with netting which the medical health officer had allowed until permanent methods of display were arranged. Many of those present were in favor of putting everything inside which would be the most sanitary method and would allow no loophole through which offending dealers might escape. Members of the association are strongly in favor of sanitary display and it was moved by D. Bell, and seconded by B. Snow that a letter be sent to the M.H.O. endorsing his action in enforcing the by-law.

Think Newspapers are Unfair.

Some of the newspapers were censured for pointing out to readers the difference between fruit prices ruling at the fruit markets and up-town stores, as the prices at the fruit market are wholesale, and the papers do not take into consideration the retailer's necessary profit, the cost of services, etc.

This discussion lead into the question of wholesalers selling to consumers and several instances were brought out where consumers had secured goods at the same price as they (the retailers) could purchase at.

Indiscreet Travelers.

Some travelers also came in for their share of criticism. It appears that some retailers have a real grievance against them. Some of the knights of the grip after their week's trip in the country will come into retail stores and tell how cheap dealers are selling butter and eggs in the country. This in itself would not be objected to by the merchants, but these pointers are generally given to the grocer when customers are in the store thus causing those customers to think that they are being charged an exorbitant price for their produce.

In most cases this was done thoughtlessly by the travelers who do not think of results nor of the cost of getting this produce to their individual stores..

Drug Stores Cutting Laundry Soap.

R. Davies reported that many drug stores were cutting in on the soap trade and selling all kinds of laundry soap at six bars for 25 cents, while the department stores were also selling at the same price.

President Miller cited an instance where a window display was made in a drug store of several laundry soaps at 5 bars for 19 cents. Some of the members said that they never heard anything more from customers about soap, but J. Blood reminded them that, "People may not say anything about it, but they will go and buy elsewhere."

W. J. Swain and R. J. Dale, both of Bloor street, were proposed for membership.

WIDE-AWAKE METHODS.

What Merchants Are Doing to Increase Their Profits.

Has Receiving and Cost Books.

Quebec, Aug. 24.—Joseph Dubuc, a retail grocery clerk, has particular methods of keeping tab on the cost price of all articles. "At first," he states, "we had only a receiving book, in which was entered the goods as received. At the top of the page of this book was placed the wholesaler's or manufacturer's name from whom the goods were received, followed by the date, the article and the price. To ascertain the price of goods received some months ago by this book was a rather slow proceeding, as we had to turn over several pages to find it.

"It is for this reason that we find a cost price book necessary also. In the cost book is the page number of the entry in the receiving book, where the name of the wholesaler and the quantity is found. While it is necessary to have these two books together, still the work is greatly facilitated."

In order to know at a moment's notice the price of such articles as currants, Mr. Dubuc places a card on the box. On this card is marked the date of receipt, the cost price and the wholesaler's name.

Dealers and Clerks should remember that sanitary conditions must always exist in the store. Our cartoonist represents a dealer blowing his breath into a bag to inflate it.
